7.4 P.C. Raise Granted on Freight Rates

Award Will Yield About 28 Millions Yearly to Railways

New Rates May be Applied On Fifteen Days' Notice

Ottawa, March - — (CP) — A general increase of 7.4 per cent in railway freight rates was authorized today by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The commissioners ruled that an interim eight-per-cent increase granted to the railways last September should be boosted to 16 per cent over the rates prevailing before the award. This amounts to 7.4 per cent over current rates.

The increase is applicable to most traffic within Canada except grain and grain products moving within Western Canada, which are exempted, and coal and coke, upon which the board authorized an increase of seven cents a ton on top of eight cents a ton awarded in September.

15 Days' Notice Required

The railways are expected to apply the increase to the full extent of the award except on competitive rates — those that have been depressed to meet competition — on which they will modify any rises in accord with competitive factors.

The award, it was estimated unofficially, will yield the railways a gross of about $28,000,000 a year.

The new rates may be put into effect by the railways on 15 days' notice.

A three-man panel of the board headed by Hugh Wardrope, Assistant Chief Commissioner, delivered the board's decision.

The judgment, which came within four percentage points of the full amount of a 20-per-cent application filed originally by the railways in 1948, was unanimous.

Long-Term Sentence Given Barrows

New York, March 1 — (CP) — Mitch Barrows was sentenced to serve from 20 to 30 years for the first-degree slaughter of Alan Mackellar, prominent Montreal business man.

In imposing the maximum sentence, Judge John E. Hirsh branded the 20-year-old Grand Rapids, Mich., youth "a sexual maniac" and "a menace to society."

Barrows, husky former high school athlete, was convicted in the slaying of Mackellar, 56-year-old vice-president of Dominion Textiles, Limited, after the jury heard the case in January.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 1 (CP)— Synopsis: March was ushered in by snow-line and cold weather temperatures. Snow and cloudy skies prevailed with winds of variable speed and temperatures to rise above zero in Southern Ontario and in the Northern part of the province, while Southern Texas continued in a blistering 92.

The next two days give promise of being almost as cold as during the previous cold snap with minimum temperatures dropping well below zero in Northern Ontario and reaching 10 to 15 in Southern

Unemployment Total up 2,700 In Two Weeks

Ottawa, March 1 —(CP)— Unemployment in Canada increased by 2,700 during the two weeks ended Feb. 16, the Labor Department reported today.

At that date, there were 378,300 persons seeking work through the National Employment Service, the department said in a periodic review of the employment situation.

This compared with 375,600 jobless at Feb. 2, 323,000 at Jan. 13 and 281,000 at Dec. 23.

A peak of 380,900 was reached in mid-January when the total tapered off to the Feb. 16 figure.

Dealing with the decline between Feb. 9 and 16, the department said the drop was greatest in the Pacific region, where 3,600 fewer jobless were reported. It attributed this to improved weather conditions which enabled lumbermen, sawmill and construction workers to return to their jobs.

However, the Pacific decline was offset to some extent by increases in unemployed in the Maritimes and Quebec. Slight declines were also reported from Ontario and the Prairies.

Definite Improvement

The department said information received from most local employment offices "points to a definite improvement in the employment situation."

Patient Was Dead When Dr. Sander Arrived Fellow Physician Testifies

Manchester, N.H., March 1 — (AP) — The defence today read into the records a statement by a fellow physician that Mrs. Abbie Borroto was dead before Dr. Herman N. Sander ever reached her bedside.

The statement allegedly was made by Dr. Albert Snay, who examined the cancer-ridden woman the morning of Dec. 4 a few minutes before Dr. Sander is alleged to have injected air into her veins.

Sander is on trial on a charge of first-degree murder.

Dr. Snay was quoted as saying he carefully examined Mrs. Borroto, found no pulse, no reflex or the eyeball, no heart sound through a stethoscope and therefore:

"I concluded then that she was dead."

"The patient appeared to be gone," said Dr. Snay's statement. Dr. Sander walked in, and I said something to the effect there is nothing to be done."

Earlier, a state medical witness at the Sander murder-poisoning trial admitted that a physician might make a mistake in judging whether a patient was alive or dead.

Under cross-examination, the county medical referee, Robert E. Biron, was asked by Sander's defence lawyer:

"On the question of judging life and death, a physician whose emotions are strongly moved — such a physician may make a mistake about whether a patient is alive or dead?"

Dr. Sander is accused of injecting air into the veins of 59-year-old Mrs. Abbie Borroto as she lay dying of cancer.

MAN AND WOMAN FOUND BURNED IN BOX CAR

Charred Bodies Found Lying on Rubber Bales

Hamilton, March 1 — (CP) — Police investigating the death today of a man and a woman in a blazing boxcar loaded with crude rubber tentatively identified the man as C. H. Landrey of Toronto, formerly of Halifax. The woman was not identified.

A burned letter addressed to Landrey was found on the man's body. It was written by Landrey's sister in Halifax, whose identity has not been established.

One theory is that the victims, in their late 20s or early 30s, boarded the boxcar in Halifax. Another is that they were in the car here We.'esday night and started a fire to warm themselves.

Police said that the pair may have been trapped in the car through error and started the fire to attract attention of their plight.

The cargo of crude rubber was destroyed in the blaze.

The victims, both in their early thirties, were not identified.

The woman's body was found to the ground with several bundles of rubber. Firemen with crowbars pried open the car door. The body was burned beyond recognition, firemen said. The head and one leg were separated from the rest of the body.

Both legs of the man were almost burned off.

Firemen said that when they opened the car, what appeared to be wine bottle fell out and was broken.

Fuchs is Guilty Of Spy Charges, Given 14 Years

German-Born Scientist Handed Maximum Sentence

London, March 1—(CP)—Dr. Klaus Fuchs bdilliant German-born British scientist, today was sentenced to 14 years in imprisonment after pleading guilty to betraying his adopted country by turning over British and American secrets to Russia.

The punishment handed out to Fuchs was the maximum the court could impose.

Fuchs, 38-year-old leader in British atomic research, had pleaded guilty in Old Bailey Court before the Lord Chief Justice, Lord Goddard.

Fuchs' trial moved so swiftly in the No. 1 court of Old Bailey it was over in 90 minutes.

The young scientist lost the right of asylum which this country has hitherto extended to political refugees," Lord Goddard told the 38-year-old Jekyll-Hyde scientist. Fuchs arrived in Britain in 1933, a refugee from nazi persecution.

Fuchs was charged with betraying secrets to Russian agents while in Birmingham, England, in 1943;in New York in 1944; in Toronto in February 1945; and in England again in 1947.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, the prosecutor, pictured Fuchs as "disillusioned and ashamed" for having sold himself and his country in "this terrible position."

Fuchs was arrested on a tip by the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation. He had been trusted with the deepest secrets of British and American atom research and had worked at Los Alamos, N.M., where the atom bomb was perfected and exploded.

Fuchs, a Communist since 1932 and a naturalized British citizen, was told by Lord Goddard:

"You have betrayed not only the inventions of your own brain for which this country was paying you, but you have caused grave suspicion to fall on those whom you falsely treated as friends.

"You might have imperilled the friendship between this country and the great American republic with whom His Majesty (The King) is allied.

"You have done irreparable harm both to this land and the U. S. A. and you did it as your statement shows clearly for the purpose of furthering your political creed."

Split Personality

The Lord Chief Justice was referring here to Fuchs' confession, in which he had said he deliberately split his personality into two compartments, one of loyalty to his western friends.

Middle-Class Voters Factor In Britain's Trend to Right

London, March 1 — (CP)— Britain's trend to the right in Thursday's general election appears to have been generated largely by middle-class votes in prosperous boroughs of London.

Preliminary post-mortems suggest that the Conservatives detached substantial support from Labor in what are known as the "dormitories" — large residential districts which, feed white-collar workers into London's downtown offices.

The gain in these areas, coupled with increased support in larger country towns, enabled the Tories to achieve a huge 1945 majority to a hair-breadth and thus create the most finely balanced House of Commons since mid-Victorian times.

Analysts believe that Labor made a little headway in the traditionally Tory rural areas, but that any such advances were annulled by the middle-class vote in urban areas.

Labor lost little of its strength in working-class and strongly-industrial areas.

There was virtually no change at all in Scotland and Wales. With one extra seat to shout at — there were 35 Welsh constituencies this election compared with 35 last time — Labor added two seats for Wales and 27, Tory Liberals won five against six in 1945, the Conservatives remained unchanged with three and there was again one National Liberal.

In Scotland, Labor took 37 and the Conservatives 26, compared with 39 and 26 respectively in the 1945 polling.

The swing was only slightly away from Labor in Englands big cities.

In Birmingham, Labor won 5 seats, the Conservatives four against 10 and three in 1945 respectively. Bellow 10 the latter need 12 of Birmingham's 13 seats. A turnover occured in the port city of Liverpool, which returned eight Socialists and three Conservatives in 1945. With two fewer seats at stake this time the Conservatives won five and Labor four.

Re-distribution makes exact comparisons difficult in the London area. However, it is noteworthy that the Conservatives won seven of the 15 seats in the outlying districts in 1945. Last Thursday they captured only one of the 17.

Toronto March 1 (CP)—George A. Sills, 21, today is in critical condition in hospital with a bullet wound which police said was inflicted by a constable who arrested Sills and James Bullied on charges of attempted automobile theft.

COMMONS REJECTS NON-CONFIDENCE MOTION 148-55

Commonwealth Trade Conference Rejected

Ottawa, March 1—(CP)—The Commons Tuesday voted 148 to 55 against a double-barreled Progressive Conservative motion aimed at testing confidence in the government and at sounding out feeling on a proposal for a Commonwealth trade conference.

The motion was moved by John Diefenbaker PC—Lake Centre). He charged the government with keeping the true trade facts from parliament and urged that Canada take the initiative in calling a Commonwealth trade conference.

His proposal, moved in the form of an amendment to a budget debate motion to go into committee of supply, was tantamount to a want-confidence motion. It was supported by Progressive Conservatives, CCF and Social Credit parties and two independents—Raoul Poulin (Independent) and P.E. Gagnon (Independent-Chicoutimi).

Finance minister Abbott rejected the proposal, saying he did not see what would be gained by a further conference.

"Whatever our difficulties may be, they are not due to lack of conferences, "said Mr. Abbott. Conferences have been useful and always helpful. We have never refused an invitation to attend a conference of this kind. I do not think any steps need be taken by Canada to institute such a conference."

Board Rejects Application of New Union

Toronto, March 1 (CP)— The Ontario Labor Relations Board has rejected the application of the International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO) for certification on behalf of the 3,200 employees of the Canadian General Electric plant at Peterborough.

The board yesterday announced its decision to the CIO union and to the Canadian Labor Congress, whom the new union sought to replace.

The IUE moved into the electrical field after UEW was suspended by the CIO for refusing communistic leanings. Labor observers regarded its efforts to raid UEW locals as a challenge to workers as a testing ground for the future prospects of the two unions in Canada.

The IUE filed 1,628 membership cards with the board to support its application. The board investigated the 1,312 cards signed by employees who said they had not taken out an IUE card.

The Peterborough company has had a relatively negotiate a new collective bargaining agreement with the UEW pending the board's decision.

Britain's New Parliament Opens 'Cheer up' Conservatives Advise Labor

London, March 1 — (AP) — Britain's newly-elected parliament opened today, and Conservatives, heavily moral, bantered to their Labor party opponents to "Cheer up."

The Labor party has a majority of only seven votes in the House of Commons.

Attlee walked side by side with Conservative leader Winston Churchill to the House of Lords to hear the King's Commission to the new parliament. They went to the Commons where they were cheered by their supporters.

"Our morale is as in very good heart," Attlee told reporters after a Labor party caucus. "The government will be meeting in the House and going forward in the firm determination to carry the programme we put before the people. Let us go through together."

The first order of business before parliament was the re-election of Col. the Hon. Clifton Brown, a Conservative, as the Speaker.

Attlee expressed pleasure at the unanimity in favor of the Speaker and Churchill expressed the hope that "this parliament, in spite of its profound divisions, will nevertheless not lose its consciousness of the vast world that has grown up about us and of our immense difficulties of maintaining the standard of life of our people."

Pilot Suffers Facial Injuries In Crash-Landing

North Bay, March 1 — (P) —A light plane crash-landed on Talow Lake, 18 miles east of here, Tuesday and the pilot, Ross McIntyre of Chippawa, suffered facial injuries. He was not injured seriously.

He and two passengers, Ernie Cantin of Callander and Harry Wonder of Kitchener, force-landed safely on the lake Monday when the engine's fuel injector system froze. Tuesday's flight was to have tested the system after repairs had been made.

Government Can Extend Controls If Necessary

Seven Justices Render A Unanimous Decision

Ottawa, March 1 — (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada, in a unanimous decision, today upheld the validity of federal rent controls.

The decision of the court was announced by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret. The seven justices each rendered opinions.

All agreed that parliament has the right to enact legislation which deals with national emergencies arising out of war.

They also agreed that is is up to parliament to decide the length of time necessary to eliminate such legislation when the emergency no longer exists.

This decision of the court is in the nature of an opinion and in a legal sense is not binding on anyone.

It is an answer to a federal question put to the court which asked the justice to decide.

"Are Wartime Leasehold Regulations ultra vires—beyond the jurisdiction of parliament—either in whole or in part and if so in what particular or to what extent."

The decision means the federal government can ask parliament to extend controls on domestic rent that ordinarily would have expired March 31. It is believed the extension will be for one year to March 31, 1951.

Domestic rents—currently are the only ones left under federal controls. Commercial rent controls were lifted two years ago.

The legislation expected to be introduced shortly in parliament extending controls for a year will apply to only eight of the 10 provinces.

Newfoundland had its own rent control regulations which were continued after confederation. Saskatchewan has given notice that it is accepting the federal government's offer to turn over rent controls to any province which asks for them.

In Saskatchewan's case the province took this action in order to forestall the 18 and 22-per-cent increase in rent ceilings announced last December by the federal government.

Police Hold Man In Jewel Robbery

Montreal, March 1 — (CP) — Police today held a man for questioning in connection with the $100,000 holdup of a Papineau Avenue Jewelry. Five gunmen escaped with loot worth about $37,000.

The man's name was not divulged. He was arrested at Papineau Avenue and Demontigny Street in a car of the same make and type as that in which the gunmen escaped.

Heaviest loser in the holdup was Peter Bradley, salesman for the Standard Diamond Company of Toronto. Articles in his sample case had a wholesale value of about $25,000. In addition, the bandits took jewelry valued at about $7,000 from the safe as well as $125 from the pockets of Julien Bellemare, store owner, and $35 from Butler.

NEW LABOR CODE DESIGNED TO HIT MIDDLE COURSE

Toronto, March 1 — (CP)—A new Ontario Labor Relations Act designed to hit the middle course of future Tuesday is designed to hit a middle course between employers and labor unions.

It makes concessions to both employers and unions, and Labor Minister Daley said: "I haven't packaged up the employer, and handed him over to the unions, nor have I handcuffed the unions so they can't operate. I think the bill hits a course that will bring good industrial relations."

The bill has several new, important features.

It gives the Ontario Labor Relations Board the power to end illegal strikes — those called in the duration of a collective bargaining agreement without recourse to stipulated arbitration and conciliation procedure.

It also says that the Labor Board must order a secret vote where a union application for certification has been 45 and 55 per cent of the eligible employees.

Plow Crashes Store Window

It wasn't that the night sidewalk snowplow operator was getting hungry but an onlooker might have received that impression when during the night time 2 a.m. sidewalk snow plows crashed the window of Bean's Fish and Chip store on Front Street.

The snowplow operator was plowing the snow off the Front Street sidewalk by a tractor-operated plow when one of the rear wheels dropped through a grating in front of the fish and chip store. The corner of the tractor dropped down and the cab crashed through a plate glass window, showering glass over the cab.

The cab of the tractor protected the operator who thus escaped injury from the shower of glass.

March Lion Enters in Rage With Blustery Winds, Snow

This is the first day of March, According to some legend or other if the weather man ushers in the third month in lamb-like form, he will take it out all cuddled in the atmospheric habiliments of the King of the Jungle. Sullen snowclouds, driven by a blustery wind that carried a nearzero bite in its gusts, driving particles of snow that heralded a major storm, greeted the winter-weary citizenry this March 1 morning.

And if that is a lamb-like entrance then that chop we had the other day must at one time have adorned the carcass of the battle-scarred old ram which butted the lion through the escape-hatch of the Ark.

Winter's Masquerade

As a matter of fact, in his winter's masquerade, the weather man favored the lambish costume, for the snow was bleak and satisfied populace, during the early months of the season. A few weeks ago, apparently tired of this unseasonable farce, he lodged his mind and his garb and adopting the role of Leo the Lion, lent the Jack Frost and King Blizzard legions sweeping over a surprised countryside.

He finished it with a white mantle of snow. He sent temperatures plummeting to new low marks. He varied his winter fare with sleet, slush, and rain.

Sighs of enthusiasm sighed, "at long last." Coal surveyors smugly smiled as they enrolled through sudden demand, then frowned as replacements proved hard to get through strikes etc. Heads of oil-burning household woes satisfied contentedly, the stuffed bear, a pace in the dim background.

And allegedly being of the male of the species, he is not apt to change his mind readily.

Legend has it, that he's in a hurry to park the winter garb in mothballs or order the coalman to "lay off" the oil burner behind which spring is supposed to be hiding it's fair offing but at this moment, no one seems to have located the offing.

Bundle of Bones Proves Downfall For Rural Man

A bundle of bones left as "bait" proved the downfall of a middle-age rural resident Saturday who was apprehended on a local fox farm by provincial police and charged with theft.

The operator of the frigid locker had reported to police the loss of parcels of meat at various times in the cutting department. A watch had been kept but the thief failed to show up.

So police and employees of the frigid locker got their heads together. A bundle of bones done up to resemble a parcel of meat was left as "bait" and police Constable Harold Reid waited outside. Eventually a man appeared carrying the parcel of bones and the law officer apprehended him as he was about placing it in his car.

The accused will appear in police court Friday.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Prices strengthened slightly in moderately active trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Gold stocks were in good demand for some moderate advances. Activity slowed slightly as trading interest shifted from low-priced mining stocks to more established junior and senior producers.

Volume for the first three hours was 600 shares.

Senior golds showed fractional gains and a handful of key juniors chalked up advances ranging up to 10 cents. Gains were best in-early dealings and prices tended to sag in mid-session.

Market leaders pushed ahead fractions in industrials. Papers and utilities led the firmness while agriculturs and steeys tended easier.

Gains by Quemont and Noranda pulled base metals onto firmer ground. A few western oil issues showed gains up to five cents.

BUDGET RECEIVED

Peterborough, March 1— (CP) —The Peterborough board of education asked city council Tuesday night to levy for $480,935 in its 1950 tax rate. This is an increase of half a mill in the public school tax rate to 19.25 mills and the same collegiate rate of 2.87 mills as in 1949. The board's total budget amounts to $751,700. Estimated collection in provincial grants and new schedule this year is $10,800.

Contempt Case Against Miners Is Continuing

Washington, March 1 — (AP) — The United States government pushed its contempt of court trial of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers toward a decision today, while the numbing coal strike created its own new pressures for a quick contract to reopen the mines.

New labor-management negotiations held out a glimmer of hope.

Justice Department attorneys planned to complete their case swiftly today against the union. Its members have been on a full-scale strike since Judge Richmond B. Keech ordered them back to work Feb. 11.

For disobeying Judge Keech's mandate, the union can be heavily fined. Lewis and the U. M. W. have paid $2,130,000 for two previous court showdowns during strikes.

That added some pressure to Lewis' side of the bargaining table as negotiators were called back to contract talks.

The growing shortage of fuel added new U. S. towns and cities to the list of those where save-fuel efforts were intensified.

Rough estimates were that more than 500,000 workers have been made idle, including the 372,000 striking miners plus others whose jobs depend on coal production.

Cutting Back Operations

Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation announced it is cutting back its Pittsburgh operations from about 99 per cent of capacity to 53 per cent. How much additional unemployment this will mean was not immediately determined.

Without any confirmation from the White House, there continued to be talks that President Truman might seek power to seize the mines in the name of the government, to get out urgently needed coal.

Some soft coal is being dug by non-union miners working independent mines.

New blows threatened the hard-hit railroads.

The Interstate Commerce Commission indicated in Washington that further rail service cuts may be made if the "no contract, no work" strike of miners continues.

Passenger service on coal burning runs already has been cut 50 per cent and freight 25 per cent.

While coal talks dragged on in Washington, UMW district 17 at Charleston, W.VO, announced 14 more operators of small and medium mines had signed on U. M. W. terms. That means a 93-cent-a-day pay increase to $15 a day and a 15-cent raise in royalty fund payments to 35 cents a ton.

UNDERGROUND STYLE

London—(CP)—Trousers with baggy knee and tight waists may be worn by Britain's miners if experiments are successful. Made of stout sailcloth, the garb is designed to prevent abrasion on miner's knees and skin troubles caused by coal dust.

W. H. Kyle, general manager, Central Region, Canadian National Railways, whose appointment to the post of assistant vice-president, operation, at system headquarters, Montreal, was announced today.

ICE FOUNTAIN

Winter hobby of K. S. Hansford is building this 50-foot ice formation near the Dundas Highway in Islington, It is started by setting a water pipe upright. As the running water freezes, the pipe is lengthened. Evergreen trees are added to spread the freezing water.

UNEMPLOYMENT

"Out of 180 local National employment service office areas, 80 reported a decline in the number of job seekers; most of them not indicated a marked down in the rate at which persons were registering for work.

B. regions, this was the unemployment picture across Canada at 1 Feb. 16, with Feb. 2 totals in brackets:

Atlantic 77,000 (84,900); Quebec 110,900 (109,300); Ontario, 90,100 (89,800); Prairies 54,200 (52,900); Pacific 66,100 (68,700)

The department had a bright word for the employed.

Jobs In Prospect

It said that during the next month or two "more and more job openings for many of those at present out of work are in prospect, as construction, transportation and agriculture become active in the spring."

A high level of employment in the construction industry is expected, with a heavy program of house building and construction of highways and other public utilities on hand."

Latest available figures, it said indicate that with a few exceptions employment in Canadian industries was continuing close to the record levels established in 1948."

"Manufacturing as a whole has shown the most stability. Reduced employment in such industries as shipbuilding and agricultural implements has been almost balanced by gains in others such as automobiles and clothing.

"Basic manufacturing industries like primary iron and steel and heavy electrical apparatus have shown little change from previous record levels. These varied trends have resulted in some dislocation in employment, how ever."

NO AGREEMENT YET

Hamilton, Mar. 1 — (CP) — Ontario vegetable growers and canners failed to reach an agreement on the price and terms of payment on tomatoes.

The matter will be referred to a negotiating board at a later date, while representatives today pass on to talks concerning prices and contract terms of peas.

NO POWER CUTS THIS YEAR

Consumers of electricity in Ontario, who number now a great many of the population, were not surprised by the announcement made yesterday by the Chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission that there will be no power cuts delivered to Ontario users.

The greatly increased rainfall which has been spread over the greater part of the winter, especially at Christmas time, had itself assured the people that there would be little chance of restrictions of the kind imposed on consumers last winter. The heavy precipitation in the form of rain and snow which has wrought what the Hydro Commission has desired, it has explained in the course of the great Provincial system in the form of rain and of snow which will add greatly to the lake levels in the north country.

Of course there is the other fact, time has been passing and the day is not far off when the power capacity of the Commission will be greatly expanded. As Chairman Robert Saunders explains, "an additional 180,000 power units daily from the Des Joachim Power Plant, expected to begin operation by July 1, gives the commission confidence that power restrictions during 1950 will not be necessary.

Everyone can recall the late autumn of a year ago when restrictions were set up to conserve power. Those measures were felt as hours of darkness were imposed, houses became dark at certain periods and street lights went out. This year none of these conditions ruled.

SPRING MONTH OF MARCH

Spring draws near for March, the spring month, has come. It was heralded on its eve by a snowstorm somewhat in the style of old winters, something quite contrary to the tendency of the present winter up to a few weeks ago. Popular legend has it that the behavior of the month on its first day will indicate the end of the season ahead by opposites. If March comes in with bluster and snow the contrary will be the case at the end of the month. It is believed a good augury if March roars on the first day of its entry while if it smiles with brilliant sun it is a sign of a close marked with tempest and a late season of spring.

If the end of this month is true to the adage it ought to be warm weather prophesied as spring by instinct. Popular opinion on this is long-lived and generally agreed.

But one thing stands out as a coming fact, less than three weeks away is the first day of spring whether the sun is shining or the winds are blowing in a wild disorder or not.

The winter of 1949-50 has so far been most entertaining. It has not been severe except for a few dips into the lower temperatures of late, but it has been changeable. All sorts and conditions of weather have gone into its makeup.

The months have been ushered in and out as some of the noblest lines of Tennyson are associated with the turbulence of the elements in March. School children recall the lines in "The May Queen":

"All in the wild March morning I heard the angels call;
It was when the moon was setting and the dark was over all
The trees began to whisper, and the wind began to roll,
And in the wild March morning I heard them call my soul."

In "Four Songs of Four Seasons" Swinburne portrays the blusterous month:

"In fierce March weather
White waves break tether,
And whirled together
At either hand,
Like weeds uplifted
The tree trunks rifted,
In spars are drifted,
Like foam or sand."

NEW PLANE FOR ARCTIC

A flying boat equipped not only with retractable wheels but also with retractable skis, has been constructed by the Norwegian company, Norsk, Flyindustri A/S at Lysaker near Oslo.

Particularly well suited for ambulance duties as well as for charter or feeder-line service in high latitudes, it is a sturdy craft likely to give a good account of itself under all sorts of conditions.

While the plane is still undergoing tests, experts are of the opinion that the new plane should offer distinct possibilities for the special type of service for which it is designed. — News of Norway.

WHAT CAN BE KEPT

Oh, much there is all men must lose who walk the longest way,
For children soon give up the games they once were glad to play,
And, by and by, men quit the fields, less strenuous sport to find,
Since none can carry into life what must be left behind.

We go through life to middle age, as time goes rolling on,
To learn the strength of strenuous games and even skill have gone.

But, life contrives a fair exchange, and holds some joys in store
To take the place of youthful thrills which can be known no more,

Well, unto what can mortal cling?
I'd say the twinkling eye,
The old-time friendships, tried and true; the joy which they supply;
A deeper understanding of the hurts that others bruise;
A braver heart and a cheerful mind. These no man has to lose.

Mr. J. D. O'Flynn made a prize finding today when he found a ticket for a battle-royal hockey stick in the attic. The ticket was signed by one of the players on Belleville's "Silver Seven" team, and the team that went to the finals only to be disqualified when it was ruled that Jack Marshall had played professional baseball. On the handle the names of such former figures in the local hockey realm as "Sandy" Burrows, "Syke" McGuire, Harry Brown and "Reddy" McMillan were inscribed. Mr. O'Flynn was one of the mascots of that famous team.

The backbone of winter got a severe jolt in the last forty-eight hours.

Ten years ago today when the news came of the relief of Ladysmith, the streets were blocked with deep snow; but what did we care for snow that day?

A few more mild days and we will be down to mud on Front Street. Once more we ask, "Where will the permanent paving for our main side?"

The box house at the Hastings County Home was visited by a thief last night and eleven fine Plymouth Rock fowls were carried off.

Mr. W. Rankin of Madoc, was in town today.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

At Cambridge University back in 1927, the professoriate faculty with a cowshed on its hands began gathering the grass cuttings from the college lawns and cricket fields every week and drying them.

They had not. It is something vastly more valuable than hay. Nowadays, when young growing green grass has food values many times greater than full-blown hay, and when in 1930, the Cambridge experiment with packaged grass clippings had expanded into a small industry. Today, it is a great industry. Because Britain was unable, during the war, to import high protein feed materials for livestock, and because now, due to dollar shortage, she is resorting to the revolutionary agricultural research. Britain has a green cross code research association; and a large and lively industry has grown up in the manufacture of green crop drying machinery.

In 1931, Cornell University, in the U.S.A., began its research into the harvesting and drying of grass during the period of its growth. Several wealthy Pennsylvania and Maryland farmers, including a Dupont joined in the enterprise. All over the world, people interested in livestock, poultry and hog raising are developing their own methods of harvesting as many crops of young green grass, lucerne and alfalfa as can be obtained by means by repeated croppings. They dry it in small pellets or just in pulverized bulk. It is filled with carotene and protein in combined measure equalled by no other feed.

For centuries, men have observed the cattle go out in spring to graze avidly on the new growing grass; and waxing immediately fat and sleek. And to enjoy yellow milk, golden butter fat. Moses must have noted it. So must Nebuchadnezzar. But it was 1927 before a Cambridge professor, puzzling about grass clippings off college lawns and cricket fields, came to the conclusion that hay ain't hay.

Says Some Children Making More in Factories Than Parents

Oshawa, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Constable John Powell told the police commission Monday he is concerned at the generosity of friends to clothe his two children.

Powell, who headed a delegation of police seeking higher wages, said that though he was asking what was called "top salary" he found it difficult to make ends meet.

"Some of our children are making more in factories than we are," said Constable Charles Stainton, "and they're taking over financial control of our homes."

Any council said it would reconsider a decision that no general increase be made in 1950.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

A MARRIAGE OF CONVENIENCE

You might not think it to look at them, but the two big branches of show business are in trouble—movies and television broadcasting.

The movies, a business with plenty of product, is up against a rapidly shrinking audience, and though many of the companies are still in the black, it's a touch they won't be when there are ten million TV sets in ten million parlors. Judging by the financial pages, the people who own the companies agree with me because most of the movie stocks are selling for less than half of their 1946 quotations.

The television business, on the other hand has a rapidly expanding audience but darned little product worth looking at. And, as I see it, it isn't the fault of the TV programmers. There isn't enough theatrical talent around to provide good live entertainment for the 360 half-hour shows which the networks must present each week.

In other words, unless something is done about it and promptly, the business will be strangled for solvent and the other more insipid.

Is there a solution? Of course, and like all good solutions it's a simple one: Television must marry the movies. It's the only answer, and if there are laws on the books which put the kibosh on such nuptials, then in the public interest the laws will have to be changed.

The advantages of this alliance are many and obvious. First, through the ages, talent to fill the casters of film eagerly made the jump to television

News of Trenton

Permit Strikers To Hold Tag Day

Trenton,- (Special).— At a meeting of the Trenton Town Council held Monday night in the municipal offices, it was decided to let the strikers of the Downs-Coulter plant hold a tag day on March 4th. Proceeds of the tag day would go to the strikers and their families.

Council decided to ask for more information on a proposal from the Y.O.N. asking council to form a Red Feather Association in Trenton. The Red Feather is a form of community chest which proportions money to deserving causes. As a result this would eliminate tag days.

Snow-Dumping Complaint

A complaint was received from the Parks Board concerning the dumping of snow on Fraser Park. It was feared that chemicals from the pavement which would be in the snow would damage the grass seed. A bulldozer will be used to push the offending snow in the river.

A full time dog catcher and pound keeper may soon be employed by the town. In a request to that effect, Chief Constable Taylor commented on the deluge of dogs running loose in the town whose owners can very seldom be found. It was decided to find out the expense of a hound by contacting Belleville before taking further action.

Will Hold Carnival

The Canadian Legion will hold their annual carnival in the first half of May. This was granted by council last night, but it was turned over to the Parks Board for final approval.

Letters were received from various towns and cities throughout Ontario commenting on their own particular type of parking meter. It was agreed that parking meters play a vital part in the controlling of traffic. Steps are to be taken to determine the type of meter which is the best for Trenton.

FEWER TORONTO JOBLESS

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — A decline in the number of jobless workers here was announced today.

A postwar peak of 19,597 unplaced job-hunters was reached at the middle of February.

Figures for Feb. 23, the latest available, show a total of 19,300 unemployed, a drop of nearly 300. Unemployment insurance claims declined from 14,608 on Feb. 16 to 14,049 Feb. 22.

$10,000 FIRE LOSS

Sudbury, March 1 — (CP) — A $10,000 fire Tuesday destroyed a diesel-driven sawmill at Markstay, 20 miles east of here.

Villagers used a portable pump to dampen a pile of 20,000 board feet of sawn lumber near the mill. Their action saved the lumber.

The mill was owned by Ernest Lacelle.

PICTON

Crops Association Outlines Projects For Coming Year

Picton — Prince Edward County Crop Improvement Association at their annual meeting, decided to carry out a number of projects during the year. In co-operation with the Crops,Seeds and Weeds Branch, three hay pasture demonstrations and one potatoes pasture demonstration will be held. These will be carried out on three-acre plots and the seed provided by the co-operation.

In co-operation with Prince Edward Agricultural Society, a Field Crop competition will again be held, Clinton and Beaver oats will be used.

Arrangements are being made to sponsor a high yield competition. Those entering would be required to have at least 20 acres in grain crops and the average yield will be compared on the total grain acreage of the farm Soil samplings, taken before and after seeding, will be taken.

The County Association has secured a quantity of Birdsfoot treefoil, a hardy clover that has been grown successfully in New York State, to distribute for experimental purposes in the district. It is considered more hardy than alfalfa in winter and somewhat more tolerant to poorly drained soil conditions.

The directors agreed to carry a tomato variety test plots again this year. These plots have been on several farms and many interesting facts learned.

Grover Smith was elected president of the Association and Charles Fraleigh, vice-president, with Agricultural Representative Donald Taylor secretary.

Roads Quite Heavy

With snow falling steadily most of yesterday, roads in Prince Edward County were the heaviest they have been this winter. There was a strong breeze and this caused drifting. Snow plows were able to keep traffic moving on the main roads but could not cope with the heavy side roads. Busses with school children were preceded by plows in travelling home after school last night. Due to the condition of the roads, the hockey matches in town and other events were postponed.

Severely Injured

Mrs. John Collier, who was severely injured in an accident recently, was able to return to her home from Belleville hospital this week. She will return to Kingston early in April for further treatment. When the car in which she was riding, and driven by her husband, collided with one driven by Gerald Baker on Picton-Belleville highway, Mrs. Collier was injured about the knees. One knee-cap was pushed up the leg and had to be removed.

Appointed Postmaster

Walter N. Hogg has been appointed acting Postmaster for the village of Bloomfield and entered upon his new duties this week. He fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss E. Leavens. Mr. Hogg, who has been of the staff of Picton post office, is a veteran of the last war. He was a pilot officer in the RCAF and was a prisoner-of-war for two years after being shot down over Germany.

New Labor Code Criticized by Labor Leaders

Toronto, March 1—(CP)—Ontario's proposed new Labor Code Tuesday met a mixed reception from labor leaders. Criticism was levelled at provisions aimed at ending wildcat strikes.

The legislation, introduced Tuesday by Labor Minister Daley in the Legislature, empowers the labor minister to force parent labor organizations to end wildcat strikes by member locals. It denies services of the Ontario Labor Relation Board to all member locals engaged in an illegal strike.

Murray Cotterill, president of the Toronto Labor Council (C.I.O.) termed this provision unworkable. He said an illegal strike in a small plant could be provoked by an employer with the effect of tying the hands of a major international union.

A. P. MacArthur, president of the A.F.L. Provincial Federation of Labor, said the clause discriminates against responsible international unions.

At Ottawa, Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the 350,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, said Tuesday night that the new Ontario Labor Code "appears to be very one-sided."

"I have had no opportunity to study the legislation in full," said Mr. Conroy. "But from what I have heard, it seems to be doing an excellent hatchet job on the trade union movement in the interests of big business.

U.C. Speaker Calls for Planned Employment

Toronto, March 1. (CP)—Rev. Milton Little of East Augus, Que., said today that the "withering blight of unemployment is already here" and called for a fundamental and drastic change.

In a speech to the annual meeting of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada, he said:

". . . Nothing less than an economy planned for production for the use of the whole people, instead of unplanned economic anarchy for the benefit of a privileged few, will finally solve the problem.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Chalmers, associate secretary of the Board, said "there is a lack of adequate preaching on moral issues in our pulpits." The Christian forces must become better organized in various centres across Canada," he said.

"The church must be realistic and face the fact that Christianity is becoming, if the facts of a minority in Canadian life," he said.

Dr. James Semple of Peterborough, said that churches "are sick with the great white plague of Christendom—inactive, indifferent members." He added:

"The method of evangelism will be successful, however many people are won, if they are not held. . .in the heydey of mass evangelism we lost 80 per cent of the converts within a year, because we had no assimilation program."

He said that people assume that the taking of vows of membership guarantees everything, "forgetting that the church is a society and not a group of individuals."

Thirty Patients Removed Safely

Toronto, March 1 (CP)— About 30 elderly patients were led out of Lambert Lodge, city-owned home for the aged, today as a measure during a two-alarm fire in a nearby warehouse in which a dozen members of the lodge staff were working.

No one was injured. The workers in the warehouse reached safety without difficulty, as did more than 12 staff members who were in the lodge itself. A dozen nurses were in their residence during the fire.

The two storey warehouse had been used in part to store bundles for Britain. The lodge, in west-central Toronto, is the former Christie Street Military Hospital.

SAYS HANDS TIED

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — H. O. Hawke, Galt delegate at the Ontario Municipal Electric Association convention, said today that the hands of Hydro Electric municipalities on the Ontario Hydro Commission, are politically tied.

BRITISH SPEAKER

Speaker of the British House of Commons, Rt. Hon. Col. Clifton Brown was re-elected in the Feb. 23 balloting. An M.P. since 1924 for Northumberland, he became speaker in 1945. With the new parliament so evenly divided, he may be called upon to break any tie votes which may arise. Although he is Conservative, British tradition demands that the speaker of the U.K. parliament vote on his conscience on the basis of what will be best for the country. (CP Photo)

Pastors Given Present at Grace Chapel

There was a time of sweet Christian fellowship and the melting Spirit of God in evidence at the regular weekly prayer meeting at Grace Chapel on Tuesday night when, at the close of the service, a presentation of money was made to Miss Blanche Smith, and Miss Ross McGarvey, interim pastors on the eve of their departure.

In making the presentation Mr. Arnold Dyer spoke of the high regard in which the pastors were held in the hearts of the assembly and of the blessings received during the period of their stay in Bellevile. It is hoped that God would continue to bless them as they entered into other fields of service.

Deeply touched by this expression of love Miss Smith replied that it seemed to be a worker's lot to find new friends, learn to love them and then to experience a tug of the heart strings as the call came to move on.

Miss McGarvey stated that she had enjoyed the fellowship and co-operation during their stay in Belleville and that God had met them in a real way. She called for loyalty and whole-hearted support for the new pastors, Rev. Laurie Price and Rev. Hope Smith, who were expected to arrive at the weekend.

By special request, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Becker sang a favorite duet, "The Touch of His Hand on Mine", accompanied by Mrs. Clem Jackson at the piano.

Home & School Assoc. Sponsors Sleigh Ride

Monday evening was an ideal night for the sleigh ride for the Shannonville public school children, sponsored by the Home and School Association.

Four sleighs left the school at 8 p. m. filled to over-flowing with happy occupants with bells ringing to complete the picture. It was one parent's and son's first sleigh ride.

The youngest pupils were on one sleigh with Mrs. Herb. Brant and Mrs. Mill. Pringle, in charge. Others in charge on the sleighs were Mrs. Ada Schuckle, Mr. Walter Brant, Mr. Franklin Green and Mr. Carl Fuller.

Thirty five children took advantage of this special occasion. Four teams of horses had been secured by the Home and School, the teamsters being: Mr. Lloyd Green, Mr. Dwayne Baptiste, Mr. Everett John, and Mr. Bert Brant.

The older pupils journeyed as far as Eddie Marsele's Hill, with many a tumble off the sleigh, and returned to a bounteous repot of hot dogs, complete with all the trimmings and a hot drink.

Present to look after this hungry brood were Mrs. A. Kilburn, Mrs. Kenneth Juby, Mrs. Fred Louis, Mrs. Herb. Brant, Mrs. Margaret Hill, and Mrs. Helen Louis.

The Home and School deserve credit for the interest in sponsoring such an outing for the pupils.

SHANNONVILLE

Rev. L. Scott Speaks on Today's Casual Religion

Shannonville—At the Sunday evening service in the United church, the pastor, the Rev. L. Scott, chose his sermon subject from Mark 13. Due to the inclement weather the junior choir were not in attendance. This choir deserves comment on their faithful attendance since formation.

"All have chosen heard the saying, 'a black sheep in most families', is one who hasn't measured up to the other members in a life worthwhile. In the Household of Faith—God's great family—there are more black sheep than one cares to admit, said the pastor.

Parable of the Vineyard

Mr. Scott told the parable of the man with the two sons, one refused to work in the vineyard but repented and did the work; the other accepted but didn't do the work. Jesus told this parable to the religious folk in His day, and the unbelievers. One of the present day problems is the promise to do certain work—to help other Christians make the church stronger and better—but never get around to doing any real work. A confession of faith is made to surrender to His will but allegiance to God is very lightly taken and too often they turn out to become traitors, and faithless, not amounting to a great deal in the working of the Kingdom.

The speaker continued with the thought that in every many people have not measured up to attendance at church. To-day great many have done little. Are they black sheep in God's family". In every generation there are many like these two sons. Jesus said that many of the tax collectors and harlots would go into the kingdom of God before so-called Christians as they had repented—others promised and did nothing.

Local Religion

"Today the bit of religion we have is taken too casually," continued the pastor. "We take it off and put it on like a cloak. Don't bother about church when it is felt we don't need it. At a time of stress we then feel the church owes us something. Perhaps people who take religion casually are characterized by those who want to make themselves on Sunday—sometimes in world of sport. Religion taken too casually is certain to be a great hindrance to persons themselves, their friends and the community. Life of a good person in the church affects lives—also the bad one."

So many excuses for not attending church, Faithlessness of casual religion carries into realm of stewardship stated Mr. Scott. The question of time—"I'm too busy"—but not too busy for other things. People who attend church are also busy. Realm of talents—to make the church a stronger church. "Let George do it", but George may be the busiest person in the church. If you want anything done go to the busy person. Jesus noticed these things in the lives of His people. The tax collectors and sinners repented and did something about it. Attending a funeral or anniversary once in awhile, name is on the membership roll but likened transferred to inactivity this person cannot expect his name to be written in Heaven.

"Jesus spoke of the widow coming to the treasurer of the temple and putting in her two mites as contribution. She would have greater glory for what she had given than any of the others who had given much. She knew no selfishness in her life. She gave as is to do all we can to further God's Kingdom. More people who can be counted on to do their share gladly as part of their service work of the Kingdom, was the wish of the speaker, May we use our gifts and talents in promoting God's Kingdom on earth," were Mr. Scott's closing words.

MARIO ... In his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Pigs don't need publicity agents.

Certainly no ballyhoo was needed to advertise the fact of Roxie, the eminent sow who gave birth to two litters of 7 pigs each, the litters born 3 days apart.

This kind of double family, occurring for the first time in hog history, won't in itself affect the price of pork. But for meat shoppers pork still remains the number one money saver.

Pork is a mild, sweet meat and therefore can be served with tangy sauces. But it is a rich, fatty meat, and many people prefer to by-pass starchy sauces.

In the recipe below, pork chops are spread with a light mustard coating and then baked slowly without a sauce. Pork chops cannot be thoroughly cooked by simply pan frying. They should be browned first in a pan and then placed in a slow oven to complete the cooking.

Remember when you buy pork that the meat should be light pink, that the fat should be firm and that the cut portion of bone should have a tinge of red.

To avoid excess fattiness and waste, ask for chops from the centre of the loin. Rib or veal chops may be substituted for pork in this recipe.

Deviled Pork Chops.
4 Servings.

Order 4 loin pork chops about 1 inch thick. Trim off excess fat, leaving no more than 1-4 inch on sides for frying purposes.

Place pork chops in a heavy paper bag with 1-2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Shake well to coat chops.

Melt 2 tablespoons fat in a heavy frying pan. Brown chops on both sides.

Combine 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 1-2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons catsup and 1 tablespoon grated onion. Spread mixture over chops. Sprinkle chops lightly with bread crumbs.

Place chops in a baking dish or casserole. Cover baking dish. Place in a moderate over 350 degrees and bake for 1 hour.

Fashionable Favorite

Wool gabardine dress

By VERA WINSTON

VERY lightweight woollens in lovely pastels, right for north or south compass points, are fashion favorites with the discriminating shopper. Here is a very new model, done on classically simple lines and beautifully tailored. The fabric is fine wool gabardine in a delicate caramel beige. It has a single breasted closing with covered buttons below a casual convertible collar. The double tiered pockets are placed symmetrically on the bodice and hip. The skirt is gored.

for the young man to send the girl a corsage as a courteous gesture to this important occasion . . . but the girl can't take this for granted if he doesn't "think this way". So, if the girl wants to have a corsage and it becomes obvious that the man has invited to her graduation isn't going to send her one, she'll just have to supply her own.

Miss B. Corbett Addresses Venture Club on CAS Services

The Venture Club of Belleville held their bi-monthly meeting Thursday last, at the Kiwanis Centre. The speaker for the evening was Miss Corbett of the Children's Aid Society, who spoke on the services of the Society. Miss B. C. Corbett outlined the various phases of the work which was divided into the categories of "Protection", "Unmarried Mothers", and "Adoption" and then proceeded to explain the scope of the work done in each of these departments.

At the conclusion there was a discussion period, after which program chairman, Betty Monteath, extended the thanks of all the members to Miss Corbett for her interesting and highly informative talk.

Refreshments were then served, and a discussion was held on child welfare projects to be undertaken by the club.

Pat Quigley, social committee chairman, outlined the final plans for the bridge and euchre party to be held the following Wednesday evening at the Kiwanis Centre, following which the meeting was adjourned.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

WANTS TO ADOPT A BABY

A woman who write me that she has a "wonderful husband and a beautiful six-room house," and in addition practically everything else she wants, declares that she would "gladly give up everything I have for the thing I want most of all."

What she and her husband as well, want most of all is a child, "whiho, of course," she adds "is impossible for us."

She then goes on to say that they have been to various adoption agencies whom their application for a child was approved; then the application was "put away in the files and we were told to wait until further notice, which may not come for some months or a year."

Because they don't want to wait, this couple hopes there may be some other way of finding a child they can make their own. For instance, isn't there some way, the wife wants to know, in which I can help speed up action on their application? "Sometimes I think," she writes, "that maybe if we knew the right person, some of the red tape could be cut a little."

I can well understand and sympathize with the eagerness of this woman and her husband to find a child quickly. But I wonder if they fully realize how many other equally eager couples there are, who are waiting just as impatiently for word to come from the adoption agencies where they have applied that a child is available for them.

In the last few years, the number of people who want to adopt children has increased by leaps and bounds. It is so much larger than the number of children available for adoption that applicants frequently have to wait years before getting the baby for which they long. It is not a matter of cutting red tape, as my correspondent suggests, but simply that the demand far exceeds the supply.

This wife mentions the fact that every once in awhile in my column she has read "of all the girls who find themselves in trouble and not married. How they are looking for someone to help them, and here we are, more than willing to help, but find it impossible to do so."

This is perfectly true. The same point has been made in many a letter written to me by women anxious to adopt children, who have no reason why they cannot be put in touch with girls who want to give away their fatherless babies. What none of these women quite understand, I think, is that there are laws which control matters of this kind, and that it would be hazardous indeed for anyone to try and circumvent these laws by making it possible to take away the illegitimate child of another woman without benefit of proper legal procedure.

I wish I could tell my correspondent how she could find a child for adoption more quickly. I know, however, there is nothing for her to do but wait as patiently as she can. In the meantime, I wonder why, if she loves children so much, she does not get in touch with the Department of Welfare in the large city near her and open her home to some child destined to spend part of a temporary foster home. Surely she and her husband could find a great deal of satisfaction in giving some neglected and lonely baby the care and affection its own parents are, for the time being, unable to provide. I suggest that these two give this possibility serious consideration.

There is only one more thing that I would like to add, and that is, I wonder if this wife who would so much like to be a mother says that "of course" true motherhood is impossible for her. Is she quite certain that she has obtained the very best and most modern medical advice in the matter? I urge her not to give up without first consulting the very best specialists in the field she can find.

Light-Hearted Choice

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WE LIKE this costume blouse, shown here with a suit skirt, but apt for resort skirts which make mix-mate choices into a light-hearted fashion model.

The fabric is pure silk, hand screened with a print which literally "features" a pert face with an extravagant coiffure above it. Inexpensive, too.

For afternoon and night.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

TISSUE faille is the fabric of this dress that is feminine yet not fussy. It is geared for wear from late afternoon far into the night. The champagne color is especially nice with navy accessories but also good with black and brown. The wide open collar crosses over to a double breasted closing. It is draped from the front closing to the side seams both above and below the waist.

DOWN THE HATCH

Sydney, Australia, — (CP) — Russell Geymour, 37, ordered a glass of beer in a Sydney hotel. While his back was turned a prankspome friend wrapped two coins in a 10-shilling note and dropped them into the beer. Geymour swallowed money and beer together.

PRIZE-WINNING NOVELIST

Mrs. Germaine Guevremont of Montreal, who won the French-Canadian Academy prize in 1948 for her novel "Le Survenent," now expects it to be published in English as "The Outlander". Mrs. Guevremont wrote her first book in 1942 in Sorel, Que., where she lived then. It was about the Beauchemin family who came there in the early days of French colonization. "The Outlander" is about the same family.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Reducing? Take your time

Moana the heavyweight: "I don't know why I keep getting heavier . I eat practically nothing. My waistline has vanished, my hips are like the spreading chestnut tree, and I'm pretty mad about it."

Nobody can make her understand that there is just one reason why adipose cushions have distorted her once-svelte frame—and that is over eating, or limiting her diet to foods that are fat-forming. She is getting more calories than her daily activities need, so they are stored away in the form of human suet. As a rule, she loves sweets, butter cream, pastries. Of these foods only a small amount.

A laboring man may be a heavy eater, but he is also a heavy exercizer, so burns up his intake of calories. Women who are overweight move in slow-going traffic. If they would pick up their heels, put on their seven league boots, beat it out of doors and tramp three or four miles every day they'd feel better, look better and the silhouette would regain youthful outline. That is, if they also paid heed to correct eating habits.

If the needle on the bathroom scales keeps creeping higher and higher, do something about it. Fat cells raise large families, multiply rapidly as one gets older. Make an appointment with old family doc. He knows the dangers of excess tonnage, will be glad to direct a reducing campaign. He will give you a physical check up. Though overweight is seldom caused by glandular disturbances, he will look into that matter.

He will provide you with weekly menus that will give you all the necessary food elements but which will not feed the fat cells—which is precisely what you have been doing.

If you are in perfect health and hesitate to seek medical advice, you can arrange a diet of your own. But will you stick to it? You can if you have a will, but most of the plumpies seem to have a won't instead. Or, they follow a program for a few weeks and then give up. There will be no immediate change in the weight report. Maybe you have been years acquiring those overcurves; you cannot expect to get rid of them quickly.

Overweight women move in slow-going traffic.

Fats, starches and sweets are your enemies. Cut them down to the limit. Take tea and coffee clear. A demon coffee drinker who adds cream and sugar can gain on just that one item.

You can have lean meat, sea food, poultry, clear broths, vegetables that grow above ground, fruit, fruit juices, cottage cheese, buttermilk, toasted rye bread, several eggs a week

Girl Guides Given Lifesaving Courses

Toronto, Feb. 29 — (CP) — The award of Girl Guide gilt crosses for lifesaving to Beverley Brewer, 17, of Virginiatown and Barbara Mills, 11, of Hamilton, was announced today by the Canadian Council of the Girl Guides Association.

Beverley Brewer, a first class Guide of the 1st Virginiatown Company, rescued Guide Carol Ann Willowby from drowning last July 23. She swam to the girl's help and towed her 50 yards to shore after the girl became panic-stricken and jumped fully-clothed from a boat.

Barbara Mills, a Guide in the 21st Hamilton Company, last Sept. 29 pushed Gerald Silke, 9, out of the way of an automobile that had gone out of control. She herself was struck by the car and suffered a bruised back.

Club Activities

CARMEL COMRADE CLUB

Members of the Carmel Comrades held their regular meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Geen on Thursday evening.

The meeting which was under the leadership of Stan and Dorothy Geen and their group opened with quiet music by Iva Horton followed by an impressive worship service under the theme "Modern Christian Prayer". The scripture lesson Psalm 1, was read by Mrs. Clayton Ritz and a poem "Many Roads Home" was read by Mrs. C. Chambers.

Miss Marion Sills favored with a piano solo "The Robins Return"

The business session was dealt with by the president Clarence Chambers. It was decided to forward a generous donation to the "March of Dimes."

The remainder of the evening was spent playing bingo, after which the group in charge served delicious refreshments.

A vote of thanks was given Dorothy and Stan for opening their home.

THE KUM DOUBLE CLUB

The Kum Double Club of Halfway United Church met at the home of Kenneth and Helen McMullen, Thursday evening, the program being in charge of Beatrice and Earl Snider.

Mrs. Snider opened the meeting, The worship service was based on the Bible, the first one being "Know your sorrow", John 14, taken by Ralph Smith; "When you worry", Matthew 6: 19-34, by Marie Emerson; "When doubts come upon you", John 7: 1-7 by Ralph Smith; "Jesus idea of a Christian", Matthew 3:12 by Marie Emerson; "When you feel down and out", Romans 8:21-31 by Gordon Roth; "Paul's Secret of happiness" Col. 3: 12-17, by Helen McMullen; "When you want Christian assurance", Romans 8: 1-30 by Laura Cassidy; "When you want rest and peace", Matthew 11: 28-30 by Marie Emerson; "When you think of investment and returns", Mark 13: 17-31, by Gordon Roth; "What is home without a Bible", was given by Stella Smith.

The president, Ed. Emerson, then took charge of the meeting. Laura Cassidy read the minutes of the last meeting and the roll was called, showing that all of the group were present except one couple.

The group will meet at the home of Don and Olive Rose for the next meeting.

The Rev. F. Gilbert gave a very interesting talk of some of his experience in Italy, where he served in World War II.

Beatrice Snider put on two contests. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Fashion Flashes

ANOTHER REVIVAL is that of the fur-trimmed evening ensemble. Rose-red damask is used for a handsome evening frock, shoulder-cuffed in mink, and with a free-hanging, back skirt panel. With it a matching silk damask jacket edged with pink, the lines boxy, hip-length.

WE USED to laugh at the notion of Summer minks, but now we have mink jackets readied for Spring-into-early-Summer wear. A shortie-stroller, of striped mutation mink, manages to achieve a studied, if casual appearance, with its 22-inch length self buttons, the shirt flattened quite deep in back, and darks into fine front skin banding. Push-up sleeves have wide, turn-back cuffs.

THE SOUTHERN MOON shines on lovely frocks at patio parties. White organdie is used for a shirtwaist, sleeveless dance frock, the bodice fastened with tiny self buttons, the skirt trimmed with a long hand - painted floral motif in various purple shades, sparkling with sequins. Deep violet velvet waistband.

IT'S NICE TO see real patent leather, smooth and glossy, making its bid for popular favor again. Black patent is used for a shallow box bag on oblong lines, it is piped in black calf, with double handles and tab all of the calf.

A NEW switch on the cure-you agent for a strapless, deep neck-lined dress is encountered in a dress of silk organza, Roman-striped in deep-water green and blue. Here the deep, strapless neckline is hidden by a detachable bertha-capelet that ties in a soft centre bow.

Go Into Committee

After the motion, was defeated the House went into a committee of supply and the first items of the Departments of External Affairs, Defence and Agriculture were called. This means that the estimates of expenditures of these departments can be called in future without a formal motion.

The debate on the Throne-prior to adjournment.

Speakers in the trade debate included M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, Solon Low, Social Credit leader, Hon. Earl Rowe (PC — Dufferin-Simcoe), Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South), Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia), and E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops).

In the Senate, Royal assent was given to a bill providing special and supplementary unemployment insurance payments for some of Canada's 375,000 unemployed. The payments will go to unemployed who have exhausted their benefits, to lumbermen and loggers not previously covered, to those who have worked for at least 90 days in the last year in an insurable industry and to those in industries only recently made insurable.

The provisions providing for additional assistance become effective immediately. However, sections providing for an increase of one cent a day in the contributions of employers and employees will not become effective until a government proclamation is issued.

Loss of Markets

In leading off in the trade debate, Mr. Diefenbaker said that Canada's unemployment is connected with the loss of overseas markets. He feared the situation would deteriorate unless something was done immediately.

He charged that the government was not taking parliament into its confidence.

"We believe that the British people should know if there is anyone over there, as Agriculture Minister Gardiner has indicated, in official circles who has interfered with our trade and is boycotting us in any way," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

"We should know, as should the British people, who those officials are. We believe that if such a conference were convened, bringing together representatives on governmental level, with a full realization of the situation facing the Commonwealth and the Empire and with the desire to rehabilitate all parts of the commonwealth by the return of trade to at least its former level, it would go a long way to provide this country with jobs for those who are unemployed today and whose numbers may conceivably greatly increase within the next few months."

Mr. Coldwell said he would not approve of a conference which would put a trade barrier around the commonwealth countries. However, he did not think that was Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal.

Such a conference, he said should look over tariffs to see what items could reduce so that sterling countries could sell more to this country and thus get the dollars with which to buy more.

Attacks Agreements

Mr. Low said he has been "surprised" by the "jaunty attitude" of the government toward the most important question facing the government today. He said if the government had met them with enough courage to take independent action in recent years the present situation could have been prevented.

Mr. Quelch attacked both the Geneva Trade Agreements and the Bretton Woods Monetary Agreements as ineffective attempts in the past to solve the problems. Mr. Abbott said the Geneva Agreements, now given only provisional application in Canada, have "proved of the greatest benefit to this country." The agreements were largely responsible for increased exports to United States.

Mr. Abbott also rejected Mr. Quelch's suggestion that Canada accept directly the imports. That said the minister, would be just another way of extending new credits to Britain.

Mr. Rowe said a commonwealth conference would not stand in the way of increased trade with United States. Helping Canada's traditionally great customer, the United Kingdom, would be nothing more than good business. To do so would neither provoke the U.S. nor interfere with exports to that country.

The bill proposes that certification will be granted if the union obtains a majority of those actually in the plant when the vote is taken. Votes of persons absent from the plant for sickness or other causes will no longer be counted against the unions.

Copy of Federal Code

The old Act, which was practically a copy of the Federal Code, gave the board discretion as to whether a vote should be ordered.

The new bill specifies conditions under which a union may lose certification. A union may be de-certified if it "just sits around and does nothing, and fails to seek an agreement in good faith," said Mr. Daley.

The Act has a clause making a collective agreement invalid if it discriminates on grounds of race, creed or color. It also bans laws company-dominated unions.

In an effort to end illegal strikes, the bill provides that services of the Labor Board may be denied to all member locals of a parent organization if one of the locals is engaged in an illegal strike. It contains similar provisions in case an employers' association participates in an illegal lockout.

Labor Minister Daley said in an interview that while the Act gives the Board power to deny its services to the Canadian Congress of Labor or the Trades and Labor Congress if one of its member unions participates in an illegal strike, such action is "extremely unlikely." The power more likely would be used against individual unions, he said, where a strike is called illegally.

other of devotion to Communism.

"Your statement," said Lord Goddard, "shows the depths of self deception to which people like yourself can fall. Your crime is only thinly differentiated from high treason."

Asked if he had anything to say, the man who hoodwinked top British and American anti-espionage agents for seven years replied in a low, calm voice:

"I have had a fair trial. I thank you, My Lord. I thank my counsel and the Governor and the staff of the British prison for their considerate treatment."

Many Words Inaudible

Fuchs had been confined to bleak Brixton prison, in the London section of southwest London, since his arrest Feb. 2.

He spoke softly in heavily-accented English. Many of his words were inaudible to the audience in the courtroom, which was crowded with news correspondents from both sides of the iron curtain and dignitaries of British life.

Lord Goddard, in condemning Fuchs to prison, publicly raised a question which has plagued the British official bloom since the Fuchs sensation burst into the world's headlines early this month.

"Dare we now," the chief justice asked, "give shelter to political refugees who may be followers of this pernicious creed who 'well may disguise themselves and bite the hand that feeds them?'"

Sir Hartley said:

"Apart from the great harm he has done to the country which he adopted and which adopted him it is a tragedy when a man of high intellectual attainment allows his mental processes to become so warped by devotion to communism that, as he himself says, he became a kind of controlled schizophrenic (split personality)."

Fuchs fled Nazi Germany in 1933 and came to Britain. When war broke out he was sent to Britain and Canada for a while but was returned to work as one of Britain's top atom scientists.

THOMASBURG 'Bolts and Nuts' Presented in Hall By Local Talent

Thomasburg—"Bolts and Nuts" an amateur three-act comedy, was presented on Friday evening for the first time in the Thomasburg Oddfellows Hall, before a packed house, by local talent of the Oddfellows and Rebekahs lodges.

Mr. Stanley Webb, on behalf of the cast, welcomed the capacity audience. Between the first and second act Eva and Elsie Martin sang two duets while between the second and third act the Rev. Morley Clarke and Mrs. Clarke sang with guitar accompaniment.

All three scenes took place on the same day in the living room of Boli Sanitarium in a health resort somewhere in Missouri.

As the curtains are drawn for act one, Benita Bolt, a fair maiden of nineteen, and niece of Rebecca Bolt, her guardian, with whom she had resided since the death of her parents, is taking a telephone message from a lawyer, Pineas Plunkett, who is handling the estate of Rebecca's late brother, who passed away but ten days previous.

Lawyer Pineas Plunkett delivers a personal message — the last one of the deceased brother, to Rebecca, personally. In her excitement, Rebecca is unable to read, so requests niece Benita to read it aloud, the contents of which discloses the mansion is to be hers providing nothing is found not even the enlarged photo over the mantle or his old pipe with which he had to smoke outside. There is also $15,000 hidden somewhere on the premises and Rebecca can have it all providing she finds it herself, but if not, the finder hands her over $10,000 and keeps $5,000.

Rebecca has been reading Dr. Hippocrates book on "Mentality," and has already decided to turn her newly willed home into a home for the mentally ill.

Lulu Spinks, the maid, who has a nervous complex which causes her to constantly wink, is on the scene practically all the time and brings hilarious laughter from the audience almost every time she speaks or moves, busies herself with a dust cloth as well as spending a great deal of time in conversation.

Rebecca adds to her staff of helpers, Martha Grubb, her brother's cook, who also in a decidedly rude insists that all wishes be carried out; and Henry Goober, a negro porter who arms himself with a good sharp razor.

Patients who enter for care and rest are Miss Pamella Figgs, who needs plenty of fresh air; Mrs. Gertie Glossop, who carries a contagious infectant spray most all the time, and her darling spoiled-saucy son, William Glossop. Cadwalleder Clippy, a former fiance of Rebecca's, has been invited as a patient, and he brings many a laugh with both actions and speech.

Twink Starr, Benita's fiance, decides to enroll and act in disguise, taking the roll of Julius Caesar. Dr. Hippocrates Joy, the writer of the famous book which gave Miss Rebecca her ideas, has escaped from a mental institution and gives one day of his time to cure the patients.

All patients have previously learned of the money hidden and that is the only reason for being there, and much of their time is spent in the hunt. Twink is the lucky finder and generously hands over the full amount providing he and Benita are allowed their wish.

The cast was composed of:

The play was directed by Mrs. Stanley Webb and the cast has already received numerous invitations for presentations.

MENNONITE RELIEF FOOD

This pile of chickens is destined for the needy of Europe. Working on the chickens at Floradale, Ont., are, left to right: Mrs. Immanuel Baumman, Mrs. Ceranus Zeigler, Mrs. Otto Wrasse and Sister Sarah Stauffer. Then a quart-size thermos jug filled with delicious coffee, a jug of thick cream.

This for one person. The cost, was two dollars. Yes, that's right, just $2 American.

As I had plenty of time and was alone I could look around and see what others were having and take notes from the menu. The same dinner with fresh broiled lobster, the giant size 12 to 14 inches long we seldom see here, was $2.75; steaks were $2.25 to $3 and the sirloin at the higher price filled a small platter; a good-sized half Atlantic lobster was $2; all fish, including blueberry muffins, swordfish and Atlantic trout, and roasts of lamb or beef were $1.85.

And for other items on the menu. All cocktails, and they were very generous and good, were 45 cents, imported sherry was 45 cents and domestic, 30; imported Scotch was 55 to 65 cents and domestic 45; Canadian rye 55 cents and domestic 45.

Just try to remember the prices charged in Ontario.

The whole point is that this was a fine meal, well cooked and served. It was the kind of a meal anybody would enjoy if they were hungry and at least admire if they were not.

And I don't think it was uncommon or unusual. From what I have observed in a bit of travel across the border in the past year it was about what can be expected from the average good restaurant in most U.S. cities.

Down there they seem to take a pride in the meals they serve, even in the casual customer, in public eating places. This is truer of some cities than others, naturally. In some cities you can be sure of a good meal in practically every restaurant. I noticed this in particular in San Francisco last Spring, even the one-arm joints seemed to take pride in the quality of their food.

Now for a bit of preaching. We hear a lot in Canada these days about the value of the tourist trade and how we should make visitors comfortable and feel at home. And how we should treat them fairly and not overcharge. To my mind there are three things that stamp a place on a visitor's mind—the food served and the charges for it, the kind of mattress and cleanliness of sleeping accommodation, the local sights and scenery. As lasting impressions I believe food and charges come first — most everybody hates slloppy food, poorly cooked, and to be gyyped.

Now go back over the details of that Buffalo meal and remember its cost and the prices charged for drinks and ask if you could do as well anywhere in Canada? From personal experience in most of our good hotels and a lot of restaurants from coast to coast I doubt it. There are a few places capable of serving such a meal but it would be on an a la carte basis and the cost would be at least double what I paid in Buffalo. And, in Ontario at least, drinks would be half again more expensive.

Is there any wonder quite a few American tourists do a bit of grousing, a bit of complaining. The well-heeled among them, at least, are accustomed to meals such as I have described at their restaurants. They cannot get as good here, nor as well served, and they have to pay considerably more.

Newsman Complains of Ottawa Food

(By R. L. W. of the Ottawa Journal Staff.)

Last week I happened to be in Buffalo, N.Y., for a few hours waiting for a bus to return to Niagara Falls and had the good luck to eat a restaurant meal that is worth telling about. There is an ulterior motive to this piece that will come out later but if you are interested in food, well served and well prepared, read on.

In the first place the restaurant was neither plush, exclusive nor arty. Neither was it in one of the big hotels. It was on the main street in the centre of the older shopping area of Buffalo and almost next door to the bus terminal. It had an alleged Spanish exterior and interior, much yellow plaster and fake red tiles and a huge electric sign to attract customers. The sort of large, commercial restaurant where the casual traveller and tourist is likely to eat.

First there was a starched tablecloth, the kind that sticks out all around the table, and a yard-square starched napkin and good table silver. Before I had even ordered the attractive waitress placed a basket with six kinds of bread, four varieties of hot rolls and tea biscuits; a bowl containing ice and about eight man-sized pieces of butter; a tray with four large pieces of celery, cut through the hearts, olives, radishes and pickles, all in ice; and a bowl of green salad with a very excellent French dressing on the table. All that was just taken for granted.

Then the main meal. A half dozen bluepoint oysters that had obviously been selected for uniform size, well chilled in ice and with the right choice of sauces; a seafood soup with good chunks of fresh lobster floating about; four pairs of sizable frogs-legs cooked just right. There was a wide variety of potatoes and fresh-frozen vegetables to be had and the waitress seemed surprised that I was slowing up.

Dessert I was not having but she tried to tempt with fresh frozen strawberry or raspberry pie that was about two inches thick and looked delicious, or a wide variety or other pies and pastry that all looked extremely good. "What about a cheese?" she asked and brought over a wooden tray with about 20 different kinds. I selected an important variety that sells around $1.80 a pound in Ottawa and she cut off a generous piece, brought this crackers.

Then a quart-size thermos jug filled with delicious coffee, a jug of thick cream.

This for one person. The cost, was two dollars. Yes, that's right, just $2 American.

Mackenzie's Column: Britain Expects Another General Election Soon

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Despite the instability of Britain's Labor government because of the tiny parliamentary majority it received in the general election, there is reason to assume that her home affairs or foreign relations are going to pot as a result.

Actually the uncertainty of tenure may prove to be a blessing in disguise at this precise juncture.

This paradoxical situation is due to the fact that Britain's critical economic situation, and her vast responsibilities as one of the Big Three Western Powers, call for a minimum of political confusion.

There is nothing Britain needs more at this juncture than government of a non-contentious basis.

There is a fair chance — though no certainty — that this is what the country will get for a time. Of course, under the circumstances there is bound to be another general election before long. But the current disposition of the ambitious Conservatives under the leadership of Winston Churchill seems to be not to force the issue right now unless the socialists raise a highly controversial issue. This the socialists aren't expected to do. There are two good reasons why both the government and its opposition aren't anxious for another general election in the near future. One is that a quick election would be terribly disquieting for the country, and the other is that the actual monetary cost of an election is a great drain on party resources.

At this juncture one can see four issues which might precipitate a dog fight and another general election. The first one is the Speech from the Throne, which will be delivered March 9. Should this be too socialistic in tone it would be sure to draw heavy fire from the Conservatives.

Then there is the touchy question of frozen wages and dividends.

A third and highly controversial matter is completion of the nationalization of the country's great steel industry. An attempt to implement this drastic move would produce a big fight.

And finally in April the national budget will be introduced in commons. This is bound to be full of fireworks.

Accused Becomes His Own Lawyer, Acquitted in 20 Min.

Charlotte, N.C., March 1—(AP) Willie (Pig Meat) Alexander yesterday faced his umteenth trial for drunkenness.

He asked for a jury trial; said he would be his own lawyer.

Hitching up his hound's tooth check coat suit, Willie began his oration to the jury:

"Mister gentlemen of the jury. I'm not a bad boy. I don't drink because everytime I drink, I steal. That's the reason I quit drinking 'cause I steal — when I gets drunk.

"I wasn't drunk. When I'm guilty I pleads guilty."

He bowed.

The jury took 20 minutes to acquit him.

Attlee Reshuffles Cabinet Along Strong Political Lines To Meet Opposition Challenge

London, March 1 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee has reshuffled his Labor cabinet along strong political lines to meet the threatened Conservative challenge in Parliament, which opens today.

Attlee, whose Labor party majority in the 625-member House of Commons was cut to a scanty seven in last week's elections, kept his three top cabinet aides: Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

He made some 18 changes, chiefly in the lower brackets, in a move obviously aimed at strengthening the party for new elections which most observers feel will be called within a few months at most.

He increased his cabinet from 17 to 18 members—elevating several Labor members who are expected to swing considerable weight in any new election campaign.

The new cabinet post went to Hugh Dalton as Minister of Town and Country Planning, which was raised to fifth in order of importance. Dalton, formerly holding the trouble-shooting job as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, succeeded Lewis Silkin, who was not a candidate for re-election to the Commons.

Shinwell Promoted

Emanuel Shinwell, former war secretary, was promoted to Defence Minister, replacing Viscount Alexander of Hillsborough. Lord Chancellor got Dalton's old job as the Duchy of Lancaster, and James Griffiths, former Minister of National Insurance, was promoted to Colonial Secretary, filling the post left open by Arthur Creech Jones, who failed to get re-elected. Dr. Edith Summerskill, Britain's only woman minister for several years, got the National Insurance post. She was formerly Parliamentary Secretary in the Ministry of Food.

Another promotion went to Scotsman Hector McNeil, former Minister of State and United Nations delegate, who was given the post of Secretary of State for Scotland in an obvious bid for Scottish support for the party.

Old Post Filled

Philip Noel-Baker gave up his job as Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations to become the new Minister of Fuel and Power. His old post was filled by Patrick C. Gordon – Walker, who made 'the biggest' jump of all from an under secretaryship.

Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, leader of the left-wing branch of labor, had been reported pushing for promotion to a more important job. But he was re-appointed to the health post.

Italy to Make Travel Easier for Canadians

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Rome — (CP) — Abolition of tourist visas between Canada and Italy is under discussion with action probable this year, it is disclosed by Canadian and Italian sources.

Between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 visitors — 16,000 of them Canadians — are expected during Holy Year activities in 1950 and for most of them Italy already has put a lot of red tape. Her tourist trade is expected to total about $500,000,000 in 1950.

During the last year she has abolished tourist visas for visitors from Norway, Denmark and Luxembourg and is about to do so for Sweden. She has relatively long-standing tourist agreements with the United Kingdom, France, Ireland and Sweden.

Canadians in 1949 brought $750,000 to Italy, whose total tourist-dollar intake was $20,000,000.

Italy has pioneered the European movement to simplify travel. Foreign Minister Sforza, noting the Strasbourg Council's resolution favoring simpler travel regulations, suggested to the Organization for European Economic Co-Operation that Marshall Plan countries abolish visas for travel among them, at least for periods up to three months.

The Palazzo Chigi — Rome's foreign office — is confident of acceptance of the principle and stands ready to campaign, for exemption of the idea to principal capitals of the other continents.

Sforza has devised an international passport or identity card for use initially by citizens of Marshall Plan countries.

The government has moved to simplify irritating customs and police formalities. The tourist commission has asked the foreign office to abolish the "foglia di soggiorno", a police form each traveller in Italy has to obtain personally, usually involving considerable delay.

As a minimum demand the commission has asked for their abolition for visits up to 15 days by individual travellers.

Visitors are allowed to bring in as much money and in whatever form they want—except in currency-controlled Europe. But they can't take out the unspent remainder out of the country unless on entering they declared how much they had. To do this they must ask for a currency declaration which is handed over in a routine interview.

As a special courtesy to Holy Year pilgrims necessary permissions have been ordered to ignore "technical breaches of the regulations" by strangers. During 1950 foreigners can place their feet on Italian soil without risking the usual fine.

Railway stations have been ordered to repaint their signs, clean toilets and waiting-rooms tidy. Rome's police, in new uniforms, have been lectured on politeness and the advantages of shaving.

Holy Year pilgrims receive reduced rates on Rome's street-car and trolley-bus services, cheap entry tickets to museums, art galleries and other showplaces. Their Rome credentials are honored in other centres such as Milan, Florence, Siena and Pisa.

Holy Year administrators have 40,000 beds at their disposal for pilgrims who want to travel reasonably. And they are building two luxury "Pilgrims' Palaces" on the Via della Conciliazione, leading to St. Peter's for those who don't.

Equalized Rates Asked in Motion By Electric Assoc.

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Equalized hydro rates for all of Ontario were asked in a resolution endorsed Tuesday by the convention of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

Delegates from Niagara Falls argued that the geographic location of their city should be recognized by a low rate but others contended that the cost of transmitting power to areas far distant from generating sites should be shared by communities closer to the source.

Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Power Commission, told the convention that power rationing will not be necessary this year. Nor would there be any necessity for extension of daylight time beyond the regular period.

Mr. Saunders said the Des Joachims plant on the Ottawa River would be generating 180,000 horsepower by next July, and an additional 90,000 horsepower by January of 1951. Pine Portage on the Nipigon River would provide an initial output of 80,000 horsepower by September. The Mississagi River generating station would add 56,000 horsepower by 1952.

A line system connecting generating stations in Northern and Southern Ontario would be completed during the summer, said Mr. Saunders, permitting Northern Ontario against any power shortage during the next fall and winter.

R. Butler of Owen Sound was elected president of the O.M.E.A. with M. W. Rogers of Carleton Place vice-president. Directors of at-large are N. . Grandfield of Brantford, H. B. Reynolds of Chatham and O. E. Woods of Belleville.

District directors are V. A. McKillop of London; A. W. Bromley, Kitchener; H. A. Howard, Thorold; G. E. Chase, Bowmanville; N. A. Belfrey, Uxbridge; N. J. Douglas, Smiths Falls; A. W. H. Tabet, Fort William, and R.H. Martindale, Sudbury.

375,000 Unemployed Become Eligible For Special Benefits Under Unemployment Plan

Ottawa, March 1—(CP)—Some of Canada's 375,000 unemployed today became eligible for special and supplementary unemployment insurance benefits.

The bill providing for the benefits, to be paid this year from March 1 to April 15, were adopted in the Senate Tuesday and given royal assent shortly after by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret. It was the first legislation approved at the second session of the present parliament to be given royal assent.

Wednesday the Senate also heard Thomas Reid, bagpipe-playing senator from British Columbia, warn that the fishing industry of his province was in danger of exploitation by the Japanese and that aluminium interests were attempting to "grab off" hydro-electric power along the Fraser River.

The special and supplementary unemployment benefits will amount to about 80 per cent of what the unemployed received under the former unemployment insurance act. They are designed to aid workers unable to find employment during the slack winter season and will not prejudice the worker's claim for full benefits under the act at some future time.

Also this year the benefits will be paid between June 1 and March 31.

During the debate in the commons, government spokesmen estimated an additional 100,000 of those now unemployed will benefit from the new legislation that also increases the contributions of employers and employees by one cent a day. Date for the increased contributions to start will be set later.

Many Qualifiers

Qualifying for the new benefits are workers who have been in insurable employment and have exhausted regular benefits; workers in logging or lumbering camps in areas where contributions were not heretofore required; workers in industries brought under the Unemployment Insurance Act too recently to qualify; and workers who since March 31 last, have worked a minimum of 90 days in insurable employment.

Senator Reid startled the Senate with his warnings of dangers threatening the west coast province whilst continuing debate on the Speech from the Throne.

He urged that when Canada participates in the signing of a peace treaty with Japan, a practical Canadian fisherman "and not a theorist" be appointed an adviser to protect the interests of B.C. against Japanese off-shore fishing.

Some Japanese fishermen already had been found roving in Australian coastal waters. The same thing may possibly be going on in Canada's Pacific waters.

Referring to the aluminium danger, Senator Reid said the B.C. government is about to hand over one of Canada's "most wonderful heritages" to one of the "world's largest combines."

The Aluminium Company was "power hungry" and now it was after the Nechako and Chilco power sites of the Fraser. If the B.C. government approved these sites then three-quarters of the salmon fisheries in the Fraser "would be wiped out".

Govt. Will Not Undertake Any Relief Projects

Ottawa, March 1. (CP)—The federal government does not share in the belief that it is necessary to undertake unemployment relief projects this year, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Tuesday.

He said the government has reached this decision because private enterprise plans a large capital investment program again this year. Surveys show capital investment in 1950 should not be less than last year, he told a Montreal delegation of businessmen seeking a federal grant of $4,000,000 towards a sports centre.

The Prime Minister said the amount of work actually accomplished would not be increased if the government undertook projects not already planned since it likely would be done anyway with private interests for available manpower.

Lucien Roy, president of Bilingual Association, read a brief in which the delegation outlined plans for the sports centre, it would cost $10,000,000. The Federal government would be asked to pay $4,000,000, the Quebec government $4,000,000 and the city of Montreal $2,000,000.

Mr. St. Laurent did not turn down the request. He said he and his Cabinet colleagues would study it in the light of other commitments. Expenditures on defence were considered a federal government from doing many things which the people wanted.

World Seat 100,000

Mr. Roy said, plans for the sports centre called for a stadium that would seat about 100,000 people. There would be an auditorium where artistic works could be performed. There would be places as well for such things as industrial expositions.

Montreal, he said, Roy, should make a big for the Olympic games and would have a place where they could be staged. The centre would reduce juvenile delinquency and would improve the moral and physical health of the people.

Mr. St. Laurent said government estimates now before the Commons call for expenditures of $2,300,000,000. It was not an easy task to decide what should be given priority. There also was a limit to what could be asked of taxpayers.

The government had estimated in 1945 and 1946 that it could keep defence expenditures between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 a year. But for 1950-51, it found it necessary to ask for $452,000,000.

Edward Johnson Bid Farewell At Metropolitan

New York, March 1 (AP)—The men and women of the opera—from stage hands to stars—threw a party last night for Edward Johnson, the man who has been their boss for 15 years.

Johnson, a native of Guelph, retires as the general manager of the Metropolitan Opera.

There was a full house—the thing he always liked to see—on hand to bid him farewell.

Past and present members of company, including prop men, oilers, billposter, conductors, musicians, clerks, world-famous singers, members of the board of directors, firemen and mechanics were present.

Twelve unions volunteered their services for the affair, which began with a performance of Puccini's "La Tosca" and included sketches of 12 of the 72 opera's that have been produced under Johnson's direction.

Proceeds, estimated at $46,000, were designated for an Edward Johnson Testimonial Fund.

In a brief speech, tinged with emotion, Johnson said the money would be available to the Metropolitan in periods of pressure-several of which the Met has weathered during Johnson's management.

Johnson, who made his debut at the Met's old house in 1922, called his years at the opera "fruitful, exciting and very happy."

Gifts presented to him included a portrait which will be hung in the halls of the famous old opera house, along with the top figures in history.

Rudolph Bing takes over as general manager for the 1950-51 season.

Wellington on the Lake

Branch and twig are decked in ermine,
Summer paths are buried deep,
Winter clouds dark and sullen,
Nature takes her winter sleep;
But though winter wild is waging
War against the earth below,
Safe from harm, the flowers are sleeping
Underneath the ice and snow.
—Helen B. Anderson.

The week beginning Monday, Feb. 20, ushered in a real old-fashioned winter with cold and snow. Traffic was slowed down an occasional farmer driving in for feed from the factories, or bringing a grist to the mill. An occasional transport passed to collect canned goods from the factories. But the winter weather has provided means for skating and hockey, the prevailing winter amusement here.

Letters from Miss Nellie Arthur of Belleville, and Miss Elva Lockin, Smithfield, who are holidaying in Florida, tell of very warm weather and a large arrival of tourists. All are anticipating the enjoyment at the Festival of Stars, about the middle of March, when a huge parade, with nearly every state in the Union taking part with a beautiful float, will be a great attraction. Many tourists prolong their visits to see this grand festival which is a wonderful sight. Americans spare no expense to attract the tourist.

Among the Wellington homes displaying the "For Sale" sign is Grasmere Lodge, a fine brick structure suitable for tourist accommodation. At the corner of Main St. and Maple Ave. is the dwelling of the late Mrs. Emma Bowerman—a fine dwelling with a view of the lake. And adjoining it at the west is the home of Pastor Mason. It is understood too that Wellington's oldest homes, Tara Hall and the Slone Manor House will be offered for sale. These might serve as historic attractions for tourists.

The tea table was covered with a pretty lace cloth and centred with a birthday cake with candles. Following the tea, fortunes were read from the tea cups. Guests included Mrs. George Ferguson, Miss Mary Lamb, Mrs. Hartwick, Mrs. H. B. Anderson, Miss M. Blakely and Mrs. Arthur Morden, Christian Street. All joined in wishing Mrs. Ferguson many happy birthdays.

Mrs. Hilton McCartney, Picton, spent a few days a guest of Mr. W. Wiggins and Mrs. W. H. Treskey.

In spite of the cold weather hockey fans have been travelling far to enjoy the games, some going to Brighton and Marmora, and others as far as Bobcaygeon.

Ontario motorists miss much by not exploring rural areas in the winter, with ever-changing variety of roadside scenes, although without the familiar roadside tables for picnics. Dunedin Village is just one of the rural centres ready to serve the motorist — and the farmer — and the reception is friendly.

Deer Infested With Liver Fluke, 203 Deer in Ontario Examined

Deer and elk in 16 Ontario counties, so far discovered to be infested with the large American liver fluke, a recent survey shows. Included in these 16 counties, 11 of which showed a greater infestation in the livers of deer, elk and moose, were: Renfrew, Hastings, Peterborough, Frontenac, Bruce, Carleton, Algoma, Nipissing, Rainy River, Kenora and Sudbury.

The announcement was made by Dr. A. A. Kingscote, V.S., professor of parasitology, Ontario Veterinary College, OAC, Guelph in a paper presented to Research Council of the Ontario Advisory Committee on Fisheries and Wild life research in Kingston on Saturday.

Dr. Kingscote reported that in Ontario, 203 deer of various ages from widely separated localities were examined, and of 91 livers inspected, 13.2 per cent showed infestation with from one to 31 flukes each. Specific examination of deer droppings revealed 11.6 per cent of the animals infested with flukes. White-tail deer in Ontario showed an overall incidence of 9 per cent infected, 12 per cent infestation.

Dr. Kingscote described the symptoms of fluke infestation in the section of his paper dealing with "liver rot disease." He said that the sudden infestation of animals with large numbers of larval flukes, which penetrate the intestinal walls and wander about the body cavities, may cause almost immediate death. In cases where infestation is moderate and gradual, no signs of ill health are usually observed. Later, ha went on, when the worms commence to burrow into the liver, tracts, cysts abscesses and secondary bacterial infections may destroy much liver tissue. These lesions, in the advanced stages, are associated with marked dark pigmentation of the liver surface and associated lymph glands. The flukes are usually found in pairs, within cysts containing an inky-like liquid. In chronic cases the lesions become calcified, scar tissue is formed and the livers become rough, irregular and lumpy.

The classical symptoms of the disease are "bottle jaw" a swelling in the intermandibular space, anaemia and jaundice, but these symptoms are not always constant.

The most certain method of recognizing flukes infestations is by finding the parasites in the livers by cutting them into thin slices.

Concern regarding the existence of flukes in Ontario arose when meat inspectors observed the livers from the Burwash area seriously damaged by the parasites.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg — Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Carleton opened their home on Monday evening last to the congregation of Christ Church and their friends for a card party. Despite the extreme cold weather a good crowd was in attendance and a very enjoyable evening was had.

Due to the unfavorable weather and road conditions the auction sale of farm stock, crop, implements and household effects at the home of Mr. Archie Jones had to be postponed from Thursday last until March 9th.

On Thursday afternoon after the sideroads had been plowed out, a bad car accident occurred on the Fuller road about a half mile east of Fuller church when Lloyd McCauley driving east and Jim Wilson driving west, met head on on a sharp hill. Both men were taken to Belleville Hospital for treatment, but were able to return to their homes that evening. Mr. McCauley receiving chest injuries and a bad cut on the forehead and temple, while Mr. Wilson received injuries to both knees and face injuries, as well as a fractured jaw.

It will be remembered Mr. Wilson suffered nose injuries late in December, Master Ronald Wilson was a passenger in his father's car and suffered the loss of a tooth. Both cars were badly damaged.

Mr. John Geen spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Morton in Belleville.

Shannonville — Due to the recent inclement weather, a small number were able to attend the World's Day of Prayer Service held in the United Church on Friday evening.

The women of Holy Trinity Guild joined with the members of the United Church in this special service of prayer, prepared in a great part by Miss Michi Kawai founder of Kelser Gale School, Japan.

In the absence, due to illness, of the president of the Women's Missionary Society, of the United Church, Mrs. L. W. Scott, the Rev. Scott presided over the first portion of the service. "Adoration — Lifting Our Eyes to God," the theme of this Prayer service being "Faith for Our Time."

The responsive reading, led by Mr. Scott, was chosen from Psalm 99,9, Israel 12 2-6, and Psalm 104;33, 34.

The next portion of the service was "Examination, Looking at Ourselves." Mr. Scott also conducted this part of the service of worship in the Meditation, Prayer was followed by silent prayer, and the responsive reading chosen from Deutronomy 30, 15-16-19-20 John 14.6.

Mrs. Damon Hinchey, the W. M. S. pianist, presided at the piano for the singing of the old familiar hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," "My Faith Looks up to Thee." "Fight the Good Fight" and "The Way Thou Gavest Lord is Ended."

Confession and Repentance

Mrs. Sidney Fitzgerald, president of Holy Trinity Ladies' Guild took charge of the next part of the service — "Confession and Repentance — Searching Our Hearts." This consisted of a prayer in unison, meditation by the leader; Prayer followed by silent prayer, and responsive reading chosen from Ephesians 6: 10-15.

"Intercession — Praying for Others" was in charge of the leader, Mrs. E. M. Caldwell. The prayer for the Ministry by Mrs. Wes. Stewart the King and leaders of the country, by Mrs. Gordon Johnson, and our families, by Mrs. Henry Topping.

After the National Anthem was sung as a prayer, Mrs. Lorne Uens made the prayer for all nations especially for the members of the Security Council of the United Nations. The prayer for the Christians of the world was taken by Miss Leona Uens, and the prayer for the missionaries in every land and the World Council of Churches, by Mrs. Damon Hinchey.

Misses Myrtle and Leona Uens took up the offering which is used for a number of good causes, some $24.275 being the receipts of last year's Day of Prayer services.

Faith of Our Time

Mr. Scott gave an interesting address on the significance of the World Day of Prayer, and the theme "Faith for Our Time", mentioning that whereas the Gospel of Jesus Christ had been taken in the world, women had co-operated in spreading the gospel by giving themselves unreservedly to promote Christ's Kingdom. Today Christian women in all lands, regardless of church, creed or color, are observing this Day of Prayer.

"Jesus is still our Leader today. When He left to take his place on God's right hand, his Disciples were lonely; they needed power although they had been interested. Jesus commanded them to go and receive that power. Mr. Scott continued with the thought that the very important thing needed in any church is the power that comes to it through power — both private and public, so as to be filled with Jesus' spirit to be able to do things. If we haven't that power we should look to ourselves."

The speaker continued, with the statement that the power of the early Christian Church began in the little group in the "Upper Room" where the disciples returned feeling they stayed the ascension with power was given and were filled with the spirit then went out doing good.

Prayer Changes Things

In the realm of prayer you and I live by Faith, success in prayer is not determined by intellectual understanding but by childlike simplicity, and willingness to take God at His word, and trust Him.

"There was never a time when so many difficulties were around us; It is a Test of our Faith. Every Christian can testify that prayer does make a difference. God has answered many prayers in His own way.

Prayer is a path to tranquility of mind. Troubled souls in the world can find peace through prayer. Whenever we are, God's ear is open to our cry. Prayer lifts our souls above the cares of life. Rev. Scott referred to Psalm 102.

He concluded his address with the thought that this was a day of tremendous power and influence for women throughout the world. He thanked God for the work of women and may God bless them in their service at prayer to build Christ's Kingdom on earth, was his closing words.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

As the hard-boiled gent remarked when the barrel containing his mother-in-law neared the brink of Niagara Falls: "Well, chums, it's nearly over". That more or less precisely is the hockey situation in Oshawa's village as the month opens. The Rockets juniors future hinges on the outcome of a protest. The midgets will have to pull a hundred inches of rabbits out of the hockey hat if they expect to overcome that 14-goal deficit in Oshawa. And by the same token plenty of legerdemain is necessary if the Bandies are to get over their seven-goal deficit, also in Oshawa. The Metcors, who deserved a better fate last night trail the Petes team by a lone goal, but they may not play the return game.

It appears, according to the Peterborough coach that the Civic Arena in his town is more cluttered with hockey dates next week (for the Invasion don't say of those Peter squads set rubber outfit) than Maple Leaf Gardens in mid-season. So the only date he could get, sez he, is Saturday next. Mister Edmund Schreiber, who master - minds the Metcors states that five of his boys are in the employed class over the weekend and as such cannot make the trip. He interphoned Secretary Jack Christie of the OMHA at an early hour this morning but that gent was adamant in his statement that a winner must be declared by March 4 and so-o-o-o-o-o, Metcs must meet Petes Saturday, or else . . .

Belleville Rockets may yet get another chance to battle Oshawa in the semi-finals' brackets of the Junior "B" district playoffs, thanks to some mysterious strategy on the part of the Oshawa mentors. It appears the Motor City powers-that-be secured permission to play a game with Belleville that alleged to have played in one or more Junior "A" games prior to December 15th. The Rockets were prepared to promptly accept the game on those grounds, deposited the usual twenty-five bucks and sat back prepared to see the matter settled.

Then came Monday night's tussle. Instead of Claus appearing in the Oshawa nets, young Mr. Hurst, the regular Bees goalie turned up. The Rockets management were unpermarily apprised of this change and, of course, they tacked tongue-in-cheek, and promptly got in touch with the OMHA. They were informed that the Oshawa team had special permission to use him, and get this, after Hurst had been examined by the sidelines for seven days by a physician's orders, due to his health, or something.

The Rockets management promptly fired in a protest on Hurst which will be heard in Toronto next week. Now if the Oshawa team entered and played Hurst on Monday after using Claus the previous game is a bit mysterious. As it is, the strategy, or is it a bluff, may have been to have used Claus Monday, they stood a good chance of having the Belleville protest thrown out, or if it was upheld, the umpires would take place on Oshawa ice. As matters stand now, if the OHA upholds the Rockets protest on Hurst, the replay will likely be ordered for Belleville ice. Somebody slipped up somewhere, it would seem.

Lee W. Dirby, sportsman de luxe, athlete and official par excellence, who holds enough presidencies and athletic organizations in his bean bin to fill a week of the day, has not been allowing the fluvarive alfalfa to sprout beneath his rootsies.

We don't know what the gent has been doing these long snowless winter months, perhaps brooding and planning over what might happen to his beloved soccer set-up in 1956. However, he is apparently taking no chances for he now bobs up with announcements of annual meetings of both the fithe Eddies and the racquetwielders.

Lee informs us that the Annual General Meeting of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League is scheduled for the YMCA on Wednesday, March 8 at 8 of the clock. Election of officers, etc. and arrangement of program for 1950. A member of the Ontario Football Association is expected to address the meeting.

Last year, he said, was the first season of existence of the League and five teams were in competition as follows: Belleville United, Northern Electric, Batawa, C. I. D., and Trenton. The League is assured of additional entries this year from the district. Any organization or centre wishing to enter a team may obtain additional information with a view to forming up a team this year is requested to attend the meeting on March 8th or to contact the League President Leo. Digby, 139 West Bridge St. Belleville.

Last season some very interesting soccer. The League trophy was won by the Batawa club with 6 R. D. as runners - up. 6 R. D. won the Belleville Merchants Charity Cup and were the district representatives in the Ontario Intermediate Championships. Northern Electric took the Trenton Challenge Cup. Some exhibition matches the League drew 2-2 with Toronto Irish in Belleville and beat them 5-2 in Toronto. It is anticipated that additional exhibition matches will be played after the 1950 season.

The League hopes to organize a Junior League this year to cater for the younger element.

Volunteers are required for the job of referee. Whistle tooters of last year are expected to officiate again but with more experience more will be required. Anyone wishing to help out in this capacity should attend the general meeting or contact the League President.

Of course the Annual General Meeting is open to all soccer enthusiasts and it is hoped to have a good turnout.

He also announces the Bay of Quinte Tennis League will be holding its Annual General Meeting in the m. on Wednesday 15th March at the clubrooms of the Quinte Tennis Club at the corner of Queen and Dufferin St. in Belleville.

This is the third year of operation of this League since the war, and clubs entering the competition last year were: Point Anne, Trenton, Holloway St. Church, and two teams from the Quinte Tennis Club. It is hoped that additional clubs will enter this competition this year to compete for the League trophy won by Point Anne last year.

Miss Margaret Williams of 226 Dufferin St., Belleville is the Secretary of the League and any one desiring further information regarding the League is requested to contact her or to attend the Annual General Meeting on 15th March.

Supporters of Aurora's Junior hockey team are still burning about this one.

After their Black Hawks eliminated Brampton 6-1 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior C group final Saturday night, they emerged from the local arena to find Aurora police had plastered about 20 parking tickets on their cars.

William Calhoun, an Aurora supporter, said: "I didn't see no-parking signs around" but "didn't think they applied to us at a time like this."

But here's what made them really mad: Because the court clerk's office was closed Saturday night, they had to make the 25-mile trip to Brampton again Monday to pay the fines.

Hamilton Tigers Defeat Marlies By 5-1 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

What makes an old machine suddenly start running?

The Hamilton Tigers apply to the Hamilton Tigers who last night hung up a convincing 5-1 defeat on the powerful Toronto Marlboros to give a big boost to their chances of gaining a place in the finals for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" championships.

All through the season and now in the 13-game round-robin semi-finals, the Tigers-have won the "percentage" games. Buried in fourth-and-last place through a good portion of the regular schedule, the Bengals sprang to life when it was announced that only the first three teams would enter playoff competition.

Marlboros were sure of the first spot, but the Tigers knocked Owen Sound out of third and at the close of the seasonal play were breathing down the necks of the second-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen. Now the owners of three playoff wins against three defeats—a game behind Marlboros and Kitchener-Hamilton plays Kitchener - Waterloo in two of the last three games—has an unenviable chore for the Dutchmen, who must win both to stay in the running. Marlboros are assured a spot.

The Tigers jumped into the lead early Tuesday night, Tom Smellie scoring at 3:06. Max Taylor and Gordie Windsor paired-wiched Chuck Blair's Marlboro tally to give the Hamiltonians a 3-1 lead going into the second.

Bill Dinning's second-period goal made it 4-1 and Gordie Mieclnovich pumped home a fifth in the game's last.

The junior circuit continues tonight when Marlboros carry a 1-1 record into Windsor Arenas for the third game of the best-of-seven semi-final series, St. Michael's take on Barrie in the fourth game of a best-of-five quarter-final and Guelph Biltmores meet Guelph in the other best-of-five quarter-final.

St. Catharines and St. Michael's trail the opposition by a single game and must win to stay in the battle while Marlboros have the services of players on the limp, including their centre ace, George Armstrong, taking treatments for a back ailment.

Reibel of Windsor In Driving Finish Wins Scoring Title

Toronto, March 1 (CP) —Earl Reibel, stocky centre of Windsor Spitfires, came through with a driving finish to win the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A individual scoring race and establish a league record.

Scoring statistics released Tuesday reveal that Reibel, always among the leaders, finished with 129 points—53 goals and 76 assists—to edge Charlie Burgess Memorial Trophy as the League's top scorer.

The old mark of 94 points was set last season by Bert Gieseebrecht, also of Windsor.

Marlboro forward George Armstrong, the top goal scorer, finished second with 64 goals and 81 assists for 115 points. Con Switzer of St. Catharines Teepees was third with 112 points — 35 goals and 77 assists. Following him was Ed Stankiewicz of Windsor with 103 points from 53 goals and 50 assists.

In the battle for the Dave Pinkney Trophy—awarded to the league's top goaltender — Ken Lockhart of Marlboros was the victor with a 2.4 goals-a-game average, including nine shutouts. His nearest opposition was Glen Hall of Windsor was a 3.5 record.

Office Defeats Machine Shop 5-2 In Northern Loop

Unchanged

Scoring two goals in the first two periods and adding another for good measure in the third, the Office team of the Northern Electric Inter-departmental Hockey League defeated the Machine Shop 5-2 in the Memorial Arena Monday night.

The Shoppers drew first blood after six minutes of the first period when Lange scored on a solo effort. The Pencil Pushers roared back into the picture and James first: Some a pass on passes from Barrett to give his team the lead.

Barrett took James' pass to increase the lead 3-1 in the second and Little made it 4-1 before MacDonald and Gregoire teamed up to reduce the lead to 4-2.

Hobbs scored from Barrett for the Office crew for the only goal of the third period. Three penalties were handed out by Referee Thrasher in a clean well-fought game.

The teams:

Machine Shop — Goal, Lepp; defence, MacDonald, Long; centre, Lange; wings, Skibicki, Holsey; subs, Lupinette, Bush, Gregoire, Creggan.

Office — Goal, Birkconnell; defence, Rutherford, Pipierni; centre, Little; wings, Barrett, James; subs, Rolston, Lynch, Kendrick and Hobbs.

Bill Cowley Willing Fugitive From Hockey

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Cowley, it turned out today, is a willing fugitive from hockey if that means the end to his livilhood in 13 seasons as a star player and in two more as coach.

The former centre ace of Boston Bruins has finished Hockey League, until a few weeks ago.

"Sitting in the stands and watching the game, the way they called green here Saturday — we did. "In my day they played the puck. Now they play the man. The art of defence has been mastered. Now they hit. I'm glad I'm out of it."

He's had enough of coaching, too. He was coach last season at Vancouver and he handled Kitchener crew in the Eastern Canada

The Brampton - Aurora hockey feud was dissolved Tuesday with a gesture of goodwill.

Aurora officials were pretty sore at Brampton after Saturday night, three cops of the local arena to find parking tickets on their cars. They couldn't help thinking the Brampton Junior C Black Hawks had just eliminated Aurora from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior C group finals.

Manager Harold Lawrence of Brampton patched neighborly relations Tuesday. All tickets will be withdrawn and refunds made. Also, all out-of-town motorists who travelled the 35 miles back to Brampton to pay their fines, he said.

Defence Minister Claxton has donated a trophy for annual competition between Canada's territ-service colleges, the defence department announced at Ottawa Tuesday.

The sterling silver trophy, to be known as the Claxton Cup, will be awarded to the team winning the annual sports tournament between Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., and Royal Roads at Esquimalt, B.C.,

Freddie Daigle of Montreal eked out an unpopular split decision over southpaw Al Colthorpe of the Royal Montreal Regiment Tuesday night at Ottawa in the main bout of a 14-match armed services boxing show sponsored by the Rockcliffe RCAF boxing club.

In another bout the RCAF's Art Burgess from Aylmer, Ont., took a five-round decision over Ernie Leblanc of the Royal Montreal Regiment.

Three Renfrew boxers. Wally Hudson, Kenny Grace and Lorne Mathews, scored knockout victories while other verdicts went to Pat Fraser of Trenton, Dick St. Louis of Ottawa and Gerinak of Aylmer, and Air Cadet Gele Kerwin of Ottawa.

Officials of Windsor's sterling basketball team said Tuesday night they were advised by the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association, headquarters at Merriton, Ont., that the association has upheld Windsor's protest over the eligibility of a Tillsonburg Trojan player.

Windsor lodged the protest last Saturday night against lanky Paul Anthony whom local officials said was not eligible under OBAA resident rules to play for Tillsonburg. Anthony's home is Fort Erie, Ont., in the Niagara Falls district.

Officials said that semi-final game here Saturday — which the Sterlings defeated the Trojans—50-53 but lost the series 76-70 — will be thrown out and a new game is scheduled at Windsor Thursday night between the Trojans and Sterlings.

University of Detroit Titans walloped Windsor Assumption College Purple Raiders, 70-46, in an exhibition basketball game at Windsor Tuesday night.

When the Eastern Canada track and field championships get under way at Toronto tonight, Rev. Bob Richards will be trying for his 11th straight win in the pole vault event, a standard attained in actual competition only by the now-retired United States Cornelius Warmerdam.

The pole vaulting parson from the University of Illinois says he has hit the 15-foot mark several times in practice but the best he could do in meets was 14 feet 11 1-2 inches. The Canadian record, held by Bob Morcom of New Hampshire, is 14 feet, four inches.

At Skelleftea, Sweden, the touring Edmonton Mercurys Tuesday night beat a Swedish team from Baesterbotten Province 8-1.

Winnipeg, March 1 — (CP) — Predicting the outcome of hockey games is a tough job. But it's tougher to foresee the winner of a league playoff.

Vince (Winnipeg Tribune) Leah, glancing at the Manitoba Junior Hockey League, says the outcome hinges on how many games the Brandon Wheat Kings can win in Winnipeg. Runner-up Dominion finalists last year, have waltzed through the last two seasons undefeated on home ice. But, and particularly so during this season, they have slipped somewhat on Winnipeg ice.

Brandon finished on top of the loop, and as a result will sit back and ponder until the semi - final winner battles the runner-up Black Hawks and Winnipeg Monarchs is decided.

Accepting all this, Vince predicted: "Brandon, in seven games."

Juveniles, Midgets, Bantams, Drop First-Round Playdowns Games to Oshawa, Peterboro

Three Belleville minor hockey clubs merged on the short end of the scores in Memorial Arena last night when the midgets and bantams went down to defeat before Oshawa teams and the Meteor Juveniles dropped a tough decision to the Peterborough club.

Don Barrett's bantams after holding the Oshawa kids scoreless in the first period faded before a more experienced squad and lost 9-1. Oshawa Midgets were too polished and clever for the Belleville team and turned the game into a rout after the first period winning by a score of 15-1.

Eddie Schreiber's Meteor Juveniles deserved a better fate and were edged 4-3 after a tough closely-fought battle.

The bantams and midgets play the second game of their points-to-count series in Oshawa on Thursday, but it is doubtful if the Meteors will fulfil their obligation. Their second game has been ordered for Saturday in Peterborough but Coach Schreiber stated it is impossible for him to ice a team. The game may be defaulted.

Peterborough Juveniles 4— Belleville Meteors 3

By far the best game of the triple-header that lasted till 12.30 A.M. the Meteors lost a tough game after having a distinct first-period edge when they racked up two goals to take a period lead. They were without the services of Dorsa, ill in bed, while Milligan was ordered to bed by Dr. "Nig" Ross after a between-period examination, but gamely played the rest of the game.

The game was fast and strenuous albeit clean with referee Dick Oulmet, Peterborough handling out but three penalties. The Meteors had the margin or play in the first period and scored two goals from Hall and Barrett to grab a two-goal period lead.

Different in Second

It was a different story in the second period, Peterborough staged a sustained offensive and racked up three goals from Buckton, Robinson and Shearer to take a 3-2 period lead.

Play was fairly even in the third period with both sides scoring once. Buckton scoring his second goal of the night gave the Petes a 4-2 lead 80 seconds after play was resumed, but Carey and Barrett sweeping down ice put Meteors within striking distance when the former scored from Barrett's pass. Both goals had narrow escapes with both goalies standing out with fine efforts. Belleville tried hard for the equalizer but the Petes defence was too stubborn.

Gary Schreiber played an outstanding game in goal turning back individual Petes attackers time after time. Two of the goals scored on him were screened shots.

Buckton, Ferguson, Jensen and Armstrong with Batley in goal stood out for the Petes with Carey, Barrett, Hull, Whalen and Schreiber going well for the homesters.

Oshawa Midgets 15 — Belleville Midgets 1

Oshawa's well-balanced Midgets had little trouble disposing of "Toots" Holway's Belleville youngsters as they raced through to an overwhelming 15-1 victory to take a 16-goal margin into the next game.

The powerful Oshawa crew showed too much poise for the Belleville kids and after grabbing a first period three-goal lead, turned the game into a rout.

They fired home seven goals in the second period in smooth passing plays, and racked up five more in the third period.

Gerry Goyer scored the only Belleville goal with one second to go in the third period when he raced in alone to break the duckers.

The Belleville kids battled hard all the way but they were no match for the speedy, hard-shooting visitors.

Zedie was the Oshawa sharpshooter with four goals and an assist. O'Connor got two and four assists, with Bontham, Copeland and McTavish getting a pair.

Oshawa Bantams 8 — Belleville Bantams 1

It was a case of too much experience gainst pluck in the bantam game when the heavier Oshawa Rotary kids, after a scoreless first period flashed to scoring life and fired home eight goals in the second and third periods to win 8-1.

The Belleville kids fought back hard but after Oshawa found their scoring eyes, were no match for the fast-skating visitors.

At that the locals missed not a few scoring chances but the Oshawa defence was to good with Knight in goal playing a fine game.

Oshawa scored five goals in the third period with Belleville getting its lone tally when Jackie Hughes took Charlie Buskard's pass to beat Knight.

Raime paced the Oshawa attack with three goals and two assists. Nicols got two and two with Mulloy also getting a pair. Thompson scored the remaining goal and got three assists.

Jackie Hughes, Hull, Wright and Buskard stood out for the Belleville crew with Hughie Hurst turning in a fine job in goal.

The Teams:

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A good bridge player tries for all the points he can get. He is always on the lookout for a slam. If he is wise, of course, slam will not be bid unless he sees a reasonable chance of making it.

There was this deal:

NORTH
♠K Q 10 7
♥A Q 3
♦J 7 3
♣K J 5

WEST
♥9 8 6 5 2

EAST
♠J 6 3
♥10 7 4
♦10 6 5 2
♣A 10 8

SOUTH
♥K J
♦A K Q 9
♣Q 9 7 3 2

The bidding goes like this:

South	North
1 C	1 S
2 D	3 NT
All pass

High cards (aces, kings, queens) are what should be counted as expected tricks at a no-trump contract. Only 12 of them are in a pack and these are the most likely trick-takers at no-trump.

When a player opens the bidding with one in a suit he promises five suit tricks. Four of these suit tricks are expected to be made up of high cards; that is, four no-trump tricks.

Thereafter, he is showing no more high cards if his no-trump bids are found. Only when he makes voluntary no-trump bids does he admit having any additional high cards.

To make a game in no-trump needs nine tricks. So, when the north hand jumps to three no-trump he sees nine high cards. Since south promised only four, north must be showing five.

South has a count of seven suit tricks; five highs, a short in each major suit. When north jumps to three no-trump, south discovers 12 tricks in their pair. Game suggest a slam.

However, a slam should not be bid without enough aces. To ask for aces and kings, bid four no-trump. But to bid four no-trump, hold two aces and a king or better. South lacks an ace for it.

New York, March 1 — (AP) — Mr. Unusually Well Informed office offer a prediction that Bennie Oosterbaan will resign as Michigan football coach after the 1950 season and Kip Taylor will succeed him...here's the way Mr. U.R.S. figures it: "The strain of the head coaching job is telling on Bennie's health and he'll either go into business or retire on the Michigan staff...another source (must be U.R's cousin) says Green Bay grid fans are predicting that Curly Lambeau won't last more than one season as Chicago Cardinals coach...reasoning is that after 31 years as boss Curly won't find it easy to take orders but ain't this a heck of a time to be talking football when baseball spring training starts today?

Goal Achieved

When Royal Oak, Mich., high school broke a 32-game basketball losing streak (the state's longest) by beating Wyandotte the other night, the spectators swarmed all over the players with a spontaneous display of affection. When the love fest broke up, one player wandering happily off the floor, was heard to exclaim: "Gosh, I've been trying to kiss that gal for weeks."

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 1 — (AP) — Abbott and Costello are still at odds with their studio.

Lou Costello tells me there has been no progress toward an agreement with Universal-International, with whom the comedy team is feuding.

"I've been on suspension since last spring when I got sick," said the comic. "And I'm just as happy to stay there until we get a better deal.

"Right now I'm recuperating from my first illness. Since then I've had a gall bladder operation. My schedule doesn't call for me to start recuperating from that for a couple of months."

Abbott and Costello were recently chosen No. 3 in the Motion Picture Herald's poll of movie money makers.

Notes 'N Stuff . . .

Ida Lupino is reading a script from R.K.O. It would be her first acting job in well over a year. She now is producing and directing her third production, "Nobody's Safe," and wants to get back on the other side of the camera. First, she'll put on 10 pounds.

Elizabeth Taylor, whose life is full of celebrations, marked her 18th birthday yesterday. Her one big fear is that she'll giggle through her own wedding. She's the giggling type.

"Cinderella" is reported doing big business in its openings. In many theatres it is replacing "Stromboli," which has failed to do big business after is first-day engagements. That's quite a contrast in pictures."

Esther Williams leaves this week for Hawaii, where she'll make "Pagan Love Song." Ben Gage and their son will accompany her.

Reinforcements Checked, Playoff Time Approaches

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

When the average hockey fan tries to figure out who's going to win the Stanley Cup, he generally picks the team with the best players on the ice.

When the average coach weighs his chances, he's almost as interested in the player he has on the bench.

That's why Lynn Patrick was particularly happy when his new York Rangers walloped Boston Bruins 4-2 last Sunday. Two of the goals were scored by a couple of unknowns named Odie Lowe and Don Smith, fresh from New York Rovers, a Ranger farm club.

He know Lowe and Smith may never see action in Stanley Cup pay. But if anything happens to a few of the New York regulars Lynn know of two solid characters he can tose in.

Hap Day of the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs is well fixed in the bench-warming department too.

Earlier in the season, he lost two centres through injuries and brought long John McCormack up from the amateur Toronto Marlboros.

Johnny went well at the time, then saw little action when Ted Kennedy and Cal Gardner returned to action. But he's there anytime Hay wants him.

The league leading Detroit Red Wings can call on goalie Terry Sawchuk, defencemen Al Dewsbury and a number of others who know their way around an NHL rink in disaster times. Montreal Canadiens have second-stringers like Gerry Mottell, Ab Demarco, Grant Warwich and Gerry Plamondon.

Few Replacements

Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks have fewer capable replacements. That has a lot to do with their present slim chance of making the playoffs.

Nobody expects fellows like Smith and McCormack to fill completely the shoes of such top snichers as Kennedy, Ted Lindsay or Maurice Richard. Their job is merely to help to prevent their club from falling apart if one of the big fellows has to take the night off.

Tonight the Bruins, 12 points off the fourth and last playoff spot, badly need a victory when they meet the Leafs at Boston. They'll have centre Ed Sanford back in action for the first time in months of enforced idleness due to a leg injury.

The Red Wings, still seven points ahead of the Leafs, are mainly interested in paying off Patrick's Rangers who have been shoving them around in recent games. A win for the New Yorkers at home would break their third-place tie with Montreal.

Major-Loop Ball Training Season Opens With Bang

By JOE REICHLER

Tampa, Fla., March 1 (AP)—The 1950 major league training season which gets under way today is likely to open with a bang and not a whimper.

The heads of both clubs confirmed the trade talk, but neither would go into details.

It was learned, however, that Luke Sewell, Cincy manager, finally has agreed to part with the 35-year-old receiver.

Cooper, obtained from New York Giants last June in exchange for Ray Mueller, tailed off toward the end of the season after sprouting slgt. In one of his first games with the Reds, Cooper slammed three home runs, got three other hits and drove in 10 runs—all in one game. But he wound up with a .258 batting average.

It would mark the second time that Cooper has worn Redbird livery. He teamed with his older brother, Mort, to form one of the best batteries in baseball With Mort and Walker heading the way the Cards won pennants in 1942, 1943 and 1944. They took the World Series in '42 and '44.

Ten Train in Florida

St. Petersburg, home of the Cardinals, will also house the world champion New York Yankees. Manager Casey Stengel arrived Monday night to bost in his chores, most of whom came in late Tuesday.

All the Cards except Howie Pollet are on hand. The crafty left-hander, the club's lone holdout, is still determined to remain at Houston until his $30,000 terms are met.

Ten major-league clubs will train in Florida. Within a week over 70 minor-leaguers at their Vero Beach camp.

Boston Red Sox are at Sarasota; Detroit Tigers at Lakeland; Philadelphia Athelitics, West Palm Beach; Washington Senators, Orlando; Boston Braves, Bradenton; Philadelphia Phillies, Clearwater; and Cincinnati Redr, Tampa.

Every club except the Dodgers have at least one holdout. The Yankees are plagued by seven such annoying cases including pitchers Vic Raschi and Tommy Byrne, catcher Larry Berra and outfielders Dick Wakefield and Johnny Lindell.

AT THE McCARTHY — Evelyn Keyes plays the title role in the exciting film adaptation of the best seller, "Mrs. Mike," opening today at Odeon's McCarthy Theatre.

NEXT AT BELLE — A scene from Samuel Shellabarger's "Prince of Foxes," film romance that 20th. Century-Fox paints tastingly filmed, is due at the Belle Theatre on Thursday. Tyrone Power, as the hero who has waged a losing battle, is pleading with his sweetheart, enacted by Wanda Hendrix, to escape from the city while there is still time.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Puds smoking last walking along, and said, Oh boy, look, it cant fly so too young.

Meaning a little sparrow hopping in the street with tiny little if it was almost too to even hop, and Puds did, G, it's only a baby, let's pick up and save its life before it gets run over by a car or jumped on by a cat.

Sure, G, we'll feed it till it has to fly, and by that time it'll be so tame it'll hang around the neighborhood and land on our shoulders wherever we whistle for it, private whistle, I said, and Puds said, Well baby, suppose some guy imitates our private whistle, then what?

Don't worry, we'll train it to look and see who's whisseling before it lands on anybody, I said, Oh, boy, we'll have the world's champeen trained berd.

Sure, we'll be famous for it, I said. Maybe we can take it around and show it and charge admission, I said, and Puds said, Maybe we can even join a circus with it. We'll call him Spiffy the Grate, and we'll teach him the smartest tricks any berd ever knew, he said.

We'll get him a little toy piano and we'll teech him to play tunes by hopping up and down on the keys, I said, and Puds said, G, sure and maybe we can teetch him to sing while he plays. Oh boy, Spiffy the Grate. We'll teetch him to catch mosquitoes and bring them back to us, I said.

And we started to meek over him.

There he is, over there by the pidgin, I said. Maybe he thinks he's a mouse, I said, careful, and just then the little sparrow flew away perfect, and I said, Oh well, it was a swell idea while it lasted.

Which it was.

LIBERAL LEADER CRITICAL OF TAXING POWER

Toronto, March 1 — (CP) — Liberal leader Farquahar Oliver Tuesday told the Ontario legislature that it was time the whole system of grants to municipalities was revised.

Mr. Oliver, in the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, urged that a conference be held between the Ontario government and municipalities to restore "initiative" and adequate taxing power to the municipalities.

Mr. Oliver charged that the provincial government was giving "only lip service" to the idea that municipalities were best governed by "the government closest to the people." Grants to school boards and municipalities were subject to conditions laid down by the Ontario government.

Mr. Oliver moved an amendment to the address regretting that the Throne Speech contained no indication that provincial-municipal conference would be called before the convening of the Dominion-Provincial conference.

He described the present government as "the greatest taxing government the province has ever had." Premier Frost "with all the appearance of Santa Claus" told the legislature last week that the government was giving more money for highways, hospitals and education than ever before.

"You should not think the government was a philanthropic society which acts in generosity without thought to the fact that the larder must be replenished from the pocketbooks of the people of Ontario."

The Ontario government could "do something" to help the farmer who was being "squeezed between the sterling and dollar areas." The government had made a "serious mistake" in removing the subsidy from hogs and cheese. With the loss of the British bacon market the hog bonus would have "gone a long way" to stabilize the bacon industry.

Go Long Ways

If the Ontario government continued to co-operate with the Federal government in the work of defining their respective jurisdictions, "we will have gone a long way towards licking any depression before it starts."

Another speaker in the Throne Speech debate was A. A. MacLeod leader of the two-man Labor-Progressive party. He said the Throne Speech showed "no serious concern" over the unemployment situation, and that it was full of empties "it sloed at nothing and scored," he said. He estimated that unemployed in Ontario now total twice the figure of between 80,000 and 100,000 estimated by Federal Labor Minister Mitchell.

Mr. MacLeod said that Timmins Press reported Feb. 8 that four elderly men had asked to be sent to jail because they had no place to live. In Toronto young men were sleeping in box cars. The army was offering these men "security that can not be matched."

"How shameful," Mr. MacLeod said. It was reminiscent of days before the First World War when men were recruited from Northern Ontario "slave camps."

"Just like Siberia," said Premier Frost.

"Yes," Mr. MacLeod answered, "just like Siberia under the Czars."

Paid Big Dividend

Mr. MacLeod, discussing the Steep Rock iron ore development said Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland financier, had obtained 1,500,000 shares of stock at one cent a share. In 10 months the company had made enough profit to pay 20 cents a share dividend on the stock. At the same time, Mr. Eaton was collecting two percent commission on every ton of ore that he sold for $7. In addition, the Canadian government had paid a subvention of $244,000 to the company on its freight costs of shipping the ore.

All this was "subsidized organized looting," he said.

When production reached 4,000,000 tons a year it would suffice to maintain a $60,000,000 steel industry at the lakehead.

"Now here are people going to put up with raw resources of the province leaving the country without any effort being made to process them?" he asked.

Eaton, however, brushed aside MacLeod's charges. In Washington, he told a reporter, "the gentleman is talking through his hat." He declined further comment.

REACH FOR A RENNIE

GOVERNMENT

The supreme court justices pondered validity for four weeks. The question, put to them by the federal government, was considered four days as argument for and against was offered.

Majority of counsel argued in favor of validity. Those included legal representatives of the federal and Ontario governments, tenants generally, the Canadian Congress of Labor and the Canadian Legion.

Only counsel for the Quebec government and Canadian landlords opposed parliament's authority to maintain rent control. They contended parliament never had the right to "encroach" on what was termed a right of the provinces. Even if it had, there no longer was an emergency which would justify continuation of federal controls.

Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret emphasized during court hearings that the judgment would be a mere expression of opinion. The federal government could decide whether or not to accept the decision. However the government previously had indicated it would abide by the judgment.

Can Fix Maximum

Rent controls affect some 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 persons in Canada. They allow the government to fix maximum rent ceilings and protect tenants against evictions.

In a document made public during the four-day court hearing Kenneth Taylor, prices board chief, informed Finance Minister Abbott that "a large number of evictions" would occur if the controls were removed at this time.

The document, admitted as part of the evidence after a two-day division among the justices, stated that an "extended period of confusion and serious unrest" also would prevail under conditions of a "free market" in rents.

Counsel for Quebec, Ernest Beaulieu of Montreal, contended that if there is an emergency in rents in Canada, it has to be "self-evident." It had to be proven that it existed as a fact. Since Parliament did not have the power to prove this fact, it was up to the court to decide this point.

Protect One Interest

He was supported by R. M. Willes Chitty of Toronto, counsel for the Canadian Property Owners Association. Mr. Chitty said the Federal government, by continuing the controls, was protecting the interests of one group, the tenants, against the interests of another, the landlords. The government had no right to do this.

Mr. Justice I. C. Rand disagreed on this point. He opined that in times of emergency everybody was in the same boat, landlords, tenants and others, and it was the safeguarding of that boat that interested Parliament.

Chief Justice Rinfret told Mr. Chitty and Mr. Beaulieu that the proper course to follow if they wanted the controls legally upset, was to start civil action in the courts.

Property owners already had done so. Mr. Chitty replied. A case was pending in the Ontario Supreme Court, waiting to see what opinion the national court would deliver.

The Ontario Supreme Court case can still be appealed to the judicial committee of the Imperial Privy Council. The Supreme Court of Canada has been declared the final court of appeal in this country, but cases pending in court on Dec. 22 still can be referred to the judicial committee of the Privy Council.

AWARD WILL

Commissioners Wardrope and Howard B. Chase concurred in the main 10,000-word decision.

Commissioner F. M. MacPherson wrote a separate decision in which he concurred in the increase but expressed the view it would have been preferable to limit the amount of increases on basic commodities being hauled by railways. However, Commissioner MacPherson said there were difficulties in the way of that procedure at this time.

No Immediate Comment of Counsel

There was no immediate comment from counsel for the seven provinces that have been fighting the freight rate case for the last three years.

Several of them said they would study the judgment immediately and report to their governments, to await instructions on possible future action. There have been some reports that a further substantial increase — such as the one granted today—might prompt them to appeal to cabinet.

CPR 'Deficiency'

In determining the amount to which the railways would be entitled, the board knocked about $6,500,000 off the amount which the Canadian Pacific Railway—"yardstick" line for rate making —alleged was its revenue "deficiency" in 1948.

The CPR had contended this deficiency was $34,310,000 without taking into account the relatively small sum obtained from less than three months' operation of the former eight-per-cent increase.

The board sliced this down to $27,971,000. Biggest item cut off was about $4,000,000 in income tax, which the CPR had included as a "theoretical" figure for rate-making purposes, though it expects actually to pay only $500,000 income tax on the rail income for 1948.

Had the board included this sum in CPR requirements, the judgment said, it would be "included in a just and reasonable item of expense a wholly fictitious increase of $4,000,000."

Final Disposition

In handing down the decision Chief Commissioner Wardrope observed that it does not depart from the basis set out in the board's "interim" eight-per-cent award of last September. It constitutes the final disposition of the case of which that award was a partial decision.

Besides applying to straight rates, the increase covers a wide range of miscellaneous railway services, as is customary in general increases ordered by the board. These include such items as switching charges, storage, wharfage and portective service. However, demurrage and penalty charges are not included.

Exceptions include joint international rates—except on coal and coke—between Canada and the United States, which have been increased as the result of U.S. action; rates between U.S. points on traffic passing through Canada; and export and import rates to and from Canadian ports which now are on a parity with rates to or from U.S. ports.

There is no specific finding on rail rates that have been deprecated to meet competition, the board pointing out that the railways are at liberty to adjust these rates at will so long as they do not exceed standard rates.

The railways are expected to adjust these rate by varying 4-month, according to competitive conditions in various parts of the country. The average increase on these might run into between three and five per cent.

The decision wrote an end to a case that has been hanging fire since July, 1948. At that time, the railways applied for a general 20-per-cent increase.

Following the "interim" eight-per-cent award last September, the Canadian Pacific Railway appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The court upheld the C.P.R. contention that the board had failed in its duty by deferring a complete judgment until it had completed certain rate studies of its own and learned the outcome of the current Royal Commission inquiry on transportation.

The new application was lodged about four months after the railways had been awarded a general 21-per-cent increase in the spring of 1948. That increase was based on the general rise

$10,000,000 a year in additio

The seven opposing provi all except Ontario, Quebec Newfoundland — contended C.P.R. could meet its requ ments and using funds from non-rail operations.

The Golden Shoestring

Faith Baldwin

It took a long time to tell, sitting there while the fire sighed on the hearth, the wind rose, and the sea stammered against the rocks. She omitted nothing, neither her father's story nor her own part in her decision, her meeting with Chris and her quite comprehensible mistake. Nor did she omit that morning in the New York Hotel and their adjustment to the altered conditions. "And said finally "it could have gone on for some time, I suppose, if Roger Kennedy hadn't come to Cape Cod and then followed us here."

"This will provide a great deal of amusement for a great many people," Jack commented.

Cordelia shuddered, inwardly. The picture was very clear. She thought that I liked her, and almost instantly Terry said wearily, "when you seemed to like me, all of you, I was happy. But not entirely. Because how much of it was for myself?"

Jack said "a lot. You're a very attractive girl." He went over to the table where the decanters stood and mixed himself a long whisky and soda, considered thoughtfully, "there's a way out of this with the minimum of gossip."

"Terry," said his father.

"No one has really expected Chris to settle down here," said Jack, "so one one will be astonished if he and Terry decide suddenly to return to the mainland. Of course the true picture will be exhibited, as Terry said, sooner or later. But for the time being no one will wonder. We can 'weather' the unpleasantness discussions as arise now—and later. Isn't the first thing to do that?"

Chris broke in. "You're wonderful Jack. Why don't we say it baldly? None of you has ever had any use for me and you don't come out of this much better than Terry and I do. For when I came home who, apparently, a rich wife, you killed not one but several calves. In honor, I suppose, of the golden—bull. By the simple process of marying I had redeemed myself."

"That's not true," said Cordelia sharply. "We merely hoped that with the right wife—"

"But the right wife had to be able to 'carry on' the respectability with a checkbook!" he asked. "Well, whatever you thought, you've been amiable, and I appreciate it. Jack's even been moved to envy, I think. He has always hated my guts, but recently he has—"

"Chris!" said his aunt.

"It's true enough. When we were kids, I could beat him at almost any game and 'then later he was Lilia."

"What has Lilia to do with this?" inquired Jack. He finished his drink and set down the glass. His face was congested with anger.

"Nothing," said Chris swiftly "except as one explanation of why you and I, as the saying goes, have never got along."

"There's no point in past quarrels and recriminations," said Hugo sharply. "Whatever you and Jack's relationship, it isn't germane to the situation. It is true that you have been a disappointment, Chris. I have told you so many times. You were head-strong from your childhood, you grew up rebellious and spendthrift. There was no place for you here and a future but you would not take it. I wrote you, if you remember, and urged you to. You were all proud of your war record I asked you to come home, but you would not. I recall your answer. In it you blamed me for many things, including your education, as you put it, of poor relation. It was I who insisted that your father did not consult me when he provided for your father."

Cordelia made a quick impatient gesture, very unlike her. She said, "I think we're getting away from the immediate problem."

"What problem?" asked Terry. "You don't have to save face with me because you thought Chris had married a girl with money, do you? Chris thought so too. He didn't know she was next to penniless and that her father was a thief." Her voice rose. "You're safe," she said. "What can touch you? Chris has never been one of you except by blood. He'll 'm not one of you either. As for my father, you knew him slightly, but what happened in his life hardly concern you."

"Yes, it does," said Hugo, "You have pointed out that Chris is by blood a member of this family; and you are by marriage. Anything which concerns you concerns us."

Chris said softly "even the Russells and perhaps especially the Russells are not above disliking gossip—about themselves. When Great-uncle Josiah took a notion to marry his cook—"

"Chris!" cried his aunt, "Terry isn't interested in—"

"They danged up on him and saw to it that he didn't," Chris went on calmly. "And there are other instances; such as the time when fourth-cousin Amy's mother discovered that Amy was pregnant. They took a nice long trip to the mainland and when they came back Amy was properly married off. You met Amy, Terry, a proper young matron, very holier-than-thou. Maybe if they'd let her have the baby—maybe if Great-uncle had married the cook Amy's disposition wouldn't have suffered nor old Josiah's digestion.. I could go on for hours."

"Not," said his uncle, "tonight."

Chris said equably, "well, there it is, Terry. We just don't like being talked about unpleasantly."

"Which we will be," prophesied Jack. "Surely you haven't forgotten Mr. Amenly. What do you propose to do about him?"

Chris said "it's very simple. You and I tie him up with a bed sheet and hurl him out a cliff. Most effective. We regret it. He jumped or fell under the influence of strong drink. Who's question it at Naniola?"

"I'd be gratified," said his uncle "if you were less facetious. I am sure Mr. Amenly will prefer to leave in the morning. Jack and I will go with him, the rest of you will remain here until he has left the Islands. I am quite certain he will be willing to leave, and, I hope, on the first plane."

Chris laughed. "Amenly," he remarked, "is a stinker. But he's an adult stinker. He last, however, a Russell, or even a remote connection, by marriage or otherwise; nor an employee who has been dismissed. He's a free agent. If one can cast him off Tantalus but not, if he's become attached to our climate, on a plane. He can go to a hotel, he can stay as long as he wishes or can afford, and he can talk as much as he pleases to whomever will listen. It's going to make a very good story. So far he knows only one side of it. But practically anybody will enlighten him as to any shading in the community. Which should give him an unexpectedly belly laugh."

Hugo said, "I admit I hadn't thought of—far."

"Console yourself with the realization that nothing can reflect upon you," said Chris.

Terry got to her feet. She was stiff, she ached. She said uncertainly "I don't see what good all this is doing. Could we talk about it in the morning?"

She was purged, she was clean and empty. And Cordelia looking at the young white face, experienced a pang of compassion against her will, against even her principles. She said "of course. Chris, take Terry upstairs." She tried to smile. "When you come down again, I think Mr. Amenly will have left," she added.

Some time later Chris spoke. "Why don't you come to bed, Terry? You're only wearing your self out, walking up and down or sitting there by the window. You'll catch cold."

"I'm trying to think."

"Tomorrow will do. It's almost tomorrow now. Besides, what is there to think? We'll pull out as soon as we can. This interlude is—finished."

She said vaguely. I think there's some aspirin in the bathroom. I forgot to bring any."

She went into the bathroom, which was, rather bare, very old-fashioned, and served also as a dressing room. The show'r was in one corner, sometimes it functioned, sometimes not. On one side of the room there was a big window, on the other a dressing table with a medicine cabinet over it. She swung the mirror door open and found the aspirin bottle. There was no need to pull on the single light. The room was full of moonlight. She shut the cabinet door, looked idly into the mirror and stood, still looking transfixed. The mirror reflected the moon in its silver entirety. The room rode high, it was round and full and tiny, floating on the surface of the mirror a bright, remote world. If she picked up the hand mirror and held it before her she would hold this moon in her two hands, another world of brilliant cold, of silvered death.

Another world. So many worlds she thought.

Terry went back to the bedroom, took off her robe and slid her feet from the straw slippers. She was cold suddenly, she shook with it. She got into the big old bed of carved ivs and lay down beside Chris, her head against his shoulder.

"We have each other," she said faintly, "and yet—"

"Haven't we always, since the first?" He smoothed her hair back from her forehead. "I love you, Terry," he said.

"I love you, I don't think that they believe it."

"Of course, they believe it—about my loving you, at any rate. Who could see you and not believe? Anyway, does it matter what anyone believes?"

"Yes, in a way. I can't explain why."

It mattered to her. It made all the difference...There must be some way to make it clear to everyone that they had loved each other from the beginning for that much must remain untouched, and whole and decent. Chris said "we'll get away as soon as possible. After that, we'll manage."

("How?" her heart grew quiet with caution.

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your digestive tract every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food just decays in the digestive tract. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

3 Chinese Burned to Death in Montreal

Twenty Injured As Fire Rages Thru Chinese Quarter

Block of Chinese Cafes, Apartments is Destroyed

Montreal, March 2 (CP)—Death toll in a fire which raged through Montreal's teeming Chinatown rose to four today when firemen searching the smoking ruins found three bodies. Earlier a Chinese had died when he leaped from a third-story window.

At least 20 others were in hospital and two firemen suffered minor injuries in fighting the fire which swept a block of brick buildings and Chinese cafes in narrow Lagauchetiere Street in the cente of the city.

Leaped To Sidewalk

Lin Shew, 60-year-old Chinese, died in the street after he leaped with his clothes aflame from a third-storey window. He was an occupant of a spare room house above the Lotus Garden cafe where the fire is believed to have started.

Police and firemen heard vague reports that several of the 50 residents mostly Chinese, of the flats above cafes in the short block, were unaccounted for but a thorough search could not be made until the fire was brought under control. The blaze broke out about 6 am.

About noon three bodies were found in the smoking ruin of a Lagauchetiere Street building.

None of the three bodies was immediately identified.

Most of the injured, who suffered cuts and burns, fled in their night attire from the three-storey brick building. They left trails of blood in the snow as firemen helped them into waiting ambulances.

Doyle said he landed "due to technical trouble" but did not reveal details. He arrived over the airport here at 2.25 p.m. and took about 10 minutes to effect his landing from his flying height of about 2,000 feet.

UNEMPLOYMENT INJECTED INTO HOUSE DEBATE

Govt. Urged to Aid Municipal Projects

Ottawa, March 2 — (CP)—Unemployment, a dark shadow on Canada's economic picture in recent months, was injected into a dull Throne Speech debate in the Commons Wednesday.

As the Labor Department reported spotty improvement in the employment situation, two British Columbia members of parliament drew attention to the jobless totals and proposed methods of righting the country's economic balance.

William Mott, Liberal member for New Westminster, urged in his maiden speech that the Federal government revive its pre-war policy of making low-interest loans to municipalities for essential work.

H. W. Herridge, soft - spoken C. C. F. member for Kootenay West who came to parliament in 1945, felt the government should follow unemployment - planning methods proposed through United Nations channels.

Otherwise, the debate moved slowly.

Agnes Macphail Wants More Stress On Instruction

Toronto, March 2 — (CP) — The Ontario education system turned out too many students who want to be white-collar workers, and does not put enough emphasis on practical instruction, Agnes Macphail told the Ontario legislature Wednesday.

A former school teacher and the only woman member of the legislature, the C.C.F. member for York East and C. E. Rea (PC-Toronto St. Patrick) spoke in the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Thirty-seven other members have indicated their desire to speak in the debate. The address debate expected on the government's new Labor Relations Bill, down for second reading on the order paper, it is considered possible Premier Frost might start night sittings shortly to keep up with business.

Miss Macphail declared that "too many seek academic training. Too many people want white-collar jobs. I'm getting fed up with asking people who don't know how to meet a practical situation. There are many unemployed today because they lacked practical instruction.

Some Scientists' Remarks on H-Bomb Serve to Create Sense of Helplessness

New York, March 2—(CP) — David E. Lilienthal, recently retired chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Committee, Wednesday recent statements by some scientists that the hydrogen bomb would bring about the "end of the world" only served to create a "growing sense of hopelessness and helplessness among our own people."

These statements, he said, arouse "a sense of giving our fate right into the hands of destructive communist forces."

Lilienthal singled out four leading nuclear physicists who said last Sunday in a radio broadcast that the hydrogen bomb if developed, could threaten the extinction of all life on earth.

The scientists also suggested that it would be necessary to decentralize the coastal cities of the United States at a vital defence measure.

Lilienthal said they "speculated on how to wipe out the earth. These fine minds came up with the figure 20,000,000 to 60,000,000 people. With all due respect to them, I want to state that this is a lot of high intellectual nonsense. It can't be done. There is no need.

The government's control of atomic energy is a cockeyed monopoly," he said.

Speaking before the Hotel Association of New York City, he said business should move in on the atom and the government should loosen up some of its secrecy.

Lilienthal predicted that industrial use of atomic power will be possible within 30 years in some fundamental way, such as substituting for coal in steam generation.

"But not in the cockeyed way the government is — in ultra secrecy," he added.

New Jobs In State Industry Luring Best in Trade Unions

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 2—(CP)—The magnet of new jobs in state industry is luring some of the best minds in Britain's trade union movement.

Latest to leave organized labor for a high-salaried post on the government's payroll is James Bowman, 51-year-old vice-president of the National Union of Mineworkers.

After thinking it over for a month, Mr. Bowman Wednesday accepted an offer to become chairman of one of the boards which run the country's coal mines.

He followed in the footsteps of such men as Lord Citrine, whose salary of $26,350 a year as chairman of the government's electricity authority is roughly eight times what he earned as general secretary of the Trades Union Congress; Sir Joseph Hallsworth, now also with the electricity board; and Sidny Edwards, with the coal board.

Lost Leaders

The moral, some observers commented, was clear. Well-paid jobs created by the newly-nationalized industries were attracting off men the trade unions could ill afford to lose—at a time when organized labor was facing urgent problems created by the economic crisis.

"There can be no question that our national troubles have been increased by the weakening of trade union leadership," said the pro-Labor Daily Mirror.

This is the kind of industrial in-breeding that is bound to weaken the stock," said the Liberal Manchester Guardian.

Bowman, in addition to his new duties, is a member of a commission inquiring into the activities of the BBC. He is being replaced as miners' vice-president by Ernest Jones, another Yorkshire man.

Critics have suggested that union leadership must raise its salaries, or lose its best men.

Last month Sidney Fletcher resigned as economics adviser to the TUC. In advertising for a new man, the TUC said it wanted one "with thorough knowledge of economic and political theory." It offered a salary of £700 a year compared with the "market rate" of about £1,500 a year to start.

EXPLOSION CAUSE OF AIR DISASTER SAYS ENGINEER

Structural, Mechanical Failure Was Not Cause

Quebec, March 2 — (CP)—An air engineer expressed the opinion in the J. Albert Guay murder trial today that the Quebec air disaster of Sept. 9 was caused by an explosion due to an "agency" not normally part of the plane but aboard it at the time.

The Canadian Pacific Airlines plane crashed on a mountainside at nearby Sault Au Cochon with a death toll of 23. One of the victims was Guay's 28-year-old wife and the Crown seeks to prove that he arranged to have a time bomb placed aboard the plane to get rid of her.

The opinion on the cause of the crash was expressed by Lionel Francis, 26-year-old C. P. A. employee who Wednesday suggested, pending evidence of the disaster. He told the court that he would eliminate structural or mechanical failure as the cause.

This morning he told the court that the very construction of the plane, designated as CF-CUA, would prevent the mountain aside indicated an explosion had occurred aboard it.

Wreckage Over 2,000 Feet

Francis said some parts of the wrecked plane were found as far back as 2,300 feet along the line of flight from the main section of the plane and this indicated the aircraft was "breaking up in the air" before it crashed.

He said the possibility of engine failure had been ruled out because examination of the wreckage showed both engines were operating when the plane hit the ground.

Francis testified "without qualification" there was no sign of explosion aboard the plane. The wreckage revealed no sign of scorching or blistered paint and the fuel tanks had not.

He added that parts of the wreck also showed signs of the explosion due to the fire-extinguisher, storage batteries or the hydraulic system.

Guay, who wept Tuesday when the dark shadow thrown on the wreck by his wife, Rita, were shown to the jury, is on trial Monday as Francis testified. Later he kept his eyes away from the witness.

FIVE BURNED TO DEATH

Kenosha, Wis., March 2. (AP) —A fire wiped out a family of five in a small frame cottage on a trailer camp on the edge of the city early today. The blaze occurred during a below-zero weather.

Dead were Edward Maxwell, about 28; his wife, Betty, 26, and their three children, Jimmy 5, Patsy 3, and Kenneth an baby.

The sheriff's department said all the victims were trapped in their beds, except Maxwell, who perished today. He was 28.

The fire department blamed an oil heater for the blaze.

Rent-Paying Canadians Look Ahead To Another Year of Rent Controls

Ottawa, March 2 (CP)— More than 4,000,000 rent-paying Canadians breathed a sigh of relief today and looked ahead to at least one more year of domestic rent controls.

Supreme Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada told the Federal government Wednesday that before Federal controls are valid. Their unanimous opinion in effect gives the government the right to take its own time in relaxing the regulations.

Within a few days Finance Minister Abbott is expected to place before Parliament a bill to extend rent regulations for one year, from March 31.

The bill is expected to touch off one of the hottest debates of the session, with opposition members sure to be critical of

Stunning Surprise To Govt., Ung Union; May Seize Mines

Judge Keech Says Charges Not Supported by Evidence

Washington, March 2 — (AP) — The United Mine Workers today were found innocent of contempt of court in the soft coal strikes which started 25 days ago.

Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech, who heard the case without a jury, announced a verdict of "not guilty" on both the civil and criminal contempt charges.

The Judge said that he had considered the government's petition and "found on the record" that the charges of contempt of his Feb. 11 back to work order were not supported.

The union had contended that it was in no way responsible for the refusal of the miners to work. Its defence was that the 372,000 coal diggers had each quit work by individual decision, not by direction of the union, and that officers of the union had done all they could to end the strike.

3-Minute Verdict

It took Keech just two minutes to announce his decision.

After offering counsel for both sides an opportunity to be heard and saying that he had "heard none" the Judge signalled to the marshal to escort him from the courtroom.

Keech had prepared a long written opinion, but announced his ruling and did not bother to read the prepared document.

The decision was a stunning surprise to the crowded court room because the union in two previous strike cases has been held guilty and compelled to pay fines aggregating $2,130,000.

Government officials increasingly concerned over the spreading economic effects of the coal production stoppage had placed high hopes on the contempt case as a means of getting the miners back to work.

There are indications the government may now turn to seizure of the mines unless there is a quick contract agreement that would end production going again.

Plans Drawn Up

President Truman, in response to questions, confirmed at a press conference that "all seizure plans have been drawn up.

Judge Keech said in his decision:

"It may be that the mass strike which the government has been ordered, encouraged, recommended, instructed, induced, or in some wise permitted by means not appearing in the record; but this court may not resort to conjecture, being bound to act only on the evidence before it. This is insufficient to support a finding of either criminal or civil contempt."

Washington, March 2. (AP)— Nine out of 10 fatal crashes in private airplanes are due to pilot error. It is a compilation of 850 United States air accidents in 1948.

Absolve Officer In Fatal Shooting

Comber, Ont., March 2. (CP) — Ontario provincial police constable was absolved by a coroner's jury late Wednesday of the fatal shooting of Louis Raes, 44, shot Feb. 11 when he resisted police officers attempting to question him in an earlier slaying.

The five-man jury, sitting Wednesday in this Essex town, was out 20 miles east of Windsor, found: "The shooting (of Rses) by Provincial Constable Stanley Grabb, was justified in the performance of his duty."

Police testimony reported Grabb, a rookie member of the Essex detachment as saying "I shot him."

Grabb was one of three officers sent to Raes' farm, three miles from Comber, to question Raes concerning the bludgeon death earlier that day of Mrs. Ellen Wallace, 48, manager of the sharecrop farm Raes operated alone.

Raes was reported to have run to his lonely farm house in the dark, threatening to shoot police and waving an object above his head. All three police opened warning fire on him and the latter fell about 20 feet from the farmhouse door. He died later in a Windsor hospital.

St. Thomas, March 2 — (CP) — It was announced today that the $287,000 objective of St. Thomas and Elgin county citizens to furnish and equip the new $2,200,000 St. Thomas Elgin General Hospital has been exceeded by at least $24,000.

The original objective set by the Department of Health as necessary for the new hospital to qualify for the maximum government grant.

The new hospital will be erected and maintained jointly by the City of St. Thomas and the county of Elgin on a 60-40 basis.

WIFE AND CHILD LAY BESIDE CRASHED PLANE

Beaumont, Calif., March 2 (AP) — A woman and her three-year-old child, both too badly hurt to crawl away, lay for eight hours beside the body of their husband and father Wednesday after their plane crashed against a mountainside. D. R. Spark, 28, was killed in the crash. His wife, Esther, 26, suffered a broken back and the daughter, Sharon Ann, a leg fracture.

Unemployment Total up 2,700 In Two Weeks

Ottawa, March 2 — (CP) — Unemployment in Canada increased by 2,700 during the two weeks ended Feb. 16, the Labor Department reported Wednesday.

At that date, there were 378,300 persons seeking work through the National Employment Service, the department said in a periodic review of the employment situation.

This compared with 375,600 jobless at Feb. 2, 323,000 at Jan. 12 and 261,000 at Dec. 22.

A peak of 380,000 was reached at Feb. 9 before the total tapered off to the Feb. 16 figure.

Dealing with the decline between Feb. 9 and 16, the department attributed the drop to gradual gains in the Pacific region, where 3,600 fewer jobless were reported. It attributed this to improved weather conditions which permitted loggers, sawmill and construction workers to return to their jobs.

However, the Pacific decline was offset to some extent by increases in unemployed in the Maritimes and Quebec. Slight declines were reported from Ontario and the Prairies.

The department said information received from small local employment offices "points to a definite improvement in the employment situation."

Operate to Save Stabbed Youth

Toronto, March 2. (CP)—A second operation will be performed today in an attempt to save the life of Douglas Green, 16, stabbed through the stomach and liver Wednesday during a fight with a younger brother.

Police said the younger boy, a 13-year-old with a serious heart condition, will appear in juvenile court today.

The quarrel is said to have started when the 13-year-old asked his brother why the older boy couldn't get a job. Douglas slapped his brother and the lad, infuriated by the blow, rushed to the kitchen and got a five-inch hunting knife,

Douglas received first aid from an older sister before going to hospital. There he received blood transfusions and underwent an operation.

PICTON
Judge Anderson Makes Comment On Assessment

'Picton — It might be worthwhile for the town council of Picton to consider a complete reassessment of the land in the business area, states Judge Ray Anderson in a written report on appeals from the Court of Revision of Picton. The variations in square feet assessment on the north side of the street and on the south side is too great to be able to find the explanation in the condition of the buildings or the materials from which they are built.

In the appeal of R. A. Norman, Judge Anderson ordered a reduction of $400 on the assessment on the land, but found no reason to change the assessment on the building.

In the appeal of Nathan and C. L. Yanover, assessment on the buildings was reduced from $12,000 to $11,000. The assessment on the land was confirmed.

In the appeal of Fred Lipson, the assessment appeal on the land was dismissed. The assessment on the building was not appealed and was confirmed.

The report of His Honor revealed several businesses and lands to be assessed lower than others of comparative size and value.

Picton—Chairman H. G. Blakely, Commissioner H. R. Tully and Mayor William Henley were in Toronto this week. They attended the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association.

Open night was observed at Picton public schools last night. Work of the pupils was on display in each room. Parents met teachers to discuss matters of common interest.

Mrs. Lloyd Reddick suffered a fracture of the left arm yesterday. She stepped on a piece of ice on Main Street and fell. She was admitted to Prince Edward County Hospital.

Dean Ostrander, Royal Dutch Airline, has arrived from Holland. On his return, March 12, he will be accompanied by Mrs. Ostrander and young son who have been visiting her parents, Rev. and Mrs. M. S. Lehigh.

IN MEMORIAM

LATTA — In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away March 2nd, 1943.

Memory wanders as twilight shadows fall,

Of those lips that now are sealed
And whose feet are still in sleep.
Ever remembered by her sons and daughters. 9tf

Mrs. Don Gordon Dies; War Work Sapped Strength

Montreal, March 2. (CP)—Mrs. Donald Gordon, 47, wife of the president of Canadian National Railways, died here yesterday of a heart attack.

Mrs. Gordon, who was awarded the M.B.E., for her wartime work with the Canadian Red Cross and servicemen's canteen activities in Ottawa, had been under a doctor's care for a week.

Associates said her wartime activity in Ottawa, where her husband headed the Prices Board and was deputy governor of the Bank of Canada, had sapped her strength.

At the time of Mr. Gordon's appointment to the C.N.R. presidency, Jan. 1, of this year, she was in hospital and had been under doctor's care at various times since then.

Mrs. Gordon was born in St. John's, Nfld.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Gordon is survived by two sons, Donald Ramsay, 20, and Michael Huntley, 19; a brother, Jonas Barter, of Toronto; and two sisters, Mrs. S. B. Horwood, of Brampton, Ont., and Mrs. Lem Taylor, Mimico, Ont.

Well Regarded

The brunette Mrs. Gordon was regarded as both efficient and charming by her associates. She was one of the first volunteers at Red Cross headquarters in Ottawa in 1939 and first helped organize a secretarial department.

With Mrs. Graham Towers, wife of the governor of the Bank of Canada, Mrs. Gordon opened a "superfluity shop" in 1940 which started bringing in $1,000 a month to the Red Cross.

Mrs. Gordon's greatest achievement was the organizing of a cafeteria service for temporary war workers in Ottawa. Serving 10,000 meals a day, the cafeteria was so efficient that thousands of dollars were raised for blood donor clinics, supplies for the navy, auxiliary services and other war services.

Mrs. Gordon often worked from 6 a.m. until 2 a.m., at a stretch, planning menus, organizing help and keeping the cafeteria going.

STUNNING

Judge Keech's written opinion said there was no clear evidence that the union had failed to obey his strike-end order.

John L. Lewis, U.M.W. President, twice sent back-to-work orders to the miners after Keech's Feb. 11 stop strike order was issued.

In effect, Keech said the weakness of the government's case was that it had made no showing that Lewis was not in earnest when he sent these instructions to his union members.

TWENTY INJURED

Fire Chief Raymond Pare said it was the worst fire in Montreal since the $1,000,000 blaze in Canadian National Railways' Bonaventure freight sheds in August, 1948.

Firemen said not all the persons living above the cafe were accounted for but it was possible some had escaped the flames and sought shelter elsewhere without reporting to police.

Broke Out Early

Dangling from windows high above the ice-coated street were tattered and torn bed sheets knotted together. Many making their way down these to safety were plummeted to the pavement when the hastily-made escape ropes broke.

Several of the injured suffered fractured legs; one a fractured spine and another a fractured pelvis.

Eight radio police cars and nine ambulances stood by. Doctors said at least 10 more persons were injured and were looked after in nearby drug stores and restaurants.

D.Joselsky, owner of one of the buildings, estimated the total property loss would run more than $500,000.

The fire broke out about 8 a.m. in the short block in the centre of the city where most of the Chinese live. At least 50 people streamed from flats above the garishly-decorated Chinese cafes as the first alarm was sounded. Among buildings destroyed were the Lotus Garden Cafe and the American Cafe and two rooming houses.

The flames quickly spread from the Lotus Garden to the apartments upstairs and then eastward toward St. Lawrence Boulevard, one of the city's main north-south arteries.

Most of the fire apparatus in the central part of the city were called as the third alarm was rung in and engines were ordered in from outlying districts.

The Red Cross set up an emergency station in the area with blankets and blood plasma.

A temperature of eight degrees above zero left firemen ice-coated as 30 streams of water were played on the flames.

FUCHS SENTENCED

Dr. Klaus Fuchs, who betrayed Britain, the country which gave him asylum from Nazi tyranny and extended to him its citizenship was given the maximum penalty for handing over British and American secrets to Russia. In the Old Bailey Court, London, on Wednesday, Chief Justice Lord Goddard pointed out to the scientist the enormity of his crime in betraying the inventions of his own brain for which he was being paid by Britain and in causing grave suspicion to fall on others whom he had falsely treated as friends. He might have imperilled the relations of the two nations, United States and Britain, and he had done irreparable harm to the defence of his native land. The purpose of furthering his own political creed, the Chief Justice said.

The accused man's plea that he had split his personality into two parts, one of loyalty to his western friends and the other of loyalty to communism, drew from the court the remark that this was simply the depths of self-deception in which people like yourself can fall. Your crime is only thinly differentiated from high treason."

The Chief Justice also pointed out to Fuchs a question which is said to have caused British officials concern, "Dare we now give shelter to refugees who may be followers of this pernicious creed who well may disguise themselves and bite the hand that feeds them?"

Fuchs has seen British justice in action. He has been given a fair trial and every consideration of treatment by the land which he adopted as his country and in which he enjoyed all the privileges of citizenship and protection.

TRUE THRILLER

Oklahoma City has been in the public eye with a sensation which no community would like to have occur in its bounds. It was the escape of a powerful leopard which had spent most of its life in cages and had roamed about, terrifying the city and countryside. People have always craved excitement but this was far too much for Oklahoma City for the beast was a killer and no one knew what home the powerful monster might break into with all the awful consequences which might follow to members of the household.

Yet despite the fear, many brave men formed posses and hunted and protected the community. As well householders took no chances and barricaded as best they could their homes against this powerful and vicious creature.

What the search failed to bring about was achieved however by the placing of drugged meat along the path the beast would probably take on its way back to its lair. It did return and the other morning it was found in its den sleeping soundly under the effects of the drug in the meat it had eaten.

But that did not end the story. The big cat had got too much of the drug and could not sleep it off and died, probably of effects of the dope and of pneumonia.

It is easy to understand that a wild leopard at large and known to be a killer would stir up in any city. Until the beast was in its cave there was no feeling of security.

The story made worldwide prominence in the press. It was a story with the necessary appeal in the efforts of the hunters to round up the fugitive for public safety.

TITLES ON CARS

When such responsible bodies as the Canadian Bar Association and the Insurance Companies' Association favor legislative control in the sale of cars, it is a reasonable assumption that their case has merit.

The legislation would establish by law a title of property deed for automobiles, and thereby protect the purchaser from undisclosed liens on the purchase.

It is pointed out that if a car owner had to have a title of property, the finance company could hold that title until the lien was paid, and the owner could not then sell the car without letting the buyer know there was a lien on it.

Legislation of the type advocated by garage operators and lawyers, and also favored by the police, would have the effect of putting the brakes on the "hot car" racket. It would increase the difficulty of selling stolen cars.

There would seem to be little reason for the government to worry over administrative costs. Very few car purchasers would object to a small fee in return for the protection they would receive from a title of property deed.

IMPORTANT ALL

In the morning when the sun
Shouts: "Get up! The day's begun!
There are duties to be done.
Waiting all!"
What confusion we should see
If all men, including me,
Decided pretended then to be
To the call.
If the humble and the great
Muttered: "Let our duties wait.
Surely up or rising late,
None will care.

We're not needed. Sleep or work
Or the day off choose to take,
Little difference will it make Anywhere."

But the things we say and do
Are important; needed, too,
Bleak would be the whole day through Without all.
Every deed and word of cheer,
Every task are needed here.
Though the service may appear
To be small.

"Oh, oh, here's where I lose my wings—it's the income tax collector about that last return I filed!"

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

COMPANION TO YOURSELF

Sooner or later every man or woman must come to the realization that he or she can enjoy only goodly portion of life—alone. Especially alone if he has a big spirit. This is not exceptional, it is normal, for no matter what temperament in life, your one great companionship must mostly be yourself.

It is possible for us to be most people without being with them. Even our happiest hours are spent in solitude. This fact is why the finest things and live us as to render the greatest service to others are done alone, at the same time to enrich our own lives within.

Nearly every thoughtful person, early in life, formulates a personal plan or philosophy of life, that becomes a guide in such a one's in health, illness, and indeed during every hour and moment of one's life. It is this plan, or philosophy, that gives stability and fortitude under the most unexpected and trying of events. It is then that you learn what it means to be a worthy companion to yourself. Each of us creates his own fanciful world, as well. And in this world we can retire, likewise like a child, though we may have left home long ago, to become a man. And like Montaigne, in his "castle," we can set up an invisible sign before us that is for us alone, in our fashion, making friends with one self.

As life goes on we keep adding to our library of the mind, and to the garden of the heart, that other minds mingle with ours, and beauty and fragrance glorify the senses and make us skilful to every created thing. Not to ourself alone, however, are we associated, but to God and to the universe. Thus are we encouraged in loneliness, as such, vitalized in spirit, and given courage to meet life on its own terms, accepting them, without question, and without complaint.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE EXTRA EFFORT

All successful athletes have discovered one secret of developing their skill. To increase their strength, endurance, and co-ordination, they constantly push themselves a little beyond their present limits. Thus the track star runs not merely until he is ready to stop, but a few laps longer until he feels really tired. The football player, weary at the end of practice, may force himself to trot once around the field before going to the showers. The athlete demand upon the muscles, beyond their present capacity, is what makes that capacity grow greater.

The same principle carries over into daily life. Did you ever notice how really busy people are the ones who get things done? It is not the man with plenty of spare time who is willing to take on an extra task, help out in an emergency, or serve on a committee. It is always the man whose hands are already full who somehow manages to crowd it in. The more we must do, the more we can do. That is one reason why most genuinely successful people have so many interests and activities — by stretching their efforts, they constantly increase their achievement. Beware of the man who has little to do and lots of time to do it in. He probably never get it done.

Impressions of Britain

By RALPH CAMPBELL

RATIONING OF FOOD

Oxford, England.—(Special) — Apparently our original article on the rationing and availability of food in Britain has caused a number of comments and questions because of the tone of "sufficiency" which it implied. Consequently we hasten to write another article on the same subject, with the hope of clearing up any misapprehensions we may inadvertently have caused.

First, food parcels from Canada and elsewhere are definitely a boon to the British housewife and we should say that they are a means of causing their cessation. As we concluded in our original article, "Our interested outlook has lasted four months. Would it be such an interesting situation if we had endured it for ten years?" Some foods such as salmon and sugar in particular, as well as imported tinned fruit, raisins, and some types of tinned meat, are definitely in short supply, and we failed to refer to give sufficient emphasis to these scarcities.

Cooking Differs

Second, our type of meals and cooking differs from that of the British cooking. We never have a "bread and butter pudding" or a "bread, butter, jam or syrup, biscuits (on points), tea with sugar, and milk" meal. Our meals always have three full meals. We drink (unrationed) as often as we like drink tea, and our biscuits are homemade, of unrationed materials, and we never use peanut butter, etc.

Third, Canadian wives here have remarked on the different recipes for British cakes and puddings. British puddings and cakes are much "heavier" but this does not imply shortage. It is a matter of personal preparts. This results in our saving on shortening. Apples have been plentiful this year, at about $3.18 per bushel, and by the end of May consumed almost three bushels of them in less than five months. Apples are also available as a saving both of money and shortening in pies, apple dumpling, apple crisp, apple pie, etc, replace expensive and scarce imported fruits.

We have had more apples this winter than Canadians have in some years. It has been suggested that with a little family ingenuity bread and butter would be consumed, thus reducing the cheese available for others. This is probably true, as we consume only about 2 ounces (on points and about 15 cents) per week. Another point is that my wife has recently learned to cook and has spent a great deal of time at it—sometimes all day. Being a family used with large families, gardens, or outside activities, we do not.

But perhaps we should be more specific about points. Our food budget is $7.00 to $7.25 per week, and of this a small amount is spent—about 50 cents each week in Co-op dividend, and in addition to unrationed foods more explicitly:

Milk—permanently unrationed, at present price of 1 shilling per quart.

Jam—all kinds, about 20 cents per pound.

Marmalade — about 18 cents per pound.

Coffee, loose, except cheddar. (Danish blue, Camembert, etc) 37 cents per pound.

Figs—for cooking or eating raw 20 cents per pound.

Grapefruit or oranges—10 cents per pound.

Fresh lemons—3½ cents each.

English golden plums—19 cents per lb. on tin.

Red plums—20 cents per 20 oz. tin.

Rhubarb—21 cents per 20 oz. tin.

Mixed fruit (headcheese)—34 cents per 12 oz. tin.

All these were unrationed and available at all times in the several stores which I visited on Feb. 21. There were also other types of tinned vegetables and meats, which space does not allow us to enumerate.

Our intention in the original article was to show what one could do with the food available, and to prevent a mere list of commodities which are scarce or non-existent. Before sailing from Canada, we received such a list as that, and we felt quite downcast at its contents. It was saying "Now what can you do with 2 oz. of cheese?" and how were we brought so much food to England with it, and why were we so agreeably surprised with British rations, and why we didn't include such a list in our previous article.

Rationed Foods

The amounts for one person of rationed goods are:

Bacon—5 oz. at 29 cents to 42 cents per pound. Oxford storekeepers say that they do not sell their full ration, and that a further one half to one more would permit complete deratioining.

Butter—4 ounces at 30 cents per pound.

Margarine—1½ pound at 13 cents per pound. Once again Oxford merchants say that the full ration is not being sold in spite of the low price.

Cheddar cheese — 2 oz. at 18 cents per pound.

Sugar—½ lb. at 6 cents per pound. This ration is also not quite of not being habitual tea drinkers, and cutting sweetened tinned milk in cocoa.

Cooking fat—2 oz. at 16 cents per pound.

The point system is more complicated. Two people have six points per month which you can use as you wish.

Meat—value 4 points for 2 lb. tin costing 25 cents.

Corn syrup—4 points for 2 lb. tin costing 25 cents.

Tomatoes, points for 1 lb. cost, ing 16 cents.

Rice—4 points for 1 lb. cost, ing 12 cents.

Raisins—12 points for 1 lb. costing 23 cents.

Dates—4 points for ½ lb. costing 5 cents.

Salmon—20 points large tin.

Biscuits various numbers of points.

All imported fruits—20 points for 1 lb. tin costing 25 cents.

Pineapple—(an exception) 20 points for 28 oz. tin costing 45 cents.

Jellies—8 points for 1 pint costing 19 cents.

Tinned Danish pork—8 points for 12 oz. tin costing 25 cents.

Tinned milk—1 point for 1 lb. tin (equivalent to 1½ pints full cream milk, plus sugar).

Of the above, all are readily available except dates and imported fruits, which are very in demand. Tinned salmon is also often off the ration, but their quality is inferior.

Chicken Expensive

In our previous article we indicated that chicken was very cheap, and in Oxford at least, quite plentiful. Actually, a fully dressed pound, heart, liver, sausages and giblets, costs about $1.00 per ration. Chickens are now 73 cents per pound—we have not yet felt the pinch, but evidently—but they are readily available.

Our article was a fluid one in the same as others in Oxford, whether rationing and availability are notorious for its high cost of living. Families in which there are large children, however, are engaged in particularly heavy work and are receiving extra rations, usually at reduced prices.

Our intention in the original article was not to paint too rosy a picture of Britain's food supply but to show that a fluid situation does some of the exaggerated stories of food shortages in Britain. We are not minimizing the scarcities of the war and subsequent period, for instance, the bacon ration was one-fifth the prewar amount. We do not think that to put 1950 rationing to the 1939 standard would be fair. Prices have been here in 1943 as one correspondent seems to suggest. Some Scarcities

Imported tinned fruits, raisins, some types of tinned meats, salmon, tea and sugar are scarce, and are quite scarce in the British in parcels. If the housewife has the time, the ingenuity and the inclination, the outlook is far from bleak. My contention is that if the British food rationing and prices are very reasonable that you can do the household genius — personally I affirm both.

Editor's note: Mr. Campbell has forwarded the following from the London News Chronicle dated June 16, 1949, giving a report under a six-column heading "Food Rations Are Unsold". The report is quoted in part:

Many people are not buying their full ration of margarine, butter, cooking fat, eggs and cheese.

The demand for these foods is probably decreasing in several districts. In some areas even the full ration is not being bought. Shops say raised to five ounces—is not selling well.

Provision merchants and shopkeepers attribute the falling off to two main causes.

1—Many people, especially those of limited income, have large families, cannot afford to buy their full ration of rationed goods.

2—Inferior quality foodstuffs, particularly cooking fats, are being turned down by customers. Stocks Pile Up

Reports from all parts of Britain, from provincial shopkeepers and heads of multiple stores, give this picture of the slower buying position.

Margarine—About 20 per cent. not taking full ration.

Eggs — In some districts the number of eggs bought is between 10 per cent; where there are two or three or more eggs per head of children, many not taking full ration.

Butter—Up to 25 per cent refusing all butter ration in some districts.

Cooking fats— Grocers report stocks piling up. Chief reason is dislike of cooking fats. Many allegedly inferior foodstuffs. This does not apply to some brands. Local officials from abroad containing first grade cooking fats account for

CIRRHOSIS OF THE LIVER SNEAKS UP ON YOU

In a previous article I mentioned cirrhosis of the liver as something the public should look forward to entertaining in the more mature years of his life. Although I must reiterate my conjecture to describe symptoms of this disease in a health column, it may be that many readers have been left wondering just what cirrhosis is.

There are several types of cirrhosis but the one I mentioned is the most common, and known variously as "hobnail cirrhosis", "alcoholic cirrhosis" or "drunkard's cirrhosis", as Lasnnec's cirrhosis. What actually happens in this disease is that certain elements of the organ first become swollen and thickened and afterward contract to such an extent as to produce atrophy or shrinking of vital cells, disorganization and change in size and structure of the entire organ.

Various functions of the liver which depend upon normal liver structure are correspondingly affected. A person can not live without a liver and the health in general is largely determined by the physical and functional status of the organ.

Cirrhosis is caused by dietetic deficiencies. The disease is principally produced in an experimental laboratory animal by depriving it of protein food. Most cases of cirrhosis are due to inadequate food appetite for food is usually very poor.

It is difficult to estimate the effect of starvation diets employed by many skinny folk who imagine that skinniness is healthful—or fashionable — or attractive. But that is not the case. The modern form of nutiiness is a contributing factor, there can be no doubt.

Cirrhosis develops most often between the ages of 40 and 60 and there is no way of telling how many years the process might have been "cooking" before it became identifiable. Heretofore it has been three times more frequent in men than in women.

Cirrhosis, like many other diseases, is more widely spread than formerly. The outlook for him is far from bright.

A gradual loss of appetites, nausea, indigestion and vomiting, sensation of abdominal distention, the appearance of "spiders" or areas of distended fine blood vessels in the skin of the chest and trunk, are among the first signs noted. Later, "dropsy," or the accumulation of fluid in the abdomen may develop. Swelling, or edema of the ankles sometimes.

Because circulation through the liver becomes obstructed, the veins of the stomach or veins to become enlarged. These may be observed superficially. Occasionally, the veins of the lower end of the esophagus (gullet) become enlarged and upon accidental rupture give rise to hemmorhage which is difficult to distinguish from hemorrhage from an ulcer. Perhaps the safest way to look for a list of symtoms. There are more — many of them — of more interest to the doctor than to the patient. Although the mortality rate has been decreased by modern methods of treatment based upon a clearer understanding of the condition, the fact still remains that it is a grave disease and one more easily prevented than treated.

Treatment is mainly dietetic. Amins acids derived from protein material and other substances which limit deposition of fat in the liver have contributed to the effectiveness of dietetic treatment. This is not a problem that can be solved with a "diet list," nor are there any special foods which one with cirrhosis should or should not eat, so far as I know, in any case the question of food or diet is best left to the judgment of the attending physician.

Again I say cirrhosis is a lethal disease with no cure. It is time for all who love America to plan how to do away with "social drinking"— the cocktail evil particularly.

Answer—Various maladies takes as tonic, physic or remedy for minor ailment may cause bad taste.

Bowlegs

Are bowed legs in a toddling child due to food or vitamin deficiency? If you think so perhaps you can help me. Baby's legs bow to many mothers who are ignorant of the cause. (Mrs. D. N.)

Answer — Yes, bowlegs often due to calcium and vitamin D deficiency in infancy and early childhood. Seems it benefits efficiency to bowing of the legs should be more widely known and when to give sugar and cereal; more opportunity to bask in the sun, less clothing. Also, that mother should receive a good daily ration of one pint of milk, one egg, one fish and say a small teaspoonful every day, particularly through the winter and spring.

Prevent Premature Graying of Hair

M. Told three drops of iodine in a glass of water will stop gray hair. (Mrs. T. A.)

Answer — Rub just put it in the water and leave it there? I don't know about that, but many readers have assured me that The Iodin Ration retards premature graying of the hair. A reader self-addressed envelope for the pamphlet.

We choose to forget, apparently, that some millions of the best brains and skill of continental Europe are German fighting men survived the war and must somehow find an elsewhere part of the population. Let us entertain, for a moment, the idea of wondering what they are doing.

We may already, in five years, entirely forgotten the pride of race and pride in skill that important ingredients of their fighting characters. Were the Hitler Youth all killed? If not, what thoughts might there be in the mind of a Hitler Youth who is now about 25 or so? In what frame of mind now are those Germans who fought like demons every foot of the way back up through Italy? What sort of a stodgy civilian is any one of those Germans who battled the war and must now look on as through the Schnitt and Jos battalions of Canadians? Is he actually fought them long enough to respect and to hate a man at the same time. And it is probably true that the more they fought the Germans hated them therefore the more they developed respect for their fighting quality, their courage, their resilience, their savagery, cunning, physical endurance; their talent, in short, for making war. And it is actually fought them long enough to respect them.

Yet month after month and year after year has gone by with practically a news or any news source about these several million Germans who fought and the war as soldiers, air force personnel, U-boat and warship crews and all the other branches of the armed forces; and who are now presumably in Allied prisoner of captivation.

The news of Germany is headlined by elderly, bald-headed professors and rather unattractive-looking democratic Herrs with pot bellies. Out of sheer curiosity, even vindictiveness, I like to know what cooks with what ingredients in the pots who stood at Ortono, or manned those dykes of the Scheldt pocket.

Red Cross Swells U.S. Bank Supply of Healing Blood

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York (AP)—Today there are about 1,200 health banks in the United States taking in and storing units of banking's most precious medicines.

These are blood banks. The medicine is human blood, and the banks, by expert estimate, now harbor about 2,500,000 pints of blood a year to aid the sick and injured.

In 1940 there was just one bank, in Chicago. The phenomenal growth since then is only the beginning—if the hopes of doctors and health authorities come true, the greatest growth has come since the war. The war showed dramatically what blood and blood products could do to save lives.

Hospitals expanded or started new blood banks after the war. Most donated blood by mail—patients or relatives to replace blood, or to give in advance. There are private banks that sell blood. There also are some community banks, with clubs or organizations scouting for blood donors.

Then came one of the boldest public health steps in history—the national blood program of the American Red Cross.

The boldest part is the belief that Americans will continue to give blood free, in peacetime, as in war. In five wartime years men and women donated more than 13,500,000 pints of blood through the Red Cross.

The Red Cross program began Jan. 12, 1945, with opening of a regional blood bank centre in Rochester, N.Y. Now there are 30 regional centres supplying blood to nearly 1,600 hospitals in 35 states.

No Charge

More than 500,000 pints have been donated. Red Cross funds pay for collecting, testing, typing, processing and delivering blood to hospitals. Doctors or hospitals may charge for medical services and for giving blood, but not for the Red Cross blood or blood products themselves.

By next July, the Red Cross expects to have 40 regional centres, and $2 by July, 1951. The goal is to blanket the country so blood and blood products will be available to anyone, anytime, anywhere.

The centres, staffed by volunteer workers, serve communities 10 to 50 or more miles away. A Red Cross centre is set up only if local doctors, hospitals, and health agencies invite it, and each is designed to meet local needs. It adds a new source of blood, from volunteers, without interrupting existing banks.

Many sick and injured people need whole blood transfusions. Others need the special blood products.

One is plasma, the fluid part of blood, which can be a quick, shock fighting substitute for whole blood. Another is blood protein, serum albumin, that fights shock.

Another, gamma globulin, is to prevent or ease attacks of measles or jaundice. From blood comes the anti-hemophilic agent for people with that bleeding disease. Fibrinogen, a clotting substance in blood, can be made into sponges or films for use in surgery. Concentrated red cells are given to people with chronic anemia.

"Chemists, pathologists, and other experts believe we are just beginning to discover the life-saving and life-prolonging uses to which human blood can be put" declared Dr. Ross T. McIntire, director of the Red Cross program.

MARMORA

Club Discusses Soil Conservation

Marmora — Farmers of Marmora Township made up a fairsized audience at the Town Hall on Tuesday evening when they were addressed by A. A. Dalrymple, Agricultural Representative and R. A motion picture depicting better farming practices was also shown. The meeting was sponsored by Marmora Agricultural Society and the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association.

Hog Producers Say Floor Prices Needed to Protect the Industry

Toronto, March 3 (AP) — A march to Ottawa by hog producers from every federal constituency in Ontario was suggested yesterday by Charles McInnis of Iroquois, president of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association.

He told the opening session of the association's two-day convention:

"To date the government has not seen fit to play fair with the hog industry. We won't stop until we get adequate protection. I'd like to see delegates sent to Ottawa to see every Ontario member."

Mr. McInnis said the association is planning central selling agencies for hogs. They would be set up under provisions of the Farm Products Marketing Act.

"The packinghouses leave us no alternative, when the only things they seem interested in are speculation and price-cutting" he said. "We have tried to negotiate a minimum price with them but they wouldn't co-operate in any way or try to arrive at a price which would give the producer any stability."

He said floor prices would protect the hog producer in the same way that tariffs protect industry.

He outlined a report speech by Leslie Mutch, Liberal member-elect for Lennox and Addington, who was quoted as saying that farmers are second best organized fear ridden group in Canada.

"I suppose our high-salaried friend, Mr. Mutch, will move to have his salary lowered to be in one of the groups he speaks about," said Mr. McInnis. "One wonders at men in such positions saying such things."

W. E. Tummon, association secretary, said farmers prefer to market their products at a level that would not necessitate floor prices. But, he said, the farming industry is faced with a situation that unless halted, will affect the entire economy of Canada.

He said he believes that United States bacon would "flood" the Canadian market if import controls were lifted. He added that governments in every country to which Canada could export bacon subsidize hog production at home.

F. H. Flowers, veterinary surgeon, first had little hope of saving the dog's life.

Smart Simplicity Features Spring Styles for Business Girls

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, but his love's fancy is turning to thoughts of her new Easter bonnet and the costume to go with it as was evident in the spring showing of new styles presented by the Northern Electric Club at the Collegiate on Wednesday evening. It may be winter by the calendar, but to the smart young business girls it is time to plan for the new fashions and judging by the suits, dresses, furs, shoes and accessories it is going to be a season of smart simplicity.

Under the direction of Miss Edna Lalonde the models paraded a fine showing of ensembles which expressed the lovely femininity of the newest styles designed to meet the budget of the business girls. The young models were who go to the office and shop every day have a special problem of suitability. It is necessary to be well groomed, smart without ostentation, and immaculate. With these things in mind the merchants who contributed to the showing chose dresses and styles which could be adapted within a reasonable price range to meet the needs.

Artistic Stage Setting

The stage was artistically banked with spring blooms of hyacinths and daffodils with potted ferns supplied by the Templer flower shop.

Mr. J. Bennett opened the showing by presenting Miss E. Lalonde who, in turn, introduced the commentator, Mrs. M. J. Waller. Organ music was provided by Mr. Dean Whalen.

The models made their initial entry displaying sports clothes. Miss Lois McLean wore a black suit with a jacket of hound's-tooth check, corduroy slacks of a brown shade with beret to match and sport shoes by Leslie's shoe store. A skirt to match the jacket transformed this into a suit.

Miss Barbara Whelan modelled a corduroy suit with green jacket and brown slacks. With this she wore a yellow wool sweater distinguished by two sheer scarves tied at the neck.

Mrs. Laurel Wood made her first appearance in an English Goray pleated skirt with a rust colored turtle neck sweater.

Mrs. Doris Chipps wore an accordian pleated plaid skirt with a sweater and cardigan to match. With this she wore sling pumps. Miss Faye Howard wore a navy blue ensemble, a navy hat trimmed with white pique, sling pumps with straps, and bag and gloves from the Georgia Salon to match.

Skirt, Sweater Ensembles

Miss Ilene Bowler was dressed in a Scotch plaid skirt, blue sweater, topped by a light blue blazer trimmed with white cord. Mrs. Betty Parsons modelled a sweater and skirt of grey over which she wore a created navy blue blazer with silver buttons. Miss Doris Taylor appeared in a navy skirt, white flannel blazer with navy blue shoes.

The suits which followed showed new detail in collar and pocket design. Pockets are big and were shown on almost every garment. Materials were varied with gabardine being favored. Dual colored scarves added an attractive note to suits, and for neckpieces by Woodley Furriers gave a dramatic quality to an ensemble. Most suits were semi-fitted, or buttoned to the throat. Hats were fancy hug-bugging affairs to match the new short hair styles. Gay flowers added a lively touch to the hats, and many had veiling to soften the lines, in a moderate way, over the chin. A new straw called pon-corn straw was used a good deal. Skirts also featured large pockets. The favorite shortie coat was shown in engaging colors of coral, egg shell, and lemon. A short bell-coat was done in the new golden glow shade worn over a two-tone party dress with black skirt.

A green and black suit was worn with a hat that could be folded up and put into a purse without harming it, a boon to a girl when she travels.

Pleats Featured

Pleats are featured on many of the dresses and skirts this year. Knife pleats, accordian pleat on dresses, and inverted pleats on suit skirts, with unpressed front pleat making an appearance on some dresses.

Fur coats that would appeal to the girl in business were shown with many distinctive styles and silhouettes. A sable blended muskrat would be a popular choice as it is long wearing and within the means of the budget. Black Russian Persian lamb was shown with youthful lines in a smartly styled coat. Mouton is another fur that is gaining in popularity and was featured in a four flared coat which looked like a warm and comfortable choice for winter. A Hudson Seal looked luxurious for a long service coat.

Party dresses were gay in color and smart in design and line. A red printed taffeta with matching accessories was noted, as well as a gay tissue faille with a hat of white straw trimmed with navy blue ribbon. This dress had a detachable collar and cuff set of lace, which would surely appeal to the girl who liked to look fresh with a quick laundering job.

The mandarin neckline is a new features of the spring dresses, while in coats the nipped-in waist at the back with fullness in the skirt struck a new note.

Attractive Evening Wear

The highlight of any girl's wardrobe is her evening dress, and many charming styles were shown by the attractive young models. These included a lemon net gown with a gold evening bag and matching necklace; a nylon sheer with Peter Pan collar; a pale blue number with rhinestones set in the bodice; an orchid colored nylon sheer with a hoop skirt and long gloves; and a blush pink embroidered with lovers' knots reminiscent of a different period. A strapless gown of green with tiers of tucks and rows of lace down the back of the skirt; and a yellow nylon with-ruffled net around the neckline were with lace gloves completed the picture. To enhance the gowns evening jackets of lapin, kidskin and squirrel were shown.

During the intermission a film entitled "This Is Nylon" was shown. This pictured the discovery of this synthetic and the many uses it has in the life of the home and in industry.

The usherettes were Margaret Barrett, Barbara Cain, Marion Coulter, Gladys Keough, Ruth Mitchell and Mickie Thibaudeau.

Men's Wear Show

Styles for men had an inning in the grand finale when each of the models appeared with a male escort who showed what the well-dressed man will wear in business suits and street wear at the Easter parade. First in couples and then in a group the young people paraded with good effect smartly outfitted in a collection of the featured high styling which will be worn this spring.

The men who took part were Messrs. Frank Bailey, Don Barrett, Joe Barrett, Alec Bowman, Clint Jones, Ed. Lewis Bob Bunting and Ron Lynch.

Winner of the draw for the door prize was Mrs. Brettingham who won a mantel radio.

MEN STAY PUT

Windsor, N. S. — (CP) — The teaching profession need not men, thinks school inspector Murray Campbell. He told the Kay Hants council that the high marriage rate among women teachers had caused a shortage of experienced teachers. Men teachers stayed on the job longer than women.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Few people know why sauerkraut is sour.

It's one of nature's simple processes that produces this miracle of crisp tartness and tanginess. To make sauerkraut, shredded cabbage and salt are combined. The salt draws out the water to the cabbage. In the water there is sugar, which combines with lactic acid bacteria in cabbage to form the pungent flavor of sauerkraut.

As soon as a certain acidity is reached, the bacteria are automatically killed! This kind of Jargon may interest sauerkraut makers, but it doesn't recapture the flavor of kraut itself.

To really appreciate it one must be able to remember the homemade sauerkraut that was kept in a heavy wooden barrel in the darkest and coldest part of the cellar. There was always a heavy stone over the loose wooden lid that kept the kraut tightly packed and covered with its own cold juice. It was the one food you could steal with impunity, because a pint or so couldn't possibly be noticed in the 200-pound barrel that lasted the winter.

Use fresh or canned sauerkraut to make braised meat balls.

Braised Meat Balls with Sauerkraut—Serves 4

Order 1-2 pound ground beef, 1-4 pound ground pork and 1-4 pound of ground veal.

Add to the meat 1-4 cup of bread crumbs, 1-4 cup water, 1 tablespoon catsup, 1 small grated onion, 1 teaspoon horseradish, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Add 1 unbeaten egg. Mix well.

Shape meat into balls about 1 inch in diameter.

Place meat balls in a shallow metal baking dish or pie pan. Place under a moderate broiler flame to brown. Turn once to brown all over.

In a heavy saucepan or Dutch oven place 1 quart of fresh sauerkraut or 1 No. 2 1-2 can of sauerkraut drained of all juice. Add 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 small grated onion, and 1 small grated potato. Mix well. Add meat balls. Place saucepan, covered, in a moderate oven, 350 degrees and bake 1 hour. Stir several times during baking.

Superb Flavour!

Casual Flattery

By ALICE ALDEN

THE NICE little hat that, while it isn't dressy and isn't too casual either, is likely to get plenty of outdoor life. It fits in with all but afternoon clothes. On the budget side, but belying that pleasant fact, is this little hat with a curving gilt brim. Etta Leen does this in felt, and the head-fitting crown is softly pleated and finished off with a soaring pheasant quill.

Women's Institute

MELROSE W. I.

Melrose — The regular meeting was held on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. Ed. Lazier. Due to the condition of the roads, there was a small attendance.

Mrs. Reilly, the president, opened the meeting in the usual manner. Several letters were read. Miss Lewis sent a form to be filled out by those wishing "pen pals" in other countries. Mrs. Futcher's letter explained the W. I. position in regard to the Federation of Agriculture.

The secretary expressed the thanks of Mrs. Claude Clarke for the card sent to her during her recent illness, also her thanks to her "Sunshine Sister" for the lovely potted plant.

Mrs. Leslie, district president, asked that suggestions for the district annual be brought to the next meeting, as this is the 80th anniversary of the founding of East Hastings district.

Mrs. Arthur English, district director, reported on the recent district executive meeting and explained the fee or 10 cents per member to defray the expenses of the conveners at the Guelph conference.

It was decided to donate $15 to the Red Cross and $20 to the "March of Dimes."

An appeal from the Unitarian Committee of Canada was read. Layettes are to be made from flannelette provided by this committee, also baby's things to be knitted.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Mac Lazier, convener of public relationship, and community activities. Miss Beatrice Mac-Farlane gave a paper on "Playparties." In the early days of the country, these gatherings were very popular, and are again coming into use. Then each community lived largely unto itself and evenings spent in games and folk dancing were almost the only amusement. Now we are coming back to the idea of community gatherings.

Mrs. Clarence Hagerman conducted a contest.

The roll call was answered by a riddle.

Mrs. Lazier and her conveners served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

Hair-dos for little girls

There was a time when children were not regarded as people. Grandma will tell you how it burned her up when she was little and was told that children should be seen and not heard. She confesses frankly that, at the age of six or seven, she wanted to murder the adults in her family. No little girl dared to express an opinion about the clothes she had to wear. Some lucky kids had their locks done up in rags so they would be curly girls. Others were not so lucky. Their locks were straight and stringy, much to their heart's sorrow.

Things are different now. Mothers are wiser. They know how they would hate to wear clothes they didn't like, how distressing it would be to have their hair arranged in an old - fashioned manner, about which they would have no say at all.

They understand that keeping a child looking sweet and pretty gives her self-confidence, wards off self-consciousness, and is not going to make her vain but self-respecting. No little girl can bear to appear neglected or dowdy before her playmates.

Children's hearts are easily hurt. Character is forming in the early years, and the attitude of the mother has much to do with the character that is building.

At conventions of hairdressers, where lovelies strut their coiffure stuff, nearly always there are several little girl models for whom special arrangements are designed.

Now that mama is flaunting a short hair cut, daughter may like her hair that way. Trimming should be done by a professional, as the course followed depends upon features and facial contour. If the child prefers flowing locks, and her hair lends the natural undulation, she can have more quickly accomplished than older methods. Little girls usually enjoy a few hours at the beautytorium.

With shoulder-length tresses, it is nice to have bangs and to wear a ribbon around the head, Alice-in-Wonderland fashion. This style is particularly becoming to the child with a heart-shaped face.

If the bang is round, a side parting looks well with the hair brushed upward, front and sides, to give more length to the cherub's pretty face.

Pigtails are piquant and cute; some little girls love them. As they grow longer they can be wreathed around the head, circlet fashion.

Keeping a child looking sweet and pretty gives her self-confidence.

MAY APPEAL DECISION

Toronto, March 1.—(CP)—E. J. Prillie, secretary of the Property Owners Association of Toronto, said today the decision that federal rent controls are valid may be appealed to the Privy Council.

He said that if the Canadian Federation of Property Owners Associations, of which his organization is a part, seeks a London ruling of the opinion given today by the Supreme Court of Canada, the case will be the last from Canada to go before the Privy Council.

NO MATTER what other fabrics are promoted, fine cottons are more than holding their own for resort clothes, and should register well come the warm weather. Tissue-thin cotton—gray, plaided in aqua blue and pale pink—is used for a handsome shirtwaist dress that buttons with self buttons to below the waist, has a tailored self belt and soft, puffed sleeves below a dropped shoulder line.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

This widow likes to wear rings!

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. I am a widow, about to remarry. I would not like to give up the matched set of rings (engagement and wedding rings) of my first marriage. Would it be all right if I continue to wear them after my coming marriage?

2. We are just going to a judge to be married. But my husband-to-be spoke about liking to have a gold band. How and when does he put it on? And should I buy it, or should he?

R. R.

1. This is not a question of etiquette. It is a question, a very important question, of feeling, of a fundamental point of view toward marriage. So, if you have real objection to wearing the rings of your first marriage when you are married again, you must be sure to ask your husband-to-be what his feeling is about this. Most men have a very definite point of view about a wife's wearing the rings that symbolize her marriage to a former husband. And I suggest that you seriously decide whether your pride in wearing a "matched set" is more important than your willingness to abide by the sensibility of your prospective husband.

2. Do you mean that your prospective bridegroom would like to have a double-ring ceremony? If so, you buy his ring (he should go with you to choose the kind he wishes to wear), and the rings are put on during the ring part of the ceremony.

Shower problems

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. I am going to give a bridal shower for my niece. Some of all the guests will be middle-aged women with families of their own in mind the usual hour of their Sunday dinner. Would a Sunday afternoon tea be proper . . . from 3 to 8 o'clock?

2. Should the invitation be handwritten notes or the usual printed invitation? And should the invitation read "Tea and Shower" or just "Shower"?

3. Would these refreshments be correct to serve: tea sandwiches, deviled eggs, stuffed celery, dessert, tea cakes, tea, coffee and punch?

4. Would it be correct to have the mother of the bride-to-be and the mother of the groom-to-be pour?

A. B.

1. Five-to-eight o'clock are not usual tea hours . . . 5 o'clock is more toward a supper hour. Because it is to be a shower, I suggest that, if possible, you invite all the guests for a more or less definite hour . . . for example, "Please come between half-past four and five o'clock." If this isn't practical, name the usual tea-hours, 4 to 7, or 4 to 6.

2. Either type of invitation is correct. Invite your guests to a "Tea and Shower".

3. For a tea-menu, sandwiches, cookies, tea and coffee are appropriate; deviled eggs and stuffed celery are more suitable for a buffet supper.

4. Don't ask "the mothers" to pour . . . invite others to pour, and give the mothers a chance to circulate among the guests, receiving introductions and so forth.

Porter tip for extra service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Next month I am going to take an overnight train trip with my infant daughter. Since I will need quite a bit of extra help (with carrying luggage, heating bottles, and so forth) I would like to have your advice as to what would be the proper tip for the porter. Also when do I tip him . . . at the beginning of the trip, or when I arrive at my destination?

A. R. L.

The minimum tip to the porter would be a dollar . . . more if you ask for a good deal of service, if he gives willing service (as he undoubtedly will), and if you can afford it. Tips are generally given at the end of the trip.

Justice McRuer Calls a Halt To Murder Trial

Port Arthur, March 2 (CP)—Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday called a halt to the murder trial of 31-year-old Sylvia Kotila, then dismissed the jury and transferred the case to the spring assizes.

She is charged with the knife-slaying last Dec. 6 of her common-law husband, Paul Kucher, 39. Police said Kucher died at the home of his sister. Cassie Kucher, after he stumbled in bleeding profusely from knife wounds in the neck.

Chief Justice McRuer said discrepancy in the evidence of Nick Jura, who was in Cassi Kuher's home at the time, led to the dismissal.

He said Jura, with the jury out Tuesday, had said Kucher had entered his sister's home and mumbling "taking off my boots —she stabbed me," which was ruled admissible as a dying man's statement.

Russia's New Currency Change Covers Three Lines of Action

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, March 2 — (AP) — United States government officials said Wed. that Russia's new currency change probably marks the beginning of the period of "ruble diplomacy" in exploitation of the communist satellites.

Evidently the Russians are also trying to use the ruble as a propaganda weapon even beyond the communist area by showing it off as a monetary unit even more dependable, in their claim, than the U.S. dollar.

While they speculated along these lines, State Department officials said it may be some time before the full intentions of the Kremlin are clear.

The monetary moves cover three lines of action. Prices on a number of consumer commodities, including flour, potatoes, beef and wine were cut; the ruble was switched from a dollar standard to gold as a measure of its value; and the value of the ruble was increased from about 19 cents to about 25 cents.

Diplomatic informants said the price cuts had been rumored in Moscow for several weeks and in fact had been expected earlier this year. The announcement now, a short time before the Russian election, is regarded as being time to give the Russian people a piece of good news. However, the real value of the cuts to the Russian workers is questioned by authorities here, since Russian prices rose 100 per cent in 1946 and cuts since that time have not restored the post-war level.

Mackenzie's Column: Tragic Lesson In the Case of Dr. Klaus Fuchs

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

There is a tragic lesson in the case of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, naturalized British subject who has been sentenced to 14 years in prison for betraying atomic secrets to Russia.

The moral is that anyone who subscribes to communism of the Soviet brand pledges his loyalty to Moscow, irrespective of his nationality. A lot of people seem to have failed to grasp that cardinal fact, and it may be that Fuchs was one of those who missed the point—until it was too late.

Fuchs was a German who fled Nazi persecution in 1933 and was given refuge in Britain. He was a brilliant physicist and was given opportunities to become one of the world's outstanding atomic experts.

Dr. Fuchs had become a member of the German communist party in 1932 and he clung to this ideology. Naturally the time arrived when Moscow put the finger on him and demanded that he divulge the atomic secrets of the United States and Britain.

The presiding judge, Lord Chief Justice Goddard, summed up the case in part like this:

"You have betrayed the hospitality and protection given you with the grossest treachery... you have done irreparable harm both to this land and the United States of America and you did it—as your statement shows—clearly for the purpose of furthering your political creed.

"Your statement shows the depths of self deception to which people like yourself can fall.

"Your crime is only thinly differentiated from high treason."

Did Dr. Fuchs fully realize all this when a red agent first connected him and demanded the atomic secrets? Or is Fuchs one of those cases whose minds are ideologically wool-gathering most of the time?

There are a lot of folks who, when mention is made of communism, think in terms of the somewhat benevolent brand of the late which existed long ago. That was a utopian ideal in which the members of the community lived in brotherly love and shared equally one for all and all for one.

It's a far cry from that communism to the creed of the present day Bolshevism. The current theory calls for one world, and the capital would be Moscow, with the sovereignty of all countries resting in the Kremlin.

Judge Admits Confession Given By Accused Man

Peterborough, March 2 — (CP) A confession said to have been made by Joseph Byrnes following the fatal shooting of Mrs. Helen Kendry at a party on Feb. 6 was admitted as evidence Wednesday at Byrnes' trial on a charge of manslaughter.

Mrs. Kendry was shot to death in Byrnes' home by a bullet fired from an old rifle. The crown contends Byrnes fired the shot through a wall, fatally wounding Mrs. Kendry in the next room.

A charge of murder against Byrnes was reduced to manslaughter at the preliminary hearing.

Mr. Justice A. M. Lebel dismissed the jury while he heard argument whether a statement made by Byrnes a few minutes after the shooting was admissible.

Constable Claire McGillen testified that when he and constable James Dalton went to the Byrnes home, Byrnes had said:

"I did it but I didn't mean it." His lordship ruled the statement was voluntary, and should be admitted as evidence.

The Golden Shoestring

Faith Baldwin

"You won't like this, I expect, but come on the mainland we can sail the Jewelry. It will bring quite a lot, even with fluctuating values."

She thought, quite a lot; enough to live on for a long time if they were careful. When had Chris ever wanted to live carefully? You could do a number of things with the money the pearls would bring, and the green-eyed emerald—you could, perhaps, buy a small house and a share in a small business.

She could not imagine Chris in that house or that business.

She said "we'll talk about it in the morning. Let's go to sleep now, Chris."

He slept after a little while, but she lay wakeful. The moon rode her downward course to her setting, the night was dark as grief, the night faded, as grief must fade, the sky was gray and brushed with gold, awaiting the upsweep of rose and carmine, the hot, fierce spears of the sun. And birds spoke quietly, one to the other.

When it was still very early, Chris asked "are you awake, Terry?"

"Yes."

"Have you been, for long?"

"All night, a hundred years. Chris, it's no good."

"What isn't?"

"Whatever it is you've thought and planned. It won't be the same when we go back. Roger will go back too and he will tell the story over and over. To save his face He'll tell it his way. By then he'll know about you too."

"If I know Jack," said Chris "he won't have to learn it in chance conversation, in a bar, or a beach, in a plane. Did you see Jack's expression when I spoke of Lilla?"

"You shouldn't have."

"I wasn't thinking about what I should or should not do."

"Chris, listen to me. We can't go back to packing and unpacking suitcases in other people's houses. Did I ever tell you about Jennifer and Bert Cranston?"

"No, and why should you at this juncture?"

"It's forgotten them," she said, "until recently. I knew them in London, Helen and I met them on a house party, after a while I learned about them. Bert had an inherited, not very impressive title. Jennifer had money, which she lost. They had just a tiny income. Bert took a job now and then, selling shares or getting new members, or say, a golf club. He was rather stupid, but pleasant. He doubled about and ride, play tennis and golf, and of course bridge. Sometimes he and Jen met Americans and introduced them to important people, for a price; or Jen took the women to a dressmaker or furrier or jeweler, and Bert took the men to his tailor and bartender. They earned commissions of course. Jen had great tact — I remember a very offensive man at that house party and how well she handled him— and the older women like Bert, I suppose wherever they visited they had the most undesirable room in the house and that the servants despised them. Sometimes they stayed with children, while the parents travelled, and they were always ready to fill in or help out—garden parties, funerals, weddings, debuts— half the thank you letters or letters of condolence people in their little set received were written by Jen; she wrote a pretty hand...."

"I don't believe any of this, Terry. Are you drawing a moral?"

"It's true, and, yes, I'm trying to, When I met the Cranstons they were in their late thirties. What's happened to them, besides growing older and more frightened? People didn't give big house parties during the war; they don't now. I remember someone saying that their only hope of an assured future was to attach themselves to a rich, disagreeable old woman, make themselves indispensable, however kicked around, and pray she'd die and leave them something."

Chris sat up, thumped his pillow into position and reached for the cigarettes on the marble-topped table beside him. He lit one and the sweet, acrid smoke drifted past and Terry's stomach turned over.

"That's not a very pretty picture," he said. "I suppose you didn't intend it to be?"

She said, "I saw it only in broad outline. What had it to do with me then? Now I can fill in the outline."

"All right," he said evenly, "what do you want to do? You call the shots."

"Chris, let me say this first, and just once more. It was never any fun. I tried to believe it was at first. I never quite succeeded."

"So?" He was conscious of anger, of fear, and of hurt. They had been together, wasn't that, in itself, fun? More than fun, wonderful and sufficient?, He looked down at her as she lay there, her black hair loose on the pillow, her face very pale in the dim light. In a few moments the room would be flooded with the golden warmth and then perhaps she would not look as if some time during the night she had drowned in darkness.

"Go on Chris said to Terry.

"I want to stay here, Chris. I want to know your people. I like most of them. I like your aunt and uncle. I can see the things you do not like in them but they aren't important. People who are very secure become somewhat arrogant restricted in their thinking, and complacent. My father didn't because, although I didn't know it, he was never really secure. Also, people who have worked, as their people did before them, believe in work. At least, they do here. Chris, I respect your aunt and uncle. I could be fond of them. I could make friends, Lilla, for one. I could be fond of Lilla too."

"That's all very well," he said unevenly, "I won't argue with you about the family. I see them in one light, you in another. But how can you, now?"

"Nothing has changed, and they were kind," she said, "last night."

"Kind? Kind? Because they didn't make a scene, throw us out? It's a little hard to throw people out of here, you know, Terry, you aren't thinking straight. Even if I wished to stay how could we?"

"You could go to work," she said flatly.

He turned and put the cigarette in an ash tray.

"For whom? For my uncle, for Jack, provided they were willing? He laughed shortly. "Come" he suggested, "try again."

"I am trying. There must be positions not controlled by your family. You have never looked for one. You worked under your uncle's direction, so to speak, and hated it. Not the work, Chris. I can see that now, but because you thought they'd tossed you a job like a bone, that you'd been cheated."

"Wasn't I?"

"I don't know. I know so little about you really."

"That goes double," he said slowly. "And if I say, no, I won't stay here, that nothing would persuade me to stay?"

"Then I suppose you'll go away And I shall too, but not with you," Terry answered.

He pulled her up until she sat straight beside him, her shoulders against the headboard, her pillow slipping down. He asked loudly, "just what do you mean by that?"

"What I said. There must be someone who would take me with them, to look after children on the trip perhaps."

"That would certainly make for interesting conversation."

Liberal Leader Gives Blueprint For Expansion

(By The Canadian Press)

Premier Walter Jones of Prince Edward Island Wednesday gave the Legislature at Charlottetown a blueprint for expansion of the province's trade with Newfoundland and Labrador.

Observers believed it was the Liberal leader's last major speech before he will be appointed to the Senate.

He stressed importance of the long-proposed Chignecto Canal as an Atlantic coast route for ships carrying Labrador iron ore. He said that if he were appointed to the Senate he will ask first tasks would be to press for immediate construction of the canal. Such a route would be faster and cheaper than the proposal to carry the ore by the Seven Islands, Que., for shipment up the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes he said.

In the Newfoundland Legislature Resources Minister Edward Russell said that while fishing remains the greatest single problem Newfoundlanders must not lose sight of the mineral possibilities.

The Legislative Assembly at Quebec adopted a bill to establish a Quebec social welfare court and to give it the right to impose an amendment concerning alimony. It also established a new court will have a wide jurisdiction, including matters relating to old age pensions, child adoption and hospitalization of the indigent.

Statement on Coalition

In the Ontario Legislature Miss Agnes Macphail (CCF-York East) contended that the Ontario educational system is producing too many academic people and does not give sufficient stress to practical training.

The Manitoba Legislature heard the first major statement of the session on the principles of coalition. During debate on a motion of non-confidence moved by the anti-coalition group Health Minister Ivan Schultz said voters have consistently supported the principle of non-partisan government through seven successive elections since 1922. "It is ridiculous to suggest that this government has not the confidence of the people of Manitoba," he added.

The Saskatchewan Legislature heard Liberal member, F. M. Dundas of Qu'Appelle — Wolseley suggest that the Federal government should pay more than 50 per cent of the cost of the Trans-Canada highway.

In the Alberta Legislature a rebel Social Credit member, A. W. Bourcier, charged that Premier Manning's government was no different from "orthodox Liberal or Conservative administration." Gordon Taylor, party whip, retorted: "Every act and every piece of legislation is designed in the interests of the people of this province, even if the actual words 'social credit' do not appear in the Throne Speech."

Cuts Two Hours Flying Vancouver To Montreal

Montreal, March 2 (CP)—Only four hours and 55 minutes after he left Vancouver Wednesday Flt. Lt. Don Laubman emerged from the cramped cockpit of his SCAF jet Vampire at nearby St. Hubert airport and announced his record-shattering flight had been "rather boring".

The Provost, Alta., pilot streaked over the 2,500 miles distance at an average speed of 460 miles an hour, bettering by almost two hours the previous record of six hours and 52 minutes set by a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star in 1948.

The North Star record, however was established in a non-stop flight while Laubman stopped for 29 minutes at Winnipeg to refuel. The Vampires eat up so much fuel they haven't the range for cross-country non-stop flights.

A second Vampire that left Vancouver at the same time landed at North Bay because of some minor engine trouble. It was piloted by FO Mike Doyle of Westmount, Que.

Govt. in Accord With Statements Of McNaughton

Ottawa, March 2.—(CP) Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday in the Commons the government is fully in accord with statements made by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the 1st Canadian Army in a speech here last Friday.

Replying to a question asked Monday by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Mr. St. Laurent said the views expressed by Gen. McNaughton were similar to those held and expressed by the Canadian government for many years.

The government had given no authorization for the speech, Gen. McNaughton had been a member of the Canadian Geographical Society for a long time and, as stated in the speech, he was expressing his own views.

Mr. Drew had drawn particular attention to Gen. McNaughton's statement that Canada has "assumed full responsibility for the solution of the significant problems of the defence of our Atlantic seaboard" before Newfoundland joined Confederation.

Fire Blocks Stairs, Occupants Jump From Second Floor

Hull, Quebec, March 2 — (CP) An early morning fire today destroyed a two-storey frame home and left 18 persons homeless. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

No one was injured as members of the occupants were forced to jump from a second floor window. Flames blocked stairways leading to the street were blocked by a wall of fire and dense smoke.

Left homeless were Mr. and Mrs. Antoine Simard and their five children; Mr. and Mrs. John Renaud and a two-year-old baby; and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Therien and three children.

The fire started in the basement of the home and firemen said they believed the blaze was set. A pipe Wednesday night was responsible for the outbreak. A blow torch was used and apparently burning embers smouldered several hours before bursting into flame.

Eight Members Of One Family Burned to Death

Monson, Me., March 2 (AP)— A fierce dwelling house fire wiped out eight members of a Monson family and injured a ninth seriously early today.

Elwood Smith, about 35, a teamster, his mother, and his six children were burned to death. The children ranged from a baby to a 10-year-old girl.

Smith's wife escaped but was reported in dying condition in hospital.

Firemen said Smith perished with other members of the family when he went back into the house in an attempt to rescue them after escorting his wife to safety.

Smith's wife, Norma, was found naked and struggling through deep snow toward a road. She suffered second- and third-degree burns on most of her body.

At daybreak firemen had recovered three bodies, burned beyond recognition.

Firemen fought the flames in near-zero cold. They plowed through deep snow to reach the scene.

Struggled Through Snow

A neighbor, Eugene Bickford said he heard Mrs. Smith's screams. He ran to the Smith home and carried Mrs. Smith to his house where she collapsed. Her night-clothing had been burned off. She had struggled about 25 feet through deep snow toward the road.

Bickford summoned firemen and sped back to the burning building.

"I broke a window," he related, "but it was impossible to get into the house for smoke. It was just pouring out. I could hear someone moving around inside but I couldn't do anything."

Five of the children and their grandmother were trapped in second - floor bedrooms of the wooden house. The baby was sleeping on the first floor with the parents.

The blaze apparently originated in the kitchen. It engulfed the structure in a few minutes.

Parliament At a Glance

(By The Canadian Press)

WEDNESDAY

Prime Minister St. Laurent said he is in accord with statements made in a speech last Friday by Gen. McNaughton.

William Moit, (L-New Westminster) urged lower interest rate loans to municipalities for essential works.

G. S. White (PC-Hastings-Peterborough) urged re-establishment of the Commons Committee on Veterans Affairs.

A. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West) charged that the government has failed to fulfill undertakings to maintain full employment.

Senator F. W. Pirie (L-New Brunswick), criticized "unwarranted and exaggerated stories" from the United States about Canadian potatoes.

THURSDAY

The Commons will continue the Throne-Speech debate. The Senate will not sit.

NEW FERRY PROPOSALS

Yarmouth, N. S. — (CP) — A car ferry service has been proposed between Nova Scotia's south shore and New England. And though Yarmouth has been chosen as the Canadian terminus four ports in Maine are vying for the other end of the service. They are Rockland, Portland, Bar Harbor and Wiscasset.

OLYMPIC PREPARATIONS

Oslo — (CP) — Norway is well on her way with preparations for the Olympic Winter Games to be held here in 1952. A new concrete ski jump is being built to replace the famous Holmenkollen jump. Under the jump will be cafes and a museum. A new bobsled run is likely to become a permanent tourist attraction.

EMBARRASSING, WASN'T IT?

When snow is carted out of an Alaskan town, that isn't news, but what about this scene in Anchorage where snow is carried in by truck and spread over the streets? The snow was needed for dog races and since Alaska weather had moved south, the citizens had to import their snow. — Central Press Canadian.

Doubts H-Bomb Will do What's Wanted in War

St. Louis, March 2—(AP)— Dr. Arthur H. Compton said Wednesday night he doubted whether a hydrogen bomb was usable from a military point of view "for the simple reason that it doesn't do what you want done in a war."

Dr. Compton, Chancellor of Washington University and one of the scientists who worked on the atom-bomb project, spoke at an academy of science dinner.

He said that "it is never the objective of war to destroy a whole population."

"Instead you try to reduce the enemy's will to resist" he continued. "You want to produce as little destruction as possible because you are going to have to go in and take care of those people after the war is over."

The atom bomb, Dr. Compton added, is about the biggest that can be used to destroy certain military targets.

A BETTER FLYTRAP

Vancouver — (CP) — Alf Torbjorn Holte, 60-year-old carpenter, is waiting for the world to beat a path to his door, now that he's invented a better flytrap. The trap is an inverted glass bottle, equipped with an electric screen inside. It is placed over a sugar ball and the flies, after feeding, fly up into the screen and are burned to a powder.

BORN ON CABOOSE

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Ranger of Redwater, Ont., pose happily with their infant daughter born aboard the swaying caboose of an Ontario Northland Railway freight train. In an emergency, the mother was put aboard the train to be taken to Temagami, Ont., but Mr. Stork refused to wait. Mr. Ranger's mother delivered the child in the flickering light of coal-oil lamp using paper towels, a raincoat and a pair of lamp trimmers as scissors. Both mother and child are doing fine. — (CP Photo.)

Egypt Refuses Suez Passage To Oil Tankers

Cairo, March 2—(AP)—Britain and Egypt are at odds over Egypt's refusal to allow passage through the Suez Canal of tankers carrying crude oil to the British-owned refineries in Israel.

The issue grew out of Britain's all-out efforts to conserve dollars by restricting oil imports from hard-currency areas.

Britain draws important qualities of crude oil from middle east iron and Persian gulf fields. Some of this formerly was refined at Haifa.

The Palestine war caused a cut in connections between the fields and Britain's Haifa refineries.

Iraq stopped pumping oil through a pipeline ending its wells to the Israeli plants.

Egypt clamped a ban down on tankers bound from the Persian gulf to Haifa through the Suez Canal.

Britain's demands for resumption of traffic recently have become more insistent both in Baghdad and Cairo.

Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, when visiting Cairo last January, was reported to have taken up the tanker question with Egyptian Prime Minister Nahas Pasha. Nahas Pasha's answer was "no," these reports say.

Egyptian diplomatic envoys to Arab countries met in Cairo early in February.

One policy decision resulting from the conference, Arab league circles reported, said: "As long as a state of war exists between Egypt and Israel, Egypt will continue to bar the passage of tankers carrying crude oil through territorial waters on their way to Haifa, as a vital measure for security."

'More and More' Work Available For Job Seekers

Ottawa, March 2—(CP)—Hope of an early chance to return to work spurred Canadian unemployed to fresh job-seeking efforts today following the first break in this country's mounting jobless list.

The labor department in a periodic review of the employment situation said Wednesday that the total number of unemployed in Canada at Feb. 16 had declined 14,000 from the peak of 402,000 reached Feb. 9.

At the same time the department predicted that during the next month or two "more and more" jobs become available with the springtime revival of activity in construction, transportation and agriculture.

At Feb. 16 the number of persons seeking jobs through the labor department's employment service was 378,000—down 24,700 over the previously-announced figure of 402,000 reached at Feb. 2 but down almost the same amount from the Feb. 9 peak.

Officials of the labor department's labor congresses greeted the report with cautious optimism.

Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the 350,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor said he hoped the improvement would continue, though he did not feel the gain was appreciable.

Weather Responsible

Percy Bengough, head of the 480,000-member Trades and Labor Congress said the increase between Feb. 2 and 16 was very disturbing. The Congress had hoped the government would do more than "sit back and wait" for developing unemployment situation.

The sort-of-upward climb out of jobless figures—the first recorded since early last October—was attributed mainly to improved weather conditions on the west coast that sent 9,000 workers back to jobs in logging, sawmill and construction industries between Feb. 9 and Feb. 16.

B.C. was the only region to show a decrease in unemployment over Feb. 2 figures, dropping from 68,700 to 66,100 after reaching a 68,700 peak at Feb. 9. However, both Ontario and the prairie provinces showed declines between Feb. 9 and 16, while Quebec and the Maritime Provinces increased.

By regions the employment picture at Feb. 16, with Feb. 2 and 9 totals in brackets was:

Atlantic 57,000 (54,900-55,500), Quebec 110,900 (109,300-110,600), Ontario 90,100 (89,800-90,800), Prairies 54,200 (52,900-54,800), Pacific 66,100 (68,700-69,700).

Cost-of-Living Index May Continue to Follow Slight Downward Trend Report

Ottawa, March 2 (CP)— As Eastern Ontario Member of Parliament is campaigning to get the Federal Government to take greater responsibility for injuries to civilians from military wounds.

G. K. Fraser, Progressive Conservative member for Peterborough West, said Wednesday he is prepared to pursue the question of Crown responsibility when defence estimates come before the Commons.

"When a man is killed or injured in his negligence on the part of an employee of the Crown then the government in my estimation, is guilty of murder," Mr. Fraser said.

"The way the law now stands, the ordinary person has no redress even when the negligence is clearly proved."

Mr. Fraser got some ammunition for his campaign Wednesday in replies tabled in the Commons to five questions.

The replies said the Defence Department has investigated death and injuries of children near Camp Borden caused by a hand grenade explosion during the first week of January.

"The investigation carried out did not reveal any facts which would indicate that the grenade which exploded could have come from Camp Borden. The question of damages therefore does not arise."

Mr. Fraser asked if live hand grenades have been used by the Defence Department at Camp Borden since 1945. The reply was that they had been used on the grenade ranges within the confines of the camp.

He also wanted to know if a check is kept on these grenades, as to numbers issued and number exploded.

"All grenades are accounted for either as exploding or returned," the reply said.

Ordinary Person Has no Redress Says Member

Ottawa, March 2 (CP)— The cost-of-living index will soon know if the downward trend in the cost-of-living recorded in the last half of 1949 is continuing this year.

They will get the answer in a few days when the bureau of statistics issues its monthly report on living costs.

In the last five months of 1949 declining food prices chipped away the July peak of 162.8 to lower the prices barometer 1.3 points. By the end of December the cost-of-living index stood at 161.5.

The index is calculated on the basis that 1935-39 average living costs equal 100.

Although the December index still was 61 per cent higher than the 1935-39 average, it represented a half point drop from the previous month.

Increases in the allowable rent ceiling announced at the fall session of parliament probably will not be reflected in the new index.

The rent sub-index remained stationary at 123.0 during December. Bureau surveys of rent changes are made on a quarterly basis. The last was completed in November and results of the survey probably will not be announced until the following index.

In any event, the majority of landlords increasing rents were only able to begin boosting them Feb. 1 and as a result the allowable increases would have little- or-no effect in January.

Food prices took the biggest drop, 2.5 points, among the six groups comprising the index.

The food sub-index fell to 199.4, the first time the group slipped below 200.0 since April, 1946.

The clothing sub-index fell two-fifths of a point to 183.2 while the miscellaneous subgroup, comprising such things as medical and dental fees, drugs and tobacco advanced 1.1 points to 136.0.

Increased coke prices in Ontario sparked an advance of two-fifths of a point in the fuel and light sub-group, while the homefurnishings and index inched one-tenth of a point lower at 167.0.

New Delhi — (CP) — Compulsory primary education has been introduced in 30 centres in Assam province, among the tribes in tribal and backward areas. The centres are being opened under a 10-year scheme estimated to cost $2,000,000.

BONARLAW

Tells Advantages Of Having High School Areas

Bonarlaw— The Orange Hall, Springbrook was filled to capacity on Monday evening to hear Mr. S. E. Rendell, Chief Inspector of High Schools for Ontario, speak on the subject of the "High School Area" and the large audience was not disappointed.

Mr. Rendell explained in detail what it was all about. He said the High School Areas with improved schools and adequate bus transportation brought to the rural school pupils the education which had hitherto been denied to all who did not live in the cities.

John Morrison, Deputy Reeve of Rawdon, acted as chairman and briefly to the platform all members of Rawdon Council including the clerk and treasurer and Mr. T. Moffat of Tweed, supervisor of the area.

Mr. Rendell spoke of the importance of vocational training which may now be taken and optional subjects. He stated that 75 per cent of the areas in Ontario have found the system successful and to his knowledge none has gone back to the old system but some have asked to be put into different areas. With this system, he said, the children will be transported to and from school by comfortable busses and will be home every night and this is where they should be. The old horse and buggy days are gone he said, and we do not want them back.

The chairman gave everyone in the audience ample opportunity to speak on the subject and many availed themselves of the privilege. Many questions were asked and satisfactorily answered.

An important statement was made by Mr. Rendell when he said that he hoped that at this session of parliament an appeal board will be set up to hear the grievances of any area and an impartial verdict will be forthcoming. He also explained the grants of the department were now divided three ways viz. building new structures or enlargements, maintenance and transportation. The maintenance and transportation grant would be 50 per cent and the construction perhaps 60 per cent to 75 per cent. One thing is sure, he said, the money will go where it is most needed.

World's Day of Prayer

The World's Day of Prayer was observed in St. Mark's Church here on Friday afternoon of last week with a splendid attendance. Mrs. Everett Heath, president of St. Mark's W.A. acted as leader and various members of Springbrook and St. Mark's congregation took part in the special program prepared for the service.

A pleasing solo, "Alone", was contributed by Mrs. Gordon Webb with Mrs. Beare at the organ. Mrs. Beare also gave an address, "What Your Money Does". She said, "our day of prayer is a link in an unbroken chain reaching around the world starting in the far east going from island to island and from continent to continent and reaching the Eskimos in the far north."

The collection was for furtherance of Christian education and the chasing of Bibles for foreign countries.

Two Anniversaries Being Celebrated By His Holiness

Vatican City, March 2 (AP)—Pope Pius today celebrated two anniversaries—his 74th birthday and the 11th of his election to the Papal throne.

Fully recovered from his recent attack of influenza, the Pontiff planned a thanksgiving day with no special celebration. White and golden flags were raised over Vatican buildings in honor of the leader of 400,000,000 Roman Catholics.

Special ceremonies honoring the anniversary of the Pope's ascension to the throne are planned for Monday March 13. The actual date is March 12, but the celebration was put off a day so as not to interfere with Sunday Lenten services.

In a speech to some 300 Lenten preachers of Rome, the Pope said that the soil of Rome, this year of Jubilee—once again has become "a spiritual arena for the defence of human dignity."

The Pontiff urged them to preach in the spirit of St. Peter the first Pope.

Speaking of the 1950 Holy Year—Jubilee in the 2,000 year of the Catholic Church—the Pope said, "it is a year of religious deepening."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"After all," quoth the mastodonic miss, as she parked her 210 pounds of porcine pulchritude on the chair near this corners swing-seat, "you must be tired of writing about hockey, rabbit-hunting, rinkmen, and whatnot. Why not give us gals a break?"

We raised incredulous eyes. "Sorry, madam," we mumbled, "we happen to be legally attached to the finest gal in the world and besides there's a four-year-old offspring at the present on the home. who is rapidly learning all the answers. Now if you had come around ten years ago . . ."

The massive miss raised a podgy forefinger and waggled it about an inch away from the misplaced eyebrow that adorns, at times, the resperidial under lip. There was a strange glint in her bias eyes.

"I'm sorry, sir," she said with a touch of hauteur, while her third and fourth chins wagged ominously, "You misunderstand me, I have no design on your cardiac system, for two reasons. One is that I am married to the one - time wrestling champion of the African Gold Coast. Second, you are not my type. I like 'em tall, dark and not too handsome, so long as they have cooking. The runtish model of masculinity does not appeal to my amorous senses — and besides I like 'em well-fashioned on the roof. I like, when the mood suits me, to run my fingers through my husband's hair, not working them to the bone."

A tad abashed by that. Recovering from the sudden dehydration, we again ventured a shot in the dark.

"Then what do you mean by giving you gals a break?" we asked.

The chair on which the ponderous piece of pulchritude was parked creaked ominously as she shifted position. Her fourth and fifth chins slapped a mild tattoo as she swung into verbal action.

"I am the president of the Merry Mastodonic Maids Club whose aim in life is to give us that broken-down grandstand of College of Applied Pachyderm, do not want for moral support while in the ring ready to die for dear old Alma. In fact we get more than that. We have funds, which if need be, can be used for the succor of worn-out human hipposi of the male species. We have given the best years of their lives to the cause of brute strength and carefully applied scientific methods. In fact we have started a scholarship which will insure a crew and grunt gorilla on the way to a new start in life. We proudly boast that a number of our beneficiaries are now gainfully employed as bouncers, referees, doormen, and movie directors."

We awakened with a start. "Yes, yes, go on," we muttered, stifling a yawn.

A hand like a ham gripped our starboard shoulder. It hesitated the cervical area of the spinal column, the top-third of the scapula, with the fingers hooked beneath the middle third of the clavicle.

"Listen, bud," the Merry Maid of Mastodonia grated through a lotus top plate, "I am a busy dame, and I'm not here for any of you, not to hear your snoring rendition of Bach, Mozart and Spike Jones. I represent a group that loyal supporters of the Mastodon rocket-pardon-sport, and I came here to ask a few simple questions."

We yelped under the verbal barrage and nodded as a hand like a ham-hock shook itself under our nose.

"Shoot, sister" we finally whispered. "What's on your mind besides meat and a blonde wig?"

With that she relaxed her ponderous frame. Again the chair creaked in protest.

"That's better, pal", she smiled, with a facial grimace of a Japanese brigand preparing to remove the noggin of a victim up for decapitation at dawn. "It's this:

"Hockey has shot its bolt. Teams here have been eliminated, and what's left hasn't got much chance. Our committee has been working all winter preparing for seasonal activities. In fact we have adopted Tunney's Torso as our special social service work for the year. We want the big time pardon — dear boys, to feel that when they come to Belleville they'll have at least six friends who have pledged their loyalty to them.

"Of course," she smirked, warming to her subject, "we only deal with these dear hearts and gentle people like Fred Atkins, Nanjo Singh, Hard-Boiled Hannigan, Sky-High Lee, The Terrible Two, John Katan and others who are as much understood when they are in the ring. We want no part of such give-em-the-works roughnecks as Whipper Watson, Pat Flanagan, Earl McCready, and other mayhemic monsters who prey upon the weaknesses of the aforementioned gentlemen when partaketted in the ring.

"In short", she tittered, wagging all six chins at once, "the girls are anxious to get busy. What we would like to know is when does the 1950 wrestling program start in Bellevielle?"

"That one question, before we answer that one," we ventured bravely, "What about Bunny Dunlop?"

A heavy shadow swept over the jowls of the Mastodon Maid.

"Oh," she purred, "that dear boy. I must tell you. We have appointed him the honorary president, with all privileges, of the Merry Mastodons Maids Club, Hoicha, Hoicha."

"And now," she went on, "answer my question. When does the noble art of man-mauling begin here?"

We promptly referred her to Walter Grew, the Arena Commission and the weather man. And with the aid of the office derrick she raised her bulk out of the new wobbly chair, and staggered with an elephantine waddle out of the office, and we hope, out of our sight.

Bruins Wallop Maple Leafs, Red Wings Defeat Rangers As N.H.L. Schedule Nears End

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Fighting hard for a lace in the Stanley Cup playoffs, Boston Bruins Wednesday night walloped Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2. It was the first victory for the Bruins in 10 games.

It leaves Boston five full games behind Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers, who are tied in the last play-off spot.

The leading Detroit Red Wings cooled off the New York Rangers with another 5-2 victory at New York. The Wings have led the National Hockey League race practically all season and last night's victory assures them of a spot in the play-offs.

The sinking Leafs has Detroit with 73 points Toronto 64, New York and Montreal still tied for third with 59 points each, Chicago 44.

Those statistical calculations come naturally in the wake of the two games in which the players stick strictly to business. There were no wrestlers with referees no injuries, only one fight between players—Bill Ezinicki of Toronto and Jack Bowie of Boston—as the whole circuit pondered that $1,000 fine that was slapped on rearguard Ken Reardon of the Montreal Canadiens. Levied For Threat

Clarence Campbell, N.H.L. president, levied the fine on Reardon for the fight Dec. 31st that even if he had to wait to the last game of the season he'd see that Cal Gardner of Toronto gets 14 stitches in his mouth. In a move of a bond for good behavior than a fine, since Reardon will be entitled to petition the return of the amount when he retires from the league.

At Boston Wednesday night the crowd was only 8,932 as the Leafs shuffled off to defeat before back in 23 games. Boston scorers were Woody Dumart, Bud Poile, Milt Schmidt, Ed Harrison and Ken Smith. Harry Watson and Bill Barilko scored for Toronto York.

Ezinicki and Harrison were given major penalties for the fight in the second period. Boston was awarded a penalty shot after Barilko tripped Phil Maloney, but the Leafs' veteran goalie Turk Broda easily blocked the effort from Bud Poile.

At New York the Wings took command after the first period, which was deadlocked 1-1. Detroit goal-getters were captain Sid Abel, Jimmy Peters, Jim McFadden, Jerry Dutkowski and Red Kelly. Bud O'Connor and rookie Mick Maki(ski) scored for New York.

Tonight the Montreal Canadiens battle the last-place Black Hawks at Chicago.

Fleming Thatched Hand Hamilton Tigers 6-0 Loss

(By The Canadian Press)

The Ontario Hockey Association is going to need a squad of traffic cops to untangle the jam in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A semi-finals series.

Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen can beat Toronto Marlboros and lose to Hamilton Tigers in the two remaining games of the semi-final playdowns.

The possibility made its ugly appearance last night when the unpredictable Dutchmen handed Hamilton a 6-0 shellacking. If they can manage the proper split in the next two contests, the clubs will be all tied with a 4-4 record. Now, Toronto have won four and dropped three, Hamilton have a 3-6 record while Kitchener-Waterloo have a game at hand and a 3-3 split.

On the Junior A front last night Bob Hawke broke into the hero's enclosure with two goals in the first nine minutes of play to give Windsor Spitfires a 5-4 win over Toronto Marlboros and a 5-3 lead in their best-of-seven semi-final series.

St. Michael's College Majors and St. Catharines Teepees both came up with upset wins. The Teepees belting Guelph Biltmores 5-1 to deadlock their best-of-five quarter finals at 2-2 while St. Michael's outlasted Barrie Flyers 4-3 to tie their quarter-a-2 at 2-2.

Hamilton lost Bobby Laurent in the first period when the starry defenceman broke a collarbone in a first-period collision with the Dutchmen's Harvey Jacklin.

Runaway For Flyers

The first frame only produced one marker four minutes apart and made it a runaway for the Flyers. Mickey Fisher notched two of the counters, Bobby Haines, Don Bauer, Harvey Jacklin and Billy Pilling got the rest.

With Marlboros leading 4-3 Rayvik slammed in the Spits up to seven terms at 16:29 and put his club the victory at the 19 minute mark. Cosier Don Lockhart has yanked in the last minute of play for the Windsor nets held the fort.

Erwin Grosse, Lloyd Hinchberger and Jim Ray all counted singles for the Spits with Lorne Fisher, George Armstrong, Jack McKenzie and Red Mitchell doing the honors for Toronto.

St. Michael's overcame a 2-0 first period lead built up by Barrie and ran away with four markers in the middle session. Barrie came back with a single of his own.

Bob Sabourin, Will Marshall, Paul Alain and Fred Sandford were the Irish Snipers, after Chuck Wood and Rich Hogg had clicked for the Flyers in the opening period. Real Chevrefils was the Irish's second marksman.

Guelph were skated into the ice by the Flying Teepees who surged into a 3-0 lead in the first frame and added singles in the other periods. Carl Boone had the attack, the shifty winger counting twice while Norm Corcoran, Hilard O'Brien and Mel Mullen backed him up with the others.

Steve Briklacich fired the only Biltmore goal.

Only two games are carded for tonight, the deciding contests in the Guelph-St. Catharines and St. Michael's-Barrie series.

Cornwall Team Downs Pembroke By 4-2 Score

Pembroke, March 2 — (CP) — Cornwall Calumets continued their hot pace in the Eastern Canada senior hockey playoffs Wednesday night downing the favored Pembroke Lumber Kings 4-2 in the first game of a best-of-five semi-final series.

Winners of their quarter-finals series against Renfrew Lions in three straight games Calumets moved into the lead in the first three minutes of play and were never headed by Kings, who finished on top of the regular league schedule.

Goalie Al Pichard of Renfrew Lumber handled exceptionally bores for Pembroke Wednesday night, replacing Lions' regular netminder Johnny Craig, who left the club this week. Pichard received league permission to use Pichard earlier Wednesday.

Calumets took a 1-0 lead in the opening period scratched it to 2-0 in the second and added another early in the third before Pembroke rallied for two counters. The final Cornwall goal came in the last minute of play with Pembroke's goalie off the ice as Kings seen six forward into the attack in an attempt to knot the score.

Jim Dennery paced Cornwall with two goals, while Bert Lilly and Bingley Hall got others. Pembroke marksmen were Ray Ledue and Erwin Duncan.

Kenny Reardon Posts Personal Bond of $1,000

Montreal, March 2 — (CP)—Fiery, voluble Kenny Reardon of Montreal Canadiens was en route to Chicago today considerably quietened by an order to post personal bond of $1,000 to ensure his future "good conduct" in the National Hockey League.

The colorful, 28-year-old defenceman, often called the "Calgary Tempest" of the National, Wednesday was ordered to post the bond — called a "fine" by N.H.L. president Clarence Campbell—with the League. It followed a $1,000 penalty levied on him in an American Magazine (sport) article.

Reardon was quoted as threatening to get Cal Gardner of Toronto Maple Leafs got 14 stitches in the mouth — the same injury Reardon suffered as a result of a Donnybrook two seasons ago when Gardner used playing for New York Rangers.

Campbell's announcement of the fine—the largest imposed in N.H.L. history — followed an interview with the 170-pound Winnipegger, who admitted making the remarks about Gardner. After Reardon promised to be a good boy, Campbell released him from a train for Chicago, where Canadiens play Black Hawks tonight. Reardon said nothing to the press before he left.

Campbell said Reardon could petition the league for a refund of his bond at the end of his league playing career.

Not a Penalty

Reardon was quoted as saying that the stitches he is going to get that Gardner gets 14 stitches in the mouth. I may have to wait a long time, I'm patient. Even if I have to wait until the last game of the season I've got to get it good and plenty."

Campbell said the "fine" is not so much a penalty for the statements made as it is a personal bond for Reardon's future good conduct.

Gardner received a broken jaw earlier this season when he collided with Reardon during a game at Montreal. The affair was accidental and Kenny was not penalized.

During the last four seasons Reardon has been assessed $400 in fines.

Lumber Kings Of Pembroke Change Goalies

Ottawa, March 2 — (CP) —Al Pichard will replace John (Plum-my) Craig as goalkeeper for Pembroke Lumber Kings in the Eastern Canada Senior hockey league for the remainder of the season, league secretary Wes Taylor announced Wednesday.

Craig quit the Lumber Kings Wednesday a short time before the team left for Cornwall and Wednesday night's opening game of their best-of-five semi-final series with Cornwall Calumets. No explanation was given for his action.

Pichard performed for Renfrew Lions all season until they were eliminated in the quarter final series by Calumets.

His appointment to the Pembroke club followed a hurried meeting of the league executive after Craig announced his withdrawal.

Marty Marion Against Paying Players' Bonuses

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2— (AP) — Major League baseball players are quietly but efficiently launching a campaign to kill off all payments of bonuses to unproved players.

Marty Marion, National League representative to the players' committee, revealed he planned to present to the executive council at its next meeting a proposal to eliminate the payment of any kind of bonus to such players.

"I have been discussing this matter with representatives of other clubs," the star shortstop of St. Louis Cardinals said, "and we all agree that something must be done. We feel that not only do payments of large bonuses to untried players deprive the proven players of money to which they are entitled but also leads to cause dissention and disharmony on a ball club.

OHA Protest Committee Orders Second Game Between Oshawa And Rockets Replayed Mon.

The Belleville Rockets will get another chance to get in the playoffs here in the Junior "B" hockey, the result of Belleville Hockey Association winning their protest on goalie Don Hurst of the Oshawa Bees. The protest committee of the O.H.A., which includes President "Toy" McFayden, George Dudley, George Gerrie, after hearing the evidence of Manager Jack Roxborough and Tory Hurst from William F. Cook, business manager of the Rockets and Dick Beare, secretary of the Bees organization, in Toronto last night ordered the game played in Belleville on Monday evening last, of which was won by Oshawa, to be replayed in Belleville on Monday night next.

The protest was lodged on the plea that when a substitute goaltender has been given permission to play, the goalie that he replaces cannot return to action in that hockey year". The committee of the Belleville delegation, which was the first time that the rule had been applied to their knowledge and they were quite frank in admitting, that Oshawa was in the wrong on the matter. Before the series started in Oshawa on Saturday night, the Oshawa club was given permission to use J. Clain, who was found that Hurst was medically unfit to play.

On Monday night, when the return game was played in Belleville, the Oshawa Club did a right-about-face using Hurst in the netis. It was stated that Clain was unable to play due to an attack of the flu. The Belleville authorities thought this a rather funny procedure and informed the Oshawa Club they were issuing the protest. The protest was contested by the Oshawa Club but the O.H.A. readily admitted Belleville had a legitimate case, and threw out the second game of the series.

When the Oshawa team plays here on Monday night, they will be given $75 for expenses and will split the Belleville Club's share of the gate on a 50-50 basis. Now the Rockets are back in harness and have a chance for an even split in games, it is hoped the fans will turn out and give them the encouragement they need. If Belleville wins the game on Monday night, the third game of the series will be played in Oshawa on Wednesday night.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, March 2 — (AP) — Billy Sheridan, Leigh University's veteran wrestling coach, lists his pet peeves as spring football and television wrestling—in that order. "I've heard football coaches tell kids they'd have to come out for spring practice or they wouldn't get a suit in the fall," says Billy. "Some of those boys wants to go out for baseball, lacrosse, rowing or track, but they can't because their scholarships depend on football. It's ruining good sports and it even hurts American olympic performances." Sheridan's squawk about the stuff the TV announcers call wrestling is that when women see it on the video screen, they won't let their sons wrestle in school or college.

Kingston Nylons continued their unbeaten march to a provincial senior "B" championship in Kingston last night when they defeated the powerful Peterborough Legion 4-2 in the first game of their four-of-seven groups finals series. The second game is scheduled for Peterborough Friday night.

The victory was the 21st racked up by the starry Nylons in senior "B" play. Their unbeaten streak was marred only by the 4-4 tie with Belleville Diesels-Electrics in the first tilt of the semi-finals series.

Frankford Wins First Tussle In Semi-Finals

Frankford — Frankford's Trent Valley entry won the first game of the semi-finals with Campbellford by a 5-4 count in the latter's home arena Monday night. The game is reported as one of the best ever seen in the league, and certainly went and decided until the final bell. Campbellford scored first, with Robinson banging home a pass from Free. Cole knotted the count a minute later and Rankin put the visitors ahead shortly afterwards. Pace tied it for Campbellford. Each scored once in the second period. One more goal apiece was added in the third period, and Rankin made certain of a beautiful setup by Bastedo for the winning counter. Campbellford fought hard to tie the score, but just couldn't beat Davis who was on to everything from that point on.

Glen Ross Wins

Glen Ross defeated Frankford by a 4-2 count in the first game of the playoff double header Monday night in Frankford. The game was fast, although quite rough at times. Morgian opened the scoring for Frankford, as he soloed through early in the first period. Russ Bills tied it up in the second, and Glen Ross took the lead on Utman's counter. Morgian scored his second goal just at the close of the second period to boost the count. In the final frame, Utman and Fyfar scored for Glen Ross, to give the winners a two goal margin on the game, and on the goals-to-count series.

Feelings ran high as has been the case in all Glen Ross-Frankford contests. The Glen Ross manager pulled his team off the ice in protest against a decision by the referee in the second period. A protest was entered by the Frankford team because of this, and because of the fact that the Glen Ross manager kept coming out on the ice and halting the game. The protest was withdrawn Tuesday morning in the interest of sport.

Appleby, youthful Wallbridge netminder tended goal for Frankford, on permission from Glen Ross in place of Lohnes who is out for the balance of the series with a knee injury. Both Lawes and Appleby were outstanding in the nets, holding the score low for both teams.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By GRAHAM TROTTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, March 2—(CP)—Besides playing a pleasing and winning brand of hockey in overseas exhibitions leading up to the World Amateur Hockey Championships, Edmonton Mercurys have established themselves as good Canadian ambassadors.

As junior, George (Edmonton Journal) Mackintosh incorporates in his column some excerpts from a letter he got from Senator James A. MacKinnon. Said the senator:

"The concensus of the Swiss press is that without doubt the best Canadian team which has played on the European continent. Without extending themselves, the Mercurys have had no difficulty in beating their opponents.

Job Well Done

"One fact in particular is worthy of mention. Last year a Canadian team (Sudbury Wolves) was booed in many matches because of their roughness and the press comments were very unfavorable. The U.S. team also earned a bad reputation for using the same heavy bodychecking tactics. The result was that both Canada and the U.S. did harm to the game and gave their countries a bad name. "The Mercurys have made a most favourable impression by their sportsmanlike attitude and by doing their best to avoid giving rise to adverse comments or arousing hostility. They are a very fine group of fellows and have done a fine job."

Cleveland Barons Cannot be Beaten For First Place

(By the Canadian Press)

Cleveland - Barons Wednesday night widened up first place in the western division of the American Hockey League by downing Indianapolis Capitals 4-2. The Barons now lead the runner-up Pittsburgh Hornets by 19 points.

Grant Warwick got two of the Bison counters while Lloyd Finkbeiner and Gordie Pennell completed the scoring. Providence marksmen were Ken Davies and Jackie Hamilton.

Hershey Bears and Springfield Indians battled to a 2-2 draw. Kelly Burnett and Bill Gooden provided the Springfield goals and George Sullivan notched both Hershey tallies.

Pittsburgh Hornets defeated St. Louis Flyers 4-2. Fleming Mackell, Ray Hannigan, Eddy Kobussen and Bill Benson scored for the Hornets. Harry Sullivan and Paul Gladu were the St. Louis goal-getters.

The showing of the number of tricks you have in your hand is an exact science. Count one no-trump trick for each high card (ace or king or queen). Count one suit trick for each high card or short card.

An opening one bidder in suit shows five suit tricks among which are four high cards. Each later suit raise by him shows another suit trick. Each voluntary no-trump bid by him shows another high card.

Responder is assumed to have two tricks, both high cards. Each suit raise by him shows another suit trick. Each voluntary no-trump bid by him shows another high card.

Look again at this deal:

South opens with one club. He shows at least five suit tricks, and at least four no-trump (high card) tricks. North has five suit tricks, all of them high cards (no-trump tricks).

North thus has enough for three voluntary no-trump bids. He knows at once they have at least nine highs in their pair; enough for a game in no-trump. He could jump to three no-trump, if desired.

It is not necessary to jump direct to three no-trump. Any one-jump is forcing to game. So he could jump to two no-trump and say he has five high cards in his hand.

However, in the order of choice of bids, takeout to a new suit comes before no-trump. So, north will first takeout to spades. He can jump in no-trump on the next round, if necessary.

If north has enough for an immediate jump in no-trump, why does he lack the needs for a jump takeout to spades? An immediate jump takeout promises six tricks instead of five.

In first bidding spades, is north afraid he will not get a chance to show his no-trump jump? No. A takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round. Opener must give him another chance to bid.

A rule your active brain adores has logic oozing from its pores.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 2. (AP) — Feeling like "a fish out of water" after 18 years at the Warner studio, Bette Davis says she is getting re-adjusted to the freelance life.

Eight months ago, the actress left Warners after a record contract, during which she won two Academy awards.

"It wasn't easy," she related. "It was hard to leave behind the people you had worked with so many years. They seemed like a family—in fact, I saw more of them than I did my family.

"But it was a challenge. It's good for one to break the ties and seek new experiences. I left with no particularly hard feelings on my part.

Lost Feeling

"The next six months were a difficult period. I had a 'lost' feeling and wondered if anyone would ever want to hire me."

Several studios did. She took the job of the mother of two grown children in "The Story of a Divorce".

She is now considering other film offers and would even welcome a return to her old alma mater, Warners.

"They have one thing I want and that is 'Rhan Frome'," she declared. "I was scheduled to do it, but it was called off when I got pregnant." I detected a note of bitterness when she lamented that the picture was not made.

"I can't understand why it was passed by, and pictures like 'Beyond The Forest' were made over the protests of all of us. That was a grim, dull picture with no uplift whatsoever. At least 'Ethan Frome' has a beautiful love story."

March 20 Deadline For Renewing Permits

Toronto March 2. (CP)—With March 20 set as deadline for obtaining 1950 motor vehicle permits and driver's licences, less than half Ontario's trucks and automobiles are displaying the new plates, Highways Minister Doucett said yesterday.

About the same proportion of drivers have failed to renew their licences. Crowded conditions were likely to prevail in all issuing offices unless there was an immediate increase in the demand for 1950 permits and licences, he said.

Cyrville, Ont., March 2 (CP)—A driving March wind sent flames racing through a new frame bungalow here Wednesday reducing the six-room building to ashes in less than an hour.

No one was injured but Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lavigne and their three young children have been left homeless by the blaze. Cyrville is five miles east of Ottawa.

Strict Medical Examination of Boxers Ordered

(By The Canadian Press)

The New York State Athletic Commission Wednesday put into effect new rules calling for strict medical examination of boxers before and after fights.

At the same time the commission opened up a medical room—with the most modern equipment —in its downtown offices, where boxers will undergo rigid tests under the supervision of doctors connected with the commission's medical advisory board.

Arrangements have been made with hospitals in Buffalo, Syracuse and Binghamton for the examination of upstate boxers.

The nine-man advisory board, headed by Dr. Frank Forlaino, actually was set up in 1946 to study the situation and make recommendations. The stricter regulations were the result of this study. The board will continue the study and make further recommendations, the commission said.

Excellent racing over a snow-covered track featured the harness card at Toronto Dufferin Park Wednesday. Lord Lee and Patsy Stars were dash winners of the first even, fashioned for slow-class trotters. Tony Todd, owned and driven by Oscar Fraser of Hamilton Mills, Ont., was a straight-heat winner in the second—his third straight dash win in a week.

Silk Gratian, reliable pacing mare owned by C. W. Hodgson of Haliburton, Ont., stood best in the third. She won the first dash by a nose and lost by a like margin to Pine Ridge Louie in the repeat.

Vic Lutman scored with Parsons, property of H. J. Davis of Peterborough, Ont., in the feature trot, winning the first dash and coming second to Earl Schraffenberger's sister Woodhull in the second half.

At Brockton, Mass., a lawyer seeking an injunction against heavyweight boxer Rocky Marciano, booked for a March 24 bout in New York, said Wednesday he was told to "lay off or you and your client will be in for trouble."

The assertion was made to police by Leon P. Reservits, after he filed a petition for a restraining order with Judge Frank E. Smith on behalf of Genereose Gagliano, who wants the bout in the court to keep Marciano out of the ring until it determines who holds the contract.

Kitchener may have an entry in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League in 1951 when the Kitchener Memorial Arena is completed.

The Kitchener Sports Association is laying the groundwork for the club and plans to approach National Hockey League teams to find a sponsor for the venture. The Junior cities of Kitchener and Waterloo already have a jointly-sponsored team in the Senior A loop.

A former all-Canadian centre and a standout with Ottawa Rough Riders, Don Loney has been offered a contract for next season by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

At Boden, Sweden, the touring Edmonton Mercurys plastered a 16-2 defeat on a Swedish hockey team from Norrbotten Province in an exhibition game Wednesday night. The Canadians raced through for 11 goals in a wild third-period scoring spree.

Marmora Bows To Campbellford By 3-1 Count

The Circle C League has gone into its playoffs and in the opening game between Marmora and Campbellford in the former's rink on Tuesday evening the homesters lost, by the score of 3-1. Play was somewhat tame in the first period, toward the end of which Forestell scored Marmora's only goal. Chernoff scored twice in the second period and Goodfellow scored in the closing minutes of play. Chernoff, Belford, Storie and Goodfellow were the pick of the winning team with Forestell, Lacey and Moss playing good games for the losers. Roughness developed in the last period which the referee found difficult to subdue. The crowd was one of the smallest of the season. The second game will be played in Campbellford on Thursday evening.

Stewart Admits Umpires do Make Mistakes

Clearwater, Fla., March 2 — (AP) — Bill Stewart has admitted that baseball umpires do make (pardon the expression) mistakes.

The short, chunky National League arbiter might be thrown out of the umpires union for such a remark but evidently he thought it was the better part of valor as he briefed Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday on 1950 rules.

Stewart, former National Hockey League referee, began his talk by saying he was the first to admit that baseball umpires do make mistakes.

Before you boo the ball and strike decisions this year, paste in his Stewart statement in your hat:

"The strike zone always has been erroneously defined in the rule book. The rule names the strike boundaries as "between the shoulders and the knees.

"It was never that high," Stewart declared, adding, the strike always was defined from the armpits to the knees. Then some players thought they'd be smart and wear their pants so far down the knees couldn't be seen."

AT THE BELLE:

"Prince of Foxes" Spectacular In Drama and Color

In a lavish production conceived by Twentieth Century-Fox production chief Darryl F. Zanuck as one of the greatest spectacles ever to reach the screen, "Prince of Foxes", starring Tyrone Power, Orson Welles and Wanda Hendrix, opening today at the Belle Theatre, paints an action packed picture of Cesare Borgia's intrigues in an excited historical drama.

To support the stars, the producer brought together an outstanding cast of supporting players including Marina Berti, beautiful Italian actress; Everett Sloane, prominent stage, screen and radio actor; Katina Paxinou, Greek character actress who gave a notable performance in "Call Northside 777"; and British actor Felix Aylmer, who won critical acclaim for his movie portrayals of Polonius in "Hamlet" and the Archbishop of Canterbury in "Henry VIII".

The production first major American movie to be shot in Italy in its entirety, the film is said to set against a panorama of breath-taking settings that include centuries-old castles and fortresses, priceless art masterpieces and vast palatial homes. Color changes markedly since the Renaissance period in which "Prince of Foxes" is based.

Nearly three years went by from the start of the production to its finish, during which intensive preliminary preparations were made in selecting locations, with Director Henry King and studio technical experts scouring Italy for the proper natural backgrounds.

King's Return

Henry King, who achieved lasting screen fame in the silent movie days with two other pictures he made in Italy "The White Sister" and Romola" as director of "Lloyd's of London" introduced Tyrone Power to film stardom and subsequently has been associated with the actor in a directorial capacity in "Jesse James," "A Yank in the RAF," "The Black Swan" and "Captain from Castile."

20th Century-Fox is presenting the spectacular romance "Prince of Foxes," at the Belle Theatre today, Friday, Saturday and Monday, matinee daily.

AT THE McCARTHY — Once more Dick Powell, as Sergeant Mike, raises his voice in song! The film is "Mrs. Mike," produced by Samuel Bischoff for United Artists release, the song "Rose of Tralee." Mary Rose, from the popular book of the same title, "Mrs. Mike" is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL — Gregory Peck, star of Darryl F. Zanuck's Twentieth Century-Fox production, "12 O'Clock High," showing today at the Capitol until Saturday where it is breaking all records.

AT THE CAPITOL — Hugh Marlowe as Lt.-Col. Gately in "12 O'Clock High," showing at the Capitol Theatre until Saturday. It is the first Belleville showing. A young officer with individual features — handsome, long lashed eyes, and a natural full lips; a strong face, good looking."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

May was doing the crossword puzzle and pop was smoking a cigar in his private chair, and said, G, pop, suppose you were stranded on a desert island where no-one knew a single language to talk because everybody else had been born too, and there wasn't any schools or even any books or even any related letters to make up words with. Jimminy Christian, no matter what you had to say, you couldn't say it. I said, that's where you're mistaken, pop said. A man with a litterary mind can always invent his own words, on or off a desert island for instance take the word snigglefurzal. According to my private dictionerry, snigglefurzels are people who cant bear the sensation of sand between their toes. It would be an especially useful word on a desert island, and so would the word oofed, he said.

Whist'e oofed? I said, and pop said, Oofed is exactly how you feel when you're wading into the ocean to catch a little bit of a crab, and a grate big lobster catches you instead.

G, I can just imagine it, I said. I'd feel oofed all rite. Do you know how a kittin feels when its mother licks it all over to give it a bath? It feels all slipppppity, I said, and pop said, Well naturelly, who wouldn't? Do you know what a glubbleglobble is? It's a man eating spagetty with his fingers, he said.

Which just then ma said, Now really, I mean really, how can I make any sense out of this cross-word puzzle with you going on like that? The werds keep taking on the most gassly shapes. Now that's quite enough, she said. Which it wasn't but we stopped anyways.

G. S. White (PC — Hastings-Peterborough) renewed a sessional opposition call for re-establishment of the veterans committee while F. D. Shaw (SC — Red Deer) lambasted the government because, he said, it hasn't relieved "appalling" conditions among Indians living in a reserve in his riding.

Want Revival of Loans

Mr. Mott recalled that in 1937 the government rescinded legislation under which money had been loaned to municipalities at two-per-cent interest.

The loans had enabled the municipalities to undertake job-producing projects and, if revived, would help meet today's unemployment problems. B.C municipalities planned to press their provincial government to call for revival of the loans.

He suggested the inauguration of a planned program for the construction of public buildings, with the scheme concentrated in centres where work was most needed. There could be, as well, better planning of housing projects.

Mr. Herridge accused the government of reversing its policies of full employment and markets. In 1945, it had promised to maintain full employment. It had spoken, too, of a shelf of post-war construction projects, but none had materialized.

While he conceded that some of Canada's unemployment was seasonal, he felt there were certain projects which could be started as a relief measure.

Mr. White urged the government to declare Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, as a National holiday and suggested most legal holidays be celebrated on the Monday closest to the day on which they fell.

Farmers Interested

Mr. White said farmers in his constituency are particularly interested in obtaining a fair price for their cheese. Under the 1948-49 cheese contract with the United Kingdom the cheese producers received 30 cents a pound. But under the new contract they were to receive less than 30 cents.

He felt that instead of being paid less the producers should be paid more because of increases in the price of things the farmer had to buy.

During the war, when farmers responded to a government demand to increase production, prices for farm products were kept under control. There was no relation between the controlled prices and the cost of production.

For instance, evidence before the Ontario Royal Commission on milk showed that it cost $2.69 to produce 100 pounds of milk. But the farmers received only between $1.95 and $2.10.

During the war urban pressure groups, because they outnumbered groups from rural centres, were able to have more of their demands met by the government. Wartime controls and politically-fixed prices had caused losses of millions to Canadian farmers.

Should Have Fair Return

Mr. White said if the government wanted to provide full employment in Canada it should see that farmers were given fair returns for their products.

He said he was not going to reiterate what had been said in previous debates about the need for regaining United Kingdom markets. He was sure that Agriculture Minister Gardiner realised that the United States market could never take the place of the United Kingdom market.

Mr. Shaw said it had been estimated that 50 per cent of the 350 Indians living on the Mountain House Reserve in his constituency were suffering from tuberculosis. A similar percentage suffered from venereal disease.

The Indians wanted to become self-supporting, but received no direction from the government on what to do.

AGNES MacPHAIL

Miss Macphail, who recently made a tour of Northern Ontario, said the demand for roads in the north is "like the chorus of a song."

North Shore Delightful

"The north shore of Lake Superior is delightful," she said "and some day there is going to be a road around it. When, I do not know; but why now?"

"We visited the pulp and paper company, the Kimberley and Clarke Company at Terrace Bay, and we found there a beautiful modern hotel, so modern, so beautiful that it makes even some of the fine hotels look very archaic and out of date indeed And yet the highway goes only four of five miles. If it goes that far, past the hotel. I think we can say that hotel is not going to be a paying venture.

"Can we not have a highway that allows people to come in at Duluth and go around the north shore and out at Sault Ste. Marie if they want to go just that far, and continue a road which people would enjoy driving over—there is some sort of road, but people do not enjoy driving over it-from Sault Ste. Marie to Sudbury and on to North Bay and then connect with roads that come down here "

Slow In Developing

Canadians were "very slow" about developing their own resources.

"One of the saddest things about the northern tour" was the number of Americans engaged in developing the north.

Mr. Ross said that compulsory government hospital insurance is not the answer to the problems of public health. In British Columbia last year such a plan had cost $13,000,000 and resulted in a $4,000,000 deficit. The B.C. plan had caused a shortage of hospital accommodation with the result that persons who needed treatment could not be admitted.

There was a tendency to make "unreasonable and unnecessary demands on the service," he said.

Miss Macphail, interjected: "Whenever you see a capitalist government doing a socialistic job they do a bad job."

MOUNTIES STILL MOUNTED

Suffered From Backache Nervous, Easily Tired

Also Had Poor Appetite, Got Had Headaches, Did Not Sleep Well. "Found Great Relief by Taking Syntona."

Many people in this city and vicinity who suffer from stomach disorders, constipation, nervous irritability, rundown feeling or aches and pains throughout the body will be interested in the following experience of Mr. Dennis S. Litsky, 95 Bay St. South, Hamilton, Ontario. It is typical of the hundreds of men and women who have found relief by taking Syntona Herbal Compound. Here Mr. Litsky's own story.

"I suffered from backache and pains in my legs. Also I had a very poor appetite, my nerves were on edge, and I was subject to bad headaches, which made me irritable and restless. I would become easily tired at my work and many nights when I got home I felt that I had no energy left.

"Seeing Syntona advertised, I decided to try it and I have found great relief by taking this medicine. Backache is relieved, I do not get the headaches now, and my appetite greatly improved. Also my nerves are calmed down and I do not get tired as I did before. Whereas I used to have trouble getting to sleep at night, I now sleep soundly and awaken in the morning fresh and refreshed."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN, THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

ROSLIN

WORLD'S DAY OF PRAYER

Roslin — The World's Day of Prayer service was held on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William White. Members of the three village churches, Presbyterian, United and Anglican joined together for this world-wide service of prayer, which is always held on the first Friday in Lent.

The theme of this service was "Faith for our Time." Mrs. M. Fargey was pianist for the afternoon.

The call to worship was given by Mrs. Wm. White. Examination, confession and repentance were taken by Mrs. John Fargey. Commitment, dedicating ourselves to God was led by Mrs. W. Chisholm. Mrs. C. Wright led in intercession. Prayers were given by Miss H. Wilson, Mrs. W. Gillespie, Mrs. S. Sirk, Mrs. W. Slingerland and Miss L. Wilson.

A solo "Bless This House," was given by Mrs. J. Empson.

The address was given by Mrs. Wright. Thanks and appreciation were extended to the hostess for opening her home, soloist, and to the pianist for helping to brighten the service.

Later dainty refreshments were served, and a social time enjoyed.

While working at Chisholm's Mill last week Mr. Harold Coleman had the misfortune to have his left arm broken when a board struck it.

Rev. C. Wright and Mrs. Wright attended the ordination service at St. Thomas Church, Belleville on Friday morning when Mr. Good of Madoc was ordained Deacon.

The Bell Telephone Company, who have been erecting new lines east from the village and extending their line down the eighth line of Tyendinaga were connecting the new phones last week and have now five lines coming to Roslin from Tweed in place of two as formerly. The new lines have a maximum of ten phones, which will greatly improve the service. Some confusion may result until the new phone books are printed, due to change of phone numbers and lines.

Firemen Searching for 12 Possible Victims in Fire

Block of Chinatown Swept By Million Dollar Blaze

Montreal, March 3 — (CP) — Firemen cautiously picked their way through the smouldering debris today in search for 12 more possible victims who may have been trapped in the $1,000,000 blaze that swept a block of Montreal's Chinatown early Thursday, claiming at least four lives.

Major George Baker, Field Director of a Red Cross field station set up near the scene, announced late Thursday night that 12 persons are missing following a room-by-room search of the Lotus Garden Hotel where the fire originated. Unofficial sources said the conflagration broke out following an oil furnace explosion.

Fire Chief Raymond Pare said there are possibly one or more bodies in the ruins but the weakened condition of the brick walls made search hazardous. He said he is trying to get permission from insurance companies to pull down the walls before sending in firemen.

Officials of the Lotus Garden hotel said ten of the tenants in the building Thursday night still are unaccounted for but possibly they may have been given shelter by friends and have not reported to the Red Cross.

The search in the same building was a precarious affair as licecoated planks and precipitous walls threatened to tumble down on the searchers. An emergency Red Cross canteen at checking first of a score of injured persons in an effort to account for all persons believed to have been in the building when the three - alarm fire broke out.

Many of the trapped victims leaped from windows, however, when the gutted cafe clad in only pyjamas or under clothing. Many were injured in their jumps to the frozen street below and were whisked away in ambulances.

Sixty-year-old Ling Sue, who flung himself from a third-story window with his clothes ablaze, was the only one of the dead identified.

Bodies Found in Ruins

The bodies of the three other victims were not recovered until six hours later. They were taken to the morgue where they remained but late Thursday night the only bodies were those of a girl, about 16 years of age, a middle-aged woman and a man. The bodies were found in the ruins of the hotel and cafe building.

Two other cafes, a rooming house and a grocery store were also were wiped out by the fire which raced through the old buildings. Flames shot high into the bitter cold dawn as hundreds of persons flocked into the congested area of narrow streets in the city's Chinatown district.

Little five-year-old Donna Chang was rescued when her father pushed her out of a window, shouting: "somebody save this little girl." Her mother and aunt are believed to have perished in the blaze.

Prince Charles Ill-Tempered on Wet, Foggy Days When Walks are Banned

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 3—(CP)—Friend of the royal family say the future King Charles has made fast progress since he returned to London with his mother from the King's Norfolk estate.

He is built for his age and well-built. Weight is around 24 pounds, height just over two feet seven inches. The Prince is one year, three months old.

He is fast learning new words and frequently exclaims "daddy" when he sees a picture of Duke of Edinburgh in on naval service in the Mediterranean.

One of his favorite words is "bus" which he crows delightedly whenever one of London's big double-decker omnibuses looms in sight.

Though normally a happy, contented baby, Charles is often bad-tempered on wet, foggy days when his morning and afternoon walks through the local parks are banned.

"The Princess does not believe in coddling babies," a friend said, firmly to her policy of witholding Prince Charles from the limelight during his first years.

While staying with his mother at Sandringham, Norfolk, the Prince spent many hours out in the garden even in the coldest weather. But his mother will not allow him to be exposed to fog or damp.

What Charles misses most when he has to be indoors is the sight of other babies and people. A friendly guy by nature, Charles gets delight when Nurse Helen Lightfoot permits other children to talk with him.

Recently in St. James's Park a nine-year-old girl stopped and chatted with Charles, but when the game was close to the pram the baby's personal detective laid a restraining hand on the girl.

The detective, a London police veteran, walks a dozen or so paces behind Charles' pram wherever he goes and keeps a trained, eagle eye on him.

Scarcely a day passes without at least one request for permission to take pictures of him.

All such requests are refused. The Princess is adhering to her policy of withholding the limelight during his first years.

ASK GOVT. TO LEAD IN DEFENCE AND ECONOMIC FIELDS

Pacific Defence Pact Suggested

Ottawa, March 3 — (CP) — Two Progressive Conservative Members of Parliament asked the government in the Commons Thursday to take the lead in two fields — defence and economics.

Howard Green, lawyer-member for Vancouver - Quadra and a veteran of the First World War, urged the government to take the lead in bringing the nations of the Pacific together in a Pacific defence pact similar to the North Atlantic Treaty.

J. A. Macdonnell, chief financial critic for the official opposition, urged that Governor Graham Greenwood, called on the government to head the western nations in ditching currency restrictions.

The suggestions of the two speakers were among many heard during continued debate in the Speech from the Throne.

P. E. Gagnon (Ind. — Chicoutimi) urged the government to take a "bold" imaginative, which he blamed for Canada's current unemployment situation.

Mr. Green said that with China "lost" and Hong Kong Canada is in greater danger than any other country in the world. He called for "immediate talks" to form a "Scottish Sweetheart" by Canadian and United States troops in Yukon and Alaska.

Driver Suspicious, Transmits News, Two Men Held

Toronto, March 3 — (CP) — The suspicions of a taxi driver, who had short-wave radio and a listening set in the back of his car, brought about the capture of two men in Toronto late last night.

Police said the men had been arrested on a charge of "receiving" and "possessing" radio equipment.

Toronto Maple Leaf hockey players Sid Smith and Cal Gardner, David Baxter, Jim and Norman Brooks, 28, were charged with possession of a gun. Baxter, a Toronto hotel. Baxter was charged with carrying a concealed weapon — an empty beer bottle.

After being told to drive the men to a certain address, police said, driver Gilbert Brooks became suspicious when the men began using the car radio. Ten or twenty minutes four cabs and their drivers were around the cab and held for the men until police arrived.

COLD IN NORTH

Kirkland Lake, March 3 — (CP) — A temperature of 50 below zero, second lowest temperature of the year, was recorded today at 6 a.m. by a thermometer at the Lake Shore Mines Limited.

The lowest temperature this year has been 52 below recorded on Jan. 20.

At 9:30 a.m. this morning the mercury had jumped to 27 below, a rise of 23 degrees in 2½ hours.

Russia Agrees to U.S. Request To Allow Five to Leave Russia, Refuses to Let 33 Others Go

London, March 3 — (AP) — Russia has agreed to an American request that five persons be allowed to leave her territory for the United States. She has turned down a request that 33 others be allowed to go.

Russia said that in some other cases she already had granted the permission sought and they had left for the U. S. She did not say how many these were. No names of Americans were given.

The Soviet Union's decisions on the matter were contained in a memorandum from Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko gave to U. S. Charge D'Affaires Walworth Barbour in Moscow Tuesday.

The Moscow radio and t Moscow dispatch of the Soviet news agency Tass reported Barbour's reply.

The Tass account said:

The United States asked Soviet authorities to find 38 persons on Soviet territory whom Mrs. Carolyn Ekstrand American citizens and to grant them permission to leave for Russia.

The Soviet reply said that of these persons it was found "only one is an American citizen for whom Soviet authorities are ready to grant permission to leave the country."

Thirteen are Soviet citizens, the reply continued. Of these, appropriate Soviet authorities are ready to grant permission to leave the Soviet Union for the United States to four persons whose families permanently reside in the United States.

The person on the U. S. list had no citizenship at all and 21 are citizens of other states, the Soviet reply said. Of the latter, it says, 11 are Russians for Romania, four for Germany, one for Poland and one for Hungary.

Russia accused American authorities of "detaining in the United States for three months" a small citizen of Soviet citizen Cholokian-12-year-old daughter Elizabeth Albert and five-year-old Alice.

The memorandum said that the Soviet Children left the U. S. for the Armenian Soviet Socialist Republic in November, 1947 the children were in orphanages of Catholic organizations.

"In this case," it said, "(they) are being prevented for leaving the United States in spite of their parents' categorical demands."

No Time for Blue Notes In Canada Says Ford Prez.

Toronto, March 3 (CP)—This is no time for blue notes in Canada, Hon. Wallace Campbell, Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., said today in an address to the Toronto Rotary Club.

"We have so much in our favor we are the envy of the world," he declared. "I hope we will not endanger it by allowing the pessimistic talk us into trouble. This is a time for healthy optimism and effort."

"Although I cannot see one on the horizon at the moment, we can and might have a mild recession such as they had in the United States a few years ago."

Higher Living Standard

"We are all earning more, living better, enjoying more comforts and luxuries than ever before in our history. A recession might mean that we would have to be content with not three but three percent or even, five percent all round. But we would still be miles ahead of any previous period."

"Government statistics tell us unemployment is at its highest this year since the war."

In spite of these figures, there is no national unemployment problem. The record shows pockets of unemployment in a numbered regions here and there and in some instances actual and severe distress which arouses all our sympathies, but it would be a grave error to view this as a case of joblessness sweeping the nation.

"Nevertheless, the situation is the oldest problem of the industry can only be got by constructive planning to spread available work and by well-timed expansion of public works. Labor leaders can help by devising and co-operation in work-sharing plans and by giving both industry and government the benefit of their constructive suggestions and ideas."

Mr. Sale made several suggestions for dealing with current adverse trends in exports. They included:

Serious thought by the Canadian government to the question of admission of Canada to the United Kingdom and possibly some other countries.

Canadians should look more kindly upon exports from Britain and other countries.

"This principal cannot help but involve some sacrifice upon the part of Canadian manufacturers. Canadian farmers and Canadian workers, because additional imports mean increased competition.

Every effort should be made to search out new markets on this continent and elsewhere.

Other Gloom Chasers

Mr. Sale gave the following gloom-chasers:

Canada's population jumped by 158,000 in the last six months of 1949 at the rate of 316,000 over 26,000 a month—the equal of a brand new city, a brand new town, almost as big as Oshawa or Chatham every 30 days.

In 1949 there were 2,750,000 wage earners in Canada, on Feb. 1 this year there were 4,200,000. The earnings of all Canadian wageearners last year amounted to $7,000,000,000, about three times the aggregate for 1939. Right now, $1,500,000,000, slightly below 1948, but 233 per cent better than 1939.

Sunday Sport Bill Will Ban Certain Activities

Toronto, March 3 (CP)— The Toronto Star says today in a newspage story the "new Sunday sport law" which Ontario government will specifically ban horseracing, dogracing, open theatres, motor-racing and similar activities on Sunday.

The paper says it learned that the bill will be introduced at the present session of the legislature and will authorize Sunday sports between 1.30 p.m. and 6 p.m., with a proviso giving that the hour may be changed to 2 p.m.

The bill says the paper, will give the province the right to the municipalities.

It would permit any Ontario municipality to have Sunday sport following a straight majority vote of all citizens over 21. Legal authorities were said to have advised the government the change providing for local option could be accomplished without much difficulty under the 'Lord's Day Act.

Three-Day Child Will Undergo Operation

Toronto, March 3. (CP) — A three-day-old baby boy was flown from Saskatchewan to Toronto Thursday night for a rare and delicate operation which will permit the tiny infant to eat.

The baby is believed suffering from a faulty oesophagus. Food eaten by the infant does not reach the stomach.

The baby was flown by regular Trans-Canada-Airlines flight from Regina to Toronto. He was taken there from his home at Outlook, the Prince Edward Albright accompanied the baby.

The operation, if undergone, will be by-pass the food around the oesophagus so the child can live relative normally. The operation was first performed in Toronto three years ago on a Peterborough child. Since then the Hospital for Sick Children have done it several times.

After the operation the baby must be fed through a hole in his stomach until the oesophagus heals.

BYRNES TESTIFIES FINDING OF SHOT WAS ACCIDENTAL

Says He Stumbled, Lost Balance, Rifle Went off

Peterborough, March 3—(CP)—Joseph Byrnes, 26, on trial for manslaughter in the shooting Feb. 4 of 26-year-old Mrs. Ruth Hardy, said today that the firing of a shot in his apartment that Sunday morning was accidental.

Byrnes testified that he and his wife had asked the group of people to leave their apartment. He said he took out four fuses and plunged them into a percolator. Then he went to a bedroom closet for his rifle.

"I brought it out so everyone could see it and I asked, 'Go now,' Byrnes said.

He then put the rifle under his bed and retired, he said after 10 minutes, Mrs. Cecilia Weir, a guest entered the room. Byrnes got up, picked up the rifle and said four or four times, 'get her out of here.' Weir stumbled and fell and Byrnes' wife and Emmett Spencer, another guest, came in.

"When I saw my wife and Spencer, I was going to bed," Byrnes' said. "Backing up, I stumbled, lost my balance. I let go of the short-stock rifle with both hands as it was falling. The gun went off.

"I sat down on the bed. I was surprised it went off."

Byrnes testified police say went through the bedroom wall struck Mrs. Kendry as she danced in the next room.

Pilot Walks Away From Plane Crash

Flight Lieut. Woods walked away from an air crash at Connaught today, but he did not have all his luck with him. He was picked up by a helicopter of the air rescue branch of the R.C.A.F. a few minutes after he forced landed in a farmer's field, near Consecon.

Woods, a member of the Mount Hope Squadron of Hamilton, on air firing training, was over the range at Consecon when the motor of his plane went dead. He was piloting conked out and could not be started again.

The plane hit hard and is considered an almost total loss but the pilot, who was alone, extricated himself from the wreckage and was apparently none the worse for his experience when the helicopter arrived to pick him up.

A check-up at the Station hospital later revealed the lucky pilot escaped with nothing more than a severe shaking up.

Good News in Store for Shivering Ontario, Cold Snap Ends Tonight

Tordnto, March 3 — (CP) — There's good news — of a sort — for all over Ontario: the cold snap ends tonight.

But everything's comparative. What the weather bureau really means, he said, is that it will be "not quite so cold" tomorrow.

He intimated that coal - short householders can start thinking less to worry about and that snuggies will be put off-the-day for them as wears 'em.

And — in a small, not-so-clear print — he said that, uh, there may be another (sorry) cold snap in a few more days.

Officially, though, the word is that the big chill is on the way gone from winter's latest haymaker by midnight tonight.

And about time, too.

The temperature dipped during the bitterly cold Thursday night to sixty. That's cold enough, the experts said soberly, to "freeze the mercury in thermometers or glycerin in automobiles."

Kingston today added that. At 6 a.m. at Lake Shore Mines, a reading of 50 below was taken. That's unofficial.

You had to go 'way up north, the Arctic Circle and 700 miles south of the North Pole, to beat Kirkland Lake. It was 54 below at Resolute.

Throughout most of Northern Ontario, reports of at least 25 below were common. Southern sections of the province were a few chilly steps closer to zero.

Kingston today chattered in the tune of a 20-below minimum, coldest this winter in the Eastern Ontario city.

Winds were light today in most sections, giving snowplough crews a chance to clear roads that have been impassable for days.

There was plenty of snow-born trouble in the Kitchener district. Twenty-four hours passed after the death of Mrs. Gertrude Wilson, 77, her home was still isolated. A funeral director summoned by her son still hadn't reached the house at mid-morning today.

With a fire truck stuck in a drift half a mile away, the Grand house of Richard Wilson burned to the ground during a blizzard last night at Elora. Firemen crossed snow-swept fields on foot and managed to save the contents of the house. But Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and their five children spent part of the night in a barn.

Veteran bush - pilot Ian Watt made a 100-mile flight from Moosonee to Attawapiskat on Georgian Bay to Toronto Thursday night with a badly-needed Indian girl stricken with meningitis. Part of the flight was through a blinding snowstorm. He landed his skiequipped plane at suburban Malton airport and the child was aprd to hospital.

Temperatures started to moderate today in the Windsor area, the weatherman said, and the "warming" will extend through the province by midnight.

Clamor Increases For Seizure Of Strikebound Mines

Lewis Reported Confident Says Enough Coal on Hand

Washington, March 3 — (AP) — A swelling clamor for federal seizure of the strikebound coal mines arose today as an unprecedented coal crisis gripped the United States.

With the fuel shortage becoming more critical by the hour, government attorneys moved desperately to recover the ground they lost in court action Thursday that the United Mine Workers Union was not in contempt of court.

The first move scheduled was planned for a full day's conjunction under the Taft-Hartley Labor Act to replace the temporary no-strike injunction which $72,000 miners have stubbornly defied. Justice Department lawyers also pushed plans for a swift appeal on the contempt issue.

May Seize Pits

There were reports that President Truman was preparing a message for delivery to Congress, then planned to ask it to order the pits and work them without advantage to both sides.

The effects of the strike, if it continues, were expected to reach shattering proportions by next week. Leaders of industry said that by then major plants will be halting operations on a wholesale scale for lack of coal.

Henry Ford II, head of the Ford Motor Company said that the country will be shut down in two weeks" if coal production isn't resumed.

In an interview with Arthur Krock, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, he said that "no strike in the coal fields has ever imperilled public health or safety," and that this one won't.

Enough coal is on hand, Lewis was quoted as saying to last out the dispute, "a fairly distributed."

Interview Delayed

The Times said publication of the Lewis interview was delayed pending a decision in the contempt case because it might affect the refusal of its members to heed the back-to-work orders issued by Judge Richmond B. Keech Feb. 11.

The judge ruled that federal attorneys had not proven its case that the union was responsible for defiance of the order.

Lewis and the operators went back to the bargaining table in contract negotiations following Judge Keech's ruling, and the union leaders said later that Lewis was "more confident and cocky" than ever.

PRESS DEMANDS STRACHEY OUSTED AS WAR MINISTER

London, March 3 (AP)— Lord Beaverbrook's pro-Communist newspapers today continued to demand the ouster of John Strachey from the war cabinet as war minister despite a stiff government denial that he ever was a communist.

Both Thursday's tabloid Evening Standard and this morning's Daily Express played up some of Strachey's old pro-communist statements.

The Standard said Strachey named war minister this week," remains an avowed communist" and "has never publicly repudiated his belief in communism."

A quick reply from Prime Minister Clement Attlee's residence at 10 Downing Street called the charges "disgraceful." The statement declared that Strachey "has in the fullest sense been publicly identified with the Labor party's known attitude of opposition to the Communist party and its doctrines."

The Beaverbrook newspapers renewed the demands at a time when the Labor government was already losing weakened after last week's general elections. Lord Beaverbrook is a close friend of Winston Churchill, Conservative party leader in Commons.

Granted pro-communist statements from two books published by Strachey during 1934, 1936, the Express editorial said:

Believe Woman Victim of Fire Was Vi Cook, 27

Hamilton, March — (CP) — Police today tentatively identified the second of two victims Wednesday's boxcar fire as Vi Cook, 27, of Oakville, Ont. The other, police said Wednesday night, was R. B. Landreth, about 30, who moved to Toronto recently from a village near Halifax.

The two died when trapped in the blazing boxcar after climbing atop stacked bales of wool binder. When firemen opened the car the aftermath showed the wool burned almost beyond recognition.

Police quoted a taxicab driver as saying he took a couple answering the description of Landreth and Miss Cook to nearby Van Wagner's Beach Wednesday morning. It is though the couple may have entered the car on its sliding at the Preston rubber plant to escape from the cold.

However with the exception of George Locke, in the role of a gymnast clown shared the top honors with an outstanding gymnastic display despite the fact he was a tumbling novice. The clown on the show was Don Cairns, who proved a perfect foil for Locke's fine work.

Grmek proved that he was of championship calibre with clever performances on the parallel bars horizontal bars, mat and pummel horse. His contortions and tricks in fine displays as did the school students in the gymnastics associated with the Czechs in the gymnastics.

Versatility Marked

Versatility of some of the students was marked. They played in the school band, sang in the school choir, took part in sketches led in a quartet, and then turned athlete and gymnast.

Opening the show is a spirited chorus "Here We Are Again," sung by the entire company. With Charles Cawker's piano artistry providing the accompaniment, Arthur Burns' well-known city baritone offers "Wagon Wheels" and "Old Black Old Sun." He received a fine ovation at the conclusion of the performance. Sportsmen's Quartet was offered prior to the show and during intermission by the school band under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper.

Bleachers Filled

Highlighting the comedy of the show is the baseball skit "Casey at the Bat." It is cleverly done and offered in a real baseball setting although a bit cramped. The bleachers are filled with a howling crowd. Offstage a narrator intones the principal verses of the famous baseball poem. Tom Buchanan, is the heavy-moustached bristling Casey. The famous line two strikes whirl over the plate and the "crowd goes wild." Casey in fine performance finally strikes out and the scene fades with the mighty batter slumped over the plate.

Eighteen students in shirts and trunks offer some fine physical training movements in a rhythmic style. The offering was good and proved the effect of strenuous rehearsal.

"Statuettes" is one of the colorful offerings of the show. Garbed in appropriate costumes, students pose as principals of well-known nursery rhymes. Little Miss Muffet, Little Bo-Peep, Little Jack Horner, Jack and Jill and other well-known Mother Goose characters are represented in "stills" under a spotlight.

A student version of a barber shop quartet made a distinct hit with the audience. Faces decorated with fierce black moustaches the four boys in excellent harmony offered "I've Been Workin' on the Railroad" and "I Can't Give You Anything But Love Baby." The four, Ron Elmy, Jim MacKay, Bill Babbitt and Lloyd Faulkner have fine voices that blend well. Charles Cawker was at the piano.

A comedy skit injects itself into the program at this point with a pair of comedians offering a laughable dialogue on humor. It ends with the "stooge" having his pants slashed with a pair of scissors, finally losing them (the pants) at the finale.

School Choir Heard

The school choir of some thirty voices offered "Bless This House" and a novelty number with three students explaining why they favored the army, navy and air force respectively. It was a realistic offering garnished with grass nasties by Bill Davis, Joel Mazer, Bob Wesley, Peter Ison and George Ewald who does a difficult though clever skipping act. Following intermission were the featured gymnastic displays piloted by Grmek. First offered were displays on the mats and pummelled horse with Grmek, Locke, Golobic, Cairns, Ivan Waite, Ralph Cornish and George Locke. The parallel bars brought out Grmek, Celar, Golobic, Walt Dafoe and Jim Makay. In the high bars presentation were Grmek, Celar, Golobic, Bill Coughlin, MacKay, Ivan Waite, Cornish, Walter Zapletal, and of course that pair of ubiquitous clowns Locke and Cairns.

The gymnastic acts held the rapt attention of the audience which applauded the fine work, especially the difficult movements, as the gymnasts went through a rapid sequence of exhibitions. It was one of the best gymnastic displays seen in this city in a number of years. While the featured skits, which closed the show, proved a clever conclusion to a fine evening of entertainment.

Y's Men Hear Address on Insect Control

Mr. Harry Coppell, Ph.D., New York State College of Forestry, of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, was guest speaker at the regular Y's Men's Dinner meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. Mr. Coppell presented two very interesting films on the Biological Control of Insects, along with a running account of the work of breeding parasite insects who feed on and destroy injurious insects.

The Belleville laboratory was operated under the Federal Department of Agriculture, and was the main research station for Canada. At present it employs a staff of 50, and in the busy summer season employs a staff of from 100 to 150 persons. The speaker also answered a number of questions dealing mostly with the classification and control of insects. Oscar Wagar thanked the speaker for an interesting evening.

President Gerald Hyde presided at the meeting. Tom Hutchinson was Sgt. at Arms, and Don Williams winner of the booster

Good Supply Of Fuel Oil Dealers Report

Although there have been many conversions from coal heating to oil heating in the city of Belleville this year oil company officials report plenty of supplies on hand for the remainder of the time it is necessary to keep a fire burning.

In the last two years the oil-men have watched a serious shortage turn into a condition of ample supplies for distribution chiefly through the foresight of large companies in erecting storage space in the city.

On the other hand the coal dealers saw great stockpiles dwindle to dangerously low levels as the miners in the U.S. continued to stay out of the pits on one of the worst tie ups in the history of coal mining.

Since oil started to flow more freely and tanks have filled up again the price of fuel oil dropped a cent a gallon last fall. The present price for furnace oil is 17 2-10th cents a gall-on while stove oil retails at 20 1-10th cents a gallon.

A VOTE — In loving memory of a dear father, William Austin, who passed away March 3rd, 1948.
March 3, 1948.
The garment of his soul has passed away,
The spirit and the love light fled,
The echo of his voice, his eyes, his smile,
Just as they were, are with us all the while.

Airline Agent Says Mrs. Pitre Delivered Parcel to Airport

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, March 3 — (CP) — An airline agent today told the jury trying J. Albert Guay for murder that a parcel delivered at Quebec airport by a "Mrs. Pitre" was placed aboard a Canadian Airlines plane which later crashed killing 23.

Willis Lamonde, C.P.A. agent at the airport, said the parcel, of heavy brown cardboard, was placed in the left, forward luggage compartment before the plane took off Sept. 9 on a flight that ended in disaster at Sault au Cochon, 40 miles from here.

Previous witnesses in the case in which the Crown seeks to prove that Guay arranged to have a time-bomb placed aboard the airliner have said the plane was wrecked by a blast in the left, forward luggage compartment. Mrs. Guay was one of the crash victims and Guay is charged with her murder.

Lamonde did not identify Mrs. Pitre further but last week Crown Prosecutor Noel Dorion said he would attempt to prove that Mrs. Arthur Pitre, one of the Crown's key witnesses, placed aboard the plane a parcel that was responsible for the explosion. Mrs. Pitre was described in evidence at the preliminary hearing last fall as a friend of Guay's.

Crown witnesses heard during the six days since the trial started have testified that CP-CUA was airworthy when it took off from Montreal bound for Seven Isles, 50 miles down the St. Lawrence North Shore.

Air experts, also called by the Crown, have declared that pieces of wreckage found on a mountainside of Sault au Cochon point to a "violent" explosion as the cause of the wreck, and the left-hand forward luggage compartment as the place it occurred.

Thursday, Frank Francis, a CPA air engineer, David Tennant director of air engineering for Trans-Canada Air Lines, and Yvon Rousseau, formerly with TCA and now an aeronautical consultant, all agreed that the baggage section was the location of a shattering blast.

Tennant and Rousseau both backed up Francis' opinion that an "agency" having no connection with CP-CUA's mechanism or flying equipment was responsible for the explosion.

All three eliminated as possible causes the plane's fuel and deicing alcohol supplies, its hydraulic and fire-extinguishing systems, and finally its storage batteries.

Ontario Mine Output in '49 Holds Record

Toronto, March 3—(CP)—Mines Minister Gemmell of Ontario today estimated Ontario's 1949 mining production at $515,000,000, the highest ever recorded and topping 1948 by more than $20,000,000.

Mr. Gemmell made his estimate in a message of greeting to the Prospectors and Developers Association which will hold its annual meeting here Sunday to Wednesday.

Said Mr. Gemmel of mining:

"It is a story of great hardship, rare good fortune and misfortune, of failures and great success, a story of the birth and the very existence of such robust northern communities as Timmins, Kirkland Lake, Cobalt, Sudbury, Red Lake, Geraldton and a host of others.

"From the turn of the 20th century to the end of 1949 the total value of minerals wrested from the good earth and rock of Canada is something over $13,800,000,000, truly an astronomical figure.

"For us in Ontario it is very satisfying that the mines of our province have contributed more than 42 per cent of that total—in round figures about $5,700,000,000.

Comeback Staged by Gold

"It is gratifying to all prospectors and mine developers to see the comeback being made in gold. True, prospecting for gold has been in a slump in recent years but the over-all search for new mineral wealth is far from in the doldrums as illustrated by the fact that mineral tenures in this part are renewed in 1949 numbered 7,290 or an increase of nearly 1,300 over 1948, while the number of claims recorded was 14,420,or more than 3,000 more than in the previous year.

"The search for uranium now has entered the picture and since the discoveries of pitchblende north of Sault Ste. Marie in 1948, the claims staked in the Algoma Bay area have numbered nearly 4,000."

FIRST DIVORCE LAW IN JERSEY ISLAND

Jersey, Channel Islands, March 3 — (AP) — This tiny British island in the English Channel soon will have its first divorce law. A bill approved Thursday by the legislature and effective March 15 required four years to prepare. One of its novel features is a provision that poor people who apply for divorces are exempt from paying fees.

Kingston Man Suffers Back Injury in Crash

Leon Solomon, 131 College St., Kingston, suffered a bruised back and property damage amounted to well over $1,000 as a result of a two-car accident which occurred yesterday afternoon at 3 p.m. near the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Solomon was stated to have been backing his auto from a laneway onto the highway when it was struck by a westbound vehicle operated by Seymour Hamilton, R. R. 7, Belleville. Both cars were badly damaged, the Hamilton vehicle being damaged most extensively.

Mrs. Steve Hanna, 87, Lorne Ave., received a minor scalp injury on Wednesday when the car, which she was driving on Highway 37 collided into a rural road car at Glen Miller. Mrs. Hanna, alone in the car at the driving south, when she observed a line of box cars being shunted. She applied her brakes in time to swing to the icy condition of the highway skidded into the moving box car.

Mrs. Hanna escaped with a shaking up but the front of her auto was damaged to the extent of approximately $350. Provincial Constable Gable investigated both accidents.

Farmers, Wives of District Enjoy Hospitality of C of C

Approximately 75 farmers and their wives from the immediate Belleville district were guests of the local Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening at the Bell Street public school at a special meeting sponsored by the Chamber agricultural committee to foster better city and rural relations.

Guest speaker for the evening was J. Stuart Richardson, public relations officer from the Montreal office of the Northern Electric Company who gave an inspiring address on Canada and her heritage entitled "The True North Strong and Free."

Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee J.W. Evans acted as chairman for the meeting. He welcomed the farmer guests and stated that better relations between urban and rural people could be accomplished only through better understanding of each other's problems.

The next meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at which rural residents will be guests will be held March 28th when V.H. Milburn secretary-manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture will be the speaker. The agricultural committee is also planning a bus trip to Ottawa and Kemptville some time during the month of April.

Grows Because Of Faith

A deeper appreciation of the great heritage which is Canada's and the debt of gratitude owed to the pioneers of the Dominion, should be entertained by those attending the meeting as result of their hearing Mr. Richardson.

Speaking in a quiet manner that held close attention of his listeners, Mr. Richardson referred to the faith, hope and confidence of the earlier settlers of Canada. This faith had grown because of the faith of these people.

"The young people of Canada were the most fortunate in the world," he said. They lived in the very best homes under the best of conditions and were receiving the very best education possible . . . yet there were many things in Canada which were taken for granted and not fully appreciated.

Of English birth and coming to Canada 22 years ago Mr. Richardson said he was deeply appreciative of his Canadian citizenship and strived never to let himself forget the debt of responsibility which he owed to the country of his adoption.

Canada was a cosmopolitan nation made up of people of many different racial extractions. Yet there is a national understanding, which was growing. The right word in the right place at the right time could do much to bring about even greater understanding between peoples. But people had to have an individualism with care being taken to pick out the good points. "It is the hard words which we must guard against; if understanding is to be gained," he said.

Something in Common

"We can always find something in common with other people if we only take the trouble to try. It is individual understanding which leads to greater national unity."

Bruce Lattimer as president of the Chamber of Commerce introduced the guest speaker, while appreciation was expressed by W. H. Montgomery, Prince Edward county farmer.

Well known local pianist, Jimmy Corradi, favored with several musical appreciation selections, while Bob Tanner acted as song leader for a brief period of community singing.

Refreshments of coffee, doughnuts and sandwiches were served during a social get-together following the meeting.

Quinte Skating Club Ready For Arena Show

Featuring two outstanding professional figure skaters from Toronto, a number of their own stars and a colorful presentation of pageantry and pantomime, the Quinte Skating Club's Tenth Annual Winter Show gets under way tonight in Memorial Arena. A matinee will be given Saturday afternoon with a gala "wind-up" performance Saturday night.

Upwards of 120 of a cast will be seen in the presentation which has been under rehearsal for the past few months. Feature offering of the show is a story in pantomime of the Northland.

This is exceptionally well done and brings into play Eskimos, hunters, bears, penguins and other denizens of the North. The plot calls for some spirited action and a number of local stars are seen in solo and duo numbers. It is well-staged, prettily costumed and well directed.

Other Colorful Presentation

The "Hop-Scotch Polka" and the "Jesters Court", are other colorful presentations of the club. There is plenty of comedy and other ice novelties.

The show features such local stars as Joan Graham, Mary Jane McNally, Betty McNally, Beverly Cowan and Duane Warren, Stuart Robband, Harold Kessler, Joan Doyle, Jack Dickens, Doris Kerr, Lorna Bulford and others.

Sally Anne Blogg and Harold Hartley, professional skaters Toronto, feature the show. They are accomplished artists and plenty of experience in some the major ice attractions of United States and Canada. Mr. Blogg has not only starred ice revue but has produced some of them. Hartley is the only colored skating professional Canada. He has starred with outstanding shows and is rated among the best in the coun

WATER AND LIFE

Water is a prime necessity as New York City has found out by its experience of a shortage which has put that metropolis on a saving program. Reference to shortage has drawn attention to the fact that water is one of the "musts," one of the vital factors in life of man and beast and nature.

We can live without house or clothing for months, we can live without food for days but to live without water is figured in terms of hours and minutes," says the March letter of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Modern plumbing and engineering have made the water question one that may almost be forgotten unless a pipe spring a leak or a pipe line is frozen. Water is delivered at everyone's tap as low as a nickel a ton. But if you had to buy dirt that would cost you from a dollar up to ten dollars for topsoil.

Only a scarcity or a crisis will make people think seriously about water. Yet there are points about it that actually mean subsistence and survival of man and all other life on the globe. Without it man could not be. Here are some of its values:

Drinking water is our greatest need physically

Moisture in the atmosphere makes organic life possible

Plans from lichens to giant trees grow only where there is water

Fish, one of man's chief foods, live in the sea

Steam and electric power depend on water

Mechanical and chemical processes in industry need it

Water has given man means of transportation and made exploration possible

Nations are built about great water supplies which govern boundaries

Water locates the sites of cities and farms

It is the great source of "pure ablution round earth's human shores"

Water is the great cleaner of the human body and human relations

So great is it that man pays dearly for neglecting to provide for a clean water supply

Life began possibly in the water.

One fact stands out. Earth's water resource is permanent while the amount available at a place or time is changing. Canada has vast resources in mighty rivers and vast lakes. Her sea coast is one of the longest in the world.

That ancient Romans knew the importance of water, they built elven viaducts which supplied 54 million gallons a day to one million inhabitants of Rome. In modern cities the average consumption runs as high as 120 gallons per person a day.

Pollution of water is one of the problems of this age. Associated with this is the protection of fish and game against polluted waters.

The letter shows that man forgets that a one-pound loaf has used up almost two tons of water. Water makes power that grinds the food and prepares it for eating. Nor must the place of the forest be forgotten in the rotation of moisture and in the balancing of water supply. The sources, the watersheds of this vast resource, must be conserved. It is a challenge to governments worthy of the best that is in them.

SUCCESS TIP

If you wish to be respected; if you want better-tasting food, and clothes that will make others sullen with chagrin at not being as well dressed as you — read your newspaper.

Just read it. This is a short, and pleasant business, for unlike your school text books, your newspaper is devised to be quickly and easily read. And your newspaper costs you nothing, net. You make a profit on the deal, if you actually do read your paper.

The profit is in the knowledge that brings respect, and brings more money too, for that wide range of commodities, like food and clothing, you can get with money.

You know a lot if you read your paper. You are the fellow in the crowd who knows when the House sits, when the tide turns, how The Socker is doing, what's the matter with the Fair Deal, and where you can get a chair leg fixed. One who keeps on absorbing newspapers, breathing them in regularly, accumulates a lot of little and big bits that amount to quite a lot of understanding about things. Will forget was that kind. He did not have the disadvantage of a college education. All he knew was what he read in the papers. The next time somebody complains that he never had a chance to get an education, set him on the highroad to success by staking him to a year's subscription to a newspaper. — The Printed Word.

WONDER WORLD

t must be a world of wonder o a little boy
With such dazzling things to look at and such daring pals to play
o see on every table precious things he wants to clutch and forever hear the warning from his mother: "Musn't touch!"

is eyes are full of wonder and that mind of his is clear,
here are things his hands will reach for when his mother isn't near;

Things that fairly fascinate him that his fingers must attack,
And he'll get them in a second if his mother turns her back.

He's a wily little plotter with a cunning all his own,
He will surely get that inkwell
when his mother's at the phone.
"Not for little boys to play with!" What a futile thing to say!
He is scheming now to get it when his mother looks away.

Council meeting, there was only one tender for the franchise to operate bus lines in the city, that being from Fred Rawson the present holder. The tender was accepted. He has agreed to re-equip the bus line placing new buses on the two routes, the east and west hills and to extend the service to the hospital. Council also invited a number of companies to submit plans and costs to construct a new or steel or re-inforced concrete bridge over the Moira River.

All danger of a flood is over for the spring, Charles A. Mott, city engineer, reports.

Halley's comet will be visible to the naked eye on April 5th. It will be visible in the southwest.

The river is beginning to show signs of breaking up. A flood is feared this spring.

Forty years ago this week Belleville was incorporated as a city. The city has not, perhaps, made such strides as enthusiasts hoped for at that time, but the fact remains that Belleville was then, and is now, one of the nicest places to live in on this footstool. People who live here get a fair run for their money, and many who have moved away would be glad to come back if they could. The thought comes to many a man when he gets time to sit down and think it over, that hustle, hurry and excitement are not always the things to be most sought for in this world. Far away fields may look greener, but they do not always yield a big crop. No doubt, many of us may be induced to come back to the reunion next July could preach a sermon on this subject if he wanted to.

The W. W. Chown hockey team has accepted the challenge of the Pringle Company hockey team to play a match next Monday evening.

Mr. W. R. Ostrom of Trenton, was in town Sunday.

The storm of last night and today was the worst of the season. The heavy downfall of snow was whirled about by a stiff northwesterly wind which filled it up in great drifts. Roads are badly blocked, and trains are greatly delayed. The flagstaff over the city hall was broken shortly before noon today by the high wind. Stages due here early this morning did not arrive until late this afternoon. The mail train due here at 10:45 this morning did not arrive until three o'clock this afternoon.

Our joy at the relief of Ladysmith is tempered with regret at the news of the death of Lieutenant Glencoe G. Hulme, son of Mr. and Mrs. Croft Hulme of this city. He was one of the sturdiest and most efficient of Belleville's quota. It is reassuring, however, to note from Col. Otter's telegram that none of the Belleville wounded are in danger, and he is reported all the wounded as doing well, with the exception of Johnston.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A friend of mine and his wife were sorely hurt lately when they were invited to a function that was considerably above their station. Neither they nor their friends themselves being looked down upon.

There could be no doubt about it; they were looked down upon. Everybody was looking down on them. They caught several people giving them that brazen once-over which is a characteristic gesture in all social levels. If you look like a Sunday school superintendent, and stray into a boxing academy, you will get that frosty once-over from half the people in the joint. If you look like a nice couple invited to a dance dances and stumble into a regimental ball given by the debutantes of the unit's officers, you will get it too. It works both ways, and all ways. We suppose in Canada that we have no class consciousness. No more class consciousness than in any country exists than in our gambling fraternity. Let a tailsand years ago.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rock

IS THERE A FIRECRACKER KID IN YOUR HOUSE?

In this, the last of my scholarly squibbles about television, I'd like to discuss the fate, if any of our 14,000 movie theaters. It's my hunch that a fulsome number of those theaters, which represent three billion dollars worth of brick and mortar, aren't going to be selling many more tickets and prices when there are ten million TV sets in the country—and there will be five million before the year is out.

It's true enough that a "Gone With The Wind" will always lure Man and Pa to the Bijou, where great movies are few and sons be tween, and barring such people figure to prefer punch Hickeys in their parlors for free to punk tickets on Main Street for the hits. And since a falling off of 23 per cent in attendance might very well be the difference between flourishing and foreclosure for the theater owner, my crystal eight-ball tells me that, within the next two years, the fate of every five movie houses in this country will be up to its projection booth in the red.

Is there any manageable miracle in sight to save these movie houses from being converted into sites for kiddie carousels? I think, I'm going to call "Theaterovision," and when the atmosphere is right it will be. The first firecracker kid to walk in and buttonhole the boss with the idea of staging and delivering the following spiel.

"Several companies as you know sir, have perfected a fullsized TV screen for use in movie houses and tests in New York, Los Angeles and Paris indicate the public will pay to look at these screens if she's something special on them. These screens cost about $25,000 each, but I've worked out a deal with one of the companies whereby you can buy yours on time and pay for it out of earnings.

"What, you may ask, will you flash it on these screens in your theatre? Well, mister, that's where I come in. I've leased the rights to the Rose Bowl Square, and three months from today I can start piping onto your screen the goshdarnedest star-studded variety show ever offered the public at popular prices I aim to spend $100,000 a week for talent and I'm willing to guarantee a brand new show every Monday and in addition I'm prepared to increase by 30 and 70 per cent of your gross receipts—no more than you used to pay for a movie. And I'll throw into you theatre, week after week, and year after year, the All-throw on the switch.

"In this way, you'll be using Theatrevision to beat the threat of television because, thanks to my deal, you'll be showing the super-duper electronic program which you could receive in person gratis out of the ether. . . .

If our firecracker kid can get over the idea to the stage the bust-in-the-head shows I envision, there should be nothing to stop him from shelling out a hundred thousand a week and hauling in a million and a half per.

How come, the lady in the back flash it is asking, will be in the throwing this idea up for grabs instead of sitting on it for the proper time, setting out my own pail to catch some of these pennies from heaven?

Well, madam, I'm an old kid, myself, a sucker for the warm sun and serenity are a lot more important than rip and tear. But I'm the old kid said to the sailor, "Lawsy, Lawsy, if I were only 30 again."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LUNCHEON TALK

Sitting at the table of a noted luncheon club in my town, and looking at the forms of men about as I scanned the six or eight men present, the thought suddenly came to me of how curious the talk is of such folks when they get together, as at a magazine editor, a book reviewer, a writer of advertising, a theatrical producer, a newspaper executive, and an artist.

What was the talk that went on with such a distinguished group? Nothing of the sort, I can safely assure you. It was just pleasant talk about anything that happened to come to the mind of the talker. I have noted that the best known usually have the least to say. There is a great deal of "kidding" with such a luncheon should be a happy affair, with as little as possible of intellectuality with normal digestion, for this latter is an important item. Food digests best when the mind is light.

I have never liked luncheon where speeches are given on. That is for the office. But I do seek out a place in which to eat with my friend, that has a pleasing atmosphere about it. That's half of the enjoyment of a meal. Then a good cook and a happy nature is sure to be produced.

When I worked on a farm, and harvest time came, I was always pleased when I got a chance on the noon day meal. It was called dinner then. There was a big table of workers and a hungry lot they were, but there was food on that table that made one sure that you except their job at hand, which was eating. Then, afterwards, came extra, and all free! people sat around and talked to other people, and always worth listening to.

Luncheon talk should always be cheerful and light. I often think a speaking exception in that will stimulate the opposite mood that I may be entertaining, or at least to offer an antidote for it! Then I am enabled to go back to my office refreshed in both mind and body. I am sure that such an experience can be stimulating to many.

No Chance Seen Moscow Meeting At Present Time

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Newsanalyst)

The proposal by Senator Brien McMahon (Dem. Conn.) that the United Nations hold peace talks with Russia, in the hope of establish global controls over atomic weapons, is being received with mixed emotions.

The consensus is that every peaceful effort should be made to achieve peace and atomic control. However, there is a wide spread feeling that hopes of a U. N. meeting with Russia are slim.

Apropos of this, President Truman Thursday told a press conference in Washington that as for any plan to utilize the United Nations as a peacemaker he said he will co-operate in any move to maintain the peace, but he will find a new path to follow as long as he is president. He didn't specifically refer to the McMahon proposal.

The first barrier to carrying out the McMahon idea at this time is that Russia since Jan. 10 has been boycotting U. N. organs of the United Nations over the red China membership question. Moscow demands that the Nationalist delegation be ejected from the U. N. and the Chinese communists be given its place.

Chinese Issue Must be Settled

As long as this situation continues there is little chance of a Moscow meeting. The Chinese issue must be settled first and it is expected that a special assemblage of the United Nations in New York this spring to deal with the matter.

Once the Chinese issue is settled, and Russia has resumed her seat in the councils of the U. N., the question of a meeting in Moscow will be taken up but there is small you come up against a stone wall.

The main problem is atomic control by unlimited inspection of atomic plants in all countries with no exception in the case of the 59 members of the U. N. Only the Soviet bloc has refused to do this.

Russia agrees to inspection, but only in atomic plants of her satellite countries and in this country to the International Authority. The Western powers say that this is no use because secret operations would be possible. Soviet replies that unlimited inspection would amount to espionage on the Russian powers.

OBSERVATIONS ON PEPTIC ULCER

Ulcer is a loss of tissue, such as an open sore. A peptic ulcer is an ulcer of either the stomach or the duodenum. The duodenum is the upper end of the small intestine, into which the stomach empties. I repeat these simple remarks for the reason that many are confused about it.

Peptic ulcer seems to be caused by an excess secretion of hydrochloric acid by the lining of the stomach. The production of this acid is essential to the digestive process. It appears that when more of the acid is formed than is necessary, it creates an injury to the lining which leads to, and maintains an ulcer.

We do not know what causes such excess secretion. Several theories have been advanced. There is not enough space available to discuss them.

A peptic ulcer is either in the stomach or in the duodenum. A combination of both is an extremely rare occurrence. An ulcer in the stomach is much less serious affliction than one in the duodenum. Cancer almost never develops in the duodenum. It is quite apt to develop in the stomach.

The term "stomach ulcer" is very indefinite. Many people use the term should know that the ulcer is invariably single. Also, the term is not descriptive of duodenal ulcer. Technically, the appropriate terms are—gastric ulcer and duodenal ulcer.

Many so-called ulcer symptoms are not due to ulcer. Soureess, burning and pain are typical symptoms but may be present in conditions other than ulcer. These conditions are too numerous to describe in this space.

A gastric ulcer in a patient aged 23 to 35 will probably, just that. A so-called gastric ulcer in a patient of 45 or over, should stands a strong chance of being cancer. A duodenal ulcer in a person of any age, is, in all probability, just an ulcer and not cancer.

The best treatment for cancer of the digestive organs is the immediate surgical removal. There can be no quibbling or evasion on this point. The only exception involves those cases so far gone that nothing but palliative surgical procedure, is useless. Fortunately in these enlightened days, this group is small.

An ulcer is primarily a medical problem, not surgical. Surgery is used in ulcer only when medical treatment has been thoroughly tried and found ineffective.

A point that surprises many persons is the fact that ulcer may exist for some time without producing any symptoms. About one third of the victims of perforated peptic ulcer have never had any previous symptoms indicating its presence.

Perforation, the ulcer penetrates to the outer covering of the digestive tube, which gives way, as an open sore. A peptic ulcer is an ulcer of either the stomach or the duodenum. The duodenum is the upper end of the small intestine, into which the stomach empties. I repeat these simple remarks for the reason that many are confused about it.

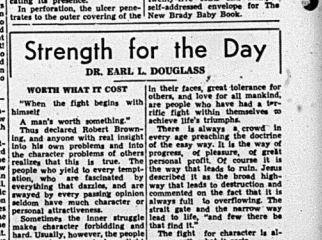
WORTH WHAT IT COST

"When the fight begins within himself
A man's worth something."



Thus declared Robert Browning, and anyone with real problems in his own problems and into the character problems of others realizes that this is true. The people who yield to every temptation are fascinated by everything that dazzles, and are swayed by every passing impulse, have very much character or personal attractiveness.

Sometimes the inner struggle makes character forbidding and hard. Usually, however, the people we see who appear to have light in their faces, great tolerance for others, and love for all mankind are people who have had a terrific fight within themselves to win their triumphs.

There is always a crowd in front of the preaching clinic doctor of the easy way. It is the way of progress, of pleasure, of great personal profit. Of course it is the way that leads to ruin. Jesus described it as the hard way, the way that leads to destruction and condemned as the way that is always full to overflowing. The strait gate and the narrow way lead to life, "and few there be that find it."

The fight for character is always worth what it costs.

China, A-Bomb Critical Issues For UN Assembly

Lake Success, N.Y., March 3— (CP)— The critical issues of Red China and the atomic bomb appeared headed today for a special session of the U.N. General Assembly in New York in mid-May.

But U. N. leaders privately expressed little belief that such a meeting would entice the Russians back to the fold unless an unexpected break comes.

The Soviet delegation and its Eastern European Allies have been on a walkout strike against U. N. organizations since January, refusing to sit with delegates of Nationalist China.

Informed delegates at the U.N. said the feeling is growing that something must be done that the U. N. cannot go on forever with some of its members refusing to take part and with the East-West tension increasing.

Thus the chief sources said, the best bet appeared to be a special session. The regular 1950 session is scheduled next fall.

The Soviet delegation, meanwhile, kept up propaganda from its luxurious Park Avenue headquarters in New York City instead of coming out to Lake Success.

A spokesman for Jacob Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, said there was no comment on the suggestion by Senator Brien McMahon (Dem., Conn.) in the Senate in Washington, that the Assembly meet in Moscow on the atomic problem.

Roads Reported Heavy After Drifting Snow

Toronto, March 3 (CP)—Most main roads in Ontario are open, cleared of the drifts left Thursday's driving snowstorm.

Highway 21, Kincardine-Kinkail-Port Albert just inland from the eastern shore of Lake Huron, was blocked by snowmen. Driving elsewhere on the area's provincial highways was slow.

The job of clearing many county and township roads continued today in the aftermath swept by the storm. At the height of the blow, centred over the counties of Perth Huron, Gray and Bruce, snowplows were ordered off the roads until visibility improved.

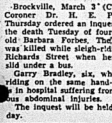
Clear weather with . below-freezing temperatures is forecast for Southern Ontario today.

The highways department today reported main paved roads along Lake Erie, Lake Ontario, the St. Lawrence River and South of Highway 7 from Sarnia to Peterborough generally bare with an occasional icy spot.

North of Highway 7 in Western Ontario, snow along with heavy drifting made the highways snowsurfaced and heavy in spots.

Main roads in the Ottawa-Pembroke area were said to be in good driving condition. From North Bay to Hearst, normal winter driving conditions prevail, while from North Bay to Blind River the pavement is bare and gravel is snow surfaced.

Light winds in most areas of Southern Ontario today were expected to bring little drifting.



The temperature at nearby Malton dipped Thursday night to two degrees above zero. But at 8 a.m. it had risen to four above and was expected to reach 15 above by afternoon.

Central New York Battles Drifts 12 Feet High

New York, March 3—(AP)— More than 100 schools were closed today as blizzard-swept central New York battled snowdrifts 12 feet high in some places.

Elsewhere in the United States wind blasts blew away all thought of springtime from Minnesota to the Atlantic seaboard.

In upstate New York a new cold wave sent the temperature skidding below zero and in many cities and towns and increased the drain on critically short coal supplies.

Canton, in northern New York, reported an eight morning reading of minus 21. Utica was only one degree warmer.

Albany's 10 below zero broke the record of minus 1 set in 1945.

The blizzard, with winds up to 50 miles an hour, blew into the central part of the state Thursday from Lake Ontario. Snow plows kept main highways open, but many secondary roads were blocked.

Bus service was suspended on several routes.

Another storm — this one off Lake Erie—brought wind squalls to western New York. Many schools in Erie, Chautauqua, Wyoming and Cattaraugus counties were closed Thursday.

Mr. Locke was appointed superintendent, Belleville division in 1948, and was moved to Montreal last year.

Dairy Herd Association Branches Elect Officers

New officers for district branches of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association were elected recently at meetings held in Stirling and in Cannilton.

Harry Philp, Stirling, is president of the Sidney-Rawdon Association with Robert Hoard, Hoards Station, as vice president and Russell Piper, Frankford R. R. 2, as secretary. President of the Thurlow-Tyendinaga Association is Bruce Martin, Corbyville with Stanley Green, Plainfield, as vice president and Brooks Allen as secretary.

Clifford Morrow, fieldman for the Ontario Livestock Branch, outlined the work of the policy at both meetings and at the Stirling meeting, Dr. McBrian, manager of the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association, discussed some of the breeding diseases of cattle.

Mr. Morrow said that 29 associations had been started since May, 1940, and an average membership of 25 farmers with an average of 15 cows in their herds. This gave over 10,000 cows on test under this type of work in the province.

Weed Out Culls

He stressed the fact that the work of the associations was designed to assist the farmer in breeding cattle from the standpoint of production of milk and butterfat. It would also be of assistance to the artificial insemination units if daughter-dam comparisons could be made so as to increase or decrease in production, thus indexing bulls so that outstanding bulls would be continuously in use.

Cost of production records are also being maintained this not only being of aid to the farmer, but will show which branch of the dairy industry is most profitable.

Results obtained to date were said to be rather startling in that in many herds the butterfat test for the greater portion of the herds ran consistently below 3 per cent.

Use of Minerals

The importance of the use of minerals in cattle feeding was stressed, it being brought out by various farmers that excellent results had been obtained with commercial mixtures. However, others using their own mixture, seemed to have equally good results.

Any farmers wishing to enter their herds in dairy herd improvement work are advised to contact their local agricultural representative, or Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisors.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Outliving Our Critics

By ROY L. SMITH

The Christian Church made cause the Christians outlived the pagans. It was not that they lived a superior quality of life.

Reading the New Testament with this thought in mind one is amazed to discover how much of the scripture is concerned with the question of how to live life, and how little of it is concerned with the theological controversies with which so many modern churches are engaged.

An Uninstructed Church

Paul, the great Apostle, arrived in the vastly influential city of Ephesus and found there a little band of disciples. No one knows who may have been the preacher under whose ministry they were originally converted, but there were hundreds of wandering evangelists in that day and the majority of them were no more than half instructed.

There was no Christian scripture, no standard form of the Christian gospel, an imperfect record of the life and teachings of Jesus, and no church organization to correct mistaken opinions.

The Christians whom Paul found in Ephesus were people who had become convinced that Jesus was somehow related to God, and that His teaching was somehow authoritative. But they had never learned how to tap the great spiritual powers which are always ready at hand for the person who is spiritually attuned to God.

We Have Overemphasized

In many an ancient church the mistake was made in that it laid the made so commonly in our day. The Christians became involved in arguments about Jesus and lost contact with the Spirit which He promised to unloose upon the world.

There are certain basic beliefs about Jesus which cannot be surrendered, but which are irrelevant to our Christian faith. But it is highly important that we should remember that our theology does not produce our Christian experience; it only describes it.

Throughout Christendom today there is a lot of controversy, contention, and recrimination. As a result we are failing as Christians. We are losing that glorious Christian virtues which converted the world to Christ in the first three centuries.

When the Jerusalem Church demanded a test of the orthodoxy of the Ephesian Church, the young congregation responded by sending one of its most convincing bits of evidence—a Christian life in whose life and spirit no one could find fault.

Putting him in the midst of the Jerusalem Church, and allowing them to inspect his life in its every aspect, the Apostle Paul was willing to rest his case on his convert. "If our ministry to the Gentiles can produce a life such as that, which even evidently has the endorsement of God," he seemed to say, "by what right do you deny him the fellowship of the Church?"

Fruits of the Spirit

Paul was willing to submit his evidence. The men and women of the Christian Church were exhibiting a quality of life—living charitably, at peace, with joy, gently and kindly, patiently—in the midst of a world that laid intolerable burdens upon the souls of men.

The Sunday School lesson for March 5: "Ephesus, a Center of Christian Influence," Acts 19:21-16; Ephesians 5:15-20.

This superior quality of life, Paul declared, was the direct result of the infiloving of a divine spirit upon the lives of the Christians.

The Spirit is the Thing

An anxious group of Christians mailed out a questionnaire to several hundred church leaders, in a search for "the correct Christian position" in the practice, doctrines, and asked, "Do you believe these?"

At least one to whom the questions were sent replied, "Are you not interested in the spirit in which I live? Does it make no difference to you that I have peace has come in upon my life, that vast spiritual resources have been opened up for me so that I have no fear of life, that I have found victory over frustration, and terror? Are you altogether uninterested in knowing what a change has come into my life since I accepted Jesus as the Master of my life? I thought these things were the fundamentals."

Hong Kong, March 3. (Reuters) —R. A. F. Spitfires went into the air today when Chinese Nationalist Bombers started huge fires in a raid on Chamelian, just beyond the Hong Kong border. Eyewitnesses believed the arrival of the Spitfires prevented a prolonged attack, for the raiders were unable to start or finish their strafing runs over British territory as on some previous occasions.

Bombs hit a dump containing 300 drums of gasoline and a truckload of chemicals. Smoke from the fires billowed hundreds of feet into the air.

WEDDINGS

CALLAGHAN—O'CONNOR

On Saturday, February 18, the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding, when Agnes Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Connor, of Belleville, became the bride of Patrick Joseph Callaghan, of Point Aime, son of Mrs. T. W. Bowler, and the late Patrick Callaghan. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father J. Buckley, after which it was assisted by Dennis O'Connor, altar boy.

Miss Dorothy Grant, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and Miss Norah Fluery, soloist, sang before the ceremony "Panis Angelicus", and during the signing of the register, "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her bridal gown of white Imperial satin, fashioned with tiny basque waist, bouffant skirt ending in a slight train. The bodice yoke was of Chantilly lace and bertha collar of satin, with long, tight fitting sleeves ending in points over the wrists. Her veil of silk illusion lace was caught to a headdress of matching satin bands, and she carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. E. R. Stiver, of Belleville was matron of honor, gowned in yellow corded taffeta, featuring a bouffant skirt, fitted basque waist with Elizabethan collar, short sleeves, and matching long gloves.

Miss Terry Meagher and Miss Sheila Stovier, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids, gowned in green and mauve taffeta, fashioned similarly to that of the matron of honor. Each wore a tiny matching helmet, and carried a basket of Spring flowers.

Mr. John Legate, of Queen's University, Kingston, was groomsman and Mr. Norbert O'Connor, brother of the bride, and Mr. John Finlay, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, gowned in turquoise crepe, and corsage of pink roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore Hunter's green, and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Buffalo, and Rochester, the bride chose a brown crepe dress with green and brown accessories, and topcoat of dark green English broadcloth with cape trimmed with mink, and brown Robin Hood hat.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Callaghan will reside at 135 Dufferin Avenue.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a rhinestone necklace and matching earrings; to the best man, a leather wallet; and to the ushers, gold cuff links.

The bride's gifts to her matron of honor, bridesmaids, and soloist, were earrings.

Prior to her wedding, the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Ed. Stiver, and also a kitchen and linen shower at the home of Miss Terry Meagher.

The headquarters staff of 6 Repair Depot, Trenton, presented the bride with three pieces of crystal dresser lamps, and an iron.

A trousseau tea was given by the bride's mother, Mrs. J. J. O'Connor.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature
about Food . . . What's Cooking?
By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

CAVANAH LUCY . . . . .T. . .
WHATS COOKING
It's a pity the recent food tasters' conference in Washington didn't receive Miss Benfare.
The people who make their living by taste-testing gathered under the sponsorship of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Food technologists, scientists and food researchers held discussions to decide on standards for classifying flavor, tenderness and other factors that decide one's taste reactions.
Whether something tastes good or bad, they all agreed, depended on many factors. Keenness of one's taste buds and sense of smell were important. So were colds, allergies, and, warry.
One's previous experience counts heavily. A person, for instance, who has been drinking wine all his life will be able to judge a Bordeaux or Burgundy more readily than one who has never sipped these French wines. Finally, you should like the food you're tasting if you're to judge it sensitively.
People, for instance, who have never tasted smoked finnan haddie (another name for smoked haddock) may not be able to judge the quality of this fish. But the more you've eaten it, the more you'll judge this fine smoky fish.

Finnan Haddie with Dill.
Serves 4.

Wash 1 pound finnan haddie. Cover with hot water in a saucepan. Bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain fish. When cool, break up in flakes.
Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan. Remove from flame. Add 2 tablespoons flour. Gradually add 1 1-2 cups hot milk and 1 bouillon cube.
Return to flame and bring to a boil. Reduce flame and let sauce merely simmer. Add finnan haddie and simmer slowly ten minutes.
Add 1 tablespoon finely chopped dill and 1 teaspoon finely chopped chives or scallions. Add salt and pepper to taste. Simmer 5 minutes more.
Cut slices of toast into triangles. Serve finnan haddie on toast. Add a poached egg to die (another name for smoked each portion if desired.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She has three kinds of trouble.

"Some girls have family troubles; some have love troubles or friendship troubles. I have all three of these to cope with," writes a girl who says she is "not too young to know my own mind because I will soon be 21."

To take her troubles in order, the family ones stem from the fact that she has an abusive father who "likes to drink very much and always seems to have something to argue about, till I think I am going out of my mind." Since her sister married, this girl is the only child at home, with no companionship to take the edge off the unhappy atmosphere.

"I know my parents love me very much," she goes on to say, "and there is so much quarreling in the house that it becomes unbearable. It isn't just small arguments, but shouting ugly words. I cry myself to sleep, and I am beginning to get weak and sick. All I want is love and understanding, and I can't seem to find either one."

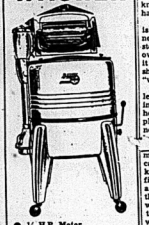
This home situation, I am quite sure, is largely responsible for the love troubles which are second on the list.

"I have had an affair with the man I love very much," she explains, "but I think he is too sure of himself. He told me he does not intend to get married for years yet. In the meantime I have heard a lot of stories about him in connection with different girls. It hurts very much to think that I gave him all my love and he doesn't even keep promises he makes to me. I thought that if I gave him the love he needs he would love me the way I love him. No matter what he does, I always forgive and forget."

As for the friendship troubles, she says that "even the friends I have aren't faithful to me and don't seem to want me around. I am not bad to get along with and I have fairly nice personality, though I am very quiet and shy and have a hard time getting acquainted with people. I am just waiting patiently for happiness, but it doesn't seem to be coming."

Now if this girl had actually been doing as she says—"just waiting patiently for happiness" —she would have failed to add the "love trouble" to her list. It was just because she was not content to wait patiently, but, instead, rushed impulsively off to the wrong direction in search for it, that she now finds herself hurt and disillusioned. Moreover, if she really had been "not too young to know my own mind," she would have realized that hurt and disillusionment were inevitable from the moment she allowed herself to be persuaded into an illicit affair.

If it were money that this girl lacked, I am sure she would never have dreamed of taking what was not rightfully hers. She would know in advance that any such action would only bring her more unhappiness in the end. She would also have realized that to go about getting emotional satisfaction in the wrong way would just as surely turn out bac.;r!



As for the friends who, she says "don't seem to want me around", isn't it possible that they may know of her indiscretion and so have lost their respect for her?

The way this 20-year-old girl is ever going to find the happiness for which she longs is to stop short where she is and start over again. She will never find it in illicit love affairs, nor will she find it by just sitting and "waiting patiently."

What she will have to do is to learn to look for what she wants in the right way. A girl's home should be one of those places, and the kind that here is not is tragic. But if she will show — friends, by taking an interest in — and by joining in as many activities with them as she can, that she is living the right kind of life, she will probably find them ready to welcome her as one of them and to give her the affection and loyalty she wants so much. To win these things from other people, she will first have to give them.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Questions from bride's mother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter's wedding is to be in church, but nothing elaborate.

(1) Please tell me where I sit in the church.

(2) When should I arrive at the church?

(3) Is it proper to have the bride's uncle propose the toast, or is this the best man's duty?

(4) How is the receiving-line formed? Is the bride's father included?

(5) Where do the bride's parents and the groom's parents sit at the reception, which is to be held in a hotel?

M. H.

(1) You, the bride's mother, sit in the first pew on the left side of the aisle. (The groom's mother sits in the first pew on the guests of honor at the wedding, sit in the first pew on the right side of the aisle.)

(2) You should arrive about fifteen minutes before the ceremony hour . . . not later than ten minutes before. You are, as you know, entitled to be seated before the beginning of the procession.

(3) The best man usually proposes first toast, to "the bride and groom."

(4) You, as hostess, stand first in the receiving-line, to greet the guests; then (if this is the plan decided on) your husband is next, then the groom's mother; next, the groom's father; the groom; the bride, at the right of the groom; the maid of honor, at the right of the bride; best man, bridesmaids. (It is optional whether the bride's father and the groom's father stand in the line . . . very often they prefer to mingle with the guests, particularly the bride's father, as host.

(5) You, the hostess, have at your right the groom's father, who is the man guest of honor. Your husband, the host, has at his right the groom's mother, who is the woman guest of honor at the wedding.

June Bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married in June. Since I shall be visiting a very warm month hereabouts, I would like to wear a white bouffant-over-taffeta ballerina-length gown, with the dresses of the maid of honor and the bridesmaids of similar design and length, and of pink or blue .Is this proper?

2. I am not planning to have any bridesmaids. Would it be correct to have my sister as matron of honor and my girl friend as maid of honor?

3. With this plan, how many ushers would be required?

4. The Mass is to be at 10 a.m., with the wedding breakfast for the wedding party to follow. At what time should the reception for our relatives and friends be, and how long should it last? There will be approximately 100 guests invited to the Mass and reception.

M. J. H.

1. Yes.

2. Yes. And I suggest you have them walk separately — your sister directly in front of you and your father, the maid of honor preceding her.

3. It is not this plan that determines the number of ushers . . . this is determined by the number of guests to be seated. For the one hundred guests you are inviting, I suggest you have four ushers.

4. Correctly, and for the greatest convenience of the greatest number, you should have the reception directly following the ceremony. After all the guests have been received, the refreshments would be served, and dancing could be the bride's table with the wedding breakfast menu served there.

Guests provide own transportation from church to reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The wedding reception is to be held at Country Club some miles from the church in which the ceremony is to take place. Are the guests supposed to make their own plans for transportation from church to club?

M. J. F.

Yes . . . this is the responsibility of the guests, not of the hosts of the wedding.

Guest Artists Provide Delightful Evening

On Tuesday evening at the Engineers' Hall ,Pine Street, the C.N.E.A. Ladies' Auxiliary held their regular monthly meeting.

Business was transacted followed by the entertainment by guest artists.

Little Barbara Thrasher and Sheila Fisher, pupils of Miss Barbara Hooper, gave a lovely tap dance.

Mrs. Elvington entertained with her guitar and harmonica.

Mrs. Youdale gave a splendid travelogue on her trip to England which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The game of "Bugs", was the fun of the evening with Mrs. Rhoda Gordon, last prize; Mrs. Pamela Boyle, 2nd and Mrs. Mabel Green, consolation.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ella Windover's group, bringing a lovely evening to a close.

Fashion Flashes

ISN'T IT WONDERFUL to ice so many variations of that most wearable fashion, the shirtwaist frock? Silver gray tissue faille is used for a beauty that is pleated from trim, high collar to hem. The softly bloused fullness is held by a tailored navy calf belt. Buttons in concentric circles. Deep shadowed shirtwaist sleeves have wide buttoned wrist bands.

FUN, that's what they are, some of the newest resort clothes. An outfit consisting of tablecloth checks in red and white for halter-bra and bolero-jacket, and long shorts of white denim, has tiny sequins scattered here and there on halter and jacket.

LOOKING AHEAD to warm weather, some handbag sheers have been contracted for by store buyers. One is of organza—plaided in lime, lavender and gray—is used for a simple frock, with a deep puff-sleeved flaring the open neckline. Belt is tailored and is of black satin.

THE SHORT HAIR-DO calls for a special line for hats other than the tiny, head-hugging models. Brimmed hats are likely to have a long back and narrow sides. New pillbox wrapped in pale pink veiling is used for a in the brim rising on the crown in the bri nrising on the crown in front.

EXPECTED TO REGISTER well for Spring is the cape, short or long, and also the caplet-jacket. A good travelling cape is panion model of full-length reversible cape, one side in navy wool, the other in navy faille. The cape buttons at the neck, and has a long, swinging scarf, fringed in silk.

FIRST CHOICE for visitors to Southern resorts, when it comes to coats, is the topper in white wool fleeces. Many toppers are quite short, some even above the waist. When the fur is not white, the color is likely to be one of the off-white shades, with pale oatmeal a favorite.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Arms and the woman

Strapless evening gowns still prevail. Neck, shoulders and arms are on exhibition. Hither do not quality, the wearer of the formal falls short of the good-looks grade. Graceful contours and proportions are grand assets, but these areas of the feminine shape could receive concentrate attentions with benefit to appearance.

Now and then the neck may get a quick slathering of cream when the complexion is being treated at the bedtime beautifying hour. More often it doesn't. Shoulders get along pretty well on their own, as far as cutaneous surface are concerned. But the poor arms! Nothing doing! They are subject to goose flesh, rough skin, dingy-grey elbows, despite faithful washing. So here is a few chore to add to your good-looks tasks.

Neck, shoulders and arms should receive more cosmetic attention.

If, after inspection, you find that your arms are no beauty bargain, give yourself a treatment in which some pulchritude claims specialties. The cash customers are delighted with the results.

Begin with a rousing scrubbing with warm soap suds and a bath brush. Rinse and dry. Massage with cocoabutter. Spread it on generously.

Start the treatment at your fingertips, rubbing the cocoa butter into the cuticle around the nails. Thumb your knuckles. With flattened fingers rub from the wrist to the shoulder. Encircle the arm with the thumb and fingers, forming a bracelet, rubbing one way while moving the arm in the other direction. This movement will force the oil into the flesh.

Fill a large tin salt shaker with almond meal. Sprinkle the contents over the arms. Combined with the cocoabutter, it will form a cosmetic pack. A light tapping will press them together.

Wring large turkish towels out of steaming hot water and wrap them around the arms. Repeat half a dozen times. While the last one remains on you will have an opportunity to get through a few chapters of your mystery story.

Wipe away the pack with the moist towels. No soapy washing. You are doing all this at bedtime and, if a little of the oil remains on your skin, so much the better. The skin will be satin smooth, soft as velvet.

Here is an exercise that is excellent for thin arms and fat ones as well as normalizers. Push the fingers in the palm of the hand. Send the hand straight forward, then out at the sides and far back. The movement is like that of swinging a lantern.

WOMAN'S HOSPITAL AUX.

Picton.— Mrs. Beath Morden presided at the February meeting of the Woman's Hospital Auxiliary, which was held at the nurses' residence, with an attendance of 21. The Creed was read in unison, followed by the reports of the secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Pubbico reported that at the sewing meetings held the first and third Thursdays, there was an average attendance of eight.

The hospital visiting committee for 1950 consists of Mrs. G. N. McKibbon, Mrs. S. W. S. Hart and Mrs. Ern Wright. Members decided that a silver mug be presented to the first baby born on New Year's Day, and that every baby born at the hospital should receive a pair of blankets. Mrs. Pubbico will receive the finished bootees.

The annual Easter egg basket will be placed in the agriculture at office, Saturday, April 8th, when those wishing to donate eggs may leave them there. Once again the Auxiliary is planning to hold a tea on Florence Nightingale's day, May 12th. It will be held at the nurses' residence. The hospital will be opened for inspection on that day.

The popular June fete will be held on June 22nd. It was decided that no meeting would be called for March. The members would meet in April, when final plans for the Florence Nightingale tea would be arranged.

Marriage is Easy-- Don't Ask Too Much

New York, March 2—(CP) — Now, girls, he may not be just the man of your dreams, but if you want to be married you can find a husband by following Jo-Ann's recipe for a "superior" one.

That is the word of Dr. Margaret Mead, assistant curator of ethnology at the American Museum of Natural History, who said in a lecture here that "any woman who wants to get married today can find a husband unless she is dead, dumb and blind."

And if he isn't quite her ideal, well "how many men marry a woman who is infinitely beautiful, infinitely educated and has the right kind of relatives?"

Getting married is just as easy for a woman as for a man, said Dr. Mead. But women create crises in their lives by wanting husbands who are superior to them, whereas men are more willing to marry the girl they can get.

If women continue this insistence on superiority in their husband, she added, they will "create a group of men who get awfully nervous if their wives are any good."

Kirsten Sings Free If Stout Provided

London, March 2—(CP)—Kirsten Flagstad, famous Wagnerian soprano, is to sing in London during the 1951 Festival of Britain without pay.

But her contract stipulates: "Board and lodging, including two pints of oatmeal stout daily."

"For this she will sing 20 performances of Purcell's 'Dido and Aeneas' in a drab-looking school hall in rural Surbiton.

Flagstad, who has been known to earn £1,000 (?4,000) in one evening, said she agreed to do this "in return for all the warmth and hospitality I have received in England."

It all began when she met actor Bernard Miles and his actress wife, Josephine Wilson, at a party.

"We both think Wagner is trash," Miles said. "I gave my skit on 'Tristan and Isolde,' making fun of Wagner, as I have been doing for years."

"Flagstad laughed till the tears ran down her cheeks. After that we more or less adopted her."

Flagstad said she stipulated two pints of oatmeal stout a day because "it strengthens me after I have been singing."

"In any case," she added, "I always drink stout when I am in London."

Will Ask Police Probe 'Distress' Calls For Coal

Toronto, March 2 — (CP)— Police will be asked to investigate "distress" calls to the emergency coal distribution centre being set up in Toronto today.

If they find a caller has fuel he will be refused delivery from the distribution centre, H. G. Ratcliffe, a member of the Toronto Coal Exchange said today.

Bell telephone crews, were installing three lines in the downtown centre, the identity of which will be known only by telephone numbers.

Coal supplies in the city were not improved today. "We are getting only two days' supply of coal a week from the United States," said Mr. Ratcliffe. "And no one will go short if householders accept western coal, small size anthracite, coke and briquets on hand.

It was reported the exchange plans to seek an order from Trade Minister Howe making it mandatory to conserve fuel and an offence to hoard fuel if the situation does not improve within the next few days.

PUBLICLY-OWNED

Mr. McEwing, who represents a farming constituency, referred to other problems of rural areas. All school buses should be clearly marked and no vehicle should be allowed to pass them while pupils are alighting, he said.

Buster Cooperman should put on an advertising campaign similar to that waged by margarine producers to promote the sale of their product. There was a "tremendous" sale of margarine which "can't help but hurt the farmer."

Withdraws Remark

Mr. Park charged the Canadian Commonwealth Federation party was exploiting the unemployed by telling them that unemployment was caused by the influx of displaced persons from Europe.

"That is an absolute lie", said J. B. Salsberg, (Lab. - Prog. — Toronto St. Andrew). He withdrew the remark at the insistence of Mr. Park.

Mr. Park suggested establishment of a consumers bureau to "throw the white light of publicity" on alleged profiteering by meat packers. It could also advise consumers about purchases, promote sale of domestic products and advise farmers about the trend of consumer buying habits.

Mr. Villeneuve said the federal government should revise its income tax schedule to compensate farmers for long hours of hard work. Poor working conditions and reduced profits were driving young men from the farms to the cities where they added to unemployment problems.

Mr. Newman called for a highway to link the ore deposits at Atikokan and Steep Rock in Northwestern Ontario with the head of the lakes. Development of the deep-water route—an expenditure of some $70,000,000 in the next few years, he said. The government could not ignore the taxing possibilities of this enterprise.

In his speech Mr. McEwing also said he opposed suggestions by Education Minister Frost for discontinue entrance examinations.

There would be no uniformity in determining standards for entrance to universities. Ontario government grants were depriving local school boards of their autonomy.

Labor and farmers should control the destiny of Canada not foreign markets, Mr. McEwing added. "Once emptied, Canadian prices would have to come down "and if prices are going to come down both labor and the farmer have got to lower their standards a bit."

It was time the highways department restricted weight limits of trucks travelling on highways," he said.

"They're wearing and tearing up our roads."

ASK GOVT.

Must Be Realistic

Then he added:

"Members of parliament must be realistic about the situation today. The absolutely easiest road to the heart of democracy is across the Bering Strait through Alaska, northern Canada and on to the United States."

He hoped that in an External Affairs debate due to start today External Affairs minister Pearson would announce Canada's decision to press for a Pacific pact.

But while preparing for attack from yithout, Canada should also pay attention to the Achilles heel of communism from within. There was need to provide better old age pay allowances, better treatment of veterans and better living conditions for Canadian citizens.

On the economic front, Mr. Macdonnell, former president of the National Trust Company, said that foreign-exchange restrictions are still ing investment and free trade.

He urged Finance Minister Abbott to exercise a "bold" stroke and free the Canadian dollar from all control.

"I am not suggesting that the freeing of the Canadian dollar is going to work any magic, any more than the freeing of the British pound at this moment would work any magic. . .

"All I am asking is what Churchill suggested, that the government get out of the way and let the millions of people who want to buy and sell to each other exercise their initiative, energy and ingenuity, without being forced to get permits for everything."

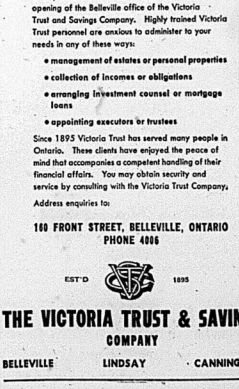
Too Many Immigrants

Mr. Gagnon said that if Canada has 375,000 unemployed today it is because the government had brought in more than 360'000 immigrants since the end of the war. It was "foolish" for the government to bring in immigrants when there were not enough jobs or homes for Canadians.

Mr. Gagnon said that the fear of misery hanging over the heads of workers was becoming a nightmare. They remembered the depression of the 1930s and feared such times were returning.

The government had promised full employment and high income. It had stated it would have public work projects ready for execution in periods of recession. The government apparently did not realize that the recession already was here. It had no solution to offer.

Amendments Only Limited



The recent amendments to the unemployment insurance act were of only limited and temporary help. The time had come to insaugurate public works.

Leon Balcer (PC—Trois-Rivieres) suggested inauguration of public works to relieve unemployment that was having a "disastrous" effect on the economy of his own constituency.

Mr. Balcer said unemployment is increasing despite the optimistic predictions of Trade Minister Howe and Agriculture Minister Gardiner. The situation was getting serious even if the government did not realize it.

Auguste Maltais (L—Saguenay) disagreed with people claiming Canada is in the midst of an economic crisis. There was some unemployment here and there across the country, but he was confident the situation would correct itself. Possibly things would not return to the prosperous conditions known after the war, but they would return to "normal".

Mr. Maltais also disagreed with those who suggested that Canada accept sterling in payment for Canadian goods. "It would be simply another way of giving millions to a Socialist country that appears to want to die."

Tweed Evens Playoff Series With Madoc

By WALLY MOFFAT

Tweed—Tweed's erratic Green Shirts blowing hot and cold all through the play-offs, tied the best-of-five finals in the Hastings Addington League at one game apiece by edging Madoc 6-5 in a fast-moving, hard-fought battle. Madoc won the first game at home Monday night, shutting out the Greenshirts 4-0. The third game will be played in Madoc, Friday.

The game, played before a near capacity crowd in Tweed Arena, was scoreless in the opening frame with both teams testing Carswell a n d Courneyea in the opposite nets. The only breakaway came when Nutt of Madoc broke right in on Stan Courneyea, who slid into the shot to make a great save. The period ended without scoring or penalties.

But things changed abruptly, as Carswell, unbeaten in the series, spent a busy second period digging pucks out of his net. Before the period was a minute old Spike Meraw sizzled a long one from the side on Clifton Cotton's pass. Joe Courtney made it 2-0 on a sparkling solo effort at 2:40. Thirty seconds later Don Sherry banged Joe Courtney's rebound through a mass of legs past an amazed and slightly bewildered Carswell. At 8:10 it was Joe Courtney again to make it four in a row for the goal-hungry Tweedsters. At 8:32 the onslaught closed with Spike Meraw scoring his second on a pass from Bob Maynes. Madoc seemed to get a hold of themselves, and fought back to make it 5-2 before the period ended. Glen Nichol cashed at 12:23 on a pass from "Bogey" Alexander and Smith scored from Baker at 15:37. Meraw, Sherry and Lister were all thumbed for minor offences.

The fighting Madocers reaged back, and came close to tieing the over-confident Tweed crew. Keller scored from the corning face-off with a high shot that fooled Courneyea all the way. At 6:15 Tiny Rivers broke into the clear to beat Carswell, with Spike Meraw assisting. But Keller again, from Nickol, made it 6-4 and put the visitors back in the game. Putting on a last-minute drive, Madoc pulled to within one goal of tying it up when Lister scored at 19:48. Playing six forwards, the visitors tried desperately to tie it up, but time ran out on them.

Teams:

Tweed — goal, Courneyea; defence, Gehan, Cotton; centre, Maynes; wings, Rivers, Meraw; subs, Sherry, Reid, J. Courtney, Orr, B. Courtney, Graham, Fobert.

Madoc — goal, Carswell; defence, Lister, Baker; centre, Keller; wings, Nichol, Alexander; subs., Smith, Tufts, Reynolds, Thompson, Crawford, E. Carswell

Monday night at Madoc, the home crew won the first game of the best three-of-five finals, with a convincing 4-0 victory over Tweed Greenshirts. "Bucky" Carswell proved the stumbling block for the visitors, as he turned aside shot after shot to gain his first shutout of the year. A crowd of 400 saw Madoc score twice in the first and add one in each of the second and third periods. The rough game saw 7 penalties handed out by referee Bill Bagley of Tweed. Only a major to Doug Tufts for fighting, and one each by Lou Alexander and Lister scored the Madoc goals, while Glen Nickle got two assists.

Car Dept. Defeats Yardmen 4-1 to Even CNR Series

Led by the three goal "hat trick" performance of right-winger "Red" Culkin, the Car Dept. evened the best-of-five CNR Interdepartmental Hockey League championship game each by defeating the defending champion Yardmen by a score of 4 to 1 at the Memorial Arena Thursday night.

The Carmen took the lead in the first period when Nolan scored on Lockyer's pass. The Yard team notched the count early in the second when Ethier scored on a screened shot. "Red" Culkin, assisted by Nolan put the Car Dept. one up just before the end of the period. In the third stanza, Culkin notched his second counter of the night with Nolan again supplying the assist and with just seconds to go, Culkin completed the "hat trick" unassisted.

Culkin, Nolan, Sharpe and Foojo were tops for the Car Dept. while Ethier, Hull and Ronsky looked best for the Yardies.

The game was cleanly played throughout with only nine minor penalties being handed out by Referee Pete Morgan and Don Flindall.

The lineups: Car Dept.; Foote, Taylor, Sharpe, Storms, Pope, B. Nolan, Culkin, Lockyer, Shortts, DeGeorea and Mattis.

Yardmen: Boyle, Rogers, Ethier, Little, Carson, Hull, W. Nolan, Ronsky, B. Nolan, H. Pope and MacDonald.

Six Canadian Indoor Records Broken at Meet

Toronto, March 3 — (CP) — The name of Silas Worthington doesn't show in the record books, but it wouldn't take much urging on the part of 1,000 or so spectators at Thursday night's Eastern Canada indoor track and field meet to put him in a place of honor. The 19-year-old Hamilton youngster deserved it.

He didn't set the asphalt flooring of the Toronto Armories on fire with his speed, but his effect was good enough to give him an upset victory over Toronto's Gordon Crosby, the hurdling policeman who represented Canada at the recent British Empire Games at Auckland, N. Z. Crosby is the Canadian hurdler champion, but he had to take a second spot behind Worthington in the 50-yard event over the sticks.

The indoor meet, held for the first time in Toronto in 14 years, saw six Canadian indoor records broken — two by Amerieans.

The disappointment of the meet was a minister from Illinois Theological School — Rev. Ben Richter, the pole-vaulting parson. He was expected to soar into the "heavens" [illegible] 14 ft., but he failed by an even 12 inches.

"Daggnab, I'm sorry," was all the frowning parson said as he failed to clear the bar at 14 feet five inches. A 4-foot jump was one foot, three inches better than the Canadian record set by Vic Pickard of Hamilton some 20 years ago.

Open Two Mile to U.S.

The other Canadian indoor record which went to the U. S was the open two-mile event taken by Fortune Ross, 1943 American Olympic athlete from Villanova University, Philadelphia. He did it in nine minutes, 40.6 seconds, more than four seconds faster than the old record.

Big Bob MacFarlane, medical student, football player and middle-distance runner from the University of Western Ontario at London, pulled up with a record-breaking performance in the 600-yard final. His time of one minute, 15.3 seconds was 8/10 seconds better than the mark set by Matt Saunders of Montreal in 1947.

Two records went to Hamilton — a clocking of one minute 8.5 seconds by Ken Dafoe of the Hamilton Olympic Club in the under 300 pounds and the junior 50-yard dash won by Don McFarlane of McMaster University with a timing of 5.5 seconds.

Bethel-Zion And Glen Ross Win First Games

Frankford — Glen Ross and Bethel – Zion won the first round of the Frankford District Hockey League playoffs, ironically enough by the same 7-5 count on the two games, goals to count each.

In the opening game of Tuesday night's double header, a fighting Foxboro team defeated Bethel – Zion 3-2, but were unable to overcome the three-goal deficit from the first game, which the Combines won 5-2. Sheffield Percy Priest and Martin were the Foxboro goal-getters, while Ted Ray and Tummon were the marksmen for B-Z. Gord Priest played an outstanding game in the Foxboro net, and in the words of some of the Bethel – Zion players, "He's the hardest goalie we've had to beat this year."

Bethel – Zion — Goal, Robson; defence, L. Ray, G. Tummon; centre, A. Tummon; wings, T. Ray, F. Ray; alternates, V. Dickey, G. Dickey, J. Clark, D. Sills, Cronkwright, Gifford.

5. Foxboro, Martin (Gray, Sheffield) 17:22
Penalties: None.

Glen Ross 3, Frankford 3

Most outstanding feature of the second game of the playoff double header Tuesday night was the fact that thirteen penalties were levied by referee Munn, holding what threatened to turn into a free-for-all at any minute, to a fairly respectable game of hockey.

Frankford team, two goals down on the series, fought back hard, and succeeded in tying the record at five goals each in the second period. However, late in the third period, Doug Pyear broke away when Frankford had every man up, and raced in to bang home the winning goal. Two minutes later, Len Sills made sure of it, as he scored on a similar breakaway, to tie the game at three all, which was the final score.

Glen Ross — Goal, Lawes; defence, H. Hearns, B. Hearns; centre, Russ Sills; wings, Pyear, Ulman; alternates, Carlisle, L. Sills, Phillips, Mountenay, Hubble, Wilson, Rose.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

When the playoffs come can protests be far behind. And like referees some are good and some are bad.

Oshawa real "Soup" Campbell wrote the other day:— Latest, of course, is the Belleville protest. They officials protested to the O. H. A. because Bentz and Jimmie Claus in goal here Saturday night. Claus was the Jr. "B" goalie in this year but was used by the Generals when their sub-goalie Hewlie had torn knee ligaments and Crouch came down with an attack of the mumps — and there wasn't another Junior "A" team who had a spare goalie available, due to illness, etc. O. H. A. gave Claus official permission to return to "B" each time it was needed. Belleville Rockets mission to return to "B" each time it was needed. Belleville Rockets learned this and withdrew the protest—but now they have protested that Goalie Hurst is ineligible. Yep! The Rockets are crapping at a mighty slim straw."

Right, "Soup" us'ed. The Rockets had gone down twice and came up gasping when they spotted the straw so helpfully thrown in their path by the Bees "master-minds". Ever since you penned the above lines, the "slim straw" has developed into a load of hay, one, that might change the whole complex of the Junior "B" setup.

The OHA upheld the Belleville protest re Goalie Hurst, who returned to the hockey wars after being carzied for repairs to his health. We are not too well versed in the arts and wiles of debating room or committee room strategy, but it seems to us that the Oshawa mentors pulled a "boner" when they allowed Hurst to play after they had won the first game. The Rockets protest re Claus was not worth the paper it was written on since Panter et al of the OHA had given Oshawa the official green light to use the lad. But, when the Oshawa mentors sent Hurst back in the second game, they were playing right into the hands of the Rockets and the Cook-Cowley organization lost no time in taking advantage of the "slim straw" thrown their way.

So the second game is now null and void and the youthful "B" goalie is back in net next Monday night in Memorial Arena. The third game, if necessary will be played in Oshawa Wednesday night. And can you play hockey than they did against the Oshawa "Bees" in their second meeting, and after what has happened in the hockey world in the space of life, so to speak, the beardless Hawks will be out there to grab the laurels come Monday evening.

SMALL STUFF

Speaking of pleasure protests, the coach of the Peterborough Intermediate team, during the game against the Belleville Meteors here on Tuesday night, bowled to high heaven. Before the game was over only about half of Coach Schrieder (Meteor's goalie) was wearing. The Petes masterminded claimed the sleeve of a "sweater" in it between the shoulder and the main part of the article. The mitt in question is a brand new one, purchased by Coach Eddie Schrieder for his son, and is a bona-fide goalkeeper's mitt according to regulations. It appeared that Gary stopped a hot Peterborough drive with his glove and the puck went sailing to the webbing. Hence the Peterborough squawk. What next? And all the "kids" it seems, are not out there playing hockey.

BANTAMS AHOY!

The management of the Bantam Hockey League announce today that no activities will take place in Memorial Arena on Saturday (tomorrow) morning, the Toronto Maple Leafs entertaining next Saturday morning when the Bantam League will resume regular operations. It is felt that you kids should be at your playing hockey until weather or other circumstances prevent it. Remember, no hockey tomorrow morning.

WANNA BET

Those rampaging Kingston Nylons, it appears, are definitely intent upon sweeping from their path anything in the nature of a hockey team that has the effrontery, gall, to attempt to bar the way. Wednesday night, they continued their unbeaten streak along the playoff trail, turning back the powerful Peterborough Legion by a 4-2 score. Tonight the teams clash in Peterborough and taking everything into consideration, it would be no severest test the Limestone lads have faced as yet. If they happen to knock off the Legion, the laddies tonight they will be sitting pretty in the 4 of 7 series. But if they do, they'll know they've been in a hockey game. Personally we wouldn't be surprised to see the phenomenal winning streak of the crafty Nylons brought to an abrupt halt. These Legion lads are a powerful crew in themselves and in their own back yard they'll be all out to even the series.

VALLEYFIELD WINS AGAIN

Shawinigan Falls, Que., March 3 (CP)—A pair of goals by speedy Jackie Schmidt in the third period gave Valleyfield Bears a 4-3 victory over last-place Shawinigan Falls Cataracts here Thursday night in a Quebec Senior Hockey League game seen by 1,000 fans.

The victory had no effect on Valleyfield's fifth place in the league standing.

Jean Paul Bisaillon and Andre Corriveau scored the other Valleyfield goals while Johnny Horeck, Hal(Bucky) Buchanan and Jack Carthy notched the Shawinigan counters.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Doug Bentley of Chicago Hawks two goals helped the Black Hawks to a 5-2 victory over Montreal Canadiens. The goals brought his total to 202 in his N.H.L. career.

NOTHING AT STAKE

Sherbrooke, Que., March 3 — (CP)—Sparked by rookie Reg Sinclair and defenceman Vinct the league-leading Sherbrooke Saints trounced Chicoutimi Sagueneens 7-2 Thursday night in a Quebec Senior Hockey League fixture before a slim crowd of 800.

The game had no effect on the standings. Sherbrooke having clinched the first-place spot and Chicoutimi remaining in sixth place.

Ray Barry, Fernand Gladu and Norm Corriveau assisted Sinclair Sherbrooke goals while Georges Roy and Claude Robert were the Chicoutimi marksmen.

Last Place Chicago Black Hawks Won't Say Die, Wallop Montreal Canadiens

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Coach Charlie Conacher couldn't make a championship contender out of the material he acquired when he took over the leadership of Chicago Black Hawks. But he certainly turned them into a fighting team.

Conacher, former fiery forward of Toronto Maple Leafs, and his "never-say die" Hawks walloped Montreal Canadiens 5-2 Thursday night, spoiling Montreal's chances of taking sole possession of third place in the National Hockey League.

The game had virtually no effect on the standings. Detroit leads by nine points over Toronto, with Montreal and New York still tied for third another five points back. It didn't make much difference either to the two clubs that appear doomed to miss the Stanley Cup playoffs. Boston in fifth place still is five games behind New York and Chicago is another game and a half behind Boston.

Doug Bentley scored twice Thursday night, to raise his lifetime N.H.L. total to 202 goals, Bep Guidlin, Jim Conacher and Pryal also scored for Chicago, Maurice Richard, with his 23rd goal of the season and Kenny Mosdell did the scoring honors for Canadiens.

Durnan Injured

Montreal's veteran goalie Bill Durnan received a scalp cut early in the final period. He was diving in an attempt to deflect a shot from Conacher. Conacher's skate caught him high on the forehead. The game was held up 10 minutes while several stitches were made.

Coach Dick Irwin of the Canadiens said at Chicago that neither he nor Ken Reardon had so far received a penny of the $1,000 fine plastered on Reardon by N.H.L. president Clarence Campbell.

Ken Reardon told Chicago sports writers that all he knew was what he'd read in the newspapers. He joked that "I have no comment until I talk to my lawyer." Neither Reardon nor anyone else would discuss the fine, imposed for threats Reardon made against Cal Gardner of Toronto in an article in a United States sport magazine. The fine may be repaid to Reardon on application when he retires from the league.

Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Maurice Richard of the Montreal Canadiens scored a goal against Chicago Black Hawks Thursday night to bring his season's total to 33 and give him sole possession of fourth place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Doug Bentley of Chicago and teammate Metro Prystal are tied for the last spot of the big-seven ladder with five points each. Bentley scored two goals against Montreal and Prystal one. The Montreal-Chicago game was the only scheduled fixture last night.

Detroit's Ted Lindsay continues to hold down the top spot with 62 points while his teammate Sid Abel is second with 55. Another Detruiter, Gordie Howe is third with 35. Richard follows with 33 points behind and Paul Ronty of Boston dropped to fifth with 31.

Buffalo Bisons Now Assured Of First Place

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons added a single point to their first place lead in the American Hockey League's eastern division Thursday night by playing to a 3-3 draw with New Haven Ramblers. The Bisons now lead the second-place Providence Reds by 12 points and are practically assured of the league title.

New Haven took a 2-0 lead in the initial period on goals by Jean -Paul Lamirande and Fern Perrault but the Bisons came back with three straight counters before Sherm White tied the score one more late in the third period. Murdy McKay, Les Hickey and Paul Meger were the Buffalo marksmen.

Springfield Indians pushed in four goals in the third period to earn a 6-3 victory over Hershey Bears. Ken Richter led the Springfield attack with a pair of goals while Doug McCurdy, Bill Sullivan, Ralph Casazza and Billy Gooden fired one apiece. Frank Porteous got two of the loser's markers and Mark Marquess the other.

Providence Capitals downed Providence Reds 5-2 in the only other game on the schedule. Selzisal paced the Caps offensive with two goals while Pat Lundy, Gordie Haley and Joe Dewsbury fired the others. Eddie Sullivan and Chuck Scherza connected for the Reds.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, March 3 — (AP)— No. 1 laugh getter on the boxing circuit these days is Rocky Graziano of Vic Marsillo's Feb. 29 date at St. Nick's . . . Seems Vic insisted on getting some of his fighters on the St. Nick's card in February and matchmaker Teddy Brenner told him "Okay on the 29th." It was then Vic learned that Vic became suspicious and looked at a calendar . . . No. 2 item is the fact that Willie Pep, at the can of Italian descent, and the Frenchman, Ray Famechon, will fight in the Garden St. Patrick's night — and with the Irish fighters that are among the best in Training Camp Quotes

Like nearly all Hawaiians, Herman Clark, 250-pound tackle for Oregon State University, is a better-than-fair swimmer . . . But after working out a few days last with the swimming team, he decided the time could be spent more profitably on his studies . . . Then he was occupying a couple of seats in the stands for the season's first big meet against Oregon last month when some of the lads persuaded him to try the 50-yard free style . . . Herman missed the pool record by one eight-tenths of a second in winning, so now they can't get him in the water.

Guelph Biltmores Defeat Teepees In Fifth Game

(By TheCanadian Press)

It's one down and plenty to go for Guelph Biltmores today.

Biltmores, a darkhorse gang which finished fourth in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" standings, last night knocked up their quarter-final series in the fifth and deciding game.

They gained a clan cut 5-2 victory over St. Catharines Teepees and won the best-of-five series 3-2—first step in their fight for the Canadian Allan Cup senior Cup.

Today coach Alfie Pike's charges are standing by to take on either Toront St. Michael's College Majors or Barrie Flyers in the semi-finals. The Majors and Flyers now are tied in their best-of-five series.

Biltmores have plenty of trouble with the Teepees. They won the first two games 6-4 and 5-2, and then dropped the next two 4-3 and 5-1.

The Teepees failed to come up with the same performance they produced during their two victories. Last night they managed only to get a goal in the first period and one in the second.

Andy Bathgate paced the winners with two goals, while brother Frank, Bruce Hoffman and Herb Dickenson got singles. Jack Mcintyre and Jack Bowman accounted for the St. Catharines goals.

Teepees Ahead Early

Boone gave Teepees a 1-0 lead at 517 seconds of the first period, while Mcintyre added a Teepee goal-mouth pass. Theberge tied it up at 5:19 and Andy Bathgate blasted in the odd goal at 6:08.

Biltmores made it 4-2 at 2:41 of the second. Teepees couldn't beat netminder Porky Douglas until the 15:24 mark when McIntyre counted on a backhander.

Frank Bathgate and Dickenson finished off the scoring in the third period and held the defeated Teepees at bay until the final bell.

The Flyers resume their series with St. Michael's tonight in Barrie—in the only schedule Junior game.

In the senior 'A' loop, Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen take on the tough Toronto Marlboros in a do-or die effort at Toronto. A win for the Dukes will eliminate the Dutchmen from the round-robin, semi-final series and pave the way for Marlboros to take on Hamilton Tigers.

From the Hamilton camp comes word that star Bobby Laurent, whose sparkling play has kept the Tigers on an even keel, this season may be available for Saturday night's game against the Dutchmen.

The hard-hitting defenceman was injured in Wednesday night's clash against the Dutchmen. It was feared that he suffered a fractured collar bone.

PRESTON CONSTABLE RESIGNS

Preston, March 2 (CP)— Constable Herbert Payne resigned Wednesday after admitting to the police commission he had been in possession of stolen goods.

Payne said he received the goods when off duty and had not had a chance to return them the owner before he was apprehended.

He was suspended a week ago for "conduct unbecoming an officer."

Suzanne Morrow Arrives by Air For Skating Meet

(By The Canadian Press)

"I'll just be in there skating" said blonde, petite Suzanne Morrow of Toronto when she arrived in London by air Thursday for the world skating championships. "It'll be interesting to see if I place well."

That non-committal remark sums up the attitude of Canada's figure-skating team for the world championships at Wembley rink at London March 6-8. They will be trying their hardest — but they promise no victories in advance.

The quietest of the lot is soft-spoken Roger Wickson of Vancouver, Canadian men's senior champion. He has been practising in London every day this week, but in dual London sports writers haven't been able to pry more than a few words out of him.

Those few words add up to Roger, 21-year-old commerce sophomore at the University of British Columbia, being eager to get into competition.

Not much more vocal were Marlene Smith of Niagara Falls, Ont., and her fiance, Don Gilchrist of Toronto Canadian champions and the Dominion's entry in the world pairs competition.

"We haven't watched the other competitors go through their routines from beginning to end yet" said Don. "We can't tell how we'll stack up from just watching them in bits and pieces."

He and Marlene have been practising every day this week too. They plan to taper off a bit before the tournament opens Monday.

The Maritimes Amateur Hockey Association Thursday night suspended all players of the Moncton Hawks Senior Hockey Club until definite action is taken against several of them who refused to play in an exhibition game.

Secretary Gene Connolly said evidence would be taken from club and players chairman and a recommendation will be made to the C.A.H.A. on possible suspensions.

Connolly said possibly "five or more" players would receive suspension of two years or more. He declined to name any players.

The players were suspended when several refused to play against Sydney Millionaires without a bonus.

University of Toronto Blues Thursday at Toronto won the Intercollegiate Intermediate hockey title by blasting Waterloo College 20-0. It was Varsity's fifth straight title.

Al Conboy, Pete Gawinski and John Lickley paced the Toronto attack with four goals each. Varsity netminder Garry Carl had little trouble chalking up his shutout, although he handled a few hard shots in the last period.

A substitute team from London eliminated Sarnia Polymers in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior B playoffs Thursday night at Sarnia 11-7 in the second game of a best-of-three series. London took the first game at home.

A London city league team was pressed into the playoffs when the original entry, London Majors folded.

Two Chicago brothers Thursday filed a $20,000 damage suit,

Training Camp Briefs

(By The Associated Press)

Manager Billy Southworth says he has all the confidence in the world that Johnny Sain will have a fine year on the mound for Boston Braves, and to make it unanimous Sain shares the confidence.

Tough breaks had a lot to do with Sain's indifferent 16-17 record last-year after his fine 24-15 performance in 1948. Southworth insists at the Braves' Bradenton, Fla., training camp.

"He just had a lot of bad luck. Balls were falling for cheap hits, and sometimes the support was not too good."

Johnny Mize, the big first baseman who hurt his shoulder last season shortly after the Yankees obtained him from the Giants, still feels weakness in his throwing arm.

Mize waved his arm Thursday at the St. Petersburg camp to show he could move it but said the arm is weak. And Thursday night, after throwing with it for batting .284.

charging they were clubbed with a hockey stick by Leo Gravelle of Montreal Canadiens while watching a National Hockey League game in the stadium Nov. 2.

The suit was brought by Anthony Scornavacco, 30, and his brother, John. Named as defendants are Gravelle, the Canadiens and the stadium.

Outfielder Dick Wakefield left New York Yankees' camp in a huff Thursday because the club offered a contract recorted to call for $17,500 a year. Wakefield's attorney then motored back to Lakeland, 60 miles away, where he indicated he will remain until the Yankees give him better terms.

The addition of Frank Ryan, Boston Bruins' publicity director for 28 years, to that National Hockey League club's board of directors was announced Thursday by President Weston W. Adams.

Central Cigar Wins 7 Points From Electronics

The only seven-point winner in the Major "A" League at the Bowl-O-Drome last night was Central Cigar who defeated the Electronics 2-1.

Five point winners were Callaghan Tire and Belleville Golf from Moore's Chiselers and Lawn Bowlers.

In the other game Tobe's County Gardens took four points to Northern Electric's one.

Leading the individual keglers was Jim Semark 302 (323), followed by Art Legault 768 (338), Harry Kemp 750 (287), Jack Callaghan Tire 723 (307), Frank Mulvihill 722 (303), Tom Caton 719 (311), Ken Pennock 711 (271), Jim White 699 (276), Harry Ridley 694 (250), Sam Halbert 687 (254), Charlie Marriott 665 (335), and Ernie Colbourne 654 (267).

Electronics (0)	2922
Callaghan Tire (5)	2771
Moore's Chiselers (2)	3255

Rockets Will be At Full Strength For Game Monday

Manager Bill Cook and his coach Dan Cowley are keeping their fingers crossed until Monday night.

At least five of the Rockets Juniors have a tough battle ahead of them over the weekend before they begin the battle of the Bees (Oshawa that is) here on Monday night.

Four of the five, Jud Samark, Bill Strahan, Ernie Trimble and Jack Murphy are down on their backs in bed, while Paul Delaney only started getting about again this morning. Three more of the Cook-Cowley clan Bob Tripp, Don Hogan and Fred Pletsch have been on the verge with the sniffles for the last two days.

But with Dr. Austin Walters on deck and taking his turn at overtime the Rockets are expected to be at full strength when they meet the Bees in the most talked about game of the season. For if the Rockets ever roared they have to blast right through from the start-off this time. There will be no coming back for another chance if they lose on Monday night.

As the saying goes opportunity only knocks but once. The Rockets have had their breck it is up to them to take full advantage of it and wipe the Bees out of further competition. They took the Bees three out of four times in regular league play, it should not take any trouble for them to repeat their earlier effort.

The Bees will be due when the Rockets must apply themselves. It is up to them if a championship comes to Belleville this year.

'Local Option' Basis For Issue Of Sunday Sport

Toronto, March 3 (CP)— The Ontario government is reported unofficially to be considering legislation which would enable municipalities to decide the Sunday-sport issue on a "local option" basis. There is no confirmation from official sources.

Premier Frost could not be reached Thursday night for comment on newspaper reports that it is intended to introduce such legislation at the current session of the legislature.

Attorney-General Porter said he knows of no such proposal but "supposes" that people are guessing.

The daily Star said Thursday it learned that the legislation "will not just deal with the specific case of Toronto and Windsor, where a majority of citizens have already voted in favor of Sunday sport."

It would be permissive legislation the Star said, providing that any municipality may have Sunday sport following a "local option" vote. Full power would be given to individual municipalities to control such sports.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By LORNE FRAME
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 3 — (CP) — Will the high salary scale in so-called amateur sport finally choke it out of existence? Jack (London Free Press) Park poses that question in a discussion of the salaries paid to performers in Eastern Ontario's top - ranking Intercounty Baseball Association.

"It is almost impossible to arrive at what one could call an average salary," Jack writes, for players display their wares for sums varying all the way from $50 a month to the $500 a month Gusour Ray in Galt claims some of his players drew last year.

"We don't think we would be too far off the mark if we said that on the average, the better players in the league draw down monthly pay cheques of something like $200."

Jack says the best information available is that $200 a month is a "fair" salary for a class 'B' professional ball player in this area.

"To the best of our knowledge the only ball player who entered pro ball from the Intercounty in the past few years, who hit class B or better, was London's Tim Burgess."

At the best, the Intercounty is no better than a class C league, Jack says.

"As a matter of fact, we don't believe that four players on each team in the circuit could consistently draw class B checks which, by the way, average $250 per month.

"Many players in the league hold down year-round jobs besides their ball-playing chores. If said jobs nets him, for instance, $175 per month, this sum, plus his baseball earnings, gives him close to $500 per month. You don't get that kind of dough even in class 'A' ball, so it is little wonder that so many American players look upon the Intercounty as a happy hunting ground."

Jack doesn't want anybody thinking he's opposed to ball players getting "all the traffic can bear." Here's his "real reason" for saying what he does:

"Many years ago, down in the Maritimes, senior hockey was built up to a terrific peak. Older fans probably still recall the feats of teams like the Moncton Hawks and the Sydney Millionaires. Those clubs cost much more than the cities they represented could afford and eventually the bottom dropped out. The Maritimes haven't had an Allan Cup contender since."

"We were in Eastern Ontario when the St. Lawrence Amateur Baseball League got big ideas. Players were brought from all over . . . and finally the boom killed out many of the smaller towns. Salaries got so much out of hand that the sponsors called a halt and banded together to form the Class C Canadian-American League. They let out all the amateurs, the honest-to-goodness pros could be hired much cheaper.

"The same thing could happen in the Intercounty. One team has already threatened to quit and others will soon follow unless salary limits are cut. This is a serious problem and both players and management should give it much thought before a real blow up takes place."

Virden, Man. (CP) — Edna Sararas has a novel hobby — collecting salt and pepper shakers. She now has more than 400 pairs from different parts of the world. The most prized pair is 60 years old, and was given to Miss Sararas' mother when she was 10 years old.

What happens to a deal in a duplicate match is often too much to believe. Take the tournament deal shown here:

NORTH
♠A Q 6 4
♥K 7 3
♦K 7
♣10 9 8 3

WEST — EAST

♠10 — ♠K 7 2
♥A Q 10 9 5 — ♥8 4 2

♣A K J 6 5 — ♣7

SOUTH
♠J 9 8 5 3
♥7 6 4

♣Q 4 2

The bidding should go like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 H	Pass	2 S
Pass	3 C	Pass	4 H
Pass	4 C	Pass	4 H

It belongs in four hearts and makes five, losing only to spade ace and trump king. Two tables went to five diamonds. One of these went down with loss of a spade, a heart, and a trump.

The other took the needed 11 tricks. North had trick one with spade ace. His spade return went to east king. Dummy ruffed a third spade. East trump ace took the north jewel of west diamond queen.

The lone club was led from east. He made the daring play of finessing west club jack it held and on the two top west clubs, east calmly shed two of his hearts. He later lost a trump.

It may seem fantastic to try such a play; that is, finessing the club jack. But on second thought it is not so dangerous. It is no more dangerous than taking the heart finesse. Or is it?

Coming back to the bidding, there is no doubt that the opening by west should be one heart. Not an opening of two in a suit. To open with a bid 4f two in a suit a player should have nine tricks.

Some east players would feel going to the higher level of two without more big card strength. This is a mistake. Not only has east enough for one raise. He has enough for a later raise, too.

One point in this bidding raises a question? Should west jump on the second round? And what keeps the horizontal pair from probing for slam? Does something warn them? Or do they smell it?

Sir Harry Reaches 'Happy Abode'

Hamilton, Lanarkshire, Scotland, March 3 (Reuters) — Sir Harry Lauder, the man with the kilt and the knobbly stick, reached the end of the road here Friday.

In the words of his famous song, the world-famous Scottish comedian reached his "Happy Abode" at a quiet public funeral service near the grimy coal-mine where he started life as a pit-head boy more than 60 years ago.

The boy who lived to become famous for his humor and his songs and, was beloved by millions throughout the world, died at his home at nearby Strathaven last Tuesday.

He was 79 and had been ill since last summer.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Marth 3 (AP) — A rose is a rose is a rose to readers of Gertrude Stein. To starlet piper Laurie it's a tasty tidbit.

A swain would be "daffodil" to lend a corsage to the 14-year-old actress. She'd be likely to eat it.

Piper's flower-eating habits were uncovered during a 'Louisa' scene, in which Edmund Gwen mixes a marigold salad. The rest of the cast was surprised to hear of such a dish.

"What's so amazing about that? the starlet asked. "I've been eating flowers for years."

"I didn't put much stock in the report until I met the girl at lunch. She assured me that any man, woman, orchid would relish certain flowers.

"They're delicious," she said. "Take gardenias, for example. They're my favorite. They have a nice, leafy taste, something like lettuce but much sweeter. I eat gardenias plain; most other flowers I eat in salads."

Lois of Vitamins

"Are you 'cereus'" I asked.

"Certainly," she answered. "What's more, a doctor told me flowers have lots of vitamins."

I "eater" how she got started on her blossom-nibbling jag.

"It started when I was a kid in Dutchess county, N. Y. I loved lilacs. One day I wondered if they tasted as nice as they smelled. So I went out in the back-yard and tasted some. They were delicious."

Soon her "tulips" were tasting all kinds of blossoms.

"I love rose roses," she rhapsodized. "They have a very delicate flavor. Violets are nice too."

Our luncheon turned out to be a "daisy," Robert Balzer local gourmet, was there to mix up a marigold salad. It was he who suggested using the salad in the script.

He recited an old French salad saying, which I thought was a "dandelion":

"He a miser with vinegar, s spendthrift with oil, judicious with pepper, a light hand with salt and a madcap with the mixing."

Denounces Fuzzy Mphites

For the greatest appeal in a nightgown, advises designer Milo Anderson, avoid frills and feathers, buttons and bows.

A few months ago, Gloria Grahame created a sensation by sleeping in the raw in a movie scene, claiming that is the best way to slumber. Since he is in the business of clothing women, Anderson naturally doesn't agree with Miss Grahame. But he announces the fuzzy night-clothes that some women wear.

"A lot of frills and feathers not only interfere with comfortable sleeping," said the designer, "but they also destroy the sex appeal of the wearer by inviting attention to the decoration and ignoring the silhouette.

"I can't possibly see why any woman would want to eclipse her sex appeal by overdoing the styling of her nightwear. Lots of women fail to understand that the plain lines of a simple garment enhance their womanly charms, whereas fancy stuff detract from them."

Tyrone Power is working in Hollywood again, adding a much-needed touch of glamor to the town. He somehow seems to have an exciting quality which most of the new-faced screen lack. Although he is no oldster, Ty could classify as a film veteran. He has been in pictures since 1936.

Eddie Albert is another returnee to the Hollywoods. The wry comedian is back making pictures after a successful run in the Broadway show "Miss Liberty."

Some actors wait all their lives to be in a hit show. Albert got one and left it in the middle of the run.

AT THE CAPITOL — Gregory Peck, centre, in a crucial scene from the Darryl F. Zanuck production, "12 O'Clock High," showing today and Saturday, at the Capitol Theatre. As General Frank Savage, Peck has been largely responsible for hastening the cause of daylight precision bombing during the war's early days of indecision. This sequence shows him cracking under the strain; but not until his job has been done—and done well. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00. Doors open at 12.30.

NETS DUNKED BEFORE SEASON OPENS

Outfitted for spring fishing and with 54 boxes of nets aboard, this tug, Anzac K., sank at night at Port Dover, Ont., dock. Salvage operations are under way to raise it. — Central Press Canadian.

AT THE BELLE — An impassioned romantic moment from 20th Century-Fox's "Prince of Foxes," showing today, Saturday and Monday at the Belle Theatre. Tyrone Power and Wanda Hendrix, here on view, and Orson Welles are the stars of the spectacular romance dealing with the era of the Borgias. The film was entirely photographed in the ancient scenes it depicts, being the greatest American effort yet undertaken abroad.

GALLANT PLUS

Ilford, Essex, England — (CP) — Conductor Fred Maxey sprinted more than one-quarter of a mile in the rain to catch a woman who left her spectacles in his bus. Although unable to find her he was cheered by passengers when he returned dripping wet.

WARTIME GROWTH

At the end of the Second World War Canadian navy personel numbered close to 90,000 men and 6,000 Wrens as compared with 1,774 in 1939.

STARTED IN 1650

The manufacture of hydrochloric acid was first started by an inventor named Glauber in 1650.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Pritty neer all the fellows except me have got a cold, and they are yelling and arguing out in the street, and ma wouldn't let me go out with them on account of I wanting me to catch any of their colds, and I said, G, ma, don't you pity me stuck in the house while the other fellows are all injoying theirselves?

If that's what they call injoyment they're welcome to it, barking and wrestling with heavy colds then they should be in bed, ma said. I dont know what their others are thinking of, allowing them out in this weather, she said. And I said, Well aw G, ma, I dont see why I cant go out a while if I hold by hreth all the time to block the germs.

Are you going to start one of your endless arguments? ma said, and I said, No mam, only the only thing is, ma, they've got colds and their mothers let them go out just a same, and here's me as helthy as I ever was, and I have to stay in. I mere you'd think it wuz to be the other way around, that's all I mern, I said.

That makes just about as mutch sense as your usual arguments, ma said, and I said, But jimminies, ma, I haven't come to the main point yet. The main point is, nobody knows for sure if colds are contagious or not, so here's a perfect chance for me to go and find out, and if I come back with a cold they're contagious all rite and the next time this happens my curiosity will be satisfied and I'll be glad to stay in the house out of the germs, so that'll be one argument you wont have to look fallword to, How about it, ma? I said.

"I'm not lissening and I dont intend to listen, so speak on Macduff, you're talking to yourself, ma said.

Being the end end of the sub-

PICTON

Solicitor Named To Contest Suit With Company

Picton—A by-law was passed at special meeting of Town Council Wednesday to retain B.E. Nourse as solicitor pertaining to the litigation with McFarland Construction Company. A special committee to act in conjunction with counsel was named, members being Carmen Scott, Donald Ward Charles Lewis. Authority was given Mr. Nourse to engage any assistant council necessary.

Councillor Nesbitt McKibbon said he felt it would be a good idea to explore the possibility for out-of-court settlement with the construction company if such a course could be carried out with integrity and honor from the town's standpoint.

Mr. Nourse summarized his opinion on the case. He referred to the original contracts and said the main contract was for $424,-398.83 equipment; contract 35,000; sewer installation $118,619.80, a total of $575,998.63 according to his interpretation.

Mr. Nourse said the town had paid the construction company $502,790.34 and claimed an overpayment to the company of $16,-618.71.

Company Claims

The company claims are revealed in the writ, show $424,398.-34 for main contract; $102,550.00 for laterals; $48,042.11 for equipment a total of $663,361.84. Payments to the company amounting to $521,764.64 were acknowledged and a balance of $71,597 claimed on the sewage installation.

The writ followed a "friendly settlement" of $62,000 offered by the company.

In addition the company asks payment of $75,000 for asphalt paving of Main Street and its connecting links.

Accepts Call

Ellard C. Corbett, B. Th., who has been pastor of Calvary Baptist church for nearly three years, has accepted a call to Briscoe Street Baptist church in London, Ont. He will preach farewell service on March 19th. A successor has not yet been chosen.

During his pastorate here a new church was built and is nearly free of debt. He is continuing his studies for the ministry.

PRESS DEMANDS

"In view of his (Strachey's) past sympathies, it is highly undesirable that he should be responsible for Britain's counter-espionage section."

Sharp Editorial

"He will not command sufficient public confidence in that position," the editorial continued. "The Prime Minister should therefore give recognition to this by removing Mr. Strachey from the war ministry forthwith."

This was a stronger declaration than the earlier standard editorial, which said merely that "strong pressure" would be brought for Strachey's dismissal from the job Attlee appointed him to two days ago. Strachey was food minister in the previous Labor government.

But the Express did not reiterate the Standard's charges that Strachey was an avowed Communist. Its story merely quoted the war minister's book "The Coming Struggle for Power" published in 1936.

In the first book Strachey wrote: "The coming communism can alone render our problems soluble. A working-class dictatorship can alone open the way to Communism..."

The Express then said: "Although the war secretary has never publicly disavowed these statements he may have outlived them."

Strachey was arrested by immigration agents in the United States in 1935, accused of declaring on a lecture tour that he was a communist. He told the press he was not a communist. Immigration authorities dropped the charges of entering the U.S. by uttering false statements when Strachey sailed for Britain on schedule.

Detained In U.S.

Again in 1938 he was detained upon arrival at Ellis Island in New York City after the U.S. consulate-general in London cancelled his visa while he was in mid-Atlantic, declaring it was "convinced that he is a member of the executive committee of the British Communist party." He told reporters at that time:

"I am not and never have been a member of the Communist party or the third international."

Strachey was released two weeks later on bail on condition he agree not to lecture in the United States. Deportation proceedings against him were dropped the following month when Strachey decided to return to Britain.

To the accusation made by the Standard the government retorted:

"These statements are not true. As long as 1940 Mr. Strachey had made it clear that he was in fundamental disagreement with the Communist party of which he has never been a member."

LAKE ERIE FISHERMEN FIND THEMSELVES ON ISLAND OF ICE

A group of fishermen, part of the 200 who were temporarily marooned on Lake Erie ice floes, are shown carrying their boat and returning to the floe to gather up equipment left behind. A 25-mile wind caused the floes to break, marooning the men in areas stretching along the Buffalo lake shore for miles, as the mercury shot up to the 35-degree mark in midafternoon. After a time, the ice reclosed and most of the men were able to make their way to shore unaided. — Central Press Canadian.

Hog Producers Will Institute Own Market

Toronto, March 3 (CP)— The Ontario Hog Producers Association decided Thursday to go into the marketing business.

A director was instructed at the association's annual meeting to start work on organization of machinery to place control of pork prices in their own hands.

The decision, passed in resolution form, is designed also to keep surpluses off the market, thereby guaranteeing themselves highest prices for their products.

George Johnson of Owen Sound said farmers now are at the mercy of packers. Less than 10 per cent of Ontario hogs are sold on the open market today said the remainder are "dumped" direct to the packers, he said.

Dr. J. E. Lattimer, former economic department head at Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., told the convention that price ceilings and post-war contracts have meant $640,-000,000 loss for farmers in the last 10 years.

In other resolutions it requested a 36-cent minimum for Wiltshire sides at seaboard and raised the levy from two to five cents on each hog sold to finance the association.

The swine producers approved a resolution which calls for each county group to send three delegates to Ottawa, along with some representatives of the provincial organization. They would interview members of Parliament to urge support for the demand that the floor price for Wiltshire sides be restored to 36 cents a pound from the present minimum of 32 1-2 cents.

Faith Baldwin

"Does that matter to you too? This hasn't come overnight, Chris, just because Roger drank so much and struck out in resentment, because he dislikes me, or even because of whatever happened between him and Lilla. He thought you perfectly secure, but he knew that he'd hurt you through me. I don't really know why he did it and I don't want to care. But ever since we met the Cotters that night and said you we'd visit them, I have been fighting clear thinking. I was like a child who believes that, no matter what has happened today, tomorrow will be wonderful, tomorrow will bring a miracle. What miracle? My father couldn't come alive again, to be the man he once was, the man I believed him to be—nor would your situation alter. But, no, I had to go on hoping for something, a sea change, a new world. I hadn't grown up. I'm just beginning to, Chris."

After a moment he said, "all right. We'll go back to the mainland together and ill find a job. There'll be something I dare say."

"It has to be here."

"In heaven's name, why?" he asked angrily, wanting to shake her because she was stubborn and ridiculous, wanting to kiss her because she was forlorn and unhappy.

"You belong here," she said.

"I learned that somehow last night. You've lost something here, and it's only here that you'll recover it. This is your own place these people are your own, no matter how you feel about them. It can't just be because a long time ago your father carried someone his family didn't like, and in other ways estranged them. It's something in you. I know you aren't lazy, Chris, I know you are intelligent. I know that you could do many things well, and in some find a great deal of satisfaction. But you won't. You have told me often that you are restless. Perhaps you are, but that's too easy an explanation. Who isn't restless about the war? I don't know what has hurt you," she said slowly. "It can't be just because of Jack and your aunt and uncle, it can't be because of Lilla. At least, I don't think so. Maybe it goes back to a little boy in Paris, whose mother and father had died, who was alone and frightened."

"Will you stop talking like an amateur psychologist!"

"Very well. But if you throw your life away, that's your business, Chris. Only you can't throw mine away too."

He said, looking at her as if he had never seen her before, "let's get this straight, without touches of whimsy. If I don't stay here you will leave me, no matter where I go?"

"Yes."

I must leave him, she thought. Otherwise, we'll go on drifting, and sooner or later we'll wake up, the drifting over, and we'll hate each other....

"When do you intend to go—in that case?"

"Don't look like that, don't be so hard. I'll go to Helen. Last night you said we could sell the jewelry, we could live on it. I won't Chris. It can't buy anything I'd want that way. But I would sell it to buy something which would last .... a training perhaps, for some work for which I might be fitted."

"You could have done that when you came to New York."

"I know." After a moment she said, "I wish I had."

"But the solution was marriage It can be still. There are other men. Do you want a divorce?"

She began to shake and, without volition he put his arm about her. "Don't Terry, don't. And don't cry—please don't cry. I don't know what this is all about or what's got into you, but I do love you."

She was quiet for a moment, except for her weeping. After a while she said "I love you too, but it isn't enough. That's what makes me so frightened and wretched. It just isn't enough. Not the way we've been loving each other. Because that should be only a small part of it—wonderful, but just a part. It's been like having an affair, I suppose. We have built nothing together. we've had nothing to build on or with. Either we stay together and try to do just that or it's no use, none at all."

"You talk like a schoolgirl," he said, and his face burned with anger and an unacknowledged shame for her, for himself. "An affair! Are you out of your mind."

"Not any more. I suppose many marriages begin as an affair," she said drearily, "and then build from that. Some never get any further—those are the people who get divorced or the people who stay together and loathe every minute of it."

"Terry be reasonible. It's all a little too simple. It go to work, the affair becomes a marriage. Is that what you think it would be?"

"No, of course not. But we would have a chance. And our self-respect."

"I haven't lost mine."

"Then you never had it," she said sadly. "I haven't thought much about self-respect until lately. After my father died I was too busy protecting him, I thought. How could I protect him when he had destroyed himself—and I don't mean his death. What had it to do with me, my integrity, my value as a human being? He was my father, I am myself. What he did with his life is ever. No, I suppose I was protecting myself, and not him, I couldn't take it. I couldn't face people, look at me and—" She broke off. "Well," she said "what I do with my life now is up to me, and has just begun."

Terry wailed but Chris did not answer. She looked at him and he was frowning a little, his face remote, closed against her and secret, as a clenched fist conceals emptiness or treasure or is merely a waiting threat.

She said "I'm going to shower, Chris," and got out of bed. Her back ached. She stooped for her slippers, took a toweling robe from a chair and went into the bathroom. The shower functioned this morning but the water was tepid. She let it run over her tired body and then turned the handle to cold. That was better. She gasped, her blood tingled, her fatigue was momentarily dispelled.

She dried herself, put on her robe and sat at the dressing table to brush and arrange her hair. The mirror no longer reflected the miniature moon; it reflected only her face, the olive skin blanched, the eyes heavy and troubled. She looked as plain as was possible for her.

When she returned to the bedroom her face was carefully made up and for the first time in months she had rouged her cheeks slightly.

Chris was standing by the window looking out. He said without turning "Amenly has left, I think."

Now Terry remembered sounds of footsteps and muffled voices in the corridors earlier that morning. They had registered briefly on her consciousness but no more; she had been too intent upon her personal problems.

He added, "I suppose they'll send the boat back for us," turned, looked at her and smiled. His face was a little drawn but for a moment it was open again and familiar. He added "She's worry too much."

But that meant nothing exactly nothing, she thought, as she dressed and heard the shower running next door. And presently Alika tapped on the door and said "I have your tray Mrs. Russell."

Alika was the daughter of the Hawaiian couple whose main duty it was to keep the house in readiness for the family, and who together with Alika and her sister came to help when the Russells were on Nanika.

Terry opened the door, and Alika came in. She was a pretty girl and Terry remembered that in the spring she was to be married. She thought, I wish her luck.

Alika set the tray on a small battered table, as she had done on the previous morning. Later they'd had a big communal breakfast, but today, she remembered, only Cordelia would be downstairs. She asked hesitantly "Is Mrs. Russell breakfasting in her room?"

Alika said, yes. She added that Mrs. Russell, Mr. Jack and Mr. Amenly had left. Her dark eyes were lveiled. She had still been in the house last night after dinner. How much she or anyone else had heard, who could tell? Or what they surmised.

She said "Mrs. Russell says she will be downstairs in half an hour and to ask if you would join her."

On the tray a pot of the strong bitter Kona coffee, and the sweet golden flesh of the papaya, neatly folded in a napkin, sugar and cream. When Chris came out of the bathroom, Terry was standing by the windows, her cup in her hand, and Alika had gone. She was thinking that when you are unhappy beauty is an added burden; she was thinking that she might never see Nanioia again, set in a sapphire sea.

When Chris had dressed he sat down to drink his coffee and eat the fruit with its scattered black seeds of pepsin. He said, "do sit down—the papaya is very good."

"I'm not hungry, Chris. And Alika said your aunt wants to see us presently. The others have gone."

"So?" he pushed back his chair and lit a cigarette. He had not, she noticed, done more than eat a mouthful of the papaya. "What are you going to tell Aunt Cordelia?"

"Not lately. Oh, Chris, Chris," she said brokenly, "as long as we are together, as long as we are really together. . . ."

"For heaven's sake, put down that cup." But it was too late, the cup shook in her hand, the coffee spilled. He took the cup from her and held her again wordlessly. He said "I won't like it, Terry, But I'll do the best I can."

For me she thought, and for a moment was wonderfully happy. But how long would that last? She had given him a choice, yet if he loved her it was not really a choice. He could do nothing else if he loved and wanted her. She was repelled and ashamed to realize the coercion of love, the compulsion, the weapon. It was a form of blackmail, after all. He would stay, he would do as she asked, not because he believed in or recognized a personal necessity, but because she asked it, because in no other way could he keep her with him.

So it would not be enough, she thought, wavering, almost ready to cry, never mind, it's not what I want, it won't work, it can't

Yet it was a chance, their only chance.

She said, when he had kissed her "we mustn't keep your pilot waiting."

Two Youngsters Believed Killed In Lovers' Quarrel

.22 Calibre Rifle Found On Floor of Boy's Room

Toronto, March 4, (CP)— A young girl and her "steady boy friend" died in hospital early today of gun wounds each inflicted with a bullet wounds in the head following what police believe a quarrel.

Beverly Thrush, 16, of York Township, died two hours after her parents found her in 15-year-old George Moore's home on the northeastern outskirts of the city. Moore, Beverly's boy friend, was found on the kitchen floor. He died soon after Beverly.

Police said a .22-calibre rifle was on the floor near the wounded boy. There was no one else in the house when the youngsters were found by Beverly's parents.

The girl's parents, absent on her parents at home, police said. Their conversation ended abruptly and the girl's parents rushed to the Moore home a few doors away. They found the figure of a struggle in the Moore house.

The girl had a kerchief on her head, police said, which the fatal bullet passed. She was wearing her overcoat.

The girl's parents accompanied police to Western Hospital and Georgie's parents to the home when they were notified. They had been out for the evening.

"It's a terrible thing, Beverly's father told a friend a few minutes before she died. "This is just about the end as far as I'm concerned."

Moore's father said he had no idea of what had happened until told by police.

The bullet that killed Beverly, said police, entered at the back of her head: the boy's wound was in the right temple.

ROAD COMPLETION GROUND SUPERIOR URGED IN HOUSE

Toronto, March 3. (CP)—Possibility of Sault Ste. Marie being bombed by Russia necessitates completion of a highway around the north shore of Lake Superior as an evacuation route, T. L. Harvey (CCF-Sault Ste. Marie) told the Ontario Legislature Friday.

Sault Ste. Marie, with its steel industry and naval system, was a strategical centre in the North American defence system and could become "another Pearl Harbor or Hiroshima," he said.

Russia was "the potential attacker," he said, and "high on its list for immediate destruction would be the canal system in the Sault Ste. Marie."

"Should it be necessary to evacuate the population of Sault Ste. Marie we want to get out in a hurry." The best way would be by Highway 17 which is still uncompleted between Montreal River and Schreiber, Ont., a distance of 170 miles.

Most Logical Route

The highway was "the shortest and most logical" route for Ontario's section of the Trans-Canada Highway. It would also develop the area as a tourist attraction and give access to valuable lumbering and railroad industries.

The road would satisfy, "not only a local need, but a national and international need in the completion of an adequate defence system."

NO APPEASEMENT BUT CO-OPERATION TOWARD RUSSIA

Pearson Leads Debate On Foreign Affairs

Ottawa, March 4—(CP)—The government and opposition agreed in the commons Friday that in relations with Russia there should be co-operation—but no appeasement.

In the annual foreign-affairs debate external affairs minister Pearson said that no means of bridging the gap between the world and the east should be rejected.

But, he added, it must be made clear that the democracies are not prepared to buy peace with material sacrifices through which we would weaken our position in exchange for nothing.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the word "appeasement" must go and the Russians must be told that the democracies will not bow to their "vile tyranny." Trade should not be "slowly" deciding about recognition of China's communist government.

The door to co-operation with Russia was left open by Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) external affairs spokesman for the official opposition. He suggested that a special meeting of the United Nations assembly be called for next decks for peace.

Solon Low suggested the U.N. might go so far as to hold a meeting in Moscow.

The question received a mixed reception.

Friday

External Affairs Minister Pearson said some agreement "ought to and let live" could be worked out between the western democracies and Russia.

Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) suggested a special United Nations session to make a final effort to clear the decks for peace.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, urged the government to take the issue of Russia to the United Nations meeting in Moscow.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, urged the government to move slowly on recognition of communist China.

Angus McInnis (CCF—Vancouver East) said raising the standards of living would defeat communism.

Strange Battle on Smai Desert In Temperature of 175 is Recalled

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Military Analyst)

Reminiscence Saturday again and your columnist has been ruminating over strange battles he encountered in two wars.

The story I have in mind is about a unique and awful conflict—the battle of Romani on the blazing Sinai Desert just east of the Suez Canal in August of 1916.

At that time the Suez Canal was a British lifeline to the Far East which was being guarded by General Sir Archibald Murray—a predecessor in chief for the Near East. East of the canal lay Sinai Desert but which formed a natural barrier against a Turkish advance across the Peninsula. Even the most optimistic men thought the desert was impassable to an army.

However, Gen. Murray didn't subscribe to this belief. He established a defensive line to the east of the canal. There the men had to dig trenches in the desert, drifting sand, under a sun which at noontime produced a soil temperature of some 175 degrees.

One day a Turkish and Arab army, partly officered by Germans and Austrians, suddenly appeared from the East and flung itself against the British defences This assault was accompanied by the unbelievable circumstance of a Turkish artillery bombardment. How the deuce could heavy guns be dragged across the desert?

The Turks stuck among the dunes with the fierceness and tenacity which is their famous. British machine guns atop the dunes swept the enemy advance with death.

The battle raged on into the heat of the day. Wounded Turks and Arabs cooked to death on the blazing sands under that terrific sun. Others ran out of drinking water and perished from thirst.

Human flesh could stand only so much. At last 25 hours the Turks gave up and the British interned about 4,000 officers and men. The rest of the invading army lay dead among the dunes.

With the battle over, the British set about to solve the mystery of that artillery. Here is what happened:

There grow, on the Sinai peninsula, a tree which is long and wiry. That was the key to the mystery of the trick.

The Turks perhaps at the instigation of German engineers, did little parallel trenches just far enough apart so that the wheels of a gun carriage would fit into them. These trenches were filled with the spring-like shrubs which formed a perfect track along which the guns ran well.

It was one of the smartest bits of engineering in the war.

Press Attacks on Strachey Embarrass Attlee Regime

London, March. 4 — (CP) — Prime Minister Attlee Fri., held a series of conferences believed to be linked with the tightening of security over Britain's atomic secrets, and spiking attacks against his new war minister, John Strachey.

Among those Attlee met was Strachey himself, who Friday publicly denied he was a communist viewer in 1940 when he redu refused to back Britain's war effort.

The prime minister's longest conference was with Sir Percy Sillitoe, chief of Britain's military intelligence service—MI5. Sir Sitford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, also attended.

It was almost certain Attlee and Sir Percy discussed the seven year leakage of atomic secrets to Russia through the hands of the German-born communist Dr. Klaus Fuchs, who was sentenced Wednesday to 14 years in prison.

This topic also was believed to be the subject of Attlee's talks with Sir John Anderson, wartime Minister of Home Security and later head of the Government's Atomic Energy Administration, until the committee recently was dissolved.

The prime minister's 15-minute conversation with Strachey could well have been confined to accusations during the last two days by the supporters of Lord Beaverbrook that the war minister never had disavowed his communism.

The attacks against Strachey, which the imperialist Beaverbrook Press quoted old pro-communist statements published by him before the war, took on a double meaning in Britain.

With the Labor government holding a majority of only seven votes in the House of Commons, since the British elections, the charges were viewed by the pro-Labor press as the beginning of a Tory campaign to embarrass the Attlee regime.

These issues were further highlighted today by reports in the Daily Herald, Labor, and the Daily Mail Conservative that the British Military Intelligence and the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation are both looking for a second spy.

The Herald, giving no source for its information declared that "British counter-espionage has been working on a theory. Information has been passing to a foreign power since Fuchs ceased operations two years ago.

Czechoslovakia Opens Blast Against Catholic Hierarchy

By NATE POLOWETZKY

Prague, March 4 (AP)—Czechoslovakia's Communist government has threatened new state action in its curb what it described as the anti-state campaign of Archbishop Joseph Beran and his Roman Catholic bishops.

The Minister of Justice, Alexei Cepicka, spokesman minister of Church Affairs, opened a new blast at the Catholic hierarchy, Friday in a speech directed at Archbishop Beran, Primate of Czechoslovakia.

He charged Beran with "working for a long time to spread disruption and incitement."

This latest State attack on the church was preceded by a circular letter from the prelate forbidding Czech priests to attend discussions with government representatives and threatening them with canonical punishment if they accepted government posts without prior approval of the church.

The archbishop's letter, circulated by the bishops throughout the Catholic dioceses of Bohemia is considered illegal.

The government has banned all publication of pastoral letters and seized the church's press.

Beran, who says he has been interned at his palace since Communists seized power, issued a circular letter through his bishops in order to carry on the struggle against the government's campaign to bring the church under its complete control.

The latest orders from the Catholic hierarchy came as a result of the recent government action installing Rev. Jan Dechet as ecclesiastical administrator of the Slovakian Roman Catholic Diocese of Banska Bystrica after ousting Dr. Jan Vojtassak who had been appointed by the church. Vojtassak has been promptly excommunicated from the church for accepting the position.

Seven Persons Listed Missing In Montreal Fire

Montreal, March 4 — (CP) — Seven persons today were officially listed as missing following Montreal's most disastrous conflagration Thursday morning which claimed at least four lives and caused an estimated $1,000,000 damage.

Maj. George Balger, Red Cross field director who conducted a check of all persons in the precincts of the congested, old area Friday night, gave the names of the missing as Mrs. Ida Boyer, Uyeda, Terry Masida, Mrs. Pat Chang, her child Joyce, Gerald Fred Wu, Ling Poy and his wife.

He said that unidentified bodies of two women and a man in the morgue may be three of those named, their removal from a list of persons missing to four. In addition he said there may be also a more unidentified bodies remaining from the Lotus Garden Hotel which was the fire's greatest damage.

Officials here there was still a possibility that persons unaccounted for might have jumped out of windows and taken shelter by friends without reporting to Red Cross emergency headquarters.

The only body identified — of the 64-year-old Mrs. Chang, Chinese, who leaped to his death from the fifth storey.

Eight persons were still reported in hospitals suffering from burns and broken bones.

DERBYSHIRE WOMAN ASKS BAN ON BIRTH CONTROL

Derby, England, March 4 — (Reuters)—Derbyshire women today called for a ban on contraceptive slot-machines in dance halls and taverns. The country branch of the Federation of Women's Institutes at their annual meeting here passed a resolution deploring the ease with which young people had access to these machines.

Vote of Cloture Cuts off Debate On French Bill

Paris, March 4 (AP)— The French National Assembly cut off endless debate on the anti-inflation bill today with a vote of cloture after an all-night, rough-and-tumble filibuster.

The Communists who had been threatening to use the tactic sometimes during the night announced they would attempt a vote of censure against the government. If the motion was carried it would be accepted it would throw out the government of Prime Minister Georges Bidault. Nobody expected it to be accepted.

How strictly the assembly would be able to apply its cloture rule was uncertain. Under it neither the long hours of speaking by Communist deputies who had been trying to block passage of the bill would be permitted. But even the cloture rules permit one man from each party the right to make a brief speech on any section of the bill, and on every amendment as it comes up.

The government majority showed itself determined to keep the deputies in session until they adopt the bill which would increase taxes to finance armament and under the Atlantic Pact.

Earlier Friday night government forces had defeated a communist sponsored motion to adjourn.

Near Riot in Corridors

Government forces had had to cope with two Communist sit-down strikes on the floor of the assembly floor and a near riot in the assembly corridors.

Twice squads of mobile guards-men were called into the Chamber. Once they ousted the Communist, who had entered the rostrum. Later they evicted a Communist who defied the presiding officer's order to leave the Chamber.

BYRNES FOUND NOT GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Judge Describes Verdict Of Jury 'Quite Lenient'

Peterborough, March 4. (CP)— A jury decision which took only 10 minutes and declared Joseph Byrnes, 31, guilty of non-capital slaughter, was described as "quite lenient" by Mr. Justice A. M. LaBell, the presiding judge.

Charged with the Feb. 5 party slaying of 26-year-old Helen Kendry, Byrnes had originally been charged with murder but it was reduced to the lesser count at his preliminary hearing.

Mr. Justice LaBell's charge told the stand himself to relate the events of a beer party which led to the fatal shooting when he tried to break up the party by calling a halt to all his guests and telling them to leave.

He said he went into the bedroom where the rifle was kept, a 44-calibre firearm, and put under the bed. Later, when getting back into bed, Byrnes said he fell, letting go of the gun.

Lost Balance

"I lost my balance, let go of the gun and grabbed it again with both hands, and then it went off."

The shot from the rifle went through the wall, fatally injuring Mrs. Kendry, who was in the next house. Byrnes said he did not know it was loaded.

Mr. Justice LaBell commented that the jury must have decided Byrnes' failure to put on the safety catch did not constitute criminal negligence.

"Gentlemen, I am not cautioned the accused, "This should be made on your memory for all time. I feel you have done a most fortunate young man."

At one point in his testimony, a space in the courtroom was cleared so that Byrnes could show the jury how he climbed the rifle when he stumbled.

Mr. Justice LaBell said: "A beautiful young woman in the prime of life has been taken because she accepted the hospitality of your home. You will never forget that."

Lindsay Dentist Acquitted on Charge Laid

Lindsay, Ont., March 4—(CP) Dr. C. W. Lyons, 34, dentist, Friday was acquitted on a charge of assaulting a young patient who refused dental treatment. Magistrate E. A. Gee ruled that the charge of assault were in the part of the dentist and dismissed the charge.

Former Police Constable Thomas Balderstone alleged that his daughter, Mrs. Ila Lyons, a young child with a weak heart, had been slapped by the dentist and required medical attention for a split lip. Dr. Lyons testified that the child was unmanageable and said he had "chucked her under the chin" to relieve the position in the chair for treatment.

Mr. Cube Says Things Sugar Magnate Lord Lyle Might Say but Wouldn't

London, March 4—(CP)—Things that sugar magnate Lord Lyle might say, but wouldn't—utterances are being said by a talking mechanical man produced by his firm.

"I'm learning to say goodbye to Strachey and Summerskill", says the mechanism slipped under a pane showing in Piccadilly Friday night. "Strachey, Minister for fixing the automatic pilot, known as "George" is already."

The robot's speech is different from a human beings in that its words are not formed by mouth. The sounds are not formed by the mouth.

"We could play a record of Caruso or Gracie Fields and Lord Lyle would move in unison," Garner said. "But certain adjustments would have to be made."

Oliver Lype, a director of the firm, introduced the robot with:

"Mr. Cube can say things in a more homely manner — even a more vulgar manner—than Lord Lyle could possibly do. And he is going to have plenty to say about the nationalization of sugar."

Bushworker Will Hang on May 16 For Knife Slaying

Sudbury, March 4 — (CP) — Adelard (Eddie) Lavoie, 23, Capreol bushworker, was convicted today of the knife slaying of Mrs. Cecile Rainville, 23, and was sentenced to be hanged May 16.

Mrs. Rainville, mother of three small children, was slain last June 12 in the sergeant quarters of Capreol detachment. Medical testimony was that her body was stabbed in 32 places.

Latour is a cousin of Mrs. Rainville's husband.

The guilty verdict came on the fourth day of Latour's trial before an Ontario Supreme Court jury. Sentence was passed by Mr. Justice D. C. Kelly.

Latour pleaded self-defence and said he had suffered a "black out."

Latour's story was that he had gone to Mrs. Rainville's apartment to return a jacket borrowed by her brother, Leo. She asked him to stay, had spread chesterfield cushions on the floor and had undressed on the bed in the room.

When he refused, Latour testified Thursday, she attacked and cut him with a knife — his hunting knife. He said he suffered such a black out as he tried to grab the weapon from Mrs. Rainville. What happened after that, he didn't know.

One Crown witness testified he saw Latour come up the stairs from the basement with blood on his shirt and blood dripping from his hand.

Sweeping Gains Given Lewis as Coal Strike Ends

372,000 Miners Will Troop Back to Coal Pits Monday

Washington, March 4—(AP)— A sudden agreement giving John L. Lewis sweeping gains today heralded a swift end of coal strike in the United States.

The 372,000 miners, hard-hit after nearly a month of idleness, probably will troop back to work Monday if remaining details can be worked out and a contract signed this weekend.

With the country down to the bottom of its fuel bins, and threatened with a nation-wide, 10-month deadlock started to crack with startling speed Friday.

After hours of negotiating, government officials announced Lewis and the coal lewis and Major operators had agreed on "fundamental principles" for a new contract. Southern operators still are balking, but they were expected to fall in line.

The terms were not announced formally, but numerous sources reliable agreed Lewis had won: (1) a 70-cent boost in the miner's hourly wage to $14.05; and (2) a 10-cent hike in the 20-cent tonnage royalty the coal producers pay for the union's welfare fund, which pays for pensions and other benefits.

ALLEGED CAR SWINDLER HELD IN VANCOUVER

Peterborough, March 4—(CP)— Police Chief John Thompson said today that Aubrey S. Hancock, sought since October in connection with what the Crisis called a $100,000 car-finance swindle, has been arrested in Vancouver.

He said Peterborough officers are on their way to the west coast to bring Hancock back here to face trial.

Hancock still are seeking Paul Imming, 24, alleged to have been associated with Hancock in activities in the east.

Police charged that Hancock and Imming illegally obtained at least $100,000 from the Colonial Finance Corporation, Ltd., of Toronto.

The men disappeared about the first week in October. One theory was that they had gone to Mexico.

The finance company announced Oct. 28 that it had been defrauded.

Vancouver police telegraphed Chief Thompson Wednesday that they had arrested Hancock. Warrants for Hancock's arrest were sent to them immediately.

Warrants issued last October accused Hancock and Imming of obtaining money from the Finance Corporation Ltd., on loans they arranged for fictitious persons of Used Car Dealers

Police said at the time that Hancock and Imming represented themselves as used car dealers and drew up agreements of sale which included applications for loans. In some cases they used real names but false addresses of district residents, police said.

The agreements were sent to Colonial Finance with names of persons purported to have applied for loans. Police say the finance company then sent out the money to Hancock and Imming.

Monthly payments on the loans were not paid on the due by the two men, police say. About 80 care were reported involved in the loan deals.

Hancock came here last spring and became well known in the community. Said to have formerly played hockey in Toronto, he was a co-sponsor and playing manager of the Peterborough junior softball team.

Madras, India, March 4. (AP)— Six persons perished and 85 were injured in India's latest rail wreck in a train wreck 50 miles northeast of here. First reports reaching here said 5 had been killed.

Madras Minister Benwada Gooladu told the Madras legislative assembly "this is a clear case of sabotage". He implied that communists had it.

MERCURY DIPS TO NEW LOW IN QUINTE DISTRICT

For the second night in succession thermometers in the Belleville district have dipped to new lows for the current winter season with the mercury dropping to 22.5 degrees below zero Friday night. This was two degrees colder than the previous night which also had been a record for the year.

And the temperature remained below the zero mark for most of Saturday morning. At eight o'clock the thermometer still read 15 below and at nine the mercury stood at 12 degrees below the zero mark.

FRIGHTENED HORSE UPSETS BREAD WAGON

Becoming frightened at a C.N.R. shunting engine which was passing on the Pinnacle Street wedding, a horse hauling a locally owned bread wagon shied early today and upset the loaded wagon over a pile of frozen snow.

The driver of the horse drawn wagon was delivering bread on Pinnacle Street when the railroad locomotive passed, the hissing steam apparently frightening the horse. The animal then caused the wagon as it upset over the pile of snow, but cakes and bread inside the wagon were scattered about.

Local police are continuing the drive against motorists who persist in making left-hand turns at the Coleman and Bridge Street intersection during the hours when such turns are illegal.

According to local traffic regulations left turns are forbidden at the above intersection during the rush traffic hours of from twelve to one noon, and from four to six o'clock in the afternoon. Signs warning against such turns have been liberally placed and motorists failing to comply with the by-law are charged accordingly and assessed $5 fine for infraction of the traffic by-law.

Benedict Proctor Hockey Team Reaches Finals

Sweeping the semi-final round in two straight games Benedict Proctor advanced into the Trenton and District Hockey League finals last night when they handed Union Combines a 6-4 reversal at Brighton. The Silvermen will now meet either Brighton or R. C. A. F. Tech Wing for the league championship.

Stanley Mac Watson was the standout performer for the winning team, bagging four goals and assisting on a fifth. Chuck Anderson and Jim Beale accounted for the remaining goals.

Don Barr topped the Combine marksmen with a pair of goals, with Bob Campney and George Delaney each scoring one.

Colorful Show Presented By Quinte Skating Club At the Memorial Arena

Against the cleverly-designed scenic background of the icy pinkhash, the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club presented their Tenth Annual Winter Show in Memorial Arena last night.

The performances will be repeated at matinee and evening noon and again tonight at 8.30.

Despite the fact that attendance was not as large as was expected, the entire cast staged a colorful show that for grace and artistic ability was comparable with that of previous years.

Highlighting the show, were the excellent performances of the professional skaters, Miss Sally Ann Blogge and Mr. Harold Hartley. The professional figure-skating artists lived up to all advance notices and gave polished performances in singles and pairs.

The arena "stage" was colorfully set. It was distinctly "Arctic" so to speak. The "set" at the southern end of the Arena was smartly designed with frost-covered turrets and an igloo.

Artistry of individual stars, set apart from the performances of the featured professional artists, was one of the highlights of the show.

The program, well arranged, was variable. It offered pageantry with colorfully-garbed participants; comedy; and figure-skating drama. The whole was cleverly done, and the presentation is a distinct credit to those in charge.

Plot Well Done

The "piece de resistance" of the show was the "Story of the Northland." Cleverly designed, well-presented, it brought out to the full the abilities of members of the club from the tiniest tot to grey-haired veterans.

The plot was well done. There were hunters, and fishermen, Eskimos and bears, penguins and dogs. Arranged cleverly, the skit was really the pantomimic feature of the show. Featured were club stars such as Mary Jane and Betty McNally, Joan Lee, Lorna Bulford, Georgia Browne, Dawne Hopper, Willa Wilkes and Pauline Hall, Pat Black, Harold Kessler and Shiela Kells.

The skit was designed to bring out the full artistry of those participating. Graceful Arctic animals cunningly costumed and well rehearsed, provided a colorful background to the featured skaters. It was well done.

Immediate Hit

Another exceptional feature was the "Guess What!" Suffice it to say, and this writer is not giving any secrets away, that is highly entertaining and comprises 24 members of the cast. It made an immediate hit.

Joan Doyle, kilt-clad, highlighted the colorful skit "Hop-Scotch Polka." Conveyed in turn by McNally the "Scottie" troupe of 16 young beauties of the club went through the routine that was worthy of its title.

Comedy was there, Stuart Robb encased in what appeared to be a barrel, and Harold Kessler, dressed through a blizzard-mask that had the audience in stitches. So, too, was the perennial favorite Jack Dickens. Forced to do a solo act at the last minute due to the illness of his scheduled partner, the "Jack" iced a comedy routine that was "Dickens." And that's enough said.

Fine Solo Efforts

Quinte Club stars Betty McNally and Doris Kerr thrilled the audience with their solo efforts. Both charming misses, who improve each year, gave sterling performances and fully deserved the fine ovations accorded them.

For precision work the "Jesters Revue" was tops. Garbed in the traditional costumes of the jester, with plumed caps and form-fitting tights, upwards of thirty members of the club went through a routine that was marked by its grace, co-ordination and precision in the many figures it executed.

Clare Ridley once more thrilled the audience with a grand performance as a clown. Miss Ridley has lost none of his ability as a fine skater, and he understand pinch-hit at the last minute that was the same Ridley that thrilled crowds years ago and last night's effort was up to the fine level of his former performances.

Last, but by no means least, Sally Anne Blogge and Harold Hartley, the only colored professional pair of skaters appearing. Both are accomplished artists and they clearly demonstrated this fact in their performances as soloists and pairs at the show last night. Miss Blogge's Arctic art graceful beauty, thrilled the crowd with her single work. Hartly, the only colored professional skater in Canada, demonstrated, with his sweeping graceful style that he is without a double one of Canada's best. A pair won instant acclaim in a 'double' act.

Public Warned Of Counterfeit Ten-Dollar Bills

Police Chief Walter Probert today warned local merchants to scrutinize carefully all ten dollar bills they receive. The chief noted that in western parts of the province bogus bills of the above denomination which were apparently original reproductions were being circulated.

Early last night a local restaurant the cashier refused to cash two ten dollar bills which to her did not appear genuine. Police, however, were unable to trace the person who the latter was reported to the local police station.

Coal Supplies Sufficient in City If Consumers Will Co-operate

Despite the tight coal situation prevalent throughout the province as result of the American soft coal strike, there is no undue cause for alarm in Belleville if consumers do not try to "hog" coal supplies available.

This was the consensus yesterday of local coal dealers who were called by Mayor H. J. Allin to a special meeting at the city hall. Here local coal dealers are approximately one week behind in deliveries, with coal now going out to householders being on order from four to five days. Dealers are using their own discretion about rationing fuel.

Coal dealers felt there was no necessity of establishing a central office from which to handle emergency coal orders, they stating that this could be worked out later by the dealers themselves. In any event dealers co-operate with each othe, to the fullest possible extent.

Consumers were asked not to order fuel until a few days before their bins were empty and when delivery was made to accept what coal their dealer had available. Consumers were asked to stick with their regular coal dealer when ordering coal as in any event no delivery would be made if the consumer had adequate supplies for immediate use.

Dealers stated that schools in the city had adequate supplies for from four to six weeks, while the hospital also had adequate supplies for the same period.

It was felt there was a sufficient coal supply in the city to last for approximately two weeks or possibly longer if there was a break in the weather. Also the odd car of coal was coming through.

Technical Talk On Broadcasting Given Radio Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Radio Club was held at the Kiwanis centre on the 2nd Wednesday of the president, Roy White.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. J. C. R. Bernard, development engineer of the Northern Electric Company of Belleville.

"Bud" as he is known to his fellow-members of the Quinte Radio Club, is a B.A.Sc. graduate engineer of the University of Toronto and, following graduation, served as demonstrator for two years, during the war he was engaged in highly important radar engineering with Research Enterprises Limited. He received his amateur radio licence in 1928 and at that time was the youngest "ham" in Canada. He is still a "ham" at the radio transmitter and operates under the call of "VE3YP".

His talk on "Final Tank and Antenna Coupling Circuits" was a circle with valuable information. One of the highlights of his lecture was a description of the engineering problems involved in designing the novel antenna system for radio stations "CBC" and "CBL". These 50,000-watt stations transmit simultaneously using the same antenna and are the only radio stations on the North American continent that operate in this unique manner.

The speaker introduced by Rez Varcoe and Jim Jarvis expressed the thanks of the club.

Routine business included discussion concerning the proposed "field day" activities for the date and method of electing a new slate of officers for the year.

The next meeting will be held in April at the Kiwanis Centre and an invitation is extended to any radio "ham" or would-be "ham" to attend. The guest speaker will be Mr. Wm. Choate of the Canadian Westinghouse Company who will speak on "The Part the Radio Amateur Can Play in Times of National Emergency".

Patients' Parade Testifies to Love For Dr. Sander

By ARTHUR EVERETT

Manchester, N.H., March 4 — (AP) — Dr. Hermann N. Sander's claim that a certain patient died before he injected air into her veins still stood today after a stiff attack.

The mercury murder trial of the 41-year-old physician's ex-fiancee until Monday when Dr. Sander may take the stand in his own defence.

Attorney-General William L. Phinney tried to get the witness to make a star defence witness say Mrs. Abbie Borroto was "practically dead" and not entirely dead when he saw her last Dec. 4, He failed.

The witness was Dr. Albert Sray, who said he found Mrs. Borroto dead a few minutes before Dr. Sander put air into her veins in an apparent gesture to the physician who stood by them in their darkest hours.

asis into the trial record for the first time with a suggestion that young Dr. Sray favors such mercy killings.

"I have no opinion on euthanasia," Sander replied.

The defence then swung to the counter-attack with a medical witness who testified Dr. Sander once stood. firm against euthanasia in the case of a patient.

Dr. Robert Rix said he was called in to treat a patient of Dr. Sander — a paralyzed woman whose life was oozing out of a festering sore on her body.

"The question was whether or not it was worth while to treat," testified Dr. Rix, "because she was a burden to herself and her family. The question was whether it would be wiser to let natural causes lead to her death."

Dr. Sander insisted on treatment, Dr. Rix recalled. The woman partially recovered and got around in a wheel chair today, he added.

There were tears in the eyes of many spectators as a parade of Dr. Sander's patients — rich and poor, young and old — testified to their love and respect for the physician who stood by them in their darkest hours.

HASTINGS IN ERIN

By LAVONIA STOCKELBACH

Having undertaken to visit and write about the place-names of County Hastings that had their origin in Ireland, the journey was begun with a cheerful and unsuspected ignorance of practically everything Irish. Bags, saints, ruins, traditions, tweeds and scenery, of which Ontario has only the latter in abundance, our Canadian history, though intensely dramatic, has not had time to fade into the mists of tradition in which one can get properly lost.

As for leprechauns, fairies, little people, and, spooks in general, so busy for good and evil in Eire, we are totally lacking. We have only ourself. A few historical facts about Ireland are outstanding and cannot be avoided.

The first Irish Inhabitants were the short, dark Picts who conquered the aborigines and are said to have worked their way up from the Mediterranean. There came in 1000 B.C. fair-haired Celts about 400 B.C. and conquered the former. Ireland was ignored by the Romans and so never knew Roman discipline except by way of Northern England.

There actually was a king of all Ireland ruling from Tara about 300 A.D. but never since. If we were speaking of Indians they would be called tribal chiefs but in Ireland they were kings. There were many of them, though, but not one of them had a kingdom as large as the County of Hastings. One need not wonder at the number of people who claim to be descended from kings. They probably were.

From about 300 to 450 A.D. the Irish annals tell of their time raiding Britain. History books tell about the founding of the Scottish monarchy. It was on one of these raids that a Roman-Briton was captured and enslaved; a man by the name of Patrick. When freed he tried to convert the pagan Irish to Christianity and next to nothing known everything, or almost everything, about St. Patrick.

About 800 A.D. came the Danes and the Norwegians. The Vikings who not only invaded Ireland, established villages, groups of families, a quite new idea then. As pointed out by Michael O'-Halloran in writing about the new Irish and nearly, Dec-mot of Cashel, the great effect of the old Celtic individualism was the lack of centralization. Everything depended on the individual sovereign's ability and war-like character. The two were joined in the heroic Brian Boru who finished off the Vikings in 1014 just outside of Dublin.

Nothing remains of that decisive battle that it at all like it was on that Good Friday; nothing but the surrounding hills. Brian Boru and his sons were killed. The Vikings disappeared all but their settlements and their descendants.

A century and a half later came the Normans who themselves had been raided by the northerners some centuries before when the latter were on the rampage, and who had conquered England at the battle of Hastings, and until the reign of Henry VIII, Ireland was being fought over by Roman Catholic Anglo-Normans. England was suffering similar invasions and plunderings, and as fast as she was pulled down she took it to her stride and rebuilt.

And so to the Rock of Cashel. This pilgrim was visited in a 1948 Anniversary on which was kindly slowed down to 40 miles per hour when rounding curves. The chauffeur was with trust in metal, his passenger with trust in him and the brakes of the car. At times in Ireland one wonders why there should be four wheels on every car when, so often, only two are used.

Cashel, a stone fort, defies description. If one says it is a huge cathedral-castle on a rock only 300 feet high one gets no idea of the stupendous effect of its grandeur. Climb the final few hundred yards to the ruins; look over the serpentine vale of Cashel; those rich hill-surrounded lands of Tipperary; wonder at the why and wherefore of the ruins of a Christian abbey and a Dominican abbey built within thirty years of each other, try to count all the ruins one has seen in a few weeks and think.

It was on this hill, legend states, that St. Patrick first used his comparison of the Trinity to a shamrock leaf. Although some beautiful deep red clover was seen near the statue of the saint there are seven types of the plant in Ireland and no one can decide which is the true shamrock. The crucifix is curious in that the figure of Christ is fully clothed. It is placed on a rock in which the ancient kings of Munster were crowned and is claimed to be an old Druid stone, to be seen by the eccentric rings still visible in a certain light. At least that is what the guardian of the grounds said, for was in rags and tatters and general spottiness endowned by those delightful buttons with harps on them.

The first time the question was asked, "How many strings are on the Irish harp" it was for information. Since then it has been fun to hear the answers and to watch the startled look on the face of the person questioned By actual count, it has been from seven to fourteen. The latter number on a post-office in Mayo.

Here in 1172 Henry II was recognized as Lord of Ireland—being the brother of Robert Bruce held parliament the year after the battle of Bannockburn, and here was built a half century before the invasion of the Normans, this stateless cathedral with a central tower, its west end is a massive castle, really a fortress, and in those days the archbishops were also warriors. The present cathedral was founded by Corinac, a king and a bishop too.

The interesting work is of itself overpowering to contemplate but the guide book details would take columns of print and scores of sketches. The decorations, the painted altars of the Scandinavian interlacing of the Celtic, the tombs all are of deep interest. Old Irish huts also have stone roofs, boat shaped, the walls and roof forming a continuous line. Attached to one transept is another hut, detailed round stone towers of Ireland which one is from the tenth century when the Vikings were still in the border towns.

The ruins of 12 feet high built of sandstone and is 17 feet in diameter at the base sloping gradually to the top where it is crowned by the original cone in the shape of a bee hive and bears a free 'and happy dandelion. In all these ruins one notices all the little clusters of ferns, creeping wild flowers, little tufts of green grass and blue, and no one knows the name of any of them. Some scientific people would like to know them but luck is discouraged by the "I don't know rightly what the names are, it's a wee bit creeping weed."

It is too bad the modern Irish have lost all sense for building. There are many reasons given for the ruins in this land of ruin; wars among each other. Spanish invasions, Anglo-Norman invasions, Henry VIII's cleaning out and plundering of the abbeys, Cromwell's fierce soldiers, but many of them have simply disappeared.

Today one sees the stone walls of cottages crumbling for the lack of taking the trouble to replace a fallen stone. Upkeep is more important. One sees scores of cottages with one end falling in, a part of the roughly-thatched roof in holes and so betraying the lack of industry of the inner working people, a general shiftlessness that nothing and no one can change.

One looks down at the flowers and listens to the song of the birds for solace and refreshment though it is not strictly correct to use the word "down" when looking up at the hedges the hollyhocks and the hawthorn trees of Mayo.

It was a day of rare sunshine warm and comforting. Ontario could produce nothing better. A group of very jolly young priests was on holiday. They certainly lose none of their personality when taking holy orders and when they had finished photographing the enormous cross erected a few years ago, an Irish cross done in the ancient style and placed in the most conspicuous heyist, we talked.

The chauffeur had told them on my nationality, the maple leaf mentioned it, and there was a barrage of questions and answers that are so often experiences in travelling. Sometimes it is difficult to say that the B.B.C. C.B.C. could not have a record of them except that all frankness and spontaneity would then be done away with.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

VERY EARLY ARRIVALS

Much as our rigorous Canadian winters are enjoyed, everybody looks forward to spring when days are lengthening, crocuses peep through the ground, and our birds begin to arrive home. Of course, the first arrivals are notably overheard; Robins are appearing on our lawns in hoper of finding worms. The pair of Prairie larks which last year you discovered nesting in the ploughed field on the outskirts of the town will soon be back in the same place. When you see them be sure to look for the Killdeer Plovers. Although these are shore birds, they like to nest in cultivated fields some distance from the water. Now under Bluebird have become emblems of happiness. When the sun catches their outstretched wings as these harbingers of spring swerve in the air and suddenly land on a snow-covered road, we are given one of the most thrilling sights of nature.

Not long after mid-March we may be able to visit a woodland swamp at dusk, and have the chance of listening to the uniquet Woodcocks. Then on whistling wings, those strange, unbridled birds, with eyes almost on the tops of their heads, rise and dart into the darkness.

Because of Canada's many large lakes and rivers, we need not live near the coast in order to become acquainted with Herring Gulls, the common large "Sea Gulls" of the interior as well as of the seashore. These with pearly grey mantles and black wing tips are old birds. The young mature, in a state of change from their dark, youthful plumage, are light, clouded with brownish. Some have remained in Southern Canada throughout the cold weather, watching for breaks in the ice; but open water is the signal for the arrival of the gulls, because then they can get fish and follow ships, acting as scavengers. Other early, though very different water birds are American Bitterns. Their habit of standing motionless in order to avoid detection has prevented us from knowing them as well as we should like to know.

Before March is out the graceful Tree Swallows with their blue-green backs will be here, and if one can find a suitable bird house, the whole flock will inspect it. We marvel how they discover insects at this date. Even soft plumaged, doleful - voiced Mourning Doves often arrive before April to help the farmers clear their land by picking up weed seeds.

YELLOWJACK APPEARS

Yellow fever made its first recorded appearance in North America in 1618.

Famous are Free With Autographs

Winnipeg, (CP) — A young Winnipegger who spends his spare time corresponding with the great men and women of the times, has collected more than 100 autographs.

Jack Kass, 19, who started his hobby about a year ago, hopes to receive a personally signed letter from every noted personality in the world.

He mails three letters weekly to well-known leaders in every field of life. So far his replies have come from statesmen, politicians, industrialists, writers, athletes and other celebrated figures.

Jack started his collection last year when he sent a contribution to the Damon Runyon Cancer Memorial fund in care of Walter Winchell, New York columnist.

"When Winchell personally wrote me his thanks, that gave me the idea of sending letters to world-famous persons," Jack said recently.

His favorites that an average of 15 letters come to him every month.

"Some replies would amaze you. They're quite often humorous and always original.

Some of the people enclose autographed photographs that he pose penned on his photo: "Thanks for the memory Jack." Sir Lawrence Olivier also autographed a photo.

Some of the letters are formal replies, as in the case of Thomas E. Dewey, governor of New York, and Gen. Douglas Mac-Arthur.

Among the notables who have answered Jack's letters are Eleanor Roosevelt, J. Arthur Rank, Gene Fowler, Bill Mauldin, David Ben Gurion, Nat S. Finkelter, Douglas Abbott and Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Sometime Jack isn't so lucky and receives no replies to his letters. Winston Churchill did not grant his request and President Harry Truman's office hasn't answered a letter Jack wrote three months ago.

Jack is not discouraged. "Last week," he says, "I wrote a letter to the Kremlin requesting the signature of Joseph Stalin. Here's hoping it gets through the Iron Curtain."

CHANGE OF PLANS

Red Deer, Alta. — (CP) — A campaign two years ago for $100,000 for a Red Deer war memorial as part of its mark when only $35,000 was collected. Now a town committee has changed its plan to use the money towards a combined library and civil red rooms.

HEIGHTENED INTEREST IN ART

The heightened interest in the arts is one of the most interesting and significant developments in Canada, says the annual report of the Board of Trustees for the year 1947-48. "Students in every field of art are more numerous, attendance at art galleries continues to increase, while the demand for exhibitions, reproductions and other educational material are far beyond the capacity of the National Gallery to meet them adequately."

This is a sign of Canada's growing maturity as a nation, a healthy expression which gives a foretaste of progress as a result of which Canada and other nations will be the richer. Art widens the interest in man and life.

Canada even among the works of its earliest artists has had a treasure which this nation would not willingly do without. The devotion of the trained artist to his craft as an expression of the age and of life itself is something that enriches any country and the youth of Canada have caught the national impulse which throbs through the nation's veins. Art is one of the forms of expression of the spirit of a people, the carving of the highest civilization.

Zealous young Canadians merit the interest and the commendation of the public on their fine work which catches the national soul.

Elder artists must be cheered by the interest of the youth of Canada. Such signs all point to a healthy national sense of art in all its forms.

LOOKING TO SPRING

Not far away is the end of the coldest winter in many a long year. In less than three weeks it will be spring and the marvellous changes which nature can bring about will have been at work long before that time removing the debris of a strange topsy-turvy winter. A milestone on the road is St. Patrick's Day just two weeks hence and almost coincident with the vernal equinox. The day of the Saint means to a great many the equivalent of spring's advent for by March seventeenth there will have disappeared some or most of the evidences of winter's varied sway. Sometimes the seventeenth sees the snow gone and the dust flying.

March's entry in storm and bluster which changed later in the day to a bright sunlight even if the air was chill was one of the puzzling facts of nature. Does it mean that spring will be early? Time may tell. Of course, that this will be the outcome of this variety winter which has been both cold and mild, dry and very wet. A writer in "Industry" remarks that "it's a relief to know that one of the craziest winters on record is just about ended."

CABOOSES

Of all things!

Those iconoclasts are at it again. This time they want to make over the caboose of freight trains and give them a new appearance, doing away with the cupola. They would substitute bay windows at the sides of the caboose for that compact little area of windows and roof on top of the terminal car.

A bill to bring in this innovation is now before the New York Legislature at Albany. Trainmen are opposed to the change. They can see no advantage in the proposed reform; indeed, they fear it would have many disadvantages.

Something long familiar to most people will pass from the scene if the caboose cupola is generally supplanted by these "bay windows." It is a cherished institution. Almost every boy has wanted to be the engineer of a locomotive—the smokier and faster the better; but it takes the reflective moods and the accumulated experience of middle-age to really appreciate the cupola on a caboose.

The cupola is a place to rest, say, and the first south wind is genting the earth; the pastures have begun to turn green and the land is fragrant with vitality and a-whisper with the eternal promise of revival. A robin may be piping bravely from the topgole of a nearby barn and the roadside streams are chattering in triumph as they bear swiftly away the last of the upland's melted snows.

Up in the cupola of the caboose, the windows wide open, are two men on either side, the conductor and the rear brakesman. They lean back in comfort on their shiny black leather cushions, smoking placidly, breathing in that balmy south wind and gazing out on such pastoral beauty as would inspire the brush of a Constable. Talk about sitting on top of the world! — Hamilton Spectator.

An astronomer estimates there may be a billion other planets in the universe just like this one. Hmm, even so—it's no consolation that there may be another billion guys with problems just like yours. — Sudbury Star.

In the next three years between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 will be spent to develop the iron ore deposits in Labrador and Ungava.

FAVORS

A favor is something that's good to do
But ask one, and then it's a debt that you owe.

The favor you grant you should promptly forget,
But the favor you ask you may later regret.

If you seek admittance to hall game or show,

Step up to the window and pay as you go.

Beware of fine gifts. They may not be for you,
But for something that's wanted which you shouldn't do.

My boy, unto others try humbly to be;
But ask for a favor, no longer you're free.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Display in courtship is a familiar instance to be found in the land where there are young people. The display of a young man, who suddenly starts putting his hands on his head, rearing his fingernails, and blooming like a rose, is quite as old as the world and equalled by the display of a young girl who feels the ancient call and whose airs and graces are something wonderful to behold.

Even the strongest humans of a random business when comparing the ritual of courting followed by the various species of birds, from the Egyptian geese to ducks follow the same ritual. But each species observes its own rituals and it is when the drake puts some sort of duck Hoyle. Display is now in process while the wild fowl are choosing mates in preparation for the spring migration proper; and wherever you can find open water on stream or lake, your binoculars will help to discover ducks putting on their ceremonials.

As with humans, gay clothing seems to be an important feature of courtship. A beautifully colored duck like the male American merganser, a big sawbill or fisherman's duck, goes through a most energetic display of all his raiment. He swells up his feathers, puts off all delicate peach or salmon pink suffusion of it. He rears up on his tail and shows his magnificent white flanks, arching his neck, he reveal his glittering green head and red beak. And then, as if that were not enough, he whacks down in order to kick behind him a spurt of water three feet in the air, and to crown his beautiful red feet. He is a complete dude.

The whistler or Golden Eye, on the other hand, being mostly black and white, with an iridescent green head and vulgar yellow feet, goes in for contortions to show his lady what a character he is. He throws back his head, back, vertical, and utters a wheeze like a nightmare; then jerks his head down, shakes and his rump, and as suddenly jerks it forward, as if he were trying to break his own neck. What shenanigans, all for love!

Churchill Distinctive as Author

Publishing Churchill's memoirs is a rare privilege and a pleasure and probably no one is more aware of that than the staff members who work on the Churchill istalments in Life, says, an article in that magazine.

Expert and skeptical by training and temperament, Life's staff of checkers are accustomed to question every single factual statement that see in writing. So digging into our own files and literary and scientific consultants' experts, they search for the best authority to back up every fact set down by the writer.

Check On Facts

If, for example, they find that someone else uses another date or describes an event differently, they question the author in an effort to determine which of the conflicting stories is accurate. Often a writer finds himself obliged to change his statements according to the information uncovered by this search for facts.

In Mr. Churchill's case, however, our staff has met a historian whose personal files contain more documentary material than we could ever uncover, and a meticulous and conditioned mind able to fully cites his evidence as he goes along.

Mr. Churchill's text comes to us printed in galley form. It is headed "Finest Hour," and every head warns that it is "subject to proof corrections." Sometimes it is tioned "Mr. Churchill's Overtake Corrections" Keep coming from the personification never right up to the time our installments go to press.

Tells Preferences

In a supplementary note accompanying the galley proofs, Mr. Churchill has even taken the trouble to list his personal typographical preferences for such things as the type styles he likes for chapter titles and foreign words, the capitalizing of points of the compass and geographical areas, the abbreviation of numbers and dates and the use of commas, hyphens and other punctuation.

Every new note or revision adds emphasis to the statement that Mr. Churchill made at the London Times Publishers' Conference last November, "As an author, I can speak to you about the difficulties and dangers of writing a book, because I have written a great many books. I think that by the time I was 25 years old, I had written nearly as many books as Moses."

None of our other writers can claim Mr. Churchill's long standing intimacy with the hazards of authorship, and our editorial role in the publication of his work varies according to the stature of the writer and the nature of the work. Our writers include skilled craftsmen who are familiar with Life's editorial requirements, join with reporters, photographers and editors to work as a more or less harmonious team. Outside writers, however are sometimes baffled by the checking, editing and revising that go on around here.

Must Pass Tests

If, for example, we were to recount the story of the monument the king of Siam, it would be read first by staff members familiar with that country, then sent to our Washington bureau to be checked with experts in the State Department and the Siamese embassy. The text would be corrected and edited with queries raised along the line.

The writing of Winston Churchill cannot be compared to any other writing that we have published. As Isaiah Berlin in the September Atlantic Monthly said of Churchill's style, "Unlike Mr. Churchill's work is that of writing that is not merely based upon the primacy of public over private relationships, upon the importance of the will in the battle between simple good and simple evil, between life and death: but above all, battle - - -

"Like a great actor -- upon the stage he himself plays parts: his memorial lines with a large unmistakable gesture, against a blaze of light, as is appropriate to a man who knows that, his every word and movement will be the object of scrutiny and judgment by a vast audience. His narrative is a great public performance and has the attribute of formal magnificence. In words, the splendid phrases, are like the trappings which conveys his vision of himself and of his world - - - ."

You Don't Have to Drink To Succeed in Life

(Editorial in the Christian Science Monitor)

"You have to drink a little to get business, or get anywhere in business, Tom tells me.

"You'd be a social dud if you didn't drink some. They all do it.

"Perhaps that single observation in the way of getting the facts of human relationships is custom—a vast inertia made up of tacit acceptance that "that's the way it is." In this passive acceptance the liquor industry bases much of its self-justification for most of what it does—"People want it; we simply supply the demand." On this we surrender to things as they seem to be good or bad, including youngsters) of sturdy integrity in other directions drift into dangerous waters.

Yet undertaking to change the customs of people sounds at first like tilting at windmills or trying to reverse the flow of the Gulf Stream. And it would be temperamentally unfair to say that if humanity did not have some drinking customs—and forms—it would be dreary.

Duelling and slave-holding were once customs, too—but the former inter-twined with moral values of honor and courage; the latter with economic survival. Customs incorporate as is the liquor traffic. Yet they have been changed.

Thinking men, furthermore know that drinking and its customs are not mysterious effects of immutable cosmic laws. Customs are both cause and affect. They are self-perpetuating only as long as the majority bend the knee to the tyranny of "they."

This is a democratic age. But it can be broken. In fact, it is broken every time a community or a nation adopts a major reform. And it is severed more effectively by the individual who has the courage of example than by talk.

So, we ask our readers of all ages:

Have you won business and position because of drinking (or other calling) without surrender of social independence? Has that your experience been?

Have you made yourself socially acceptable in your community, your college, or your school without drinking? Have you stood as to liquor and beer? What is your record?

We are confident what the answers will be in thousands of instances. That is the real moral strength in the sharing of experiences. We shall open certain columns of the newspaper therefore, to contributions toward that end.

ALDERMAN FINED

Hamilton, March 4 — (CP) — Unruffled money is the only means to establish overnight street parking here, Alderman John MacDonald stated in city court today Thursday on an overnight parking violation. Alderman MacDonald said he paid taxes to the portion of highway in front of his home, but Magistrate A. E. Robinson said it was an offence to obstruct it with an unlighted vehicle.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING SOMEONE ELSE

I presume that we all have, at some time in our lives, wished that we could have been someone else, envied a tenor singer in our father's church in my youth, and the type of voice that he had and the type of shoes that he could trade me for. I envied him. But how soon that fancy died away! Years later, as I learned to know him well, I envied him that I stayed as I was born.

It is well that we can be born in mind the fact that we are unique! It is what we do with what we have that gives us any distinction in life, or that marks us for distinction. And how surprised the world often is over what an unlikely person can do with himself! Even we are at the outcome of our lives. Most godly men have effectively used the talents accorded them by their Creator, with only that they could have been a better, rather than to have been transformed into any other one else.

Fortunately, abilities are widely scattered. The germ, or seed, of greatness lies buried in many a humble birth. Be yourself, without hoping to borrow from anyone else, and you are bound to reap the fullest reward of which you were put into this world.

Envy, jealousy, pride, and rare distinction, in the development of the one person that we have done much. We will have done well in this, over the years, if we have done much of what we have prdved true to our heritage, at least. We have a great deal to be ourselves—but very little about others. It's a lifetime job to be ourselves—but very little about others. It's a lifetime job to make something worthy out of the life that is ours.

In trying to be someone else we may lose ourselves! But in the development of ourselves, and in our keeping finding ourselves anew, we may come at last to discover and cover himself until well on in life—but when he does, it is the major event of his life.

As a unique individual you are indispensable. You are full of possibilities. But you barter away this interest in yourself when you try to borrow the possessions of someone else. Be yourself on the broad scale! Stand out for all that you are.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received, only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady, care this newspaper.)

READER REPORTS PROGRESS

First, about the rolls, my use of laxatives or other "aids" has been nil since I began somersaulting. However, at the same time I started eating plain wheat, balancing my diet after the best health diet outlined in "The 7 Keys to Vita," walking to the mailbox 1 1-2 miles daily, belly breathing, lying on my back and pedalling—this for my swollen ankles—and everything else you have told us to do. So I'll be blessed if I know what it is the rolls, but I believe it is.

When I started I was unable to be sick as the dickens. So I stopped. Then I thought I probably needed it more than as if I didn't get dizzy. So I took myself in hand and rolled somersaults, in spite of hell and high water; I decided that if people by the score could do it, then, by golly I at 50 could. After a few trials I was O.K. Now I can get any number and come up on my feet perfectly steady although I have never somersaulted unsupported since, marching along, watching every step.

Now I wish you could see my stomach and the way the knee-pad bifocals and all, head up, chin in, legs swinging easily from the hips, crown of my head touching an imaginary high ceiling. It's a beautiful world!

My husband says to tell you thanks a million, for you have saved him from a nervous wreck. man he married 25 years ago.

(Signed) Mrs. B.W.

The trouble one wearing bifocals has going down stairs will not occur if he or she wears glasses that have a quarter inch of the same lenses ground under the near vision lens at the lower edge.

A good many persons even only 35 or 40 years old go all dizzy and sick the first time they start to try to turn somersaults. As I explain in the Brookfield Physical Somersaulting (copy on written request if you provide self-addressed stamped envelope) during stars, feeling dizzy and upset during the afternoon or your maiden efforts to get the hang of it, all go to show how badly you need daily exercise. Don't stop you. Have another go at it the same night or morning. Each successive trial will disturb you less and less and in a week or two you'll be rolling with the best of the fun of it.

Remember though, I'm not fooling. I believe in somersaults. roll a dozen myself every day, recommend them to every person who is not decrepit and — get me straight — I do not know any one to roll somersaults. I merely tell you I roll 'em myself, and here is how. If you want to try 'em you do so at your own peril.

Notice that no mention was made of the iodin ration of the daily intake of minerals and vitamins. If the lady has lived for years in the Midwest, she would probably enjoy greater vile by reason of a suitable daily or semi-weekly ration of iodine in some form or other. Seafoods like other important minerals and the three most essential vitamins, is fully explained in the booklet. The 7 Keys to Vita, available on written request if and a stamped self addressed envelope.

Vile (rhymes with kite) is a colored word. It means

Few Men Wear Fur Coats Since Advent of Cars

(An Editorial in The Windsor Star

Recently we spotted on a Windsor street a fur coat for a cow. We looked the second time, to make certain our eyes weren't deceiving us. And sure enough it was a warm day, and no need here at home, if you want to try 'em you do so at your own peril.

Notice that no mention was made of the iodin ration of the daily intake of minerals and vitamins. If the lady has lived for years in the Midwest, she would

The well-to-do man would have a coon-skin coat. Light and a bit bulky, but warm. They were often seen on the streets, but they proved true to our heritage, at least. We knew a great deal about ourselves—but very little about others. It's a lifetime job to be ourselves—but very little about others. It's a lifetime job to make something worthy out of the life that is ours.

In trying to be someone else we may lose ourselves! But in the development of ourselves, and in our keeping finding ourselves anew, we may come at last to discover and cover himself until well on in life—but when he does, it is the major event of his life.

As a unique individual you are indispensable. You are full of possibilities. But you barter away this interest in yourself when you try to borrow the possessions of someone else. Be yourself on the broad scale! Stand out for all that you are.

style about the time automobiles commenced to become the style. Will an automobile, on a good highway, the need for fur coats diminished, but not for the fur destination before freezing to death. And, with fure becoming more scarce and dear, we just couldn't afford a new fur coat every day, as we would if we would do a man a lifetime, if properly cared for; an automobile is to be "replaced every few years.

There was a brief recurrence during the war, that is applied mainly to college youths of wealthy families, or to young men in the services, who had a fur coat-mang-man-about-town. But this was a fad, based on fancy rather than need.

It would seem sort of silly for a man to wear a fur coat in order to climb into a modern, heated car. Especially one of these tiny English makes some are buying.

In Ontario, fur coats for men are mostly a memory of earlier days. They bring recollections of the days when we coasted behind sleigh bells and hot bricks to keep our feet warm. That's why we looked a second time at that man on a Windsor street. He was an anachronism.

Stories From The Bible

Moses

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of studies from the Old Testament. The text is condensed from selections by Houston Harte for the new book, "In Our Image." Illustration by Guy Rowe is also from the book.

In the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day came they into the wilderness of Sinai - - and there Israel camped before the mount. And Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him, saying: Thus shalt thou tell the children of Israel: If ye will obey My voice indeed, and keep My covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is Mine: And ye shall be unto Me a kingdom of priests, and a holy nation.

And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the Lord commanded him. And Moses told the words of the people unto the Lord.

And the Lord said unto Moses Go unto thy people, and sanctify them today and tomorrow, and let them wash their clothes and be ready against the third day: for the third day the Lord will come down in the sight of all the people upon Mount Sinai - - - -

And on the third day in the morning there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceedingly loud; so that all the people in the camp trembled. And Moses brought forth the people to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount. And Mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the Lord descended upon it in fire. And God spake all these words, saying:

I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. Thou shalt have no other gods before Me.

Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in the heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the waters under the earth: Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the father upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate Me: and shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love Me and keep My commandments.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain.

Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work: but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle nor thy stranger that is within thy gates: For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is: wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day, and hallowed it.

Honor thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

Thou shalt not kill.

Thou shalt not commit adultery.

Thou shalt not steal.

Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.

Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is thy neighbor's.

And all the people saw the thunderings, and the lightnings and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking: and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off. And they said unto Moses, Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die. And Moses said unto the people, Fear not: for God is come to prove you, and that His fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not. And the people stood afar off, and Moses drew near unto the thick darkness where God was - - - -

And the Lord gave unto Moses, when He had made an end of communing with him upon Mount Sinai, two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God.

Dinner in a Dish

The so-called "one-dish" meal has many advantages in the average home. It saves time, labor and may even save fuel. It prevents food waste by utilizing leftovers along with fresh foods and it also simplifies service.

A meal in one dish may be a substantial soup, a satisfying salad or a steaming hot casserole. Such a meal usually needs to be rounded out with bread and butter, a beverage and perhaps a dessert of fruit.

The one-dish main course should assure a balanced meal and therefore should have in it some meat or a meal alternate such as eggs, cheese, milk, beans or fish. It should also have some starchy food, some fat and plenty of vegetables.

Here are several excellent recipes for "one dish" meals. They come from the home economists of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Cabbage and Sausage Casserole

4 cups finely shredded cabbage
2 cups canned or stewed tomatoes
3-4 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1-4 teaspoon paprika
1 cup grated cheese
1 cup soft, dry bread crumbs
8 large or 12 small sausages

Cook the cabbage in a small amount of boiling, salted water for five minutes. Drain thoroughly. Season tomatoes with salt, pepper and paprika. Place cabbage and tomatoes in alternate layers in a greased, shallow baking dish. Sprinkle each layer with grated cheese and bread crumbs. Meanwhile fry sausages until lightly browned. Arrange them on top of cabbage. Bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees F., for about 1-2 hour. Yield: six servings.

Macaroni and Vegetable Dinner

1 1-2 cups elbow macaroni
2 tablespoons fat
1-2 cup fine, dry bread crumbs
1-4 cup fat
1-4 cup flour
2 1-2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
2 eggs
1-4 cup vinegar
1 teaspoon mustard
2 cups freshly cooked or canned vegetables

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender; drain. Melt the 2 tablespoons fat, add bread crumbs and brown. Add cooked macaroni and mix well. Keep hot. Melt 1-4 cup fat in top of a double boiler, blend in flour, gradually add milk, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Beat eggs, add vinegar and mustard. Add a little of the hot mixture, blending well and return to double boiler. Cook 3 minutes. Arrange vegetables around macaroni on a serving platter, pour over macaroni. Yield: six servings.

Cheese Scallop

4 tablespoons fat
4 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
2 cups milk
1 cup grated cheese
4 cups cooked spaghetti or macaroni or 4 hard-cooked eggs and 2 cups cooked spaghetti, celery, corn or peas

Or 2 cups cooked spaghetti and 2 cups celery, corn, cabbage or peas

Bread crumbs

Melt fat, add flour and stir until blended. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly until thickened. Add seasoning and cheese. Place alternate layers of spaghetti, etc., and cheese sauce in a greased baking dish. Cover with crumbs and bake in a moderately hot oven 375 degrees F., until thoroughly heated - - about 20 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Parisian Bonnets Perch For Easter on Cropped Heads

By BARBARA STEVENSON

Paris (Reuters) — The Easter bonnet this year may be large or small, but it will certainly be made to wear over the short-cropped head and shaved neckline of a mid-century shingle which is only slightly longer than the 1920 version.

Hats for the spring are enveloped in veiling and the favorite shape is the bowler — with the Gibson sailor a good second.

Colors introduced in the fall are still popular for the spring, with rather more emphasis on the clear tones of cognac and tawny orange. Flesh tones which lend themselves particularly to fine straws horsehair and organdy are also important.

Spring novelties from recent shows include a head-hugging fabric cloche which is all folded in a small bag ready for travel and complete with a tailored leather miniature leather for daytime wear and a jewel clipped ostrich plume for the evening. Another model, also packed into a bag, has two hat pins in leather and two in iridescent sequins.

Maud Roser's hats continue to hug the head in the manner of the '20s with an original curve along the right cheek. The highlight of her cocktail hour, growing larger for race meetings and still larger for garden parties.

The Gibson Girl sailor with a fencer veil which subdues and flatters the face like a little cage starting on the head or hairline and ending under the chin, is favored by Maud and Nano. For wear after 5 o'clock, a touch of Spain is introduced in a big black cartwheel trimmed at the edge with a dainty grey flounce of chantilly lace.

One model, white terry cloth edged with navy blue faille was used on a classic shaped sailor, while another sailor had a miniature umbrella complete with a plastic handle perched on the crown.

A brim which opens out from a tiny pink cup is layer upon layer of pink, petal-shaped horsehair is introduced by Jacquetta. She further develops her garden party theme with picture hats in transparent fabrics swathed on a parasol-type frame. A lovely example of this is called "Parasolie," done in black and honey organza with the umbrella frame brim half open and the theme cleverly carried on to the umbrella tip perching on the centre of the crown.

Madame Paulette is a former believer in the "bonnet" and she literally takes one off grandpa's head complete with chins and silver button to snap on the lapel of your jacket. For a more daringly feminine woman, she has created "La Lande"—a skull cap in soft yellow straw, trimmed with a scarf-like sweep of green branches and yellow flowers which falls round the neck and below the shoulder.

The 1900 feminine look, which large crepe georgette picture hats trimmed huge roses made of the same fabric, are a feature of Gilbert Orcel's collection. Another line, which he calls "Flying Saucers" is best depicted in a voluminous beret, in navy faille, which is set flat across the head and is double in front. It is covered with iridescent mesh and spotted with pearl drops.

Cocktail hats in the collection are mostly toques entirely beaded and superimposed with iridescent sequins.

Girl's Dream Hubbie Model of Recitude

Klerksdorp, South Africa — (CP) — A 19-year-old schoolgirl, Jacoba Opperman, is the winner of first prize — £100 worth of furniture and housecontent in which entrants had to describe the ideal husband.

Jacoba's "dream husband" had among other things to have an ability to balance the household budget, and tact enough to refrain from criticizing his wife on the rare occasions she erred.

The prize-winning husband is a man "who often shows affection for his wife by a quick kiss or a passing hug." He takes a share in the upbringing of the children. He has a bank account held jointly with his wife for the payment of the housekeeping bills, and gives his wife a personal allowance.

When there are problems to face or decisions to make, he listens to what 'his wife has to say, weighs her words carefully, but makes final decisions himself.

He enjoys entertaining friends at home and frequently throws impromptu parties. He is a man who has grudges, but in the course of true love does not always run smoothly he has a quick row which ends as quickly as it began in complete reconciliation.

He thinks it good for his wife to have outside interests and wants her to dress well. He prefers, however, that both parties should live carefully so that they get "the big things—the house and the car—more quickly."

Talk on Missionary Work, Customs in Japan Given AYPA

"When we have a friend whom we admire and love very much we are always anxious to have others meet that friend so that too may know him as we do. That is why your church sends missionaries to foreign countries; we have a friend in the Lord Jesus and we want all people to know Him," explained Rev. Reg. Savary, speaking at the opening meeting of the Senior A.Y.P.A. at Christ Church on Wednesday night. Rev. Savary, having spent three and a half years in Japanese missions, centered his talk on Christian missionary work in that country.

Before beginning his talk Mr. Savary, assisted by Miss Mary Moon who acted as a model, displayed and explained the "going away" dress of a Japanese bride. It consisted of a cloak, black in color, bearing the family crest on the back and on each shoulder. The cloak was decorated with a colorful design. The kimona was blue with white sash. Next, Mr. Savary pointed out that all Japanese women wore a sash, tied with the type of knot which designates their station in society. This sash is kept in place by a pearl support worn in the middle of the back. The sash was brightly colored with beautiful designs. The stockings of heavy cloth had a divided toe so that the strap of the sandals could slip in.

He pointed out that the women never wore cloths as bright as this after marriage. The bright clothing in the Japanese dress are their undercloths." he added.

Mr. Savary pointed out that Japanese women did not wear headdress in churches but that they took off their sandals. He said that they wore straw slippers which were worn on wooden floors and that they went in stocking feet on the matted floors. Books Exhibited

He had with him two Japanese prayer books; one written with Japanese characters and the other with the use of English letters and style. The Japanese counterpart to the American book was also displayed.

Continuing with his address, the speaker pointed out that, following the example of Christ, the missionaries basic duty was to serve To show how this was being done in Japan he outlined the work and achievements of the Canadian Anglican, Rt. Hon. Lord Tweedsmuir. He explained that the work of this hospital was more than the healing of the sick. It was training men and women for doctors and nurses as well as teaching the Christian faith. He pointed out that girls came many miles into the Pacific to train and patients also came long distances to obtain treatment in the hospital.

He explained some of the services rendered in such fields as education, agriculture and social service. In summing up he pointed out that the work being done but that the church needed more workers to do much that is left to be done.

He concluded his talk by saying (in Japanese) "I have made an honorable nuisance." This concluding statement, of course was not true as could be seen by the interested group which gathered around him during lunch period.

Next week it is expected that the A.Y.P.A. will pay a visit to the Synagogue.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Calloway

You would never think it, but one of those old pioneer cobbler's benches makes the most interesting coffee table. The rough wood is retained to the taste, or painted in a gay color — Chinese Red, South Pacific Blue, snow white . . . The larger cobbler's benches have room for a big tray as well as a serving plate. Into the little squares where the old cobbler kept his tacks and fixin's go the olives, the midget onions, the cheeses.

There's a new gadget on the market called a "minute timer".

The timer works on the principle of an alarm clock, except that it can be set to buzz off for minutes, instead of hour. It's just the thing to save fretting over the pressure cooker or feeding the baby. It's a money-saver for long distance telephone calls and has a hundred-and-one uses for the homemaker.

The recipe is for a luncheon or supper desert that's easy to prepare. Serve a hot corn muffin on an individual dessert plate. Beside the muffin, place two slices of canned pineapple (drained) and a chunk of old cheese. Top the muffin and pineapple with a few big slurbs of Canadian maple syrup.

As for a gargle these days when colds strike the throats of the youngsters, stir up some salt and water, to this, add a dash of vinegar. Gargle with the mixture every hour.

Uncle Frontenac says if there's anybody in this world he simply can't put up with, it's the chap who chisels a career, instead of carving one.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature

about Food . . . What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

"Take it easy," is sometimes hard advice for a cook to follow.

It seems particularly unacceptable to inexperienced cooks baking biscuits for the first time. They insist on beating the dough until it's smooth, hoping that their thoroughness will repay them with smooth biscuits. What they get are hard-crusted, tough affairs that have been "the butt of all the biscuit jokes for years."

The rule in baking biscuits is: Don't overmix and don't overknead. The less you handle them, the more tender and flaky they will be. You must mix the batter only until it is formed into one mass. You must knead it only until it is smooth on top, about 20 seconds.

Learning to make biscuits is important because with this one basic dough you can make other varieties of biscuits, fruit shortcakes, topping for chicken or meat pies, the foundation for Dutch apple cake, fruit roly-poly and cobblers.

A cobbler is a pie without a bottom crust and with a biscuit dough for the top crust. The top crust may be in one large piece or cut into individual rounds.

Pineapple Cobbler. 6 Servings

Drain a No. 2 can of sliced pineapple. Set aside juice. Cut pineapple into small wedges.

Combine 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons sugar and the pineapple juice, stirring until all lumps have disappeared. Bring to a boil, reduce flame and simmer until thick and clear. Remove from flame. Add 2 tablespoons grated orange rind.

In the bottom of a 9-inch cake pan place pineapple wedges and reserved juice. Spread evenly.

To prepare biscuit dough: Measure, after sifting, 1 1-2 cups all-purpose flour, Combine flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Sift all dry ingredients — 3 times.

Using a pastry blender or two knives, cut in 1-4 cup shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Make a well in centre of mixture. Combine 1 well-beaten egg and 1-3 cup milk. Pour liquid into well and mix only until dough is formed into one mass and leaves sides of mixing bowl. Turn out on well-floured board. Press with palm of hand until dough is fairly smooth on top. Pat out or roll lightly until dough is 1-2 inch thick. Cut dough into 6 rounds with biscuit or cookie cutter.

Place rounds of biscuit dough on pineapple. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake 10 minutes more, or until brown. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

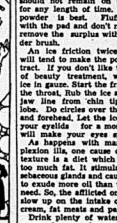
Belleville's Show Window of Fashion mirroring 1950's trend of what milady will wear, will open in the Capitol Theatre, Wednesday, March 8, with a matinee performance followed by a gala show in the evening.

Sponsored by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, the Spring Fashion Show will offer the ultra in what the experts have decreed will be Dame Fashions edicts for milady during the coming year.

Smart suits, ensembles, luxurious furs, sparkly-tailored coats, pretty frocks, exquisite evening gowns, chic millinery and glamorous costume jewelry, modelled by eight of Belleville's smartest-dressed ladies will be offered to the discerning eyes of the feminine public of the city, and to the mate of the species, too, if he so desires.

With the co-operation of Belleville merchants, whose reputation for keeping abreast of the times especially along fashion dictates is well-known, the Eleventh Annual Spring Fashion Show, is said to be even more colorful in its variance and presentation than any of its predecessors.



Valuable prizes will be given away at both matinee and evening performances.

BEAUTY

Treatment for enlarged pores

Lucky is the woman whose skin is of fine texture—which contributes greatly to the loveliness of the complexion. She is the envy of the 'poor dear whose pores have followed a policy of expansion and have picked up atmospheric dust. She will tell you that her face looks like an old pin cushion. It isn't as bad as that, but it is bad enough.

Health has much to do with appearance. Keep fit and Coarse skin is the toughest on the beautician has to deal with. Plastic surgeons—some of them—claim that they can peel away the outer, epidermal coat, reveal a fine, new skin—four reveals never having seen such cases, before and after treatment, is not qualified to verify this claim. She does know that plastic surgery is an expensive indulgence, that specialists who do this work; and are in much demand in the medical profession, are few and far between.

Persistent home care can improve conditions. Hot water should not be used when the face is washed; it is too relaxing. Have the water just warm enough to fluff up a soap. Rinse with tepid water, then with cold. Dry the face with sharp steps and pats of the towel to excite circulation; apply an astringent; let it dry on.

Tonic astringents can be found [illegible] spaces. Witch hazel is recommended for this purpose and acts favorably if the skin is chapped. Oily cosmetics can be applied occasionally, but should not remain on the skin for any length of time. A light powder is best. Fluff it on with the pad and don't rub it in; remove the surplus with a powder brush.

An ice friction twice a day will tend to make the pores contract. If you don't like this kind of beauty treatment, wrap the ice in gauze. Start the friction on the throat. Rub the ice along the jaw line from chin up to ear lobe. Do circles over the cheeks and forehead. Let the ice rest on your eyelids for a moment; it will make your eyes sparkle.

As happens with many complexion ills, the cause of coarse texture is a diet which includes too much fat. It stimulates the sebaceous glands and causes them to exude more oil than the skin need. So, fat-wise women cut down slow up on the intake of butter, cream, fat meats and pastries.

Drink plenty of water. Six or seven glasses a day are not too many. Start breakfast with fruit or tomato juice, so as to get a full allowance of vitamin C; it is good for a number of beauty sorrows. Once a day have a green salad.

Health has much to do with appearance. Keep fit and cut down the beauty overhead.

Hoop-Skirts Vie With 'Tube Look' For Evening Wear

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — Evening dresses in London's evening shows range from the beautiful crinolines to straight tube-looks that seem too tight to sit down in.

A refreshing difference is shown in a dress by Michael Sherard, the gifted lace skirt is cut in three tiers that stand out, paper-like, from the foundation. It is appropriately named Confetti.

An introduction by Hartnell is the half-crinoline, created by a tot-look skirt suddenly fountaining, on one hip, into a cascading crinoline.

Secret of a dress by Ronald Paterson is tricky draping. Halter-necked with embroidered lapels, the satin skirt draws upward in cross-over style and is caught in a trim, tremendous chou. This cross-over line above a fluffy petticoat demonstrates the leaf design of the embroidered lapels.

A dinner dress of black taffeta is given a puritan look by its high neck. Rimming the high collar are the high neck, pointed front panels of white muslin.

Pearl Flowers, a crinoline by Hartnell, has a tiny, roll-collared bodice, the collar embroidered with iridescent sequins and mock pearls. The full skirt studded in mon tulle is scattered with pearl roses like a wood in spring.

A voluminous-skirted white satin with bottle green bodice is covered over with lattice-work pattern of ivy leaves and pink roses.

Circle of Flames

Ostrich feathers encircle the skirt of a delightful, floating dress of pleated grey chiffon, having a Empire waist.

Fish Out Of Water ended up as an unfinished symphony when the dress ended in spangles. This glittering, figure-hugging dress will be covered with 2,000 spangles.

Short evening dresses are favored by all designers but, however intricate the designs, they are [illegible] shadows by the full-length crinolines and heavily-embroidered satins.

Most of the short dresses have boleros for cocktail, afternoon and theatre wear.

One, a short black net spotted with jet spangles, has an overskirt of silk bulla panels.

Evening dress hemlines are not [illegible] the floor, and are full at the back, are calf-length, ankle-length or mid-calf instead of full length.

A hobble-straight, tube-look is described with a figure-twist of green-sequin grape vines is called Clinging Vine.

PRODUCTION RESTRICTED

The present potential production of silk textiles in Alberta is 125,000 barrels daily but shipping facilities can market only abou. 85,000 barrels daily.

The Experts Say . .

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, (CP) — If those mashed potatoes aren't their usual snowy white, you can probably blame it on the weather.

"Dull days when the spuds are maturing may be one reason why some potatoes darken on being cooked. "Low light intensity," is the way a scientist in the agriculture department describes it.

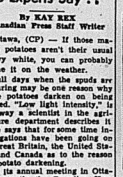
He says that for some time investigations have been going on in Great Britain, the United States and Canada as to the reason for potato darkening.

At its annual meeting in Ottawa recently the Canadian Horticultural Council adopted a resolution to get scientists across the country working on the problem.

The agriculture department expert says investigation in England has found weather bearing related to the season and climate. Other studies have shown the size might be a deciding factor of potassium in the soil. Then again some varieties of potatoes tend to blacken more quickly than others.

But, he says, the results have not been consistent. Darkening is just one of those complex things that take a long time to solve.

Meanwhile home economists of the department's consumer section plan to do various cooking tests, working with a variety of potatoes grown in different parts of the country. Methods of cooking, the effects of storage will enter into their study.



In the meantime they suggest that the housewife might ease her "darkening" problem by adding a little vinegar to the water in which she boils her potatoes. Half a teaspoon of vinegar to every two cups of water is the proportion.

New ways to cook potatoes are always welcomed. The agriculture department's home economist suggests Creole Fried Potatoes as an excellent supper dish or an accompaniment for cold meat or fish.

Ingredients: five medium potatoes, two medium onions, two tablespoons bacon fat; three tablespoons tomato catsup; one teaspoon salt; one-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Peel potatoes and slice thinly. Peel onion and slice thinly. Melt fat in a heavy pan, add potatoes and onion, cover and cook until tender (about 40 minutes), and stir often to prevent scorching. Remove cover, add catsup, salt and pepper. Stir well and continue cooking, uncovered, for 10

Inquest Ordered Into Death of Trenton Worker

With Coroner Dr. K. A. McQuade presiding a preliminary inquest into the death of creosote worker Leo Phillips, 28, of the Wooler road opened here today.

Survived by his wife and one child the victim was building a new home on the Wooler Road a short distance from the town limits.

Child Scalded When Kettle Of Water Upsets

Trenton (Special) —Paul LeBlanc, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul LeBlanc, R.R. 5, Trenton, received second degree burns Thursday when he accidentally upset a kettle of boiling water on himself.

The small boy and his brother were playing in the kitchen when they knocked the kettle of water off the stove, scalding young Paul on his back, one leg and his side.

He was rushed immediately to Belleville General Hospital where it is expected he will remain for at least two weeks.

Dr. G. Johnston of Trenton said that the boy would likely need skin grafts.

Two-Way Conversation

Harry Desjardine, dispatcher for Lawn Tract was quite surprised Thursday, when a voice came in over the two-way radio saying "this is Cornwall, can you hear me?" Mr. Desjardine answered "who are you and what is your location?" Identifying himself as a Cornwall taxi cab driver who had brought passengers to Trenton and was returning to Cornwall, the "voice" and Mr. Desjardine carried on a conversation until they were out of hearing distance.

"This is the first time anything like this has happened," said Mr. Desjardine. "It is impossible even to pick up local radio-dispatched cabs.

Apparently the Cornwall taxi was of the same frequency as La Fleur's and was therefore able to receive and send messages within the 20-mile radius.

When a player bids two suits and rebids one of them, he demands a choice from partner. By his three bids, west has announced that he has five cards in each of his two suits.

Partner is thus in a clear position to decide which is best as the trump for their side. Thus, the four heart bid by east is simply his way of saying hearts is better than clubs for trumps.

East shows three tricks with his first responds, west can see a total of 11 tricks in the pair; enough for a game.

This information is enough for a second round jump by west. If so, why does he bid only three clubs instead of a jump to four clubs? Is he not afraid the bidding may stop?

No. He now suit takeout forces for one round. It is important for him to know which suit will be trump. Therefore, he must save one rough of bidding to get this information.

When east shows preference for hearts, he does west refrain from probing for slam with a bid of four no-trump. To reach for a slam, he should first discover 12 tricks in the pair.

The one raise by east showed only three tricks. That's why.

Relief Expected Soon in Ontario In Coal Shortage

(By The Canadian Press)

Relief is expected soon in the coal shortage which reached crisis proportions in Ontario, with municipal authorities at Toronto and Windsor instituting emergency delivery services and industries preparing plans for enforced shut-downs.

Announcement at Washington that virtual agreement has been reached in the United States coal strike is expected to result in boosting the flow of coal from the United States is problematical, but the settlement eased problems of municipal and industrial leaders.

Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, promptly announced at Montreal that the 20 percent cut in CNR passenger service, effected last Jan. 9, result of low coal stocks, will be ended and full service will be resumed, with dates of full service to be announced Monday.

Leaders in the Canadian automotive industry at Windsor declined official comment but it was expected they would revise their tentative plans for shut-downs which had been expected within the next two weeks.

The Chrysler corporation at Windsor had already instituted a shut-down in some lines, making 3,500 of Windsor's 33,000 auto union members idle. Before the Washington announcement, Ford at Windsor had had supplies for only two weeks.

A large shipment of Alberta coal was expected en route to Ontario. The shortage for domestic consumers apparently was most acute at Windsor and Toronto, with civic authorities in both cities instituting an emergency control over deliveries. At least 10 of the coal dealers at Toronto reported their stocks exhausted, and 13 coal firms at Windsor had reached the bottom of the bin.

Premier Frost of Ontario said in an interview the Alberta shipment of coal was arranged by the Dominion fuel controller in cooperation with dealers' organizations.

Earlier Mr. Frost in a statement to the legislature said municipal officials, fuel dealers and distributors throughout the province should meet to make an inventory of supplies on hand and limit deliveries to guarantee a constant supply.

Crown Witness Says Was Asked About Dynamite

Quebec, March 4 — (CP) — A retired arsenal worker today will continue testimony at the murder trial of J. Albert Guay about a two-hour talk with Guay and watchmaker Generoux Rust concerning dynamite explosion.

Ovid Cote, 53-year-old former arsenal employee and one-time Provincial Police constable, appeared Friday as a Crown witness at the trial of Guay, accused of killing his wife who died in an airplane crash that took 23 lives last September at Sault au Cochon.

The Crown is trying to prove that Guay, 32-year-old Quebec jeweler, arranged for a homemade time-bomb to be shipped aboard the airliner causing its destruction.

Cote said his conversation about dynamite and ways of exploding it occurred Aug. 26, two weeks before the crash, in the downtown workshop of Rust, 44-year-old crippled who will appear at the trial later as a Crown witness.

Told Dangerous Way

Cote said Rust wanted to know how dynamite could be exploded with a battery. Cote said he told Rust that was a dangerous way and that it "might kill people." It was, Cote said, a bad fuse.

Guay asked if a six-volt battery could be used to detonate dynamite but Cote said he told the jeweler he didn't know.

Most of Friday's testimony was about the baggage and freight load carried by Canadian Pacific Airliner CF-CUA when it took off from Quebec Sept. 9 and crashed a quarter-hour later.

Willie Lamonde, C.P.A. agent, said one of the pieces of express in the left luggage compartment when the plane took off was a 25-pound, cardboard-covered parcel brought to the airport by Mrs. Arthur Pitre, 41-year-old sister of watchmaker Rust and an acquaintance of Guay.

The Crown hopes to prove later on in the trial that the parcel delivered by Mrs. Pitre contained a time-bomb made of dynamite sticks, batteries and an alarm clock.

Eight of 22 Productions Booked Solemn in Theme and Content

By FAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 4—(CP)—Broadway is in a serious mood these days.

Eight of the 22 productions currently booked at mid-town theatres are solemn in theme and content.

Outstanding among them is "Death of a Salesman," the Pulitzer-prize-winning drama which has been on the boards for a year. This season's serious plays include T. S. Eliot's "The Cocktail Party," profound in meaning despite its surface polish of comedy; "Lost in the Stars" and "The Member of the Wedding."

To this category now is added "The Bird Cage," an expose of an unscrupulous night-club owner.

Melvin Douglas Scores

"The Bird Cage" is well acted, despite weakness in the play, written by Arthur Laurents. A fine cast in this coronet theatre production is headed by screen star Melvin Douglas, who is convincingly villainous as the two-bit night club czar.

Maureen Stapleton gives a superior interpretation as his wife, driven to the bottle by loneliness.

Palomino Horses Retirement Hobby for John Bracken

By P'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Manotick, Ont., —(CP) — On rolling farm along the banks of the Rideau River, John Bracken has found more peace and contentment than he ever enjoyed as leader of the Progressive Conservative party in the turbulent field of federal politics.

Politics — a field he entered with reluctance—was part of his everyday life for almost 27 years. But now he has put politics aside and is living a quiet life, with Mrs. Bracken on their picturesque farm 15 miles south of Ottawa.

His main occupations are with his prize herd of Jersey cattle and his Golden Palomino saddle horses. He goes about his tasks leisurely and his health, which forced him to give up the Progressive Conservative leadership in October, 1948, has greatly improved.

In his 67th year, he can look back on six years as leader of the national party, on the Conservative years—1922 to 1942—as premier of Manitoba and on a brief spell as a private member of the Commons. He remained in the Commons after resigning the leadership but was defeated in the June 27 general election in the Manitoba constituency of Brandon.

"Do you miss politics?" Mr. Bracken was asked in a recent interview.

"I am happy to miss politics," he replied with a smile. "Now I have no work and a clear conscience."

Retired to Farm

It was following his defeat in the general election that he went into retirement on his 150-acre Ottawa Valley farm. There he takes an active interest in his Jersey herd, but his horses are his pride and joy.

He has 40 all told, including foals. His pet is "Bourbon Pot of Gold," a dapper Palomino stallion that has won the Dominion of Canada championship for three years in a row at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto.

While has won the Canadian championship three times, but he is probably the champion of the "horse with sentiment" said Mr. Bracken proudly.

He also has a soft spot in his heart for "Copper Prince of Ribeau-bend Farm", a reddish-colored three-year-old stallion which he considers of champion calibre.

Mr. Bracken says on his love of horses as a "luxury". He said he is trying to develop the Golden Palomino strain in saddle horses but it is tricky business. Some of the best foals have been obtained by cross-breeding Bourbon Pot of Gold with chestnut-colored mares. But this system is not foolproof. His foals include an albino and a Jet-black filly.

He has no special market for his horses, but some are purchased by horse lovers in the United States.

Because he has Clark Mansfield serving as his farm manager, Mr. Bracken is also able to take an interest in the neighboring farm of his son, George Bracken.

The dairy stock on the two farms totals 160 Holstein-and Jerseys, 40 Holsteins, 40 Ayrshires and 40 calves.

George Bracken has nine children and grandfather Bracken is proud of the help they provide on the farm. Young, tousle-headed Clark Bracken, 11 has been assigned the task of feeding the calves and his five-year-old brother, Gordie, deftly relays cans from the milk house to the barn on a three-wheeled rig that works like a toy.

It seemed only natural that John Bracken would return to roots, the farm when he decided to give up politics.

He was born on a farm in Ontario's Leeds County and has always had a keen interest in agriculture. He has won international recognition as an author of agricultural textbooks and as a professor of field husbandry.

He was president of the Manitoba Agriculture College in 1922 when the Farmers' party of Manitoba, after two unsuccessful attempts, finally talked him into accepting leadership of the party and the premiership of the province. He was never defeated in the provincial field.

In the comfortable home are pictures of him during the days when he was premier and latest pictures of him. The 125-year-old home—it looked more like a ramshackle barn when he purchased the farm in 1944 — has been completely renovated and furnished with all modern conveniences. Mr. Bracken left untouched his white pine and ash logs that formed part of the walls and ceiling supports of the original home.

As a producer, he has an interest in the problems facing agriculture today.

"Many people have asked me to say what I think about the present situation," he said, "but I'm not going to express my views.

"I don't want to say anything partisan."

Rev. Thomas Gray Reported Missing

Port Perry, March 4 (CP) — The Rev. Thomas Gray, 76-year-old clergyman known familiarly as "Preacher" Gray, has been missing from his Scugog Island home since Tuesday, Port Perry police reported today. He was last attending to visit friends in Toronto. police said but did not reach that city. His wife is bed-ridden invalid.

SPENDING BUDGET ON AIR

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— Defence Minister Claxton said Friday night that Canada is spending "a far greater proportion" of her defence budget on air power than other countries.

"We are placing great emphasis on the air force but not to the detriment of the proper roles of the navy and army are ignored," said Mr. Claxton in an address prepared for delivery before the RCAF association at Toronto.

Half Century of Development

Story of Riches and Heartbreak Part of Canada's Mining Progress

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Toronto, March 4 (CP) —Canada's fabulous mining industry starts this week to celebrate a half-century of progress at the colorful annual meeting of the Prospectors and Developers Association.

Statistically since 1900 it has:

Wrested from the earth and rock $13,800,000,000 and jumped annual production from $65,000,-000 to $900,000,000; established cities and towns and kept a stream of wealth flowing through all Canadian industries and payrolls.

Humanly, it has been a story of riches and heartbreak and both will be presented at the four-day prospectors gathering from Sunday to Wednesday, for, in the words of Mrs. Viola MacMillan, president:

Many Old Timers Alive

"It is not generally realized that many of the old-timers who staked the great mines and pushed back our frontiers are still hale and hearty today."

And hale and hearty, some rich, some poor, many of them will be here in swap yarns of former days.

A lot of memories will be brought back by the picture gallery alone — some 600 pictures collected from across Canada of persons, many now historic, many now forgotten.

They will show Fred La Rose and his lucky hammer, which he threw at a fox, but which knocked off a chunk of high-grade ore to discover the Lamaict silver camp. They will show in the field Sandy McIntyre who staked the Dome, tyre Porcupine, and Benny Hollinger Consolidated, both rich Ontario mines.

Says Hon. J J. McCann, federal minister of mines, in sending his greetings:

"Canadian mining was conceived in the 17th century in coast diggings on the Atlantic Coast and cradled through the backwash of the California gold rush into the Fraser Valley of British Columbia in 1858, the Cariboo (B.C.) placer discovered in 1858, the world-renowned Klondike rush in 1898 and the discovery of the rich copper-nickel deposits in the Sudbury area coincident with the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Cobalt Camp Led

"However, it was the discovery of the silver wealth of the Cobalt camp in Ontario in 1903 that brought the industry into the limelight of public interest. Prospectors trained in this camp fanned out into the wilderness of Canada's northland and discovered gold in the Porcupine, Ontario, in 1908; at Kirkland Lake, Ont., in 1911; copper and zinc at Flin Flon, Man., in 1915; copper and gold at Noranda, Que., in 1920; and radium and uranium at Great Bear Lake, N.W.T. in 1930.

"Across Canada the 'finds' grew into settlements until today thriving cities and towns stand testimony to the great underground wealth that has made Canada the largest producer in the world of nickel, asbestos, and the platinum metals; the second largest of gold, zinc, radium, uranium and selenium; and the fourth of copper, lead and silver.

"Means will doubtless be found eventually to utilize many of our metal and mineral deposits now well below the grade required for profitable operation," he added. "Furthermore, large scattered areas of our country remain to be explored for mineral wealth or have been only partly explored."

Borrows Transport Plane for Joyride

Anchorage, Alaska, March 4 —(AP) — A nocturnal joyrider borrowed a DC-3 transport plane early Thursday, flew low over sleeping residents for 14 minutes and abandoned the plane in the middle of an airport runway.

After the plane took off Norman Mather, tower operator at Merrill Field, notified airline officials, who called police. By the time police got to the field, the plane was back on the ground — abandoned in the middle of the runway. Police saw a taxi speeding away.

A check of the plane disclosed no apparent damage.

Mather was later grilled on the floor of the cockpit.

Thinks Conditions Similar Prior To 1936 Flood

Maurice Callaghan, local ice dealer with 50 years experience at cutting ice from the bay, says that this winter reminds him of the winter of 1936 which was followed by a disastrous flood.

The thickness of the ice that year was 24 inches he said explaining that it was not the depth of ice that caused the flood but a condition brought about by heavy rains concentrated within a period of three days. The rain broke the ice up and pushed it down the Moira creating a great jam which backed up the excess water and caused it to flow out over the river banks and the area paralleling the river.

Thickest ice in a half a century was 26 inches, according to the ice dealer. It was a very low and not as good for household use at the pure hard variety. The thickest ice he has seen since he can remember is 37 inches.

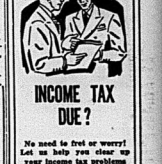
The ice now is around 18 inches in depth and growing thicker as the temperatures continue below the zero mark. Last year the river was open at this time.

Three Letters And No Numbers On Car Plates

Columbus, O., March 4 (AP) Something new is being added to thousands of Ohio automobiles this month — licence plates bearing three letters and no numbers.

Several weeks ago when the bureau of Motor Vehicles announced the three-letter tags were designed to first-come, first-served basis, applicants quickly reserved all available combinations.

The letters "I" and "O" are barred from the combinations, because they might be confused with numbers like those on regular tags. But after April 1 it won't be uncommon to see cars tagged "Jam," "Bud," "Hey," "Hug," "Gas," "Nut," or "Ape" on the road.



A clothing salesman probably asked for the letters "Bvd." A fast operator likely put in for "Pdq." And there's certain to be an "End."

MILES OF ROADS

Ontario's total road mileage exclusive of city, town and village streets, is approximately 79,000 miles.

Aided Own Child, Mother Believes Nothing Hopeless

Toronto, (CP) — Mrs. Dorothy Bowman says there is no such thing as a hopelessly handicapped child.

She has come to the conclusion after a long and successful fight to help her daughter, Carol, who was born eight years ago totally blind and crippled and who later was pronounced by doctors as totally deaf as well.

Now Carol has some vision in one eye and is able to hear. And under her mothers guidance the little girl is gradually learning to overcome a spastic muscular condition in her throat and is learning to speak.

Mrs. Bowman hasn't confined her work of curing to her daughter. At her home in nearby Newmarket she helps any pre-school child who comes to her for assistance and makes a weekly visit to the three Newmarket schools to teach speech therapy.

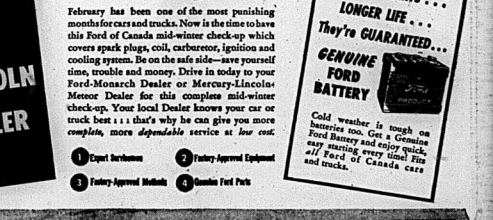
Mrs. Bowman told her own story to the Toronto Cerebral Palsy Parent Council recently.

"Even if they say your child is hopeless, you don't know," Mrs. Bowman said. "The percentage of children that are hopeless is nil. Look at my child. She was just nothing at first."

Mothers Can Help

"I just shudder to think what would have happened to Carol if we had said, 'Take her away.' Institutions haven't the time, the staff or the feeling to really do much for a child like that . . . I want to tell all parents who are trying to help their handicapped little ones just how right they are to do it."

After Carol was born, Mrs. Bowman set out to learn how to help her. Leaving Carol in her grandmother's care, she studied in two United States schools teaching speech therapy and special education.



Then she took Carol with her to the California State school for the Blind and spent a year teaching deaf-blind children to speak.

Mrs. Bowman says that in dealing with handicapped children one must learn to look at them inside and not just at their appearance.

"There are no eager to learn," she said. "They need help so badly and who will give it better than their own parents?"

"After all, nothing is impossible. There may be limitations but we haven't found them yet."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Strikes, layoffs and other troubles may have their places in the lives of railroaders, but at the moment ask any CNR hockey fan what the current topic is in iron horse circles and nine times out of ten he will answer: "The series between the Car Department and the Yardmen." It seems that after the town has put on the pyjamas for the evening, the monotonous sirens of the Diesels fade in the distance and there's no one around but a few benighted inebriates, baker addicts leaving the "cleaners", the limbs of the law on night patrol and the occasional couple who give people the idea they are in love, the railroad shunters, Richards, Reardons, Bordas and Durnans hie themselves to the arena where they battle to the King's taste in a do-or-die series for the championship of the Inter-departmental League.

* * *

Personally we reluctantly admit, we have not seen any of these thrillers. Usually our hockey gorge has been filled prior to the gladiatorial meeting in the ice amphitheatre of those champions of the Yard and the Car Department. But our operators inform us they are thrillers in the literal meaning of the word, and the boys of the road do not fool when it comes to puck-chasing. Right now the series is tied up tighter than a jungle juiced rum's eyelid, and anything can happen. There's plenty of rivalry with both teams having their quota of roaring fans. There'll be plenty of fun before the winners are presented with gold-plated diesel locomotives, silver replicas of the coal-chutes, or whatever the titular baubles are.

Just about the time you read this, (both of you) the Belleville Meteors Juveniles will be in action against the Peterborough Triple-Link kids. The game is the second of the pointed-count series in the second round of the OMHA Juvenile "A" series, and Eddie Schrieder's crew are confident they can overcome their goal deficit and bring the bacon back to Belleville. They lost a three-goal lead the other night and this afternoon's battle should be a thriller.

* * *

The banties and midgies of the Belleville Hockey Association went down to defeat before the superior teams out of Oshawa. They were defeated by substantial margins on the round, but they were in no wise disgraced. After all the local youngsters are but green in organized hockey, this being their first year, and they were stacked up against squads with vastly more experience. However they proved grand little sportsmen and the lopsided scores in the first games did not bother them in the least. The gallant little tissues never once thought of defaulting, and their spirit was "Let's go back to their dugout and beat 'em". And that is the spirit that makes hockey great.

In fact, the showing spat up by both midgets and banties proved somewhat of a surprise to their most ardent supporters. Molded from a heterogeneous collection of moppets who never knew what organized hockey or coaching was five or six weeks ago, the kids responded rapidly to coaching and authority, and they formed teams that were a distinct credit to their coaches, sponsors and their city. The midgets had practised no more than three or four times before being thrust into a playdown series. The banties were selected from the four teams in the BHA Bantam League. They did themselves proud and are by no means downhearted over the defeats handed to them.

A free, all-expense trip for two people to either the 1950 Stanley Cup Finals or the 1950 World Series is the prize Sports College is dangling for the youth of Canada as the new Sports College National Contest gets under way. The contest is designed to help create more support and interest in the Sports College project so that its objective of helping to raise the standards of fitness, health and sports efficiency in Canada can be realized. This contest is the first in a new series of projects Sports College intends to launch during 1950 in order to develop a greater national consciousness of the need and desire for higher levels of health, fitness and sports efficiency.

Though the Sports College Contest has been organized primarily for the youth of the country entry is open to anyone regardless of age, sex or where they live. The fundamental contest assignment will be to write an essay on a subject of importance in the development of a high level of health, fitness and sports efficiency. The actual assignment will be given only on receipt of a card. Entry blanks entries will be sent a copy of the rules and regulations of the contest. All anyone interested in entering the contest need do is send a letter saying he wants to enter in Sports College, Box 99, Toronto 1, Ontario. Coaches, teachers, playground supervisors, recreation leaders could well make an interesting group project out of this contest. Any leader desiring to do this need only write to Sports College, Box 99, Toronto 1, Ontario for the needed number of entry forms. Entries close March 15, so anyone interested in the contest should get their entries in right away.

Red Wings and Maple Leafs Will be at Full Strength For Their Clash at Gardens

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Both Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs will be at full strength tonight when the two top teams of the National Hockey League collide at Toronto. Coach Tommy Ivan of Detroit makes no secret of his desire to stay at the top of the league, which is where the Wings have been practically all season.

The Leafs, nine points behind Detroit in second place, don't have much hope of overtaking the leaders. But the Leafs edged Wings 3-2 in their last encounter at Toronto two weeks ago, and might do it again.

The league-leaders looked impressive in practice Friday with a big squad of 12 forwards, five defencemen and two goalies. Ivan has a routine for practice dressing that impresses onlookers. His forward lines are different sweater colors; one line Friday was in maroon, another in green, a third in orange and the fourth in black. Captain Sid Abel was excused, resting up a heel injury, but he's expected on the ice tonight to complete the big line, the league's top scoring threesome—Ted Lindsay, Gordon Howe and Abel.

Meantime Montreal Canadiens entertain Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers play at Boston in tonight's other games. Sunday sees Leafs at New York and Hawks at Boston.

Canadiens tied with the Rangers for third place overnight after a blue Friday night with the announcement that Bill Durnan wouldn't be in his nets when they get set against Chicago.

Durnan, five-time Vezina Trophy winner and the top goalie on a percentage basis this season, was out over the eye Thursday night when he fell over the skate of Chicago's Jimmy Conacher. He was examined by a doctor tonight and advised to enter hospital for a rest.

The Habitants will try to obtain Gerry McNeil from the Clinton-ati farm club in the American Hockey Association.

If McNeil proves unavailable, they'll draft Jacques Plante from the amateur Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

title defence before gaining permanent possession. Maybe Ray should offer him a ring. The contenders in trade . . . Ben Hogan has accepted an invitation to play at the fashionable Palmetto Golf Club's sixth annual pro-amateur tournament in Athens, S.C., March 22 . . . Sam Jethroe hit the longest ball during Yesterday's workout in the Boston Braves' camp at Bradenton, Fla., but the former Montreal flychaser wasn't thrilled. Fleet Pete Reiser made a momentous catch of the Negro outfielder's 400-foot drive.

What Price Learnin' . . .

Al Cartwright, the Wilmington, Del., scribe, passes along a "Dear Alumnus" that he recently sent out by a college freshman football coach. . . . It points out that the "Dartmouth amendment" now forbids American colleges to pay expenses for prospective athletes to visit the campus for tryouts or sight-seeing . . . Then it explains: "The ruling is not too harsh on larger colleges. They'll be able to call on interested graduates to bring boys to this campus. We're asking your help in doing the same thing for us."

That again proves that if there are more ways of skinning a cat, a college education will bring them out.

Walcott Wants Shot at Charles After Recent Win

New York, March 4 — (AP)— "I want Ezzard Charles or Joe Louis soon."

The speaker was Jersey Joe Walcott.

"This where you came in?

"This is where we all came in. After all, the ancient ringman lost twice to Louis and once to Charles, the N. B. A. champion. But maybe the 36-year-old Camden, N. J., papa makes a little sense. Let's listen to him.

"Look, Louis gave me two shots, and we made a lot of money. Charles ought to give me another crack. Who else can he fight that could bring a decent gate? If anyone else thinks he deserves a shot first, let's hear from him.

"If Louis is serious about coming back, I'm the guy for him."

Jersey Joe has been to the championship well three times now but he still hankers for that crown.

Maybe he's got something there about the lack of opposition.

Jersey Joe, who admits to 36 years, made his speech Friday night after stopping Omelio Agramonte, the Cuban heavyweight champion, in 2:11 of the seventh round of their feature bout at Madison Square Garden. Walcott, 1 to 4 favorite, outweighed the Cuban, 198 to 183 1-4.

The old boy floored Agramonte twice in the first frame—for a nine and no count — for a one-count in the fifth, and for nine and eight in the final stanza when Referee Jack Watson halted the one-sided contest.

Barrie Flyers Beat St. Mikes To Win Series

(By The Canadian Press)

An overtime goal with less than three minutes to play and another team was eliminated from Memorial Cup contention.

The goal-scorer was St. Michael's College Majors was the team to feel the sting of defeat last night and they have Johnny Bower of Barrie Flyers to thank for their demise.

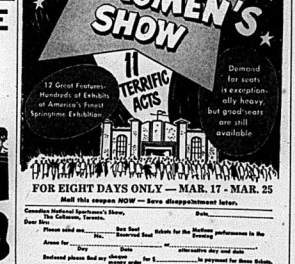
The 165-pound winger from Kirkland Lake whacked in an unassisted tally at 7:07 of the overtime period and gave the Flyers a thrilling 3-2 victory to send them into the semi-finals of the Ontario Hockey Association playdowns against Guelph Biltmores.

All three victories by the Flyers in the best-of-five series were won on Barrie ice, St. Michael's College is second and fourth in the homey atmosphere of Maple Leaf Gardens.

Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen came in for a share of glory last night and paved the way for an "ice jam" in the senior A round-robin semi-finals. Victors over Toronto Marlboros 3-2, they play the 12th and final game in the senior league against Hamilton. If the Dutchmen lose, all three teams will be tied with a 4-4 record.

In the event of a three-way deadlock, the two teams with the best goals average will advance to the finals.

Marlboros backed into the finals with their 30-27 goal average and Kitchener has a 29-27 record, leaving Hamilton having to win by more than one goal to be sure of a spot in the finals. They have scored 19 while allowing 22 to pass.



May Have Playoff

Things will really be confused if the Tigers sneak through with a one goal victory. That will leave both clubs with identical records, and will probably mean a sudden-death playoff for the second spot in the finals.

St. Michael's started like a house afire in their game at Barrie. Bob Sabourin turned the stick at the :38 second mark of the opening frame via the unassisted route. Red-topped Sudbury flash by name of Mitt (Red) McCarthy rapped in two goals in the Tigers' 4-2-1 lead.

The only goal of the second came after a scramble around the Barrie net. Fred Sandford put the Colleginos back on even terms.

After playing through a scoreless third period, Bobcats came through with his dramatic counter to end the series and force

Johnson Lopped From Roster of Windsor Spits

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Windsor Spitfires tackle Toronto Marlboros with a clean bill of health today in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A semi-final, but they'd rather not hear anyone mention the word "import." They've had almost as many import problems this season as the Canadian government.

Friday night the O.H.A. executive lopped Earl Johnson from Spitfires roster under the branch-to-branch import rule which prohibits more than two players from organized leagues in other parts of Canada to play for an OHA club. Johnson was the third player removed from the Spitfire lineup by executive action this season.

There was one consolation for the Windsor club. The two-semi-final series in which Johnson played will be allowed to stand. That means the Spits start a 2-1 edge, going into today's fourth game of the best-of-seven set.

The clubs won the two games in which Johnson participated. Spitfires won the third contested from which the Winnipeg forward was barred, pending investigation of his case.

The OHA ruled ineligible as a result of information given them by Stafford Smythe, manager of the Marlboros. Smythe did not enter an official protest.

George Panter, assistant secretary of the association, explained at Friday night's meeting that Spitfires had used Johnson in good faith under the impression that he had previously played with a club unaffiliated with organized hockey and was not considered an import under OHA regulations.

Applied for Transfer

Panter said Spitfire manager Lloyd Pollock had applied to the OHA for a transfer for Johnson last October. Pollock said he told Panter that Johnson lived on Selkirk Avenue in Winnipeg and that he played with the St. Paul's club but no affiliation with organized hockey.

Panter had written the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association to obtain clearance for the transfer and was on the status of the St. Paul's club. When he received no reply by Nov. 1, Panter granted the transfer by default.

Smythe told the meeting he had learned only recently that Johnson had played for the St. Paul's club, which he knew to be affiliated with the MAHA.

Last December, the OHA barred two other Windsor players Eddie Kullman and Jack Ward, under similar circumstances and ordered the club to replay 10 games which the Spits had won with Jones and Turner in the lineup.

The loss of 30 points dropped Windsor from second to last place in the nine-team loop. But Spitfires started a winning streak, playing extra point games on their next swing around the circuit to make up the required games. They finished the season in second place behind the Marlboros.

BLUES DEFEATED

Toronto, March 4 — (CP) — With two games yet to play, University of Montreal Carabins Friday night pulled into a first-place tie with the University of Toronto with a 7-3 victory over the Blues in Varsity's last game of the intercollegiate hockey schedule.

Close to 4,000 fans in Varsity Arena, watched the Carabins surge steadily ahead through the first two periods then clinch their efforts with two goals in the last four minutes of play.

Training Camp Briefs

(By the Associated Press)

Manager Casey Sengel is delighted with the progress being made by jolting Joe Dimaggio and other veterans of the New York Yankees at the world champions' St. Petersburg, Fla., training base.

"I never saw or heard of Dimaggio working this hard so early," the veteran Yankee flash Casey Stengel said of the Yankee Clipper. "I might almost say he is working hard. Some writers have told him he could do his own batting if he does more work rather than too little, that's strictly up to him."

A pair of jacks may be the answer this season to the pitching problems of Leo Durocher, New York Giants' skipper.

One, of course, is Jack Kramer, obtained from the Boston Red Sox. The other is Jack Lohrke, rifle-armed third baseman who Durocher yesterday appointed a member of his try-out pitching staff.

Junior Ladies, Men's Badminton Tourney Planned

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Badminton Association Friday night at Calgary authorized junior Dominion men's and ladies' tournament for the first time in its history.

The decision was reached at the C. B. A.'s annual meeting held in conjunction with the Canadian championships in progress at Calgary's Glencoe Club.

The first junior tournaments will be held in 1951. The venue will be decided at today's concluding session when officers for 1950 will be elected.

The Association also expressed itself as "ready to hold" a Canadian Open in men's singles and doubles events.

The last open, attended by North American professionals and leading amateurs, was staged in 1936. Jack Purcell of Toronto, now an executive member of the C. B. A., at that time defended his singles championship — Bill Markham of New York. The Canadian team of Jim and Ike Livingstone of Hamilton and Claude Paul Snyder, of the Granite Club in Kitchener, Ont., won the doubles at Toronto's Massey Hall.

President Stuart Lawson of Toronto said an open "will probably" be held next year at Montreal and may become an annual affair.

University of Detroit Titans whipped the Western University Mustangs 58-34 at the London Arena Friday night. The Detroit squad took command right from the start and led throughout and except for a rally at the start of the second half when London whittled the Titan lead to 12 points, they were never seriously threatened. Detroit led 26-16 at the half.

In the preliminary game, Kitchener St. Jeromes came from behind to hand WindsorWalkervilles their second straight defeat 41-36.

At Arcadia, Calif., Citation, his most recent conqueror Noor, and six others were named Friday to race in today's $50,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap. It is the last chance at Santa Anita for the Calumet star to hit the turf's alltime money winning peal.

At Oberstdorf, Germany, a Swedish skier, Dan Netzel, leaped 135 metres (442.7 feet) Friday and claimed a world record. It was the third time in four days a record distance was jumped on the newly-built hill here. The hill was built up to a height of 161 metres (525 feet) especially for attempts on the world record.

Jersey Joe Walcott celebrated his 36th birthday New York's Madison Square Garden Friday night by stopping wild-swinging Ezzilo Agramonte of Cuba in 2:11 of the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round event. Walcott, a 1-4 favorite, outweighed his foe 198 to 184.

At Waycross, Ga., Joe Louis floored Leo Johnson of Syracuse, N. Y., midway Friday night in a four-round exhibition match. The retired heavyweight champion had Johnson bleeding and groggy at the end of the match. The Brown Bomber had to carry him most of the last round. Johnson was not able to land a solid blow on the former champ. Louis weighed 224, Johnson 202.

Timing his finishing kick to the split second, Jim Barry of Ireland nipped G-man Fred Wilt of New York by two feet in the Heptagonal Collegiate track meet's special invitation two-mile event Friday night at the Boston Garden.

Barry, who ran third in the five-man field until the gun lap, was clocked in 8:57.9. All but one of the rivals broke nine minutes.

At Uppsala, Sweden, the touring Edmonton Mercurys Friday night whipped an all-star Uppsala team 15-0 in an exhibition hockey game.

$5,000 FIRE LOSS

Arnprior, Ont., March 4—(CP)—Damage estimated at more than $5,000 was caused by a fire Friday that destroyed a large machine shed on the farm of T. Clarke about 7 miles east of here. The fire was caused by a tractor backfiring.

Oil Capitol Winter Book Favorite in Derby

Miami, Fla., March 4 (AP) — The ornate gates at Hialeah were closed today and the thoroughbreds moved to Gulfstream Park at nearby Hallandale for the final 41 days of Florida's racing season.

Hialeah's surprising successful 40-day meeting saw Tom Gray's Oil Capital take the closing-day feature Friday, the $50,000 Flamingo Stake with a six-length victory in 1:48 1-5 — fastest time for the Stakes event since 1938 and only three-fifths off the world's speed record for the 1 1-8 miles.

Oil Capitol's victory, worth $44,800, established the dark gray son of Mahmoud as the winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby.

Hal Price Headley's Lotowhite was second and Calumet Farm's Theory finished a head back in third place. Calumet Farm's Trumpet King was fourth in the field of seven three-year-olds.

Oil Capitol, brilliantly ridden by Ken Church, the young Windsor, Ont., jockey, paid $13.40, $5.60 and $2.30. Lotowhite returned $7.70 and $3.60 and Theory paid $3.50.

Oil Capitol's next start will be in the Bluegrass Stakes at Keeneland. He then will compete in the Derby trial and the Derby, by the Preakness and other rich stakes, barring any mishaps, his owner said.

Nylons Record Finally Broken, Legion Wins 7-4

It finally happened. The long undefeated streak of the Kingston Nylons is finally broken. And Peterborough Legion last night did something that no other team in the league could do since December last. They sacked the first defeat on the starry Kingston team in Peterborough in the second game of the Senior "B" City finals. The score was 7-4.

In a clean fast hard fought game which saw only three penalties handed out, Nylons led at the end of the second period by 4-3. Legion got on all the power they had and swept the Nylons aside in the final heat with a four-goal splurge. It war Nylon's first defeat in 23 starts.

The third game is scheduled for Kingston Monday night.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By LORNE FRAME
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 4—(CP)—Recent ructuses in the National Hockey League and eventual rescission of the game have led to a suggestion that hockey needs a "czar".

It comes from Doug (Winsor) Dally Star) Vaughan, who refers specifically to "the Conacher case and the Dick Irvin fracas in Detroit."

Doug writing in defence of league president Clarence Campbell, proposed that Campbell be given ruling power equal to that of Hap Chandler; commissioner of professional baseball.

His support of Campbell followed a verbal attack by Bob Murphy, sports editor of the Detroit Times, in which Murphy asked for Campbell's resignation.

"We have been on friendly terms with Bob for years, appreciated and respected him as a capable newspaper man," Doug writes. "this is one time, however, that he is away off the beam."

"To our knowledge, Murphy has never covered the hockey beats. His ignorance of the structure of the N.H.L. is expressed in

"For Bob's information, and much as we hate to say it, Campbell is no more a 'czar' of the N.H.L. than you or I, he were, things might be different."

Campbell, as president of the National Hockey League, is answerable to the league governors, the people who really own the N.H.L.; Weston W. Adams, Boston; William J. Tobin, Chicago; James Norris, Detroit; Hon. Donat Raymond, Montreal; General John S. Kilpatrick, New York and Conn Smythe, Toronto.

"Campbell, a lawyer who served with distinction as a prosecuting member of the war crimes tribunal in Germany at the conclusion of the Second World War, did not walk into the job as president of the N.H.L. without knowledge that he would be, to start with at least, nothing more than a 'figure head.'

"He knew who really ran the league then, and he still knows. But that doesn't say that he likes it or hasn't tried to do something about it . ."

AT THE BELLE

"PRINCE OF FOXES" IS HAILED A PRINCELY MOTION PICTURE

A princely motion picture has come to the Belle Theatre, Tweniieth Century-Fox's production of Samuel Shellabarger's epic romance, "Prince of Foxes," combines a king-sized production scale with one of the imperial casts of all recent history. The result is a breathtaking experience in moviegoing.

"Prince of Foxes," as the millions of readers of Shellabarger's novel will recall, highlights a dramatic episode in the career of the Borgias, blood thirsty rulers of medieval Europe, an episode that is credited with beginning the end of Borgia rule.

As the young adventurer who begins in Cesare Borgia's service and, with a moral awakening and his love for a beautiful girl to spurn him on, finally brings about the Borgia downfall, Tyrone Power, as the hero presented with one of his richest roles. Power plays to the hilt, given the impetus of the foxy wiles of Orson Welles as the infamous Cesare and the quiet beauty of Wanda Hendrix as the girl he comes to love. This stirring trio of stars is supported in "Prince of Foxes," and at moments outfoxed, by the work of Everett Sloane as Power's aide; Katina Paxinou as his peasant mother; and Felix Aylmer as a kindly head of state. Mr. Sloane's performance indicates how much he relished his reunion with Orson Welles, their scenes together having special force, and Miss Paxinou and Mr. Aylmer, both distinguished continental performers, come up with their finest work since "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and "Hamlet" respectively.

But the notable acting by these noted players on a memorable screenplay by Milton Krims is still not the strongest feature of "Prince of Foxes." Rather it is the incomparably magnificent on-location production that emerges as the key element of the film. For the magnificence of "Prince of Foxes" is indeed fit for a king's tastes—and it has been flitted so by Hollywood's most aptly named director, Henry King. Taking his cast, crew and cameras to Italy, King has been inspired to recreate in their original locations scenes of historic splendor.

"Prince of Foxes," showing today and Monday at the Belle Theatre is indeed the arlstocrat of screen spectacles, Hollywood, March 4 (AP) — Adele Jergens, who has made a handsome living as a sexy doll on the screen, says she feels "so refined" in her current role.

"I play a nice girl for the first time in years," the blonde remarked about her "Sugarfoot" part. "Actually I'm still a saloon entertainer, but underneath I'm nice.

"I dress conservatively in this one, too. I just have two dresses that even hint of sex, and they're just off the shoulder. I've got to depend on my eyes and shoulders for the sex."

Her part in the Randolph Scott western is no departure from what she usually plays. From the start of her career, Adele seemed destined to enact sexy females.

Accident Incidence

She began as a model and she tells the story of a billboard in Newark, N.J., on which she displayed her gams for a hosiery ad. She claims that a series of auto accidents occurred in rapid succession near the billboard. After an investigation, the ad was removed in the interests of public safety.

Adele's first big Broadway break was another hint of the shape of things to come. She replaced Gypsy Rose Lee in "Star and Garter."

She was tabbed for pictures by a talent scout. Her first screen role was in "Together Again"—as a strip teaser. Her most recent role was in "Code 3"—as a strip teaser.

More Cheesecake

In between pictures, Adele is posing for cheesecake. She has been selected for all kinds of honors.

"My most recent nomination was 'Miss Hot Tea of 1950,'" she reported. "There have been so many like that, I can't remember them all.

"When Anita Colby was 'The Face' and Frank Sinatra was 'The Voice,' I was dubbed 'The Eyeful.'"

The blonde beauty does most of her posing in a bathing suit, but she believes that women are sexier covered up.

"You don't have to undress to be sexy," she claimed. "Sex is in your manner, your eyes do the talking."

Adele, whose 128 pounds are admirably distributed over her five-feet, six-inch frame, no doubt has talkative eyes. I didn't notice.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet with her left hand, saying to pop, Oh dear, why do I have to go out this morning of all days, just when I'll miss the high lites of my 3 favorite daytime cereals on the radio—Aunt Ellie, and The Ordeal of Helen Dombey, and Doctor Diamond.

I never heard any of them, but I'm sure I can give you a fairly accurate idea of what's going to happen today on those 3 programs, pop said, to ma said, I only wish you could, for land sakes, I could leave the house with a free mind.

Then listen closely, my dear, while I put today's installment of all three in one ruff nutshell, pop said. In the chill blackness of midnight Helen Dombey awakens in the lonely mountain shack, rather surprised to feel a hand closing on her lovely throat. Then, in the terrifying darkness, she reconizes the icy, bonny fingers of Doctor Diamond. Then she reckonizes the dry rattle of his stethascope as he presses it to her rapidly beeting boom in a desperate effort to locate the mistery. Just murmur that up to this moment she has successfully hidden from him. Then a hideous screem rends the stillness outside. It is the cry of the wolf-woman. The door of the shack bersts open, and Aunt Ellie fails in, more dead than alive and yet not dead enough to justify a charge of merder. Doctor Diamond cerres softly and relaxes his icy grip, just as another sound strikes terror to the hart and marrow of Helen Dombey.

I hope it's the sound of your last gulp of coffee for land sakes, ma said, and pop said By gollies

And he folded his paper and left for his office, and pritty soon ma looked a sad look at the radio

Continuous Bloom in the Perennial Garden

These perennial border arrangements are designed to create two distinct mass bloom effects. The varieties have been carefully selected for clear colors and easy culture.

Such a border will afford a succession of bloom extending each year from spring to late Fall. The squares on the plan represent one foot intervals. The borders can be repeated in eighteen foot units as required.

Tall clumps of German Iris, Hemerocallis and phlox form the background. In the foreground are columbines, veronicas, coral bells and statice. This group comprises 92 plants.

During June and July the outstanding flowers are mixed blue delphiniums and hardy lilies. During September and up until late Fall, the border is a blaze of color produced by hardy asters, chrysanthemums with plumbago in the foreground. This group requires 96 plants. Consult your nurseryman for variations.

Appeal Court Upholds Order Of Justice

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— The Ontario Appeal Court Friday in a 44-page judgment upheld an order delivered by Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland last October and extended it to provide complete investigation into the operations of J. J. Gray, mining promoter and organizer of the $3,000,000 new Augusta Porcupine Mines, Ltd.

Complete investigation into Gray's actions by the master of the Supreme Court was ordered in Friday's judgment which denounced "skidding" and "plundering" tactics. The judgment described Gray as guilty of "wilful, reckless and gross fraud in despoiling" the company of its assets.

By the judgment Gray was made liable for the difference between the purchase price of more than 300,000 shares in his company and "the excess received in its sale." The judgment inclicated that Gray purchased the shares of 51 par value at figures often as low as 20 cents a share.

Has Radio Pals In 69 Countries

Niagara Falls, Ont. —(CP) — A desire to talk to her parents in Calgary led Mrs. Margaret Marsh to take up a hobby which has permitted her to chat in friendly way with persons in 69 countries, including all continents.

Mrs. Marsh, formerly of Calgary, and now a mother of three says she is one of the few women who have received amateur radio licences in Canada. She started her hobby two years ago when her husband, once a radio operator in the army, set up a sending set in the young couple's bedroom.

"I am from Calgary and I get lonesome for my people," she adds, "so I thought that if I took up radio, I would be able to talk to them."

Mrs. Marsh and her husband's main ambition so far as radio is concerned, is to belong to the "Century Club." This is an organization made up of "hams" who have talked to at least 100 different countries.

IMPORTED BUSINESS

The life insurance business was introduced into Canada by companies from Britain and the United States in the middle of the 19th century.

Sweeping Gains

The surprise agreement came on the heels of an appeal by president Truman for power from Congress to seize the strife-torn industry. He acted after the government had failed to end the strike with a Taft-Hartley Labor Act court injunction against the miners.

Will Drop Appeal

Attorney-General Howard McGrath said that the final settlement arrangement would prompt the government to drop its plan to appeal a federal court ruling acquitting the U.M.W. of contempt for the miners' defiance of a court no-strike order.

Acquittal by Judge Richmond B. Keech was what started the ball rolling toward an agreement. The prospect of industry seizure gave it another push.

Neither Lewis nor the operators liked the legislation Truman sent to Congress—the miners because it barred any contract deal with the government, the operators because it limited the amount of revenue they could get from their seized properties to "just compensation," a phase that had them worried.

George H. Love, representing the northern and western operations, and Harry Moses, representing steel interests, were reported to have figured the time had come to do business with Lewis.

The result was a quick compromise with Lewis.

Even with the contract signed and sealed, it may take several days for production to get really rolling, and even longer before the country's coal stocks are out of the crisis stage.

Main Features of Contract

Besides the increases given the union in wages and welfare fund money, these were the other main features reported in the agreement:

1. The union shop, requiring miners to belong to the U.M.W., stays in effect.

2. "Memorial" stoppages after mine disasters are to be limited to five days a year.

3. The clause saying miners work only when "able and willing" is rewritten. This also had provided a union excuse for strikes. Rewording of the language—originally intended to relieve the U.M.W. of legal responsibility for local strikes—was one of the "details" remaining to be worked out.

The agreement is understood to run to July 1, 1952, with permission to re-open in on some phases, including wage rates, April 1, 1951.

Neither side got everything it wanted.

Lewis had demanded a $15 daily wage. He got $14.75. He had wanted a 15-cent increase in the 20-cent welfare fund royalty. He came out with a 30-cent royalty. But he dropped his demand for a cut in the eight-hour day, as well as his proposal for a guaranteed work year of 200 days.

INDIGESTION?

Other speakers in the Throne-Speech debate Friday were William Houck (Lib.-Niagara Falls) and Thomas Fryfogle (PC-Huron).

Mr. Houck asked the government to dissolve whether formed Premier George Drew, in arranging for construction of the hydro-electric development at Des Joachims on the Ottawa River, had contracted to allow Quebec to draw half the power.

"We have been waiting for the last two years to get the answer," he said.

Construction Delayed

Failure of the hydro commission to import cement from the United States had delayed construction required to meet needs of Ontario's expanding industry and the demand for new houses.

He criticized the commission for failing to give sufficient notice of an increase in hydro rates announced last December. The commission had known "some months" in advance that the increase would be necessary. It meant a loss of more than $4,000 a month to Niagara Falls "at least until we could get out new hydro bills," he said.

Mr. Pryde called on the federal government for a system of contributory Old-Age Pensions to help the aged in their efforts to cope with rising living costs.

He also suggested the Ontario government "take a hand" to insure a uniform system of daylight time throughout the province. Municipalities should be allowed to decide whether they wanted Daylight Time, he said, but it should be in effect between the same dates in all communities, and Hydro should be used.

Last year "due in great measure to the action of the city of Toronto in extending the Daylight Saving period beyond the point when it normally ends," conditions throughout the province became "chaotic," he said. "It would never tell what sort of time was observed in the next community he reached.

Appeasement

Mr. Graydon thought the minister had gone too far. He said:

"After all, we do want to have a special meeting of the United Nations and we would like to have it at a place which would be convenient generally; but I do not think this country, or, indeed, any other democratic country wants to get down on its knees to any other conflicting nation.

Urged to Take Lead

"What we want to do is to meet them on fair, reasonable, equitable and decent grounds, wherever they may be."

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said he felt Mr. Pearson had made a good suggestion. He urged that Canada take the lead in proposing that the U.N. meet in Moscow.

Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East), acting C.C.F. leader, said he did not believe that a better approach to international problems could be obtained by meeting of heads of states. Efforts should be made to solve problems by delegations rather than through heads of state.

In his speech, Mr. Pearson also:

1. Said the Russians have been cultivating the impression that the West has turned down new Soviet proposals for world atomic control. The Russian position on essentials of international inspection, the key to control, had not changed.

2. Reported progress in a number or negotiations with the U.S. and said "it is still our strong hope that Congress may soon be able to give consideration" to the St. Lawrence seaway.

3. Said Canada has no objection to a conference on a Pacific defence pact.

Mr. Pearson said the West, steadily gaining in power, should "reaffirm our desire to seek again through negotiations a settlement of the divisions which now beset the world."

Between the Communist and non-Communist world some modus vivendi, some agreement to live and let live, can be worked out," he said.

May Require New Effort

"But this can never happen except through a process of genuine and mutual compromise and accommodation. If there remains any doubt about the desire of the western powers to find a basis for such compromise and accommodation then we must try to sweep away that doubt.

"That may require a great new effort on everybody's part, possibly some new high-level meeting or a full-dress conference of the 15 or 16 powers principally concerned on all forms of disarmament including atomic disarmament, or it may require something else. It might require a meeting of the U.N. in Moscow, an invitation to which may not be too easy to obtain.

"If, for example, direct negotiation among the great powers would initiate a process of settlement, no one should object to them."

It must be made perfectly clear that the democracies are not for a moment prepared to make "any unrequited sacrifice through which we would weaken our position in exchange for nothing."

Mr. Drew said the government was under no compulsion to act hastily in extending recognition to the communist government of China.

He noted that the Russians have walked out of 15 United Nations meetings because of the presence of representatives of the Chinese Nationalist government.

The U.N. could not permit one nation to dictate to it or it would have no dignity or any power to solve the problems of the world.

Written in Blood

If the walk-outs from U.N. were going to be stopped by recognition of Communist China then the U.N. will have submitted to a form of blackmail that will stultify it for years ahead.

It would be well for those who wanted to give ground to the Russians to remember that the word "appeasement" had been written in blood across the world only a few years ago.

There would be no more peace gained from giving in to the Russians than was gained by giving in to the Germans in 1939.

Mr. Graydon said he wanted to see the U.N., which now had one hand tied its back by the efforts to deal with world problems, restored to public confidence.

The Golden Shoestring

Faith Baldwin

Cordelia was out on the enormous lanai. She looked as if she hadn't slept and when they came out to her she regarded them gravely without smiling. She said instantly "sit down," I want to talk with you, Chris, your uncle and Jack took Mr. Amenly off the island this morning; they will pick up the car and go to the airport. Hale will drive the car back and then return with the boat. We can leave tomorrow morning."

"Okay," said Chris, without question or comment.

"You've breakfasted?" she asked.

"Yes. We don't want anything now," said Terry quickly, "at least I don't."

Cordelia nodded. And Chris said with an attempt at a smile, "And our friend go quietly?"

"I didn't see him, but I presume so. It really doesn't matter. Have you any plans?" she asked.

Chris spoke before Terry could answer. He said "you may not like it aunt Cordelia. But we are going to stay in the islands. I'm going to get a job. This will upset Uncle Hugo and it will be contrary to Jack's ideas. But I don't, Terry says she will leave me."

"Is this true?" Cordelia asked Terry.

"Yes."

"Do you think it wise?"

Terry said that Chris suggested that he find something to do on the mainland." She looked steadily at Cordelia. "But I believe that his place is here, and that he will never be happy until he has proved it to himself, no matter how deep his distate or humiliation."

Chris flushed. He said, "Terry doesn't understand, she hasn't the remotest idea what it will be like."

"I don't care what it will be like," said Terry.

"You see!" Chris asked his aunt. "In a curious way I'm sorry for you and for Uncle Hugo. This must be the last thing you'd want..."

"I can't speak for your uncle," said Cordelia "and you can't speak for me. Even if I don't want it I agree with Terry."

"You do!" He was astonished beyond belief.

"Yes, as there's no reason why you shouldn't take your rightful place here—"

"My grandfather made that possible," he interrupted.

Cordelia shook her head. "You made it impossible," she corrected, "for even if your father's and your uncle's positions had been reversed, you would still have had to work for whatever authority you desired to reach."

His eyes were very bright. "Of course," he agreed, "and work hard, sweating it out, from beginning to end. But with this difference, that I would then be doing what was expected of me, as any man does who goes into his father's business. Not just a job given because of a family connection, a job landing nowhere."

She said "that's stupid reasoning, and if Robert had lived—"

He said "I had thought never to tell you this. He wrote me as often as he could. In his last letters he said he was not coming back, that after the war was over he would find something to do on the mainland. He said he had followed your wishes because of his gratitude to you but that he had always hated it. Which was, of course, why he drank," said Chris evenly.

"Chris," said Terry, her heart wrenched with pity for the older woman, "Chris, please don't..."

"You loved him," said Chris incisively "you adopted him, you would have—if you could— get him above Jack in every way. He knew it, he was grateful, and he loved you. But he would rather have been with us, Aunt Cordelia."

She said slowly "he was only a little boy when your father and mother died. You came home to us then; he would have done so."

"You don't understand," he told her. "We were a unit, and belonged together. Sure, he would have come back here with me, and eventually escaped with me. He wrote me once that we could have been quite a team. Well, he escaped," said Chris.

Cordelia sat erect in the straight chair. She said, "I knew Robin was not happy. I thought it would pass."

"He wanted to write, he wanted to paint..." said Chris.

"He could have done both," said Cordelia. "I encouraged him. I knew he was gifted."

"He didn't want to write or paint as a brace of hobbies," said Chris. "He was willing to be poor and obscure and a wanderer if he could have done the things he wished. I don't say that he had more than a second-rate talent for either. But it was what he wanted to do—and it was what he would have done had he lived. If father had inherited equally with uncle Hugo, it would have been the same." His face was taut and his eyes bleak. "But if that had been so," he said "I would have been the one to stay and to follow the ancestral footsteps, not Bob."

"You?" said Cordelia incredulously.

"Yes."

"But you despised it, you worked only because we made you!"

"Which is why I despised it," he said, and Terry's heart shook with panic. She thought, and now I am making him and he will go on despising it. "Because it was not mine, because what I was doing was on sufferance, on tolerance, because I could see a hundred things I wanted to do and none would be permitted me," he said.

"Feeling this, you are willing to try again, with conditions unaltered?" Cordelia asked.

"They aren't unaltered. I realized that this morning. For the first time in my entire life I have someone who believes in me." He looked at Terry. "Or don't you?" he asked. "I think you must otherwise you would not ask so much of me, darling."

Her eyes were wet with tears. She said "I do believe in you, Chris."

Yet she had not, in his sense, until this instant; she had believed only that what they had done would survive and mature if they worked together for survival and growth.

Cordelia asked after a moment, "Have you any idea what you want to do?"

"No. I haven't thought that far except that I want to ask Uncle Hugo or Jack to help me." He shrugged "I dare say they will tolerate us under the family roof until I find something...if only for the sake of appearances. I thought Alex Gurney might know of something despite," he added "his Russell tie-up."

Cordelia asked "why don't you go see Hammond Mannering?" The shadow of a smile crossed her face. The Mannerings were very important people, as important as the Russells, with as many interests. Great-uncle Josiah's deceased wife had been a Mannering. Hammond Mannering and Hugo Russell were of the same generation. They worked together for the common good of the islands' industries. They had gone to college together. They were intimate friends, who rather disliked each other.

He said surprised "I hadn't thought of it."

"Do so then. Hammond was fond of your father," Cordelia said. "He will want to do what he can for you. Chris, is there anything you care about except Terry and your vanity?"

"Vanity?" he asked. "What do you mean by that?"

"Pride; if you prefer, but I think it's vanity which is quite different. Whatever it is, it is perverse. You were too proud to remain here, yet not too proud to live by your wits and on the careless bounty of strangers."

His face stung with the rising blood. He said, "you'll never understand, Aunt Cordelia."

"I dare say. But is there anything you care about?" she persisted, and Terry answered for him.

"He cares about people," she said, "He cares what happens to them and why."

She thought of his patience with Dick Johnson, partly because of Bob, but not wholly. She thought of the things he had told her of the men in his outfit; and of the countless times since their arrival in the islands when she had seen the warmth that went out, not to his old friends or those of his family but to others —the laboring men with whom he dropped to talk when they were at the Gurney's, the people who served them here and at the Tantalus house, the fishermen at Kailua, on the Kona coast, the old men dreaming in the sun, playing cards on the rickety porch of a battered cottage, the barefoot, brown children, the workers in the coffee plantations, the woman nursing her baby beneath a Jacaranda tree.

"What doesn't?" Chris demanded, staring at her.

"Lots of people," said Terry. Cordelia said briskly, "we'll return tomorrow, and of course you will come home with me. When you have found a position, there will be the question of furnishing your house..."

Terry turned the ring on her hand, so that the emerald was hidden. She said, "we'll manage"

"But Chris has quite a lot of furniture," said Cordelia; "it's stored in the attic, it belongs to his parents. They left it when they went abroad, it's plain and good, some of it quite old." She added, "and I can help you with the rest."

"Thanks," began Chris, "but—"

"Wait a minute." There was a white line around her mouth. She said "I am not being—patronizing which is what you think, I suppose. I owe you a good deal, Chris. I've never wanted to acknowledge it, I thought that your way of life canceled the debt. But I have begun to think that you would not have chosen that way had it not been for me."

"I don't understand," he said soberly.

"I could have taken you," she said, "as well as Robert. Your father expected me to."

"I don't believe it. Bob wasn't strong, so they left him with you."

She said with great bitterness, "they would do no one but each other, Chris." She took a long breath and said, "you have considered why I preferred Robert to you, why, as you remarked, I set him above my own son. I will tell you, as I owe you that too. I was in love with your father, and he, I believe, with me. We had grown up together, and falling in love was as natural as breathing. When he was old enough we would marry, we said. My parents knew, and his parents. But he went away to college and on his return he met your mother." She paused and then said "So I married your father's brother, Chris. He loved me, he was good, he was kind, he was a man who accepted his responsibilities. Your grandfather virtually disinherited your father, not only because of his marriage and your mother's divorce but because of me. He had no daughters and he was fond of me. You," she said "grew up too like your father for my comfort—restless, careless, lacking a sense of responsibility, and secret," she added slowly "something hidden in you, and remote. You walked like him, your smile was his, Robert looked like him but his nature was different. I could look at him and think to find in him all your father was not."

"Aunt Cordelia..." He was greatly moved, knowing how much this had cost her, but she shook her head. She said "I've had a good life, a far better one, I suppose than if things had been different. Only I used you as a sort of whipping boy. Every time you failed, every time you hurt or disappointed us, I congratulated myself that you were not my son. Can you understand that?"

He shook his head slowly, too bewildered to answer. But Terry understood; she did not speak, but Cordelia saw her eyes. And Terry thought, it was because she felt that Chris should have been her son that she could not forgive his mother. That Robert it didn't matter. She could see his father in him plainly, but Robert had none of the qualities that had hurt her, and which Chris had inherited.

Cordelia said "I never thought I would tell you, Chris. It seemed too great a humiliation. Also I never wanted to tell you until now."

He said indistinctly "I'm glad you told me." He was trying to realize that he had always been drawn to her. He had been critical of her, he had made much fun of her, and he had blamed her for his hostility unhappiness. But not until this moment had he known that, much as he had loved his brother, he had been jealous of him, feeling excluded and an onlooker.

ANYONE WANT A LEOPARD-SKIN RUG?

Molly to last sleep, the leopard that escaped with the Caledonia Zoo is shown back in his cage after he had eaten drugged horsemeat and was lassoed and taken back to the zoo. The drug proved a little too powerful, however, for the leopard never awakened from sleep. The three-day prowl of the ferocious cat was a nightmare to zoo officials who feared that hunger would cause him to attack humans. — Central Press Canadian.

EATON'S
This is the Spring of Smart Simplicity
The silhouette reflects this simplicity by a gentle softening of line ... a wide-at-the-top look acquired through housed bodice, deeper armholes, fuller sleeves. Skirts are slim or full, with a special accent on pleats. Fabrics, soft or crisp and often sheer, are the source of a costume's simplicity ... as in the shirt-waist dress, the brief coat, the multiple variations of dress and jacket. Such simplicity finds special complement in the witty accessory. This balanced blend of costume and accessory is our way with fashion, at EATON'S, this Spring.

Maniac Kills Four Strangers, Stabs Three Others

Goes on Short Rampage Through Crowded Streets

New York, March 6. (AP)—A 19-youth-old youth, just released from a hospital for the criminal insane, slaughtered four strangers and stabbed three others persons in a 10-minutes rampage through crowded Brooklyn streets Sunday.

The mad knifer, William Jones, 5 degree, finally was beaten into submission with gun butts after police pursued him along three blood-stained blocks.

Jones, turned loose as sane not long ago, told police he could not what made him grab a 4-inch carving knife from a restaurant and rage through the tenement district slashing at the heart of every passerby.

The four who died were white men whom Jones apparently never had seen before.

But one of Jones' other victims, Mrs. Margaret Ward, was a friend and neighbor. Jones cut him as the victim raised a hand in greeting.

Jones slashed the seven without warning—he was Howard Unruh, crazed 28-year-old war veteran, killed 13 persons with gun fire in Camden, N.J., last September.

Terror spread through the neighborhood as reports of a madman wielding a knife came from one street—and then another.

$5,000 Damage To Residence Of Dr. A.E. Miles

Damage estimated at approximately $5,000, principally from smoke, resulted Sunday afternoon at the residence of Dr. A. E. Miles, Dufferin Ave., when flames swept through the basement after the oil furnace exploded.

The flames raced up through a partition to the attic before they were brought under control by firemen.

The fire occurred during the noon hour and was discovered by Mrs. George Dyer, wife of the caretaker, who lives in a basement apartment at the Miles' home. Mrs. Dyer said she heard a small explosion and their apartment was filling with smoke.

Her husband then ran up through the smoke to warn Dr. and Mrs. Miles who attempted to call firemen. However, the telephone wire passed through the top of the furnace and the fire was dead and the doctor went out to warn a neighbor who called firemen.

Filled With Smoke

With the entire basement and home filled with dense smoke, firemen were hampered by shortage of gear mask which would have permitted additional firemen to get into the basement to control the blaze.

Floor joists over the furnace were badly charred by the flames which managed to eat their way up through a partition to the attic before they were completely extinguished.

Practically every wall and ceiling in the home was heavily covered by smoke. Drapes were burned to the last part of a partition in the dining room to get at the flames which were spreading through to the attic.

Mrs. Dyer, who had been ill, was forced to get out of bed in her basement apartment when the fire was discovered.

The only casualties as result of the blaze were three pet canaries owned by Mrs. Miles, which were suffocated by the heavy smoke in an upstairs sunroom.

U.S. FORCED INTO SLOW RETREAT BY COMMUNISTS

State Dept. Solves Confession Mystery

Washington, March 6 — (AP) — The United States is being forced into a slow retreat from Russian Europe by communist methods ranging from expulsion of Americans to the torture of their native employees.

This fact stood out today from a weekend of sensational developments including indicted espionage by the U. S. State Department that it has finally solved the "mysterious enigma" of how the world obtain a confession from their innocent victims.

Here are the events bearing on the critical Eastern European front of the cold war up to today:

1. In Washington, the State Department made public the document in the case of Michael Shipkov, 29-year-old Bulgarian translator who went through a communist police torture chamber last August 15 and lived to tell about it. Shipkov, since recoutured by the reds, is presumed to either confessed or utterly doomed. he had requested that if his "confession" be used in a trial against him the affidavit repudiating it should also be made public.

$25,000 Loss At Gananoque

Gananoque, March 6 — (CP) — A $25,000 fire destroyed two business places and two apartments above them and the interior heat in the entire King Street business section Saturday night.

Burned were the premises of W. R. Johnston, barber, the Eyes eye-grinding station and the apartments of E. Gooding and G. Wooton.

Gananoque Fire Department members, here to play hockey with the Gananoque Intermediates, helped fight the fire.

Yates smelled the fumes in his apartment, became alarmed and awakened the people in the apartment above his and called police.

Rumming could get no response from within, either by knocking or by kicking in the door. "The gas in my opinion was strong enough to asphyxiate anyone as I forced the lock," the officer reported.

Cause of the blaze undentified girls who occupy the apartment were away and the place was deserted. Yates is repairing the lock.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED FOR CONCEALMENT

Hamilton, March 6 — (CP) — Queenie Baker, 40, today was given suspended sentence for concealing the body of her infant son. A charge of failing to obtain registration for the birth was dismissed.

The mummified body of the child was found some weeks ago in a trunk at an orphanage in Hamilton where Miss Baker had been employed as a maid.

Vision of Girls Overcome by Gas Alarms Youth

London, Ont., March 6—(CP)—Visions of two young women overcome with gas fumes in their Sunday sent Harold Yates of Piccadilly Street and police constable Gordon Rumming into action to save them.

Yates smelled the fumes in his apartment, became alarmed and awakened the people in the apartment above his and called police.

Rumming could get no response from within, either by knocking or by kicking in the door. "The gas in my opinion was strong enough to asphyxiate anyone as I forced the lock," the officer reported.

'Never Had Any Intention of Killing' Mrs. Borroto' Says Accused on Stand

Manchester, N.H., March 6 — (AP)— Dr. Hermann N. Sander said today from the witness stand he never had any intention of killing Mrs. Borroto.

The 41-year-old country doctor on trial for murder in the death of the cancer-stricken woman said he gave a syringe the morning of last Dec. 4 after he asked her if she thought she was dead.

"It is my opinion then that she was dead," Dr. Sander testified in a calm voice. "I can't explain any other way but active. I took them on Saturday, snapped. Why I did it, I don't know. I can't tell. It doesn't make sense."

Testifying cross-examination. Attorney-General William L. Phinney pressed for a reason for injecting air into Mrs. Borroto.

Dr. Sander said he was influenced by the "expression on her face—the long suffering—also the suffering for her husband. The expression of her face touched me of. What I did doesn't make sense."

Under questioning Dr. Sander conceded that he had been taught air in the circulatory system was something to be avoided.

"Did you have any intention of killing Mrs. Borroto?" Attorney-General Ralph E. Langdell.

"I never had any intention of killing Mrs. Borroto," Dr. Sander replied the doctor.

"Did you ever agree to kill Mrs. Borroto?

"I never agreed to kill her.

Under questioning by one of his counsel the defendant said he loved she died of cancer and he so signified on her death certificate.

Asked, then, why he dictated the entry on the death certificate that disclosed the air injection, he replied:

"I think it is the duty of every doctor to put down on the charts what he has done for every patient whether it has any effect or not."

Dr. Sander testified earlier Mrs. Borroto "looked like a dead person" during the last week of her illness.

No Other Country in World Has Future in Mining So Clearly Marked as Canada

Toronto, March 6 — (CP) — No other country in the world has its future mining operations so well defined as has Canada, Mines Minister Gemmell of Ontario said today in an address to the annual convention of the Prospectors and Developers Association.

This is indicated, he stated, in developments afoot from Newfoundland to the Pacific coast.

Since the turn of the century Canada has produced $12,800,000 000 worth of minerals, with 1949 production at a record $900,000 000.

Mr. Gemmell said that 42 per cent of production in this country came from Ontario, and estimated 1949's Ontario production at $415,000,000 or $20,000,000 more than in 1948.

(An earlier report from the Prospectors and Developers, containing a message of greeting from Mr. Gemmell, erroneously put Ontario's production at $515 000,000).

Surveying

Mr. Gemmell, reporting on current Ontario developments, said his department intends this summer to make additional topographical mapping of Munro township in Northern Ontario in further exploration of areas which will be in production this spring for the first time in the province.

He stated that pitchblende deposits in the township of Lake Alona Bay area on eastern Lake Superior are now undergoing commercial importance, and suggested that the federal government give consideration to increasing the assured price for uranium oxide as an encouragement to exploration. The present policy is to pay the $22 pound up to March 31, 1953. Ontario will have a geological party in the Lake Alona area this year in extension of last year's mapping.

Mr. Gemmell said Ontario, in accordance with recent announcement, will spend $35,000,000 on development of highways in northern and northwestern Ontario in the next five years, over and above the regular annual expenditures for highway purposes. He added:

"The expenditures planned give assurance that large new mining areas will be opened up and made more accessible. I am pleased to feel that the new federal government should reinstate its 1935-36 policy of contributing two-thirds of the cost of new mining roads with the provinces assuming the balance."

Exemption for New Mines

The department proposes to extend the 50 per cent tax exemption for new mines until 1952, with a bill to this effect now before the legislature, he said. The cost of new mining roads: "This is being done to encourage new development and in keeping with consideration for new mines extended by the federal government under the Income Tax Act. Also:

"The department, under an amendment to the mining act now before the legislature, proposes to permit the grouping of 18 claims or less for the purposes of assessment work which will enable a mining operator to carry out deep diamond drilling or underground development work. The new grouping will be allowed where such work is commenced prior to the passing of the amendment."

Mr. Gemmell said it is conservatively estimated that the indicated reserves of iron ore in various areas in Ontario exceed 1,000,000,000 tons and the day will soon arrive when the cost of producing sufficient ore to meet the needs of our own steel industry."

The department this year proposes to have at least 12 geological parties operating in the following areas: Sudbury basin, Shebandowan, Little Long Lac, Treasure Island, Port Arthur, Pickle Lake, St. James Bay and Southeastern Ontario.

Loses Appeal On Depreciation Of Property

Ottawa, March 6 — (CP) — All Thomas R. Dunkin of Cornwall had to do was write a letter and he would have saved himself a lot of grief and some extra income tax.

However, he didn't do it and the Income Tax Appeal Board, in a judgment made public today, dismissed his appeal against a 1946 income tax assessment.

The property in which Mr. Dunkin's claim that the Revenue Department had valued his property at $7,100, and subsequently depreciation of $350.

In reality, said Mr. Dunkin, his property was valued at $17,000 and deductible depreciation should have been set at $850.

In fact, added Mr. Dunkin, his property should be valued by the department at $17,000 in the years 1941, 1942 and 1943 and the $850 depreciation allowance in those years. He claimed he was entitled to the same allowance in 1946.

Fabio Monet, member of the Appeal Board, said he could not accept this proposition.

"Depreciation is only allowed as a right, and to obtain it, an application must be made by the taxpayer, which must be renewed for each taxation year.

Police Term Shooting Deaths Murder, Suicide

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—Police today termed the shooting deaths of George Moore, 15, and Beatrice Moore, 14, "a case of a broadcast case of murder and suicide" and said the boy planned the fatal shots.

The girl's father found the high school sweethearts lying on the floor of a room in the boy's suburban York township home.

Det.-Insp. Robert Alexander of York township said he learned that the youth had been threatening the girl for some time. He said Moore apparently was jealous and warned the girl to have shortly after his parents went out for the evening.

Det. Foster said a classmate at Vaughan Road Collegiate heard the youth say to the girl two days ago to kill the girl but "thought he was only kidding." Both were murdered shooting in the basement of his home for several days.

Chief Alexander said the girl was told her parents were home and she apparently wanted to "go steady" with Moore. She also told friends she had threatened to "do something" if she broke off with him.

Pensions Maximum, Renounces Taxation, Granted Citizenship

Toronto, March 6 — (CP) — Canadian citizenship was granted today to a one-time German consular official and a Nazi party member.

Otto Gebauer, 47, had been turned down twice previously. His third application, accompanied by a statement that he has renounced Nazism, was approved.

Gebauer, a former German army officer, came here in 1937. He was interned during the war.

The same naturalization court rejected the citizenship bid of a Russian-born 42-year-old railway employee. Testimony was that he once contributed $25 to an organization suspected of communist sympathies.

LABOR PRESENTS PROGRAM DEVOID OF CONTROVERSY

No Reference in Speech To Nationalization

London, March 6—(CP)—The Labor government, facing a new parliament with a precarious majority, today presented a program devoid of controversial issues.

The speech from the Throne, read by the King at the opening of parliament, made no reference to nationalization or any other matter liable to touch off a dangerous debate.

It said that only "limited legislation" was proposed for the present session, the first since the general election of Feb. 23 which left Labor's majority in the house from 148 to seven seats.

However, it promised that if other measures are necessary to maintain full employment and national well-being "my ministers will not hesitate to submit them to parliament even though they may seem likely to prove contentious."

The opening was accompanied with all the pageantry planned in pre-war state ceremonial.

The King and Queen drove to the House of Lords from Buckingham Palace along streets bright with flags, lined with household cavalry, their breastplates and helmets gleaming in the sun. They were escorted the royal carriages.

They acknowledged a salute in St. James's Park as the procession passed.

Their Throne Speech, which took 12 minutes to deliver, was the shortest generalities, notable for what it did not say rather than what it did. It contained no indication for the immediate future.

There was no reference to the nationalization of iron and steel, which Labor had proposed to introduce early in the new parliament, or to plan to make industrial assurance policy-holders the owners of this class of business.

Expand Production

Measures for expanding food production and maintaining full employment will be announced mainly on non-traversial lines.

Political chatters did not anticipate see on what grounds the opposition is likely to challenge the speech, based as it is mainly on a negative amendment.

A Labor measure put forward such an amendment "regretting" the omission of a declaration that the nationalization sugar and cement nationalization would be promptly.

A law passed by the last parliament but not yet in force will put sugar under state ownership but is not scheduled to take effect until 1951, when the actual takeover scheduled for Jan. 1, 1951.

Clement Davies, the Liberals expected to speak tomorrow, and his address will be studied closely for a hint of what the Liberals intend to do. Labor has had its hands full since Feb. 23 election, the Liberals nonetheless emerged with a balance of strength because of the precarious edge Labor has over Winston Churchill's resurgent Conservatives.

Contract Signing Sends U.S. Miners Back to Pits

Action Relieves Serious Coal Shortage Threat

Washington, March 6 — (AP) — The signing of a new contract sent soft coal miners swarming back to the pits today — ending a serious threat to the United States economy and promising peace in the coal fields for months to come.

For 352,000 striking miners, the prize they won was a 11.40 daily "package," plus a reasonable assurance of fairly-steady work for at least a year and perhaps until the middle of 1952.

For the operators, it meant getting back into business.

One operator put the cost of the United Mine Workers' gains at $250,000,000 this year. The extra cost to consumers may be anywhere from 25 to 50 cents a ton.

The strike - settling contract was signed by President John L. Lewis of the U.M.W. and spokesmen for the major groups of operators — north, west, the south, and "captive" mines owned "captive" group — late Sunday.

Lewis told reporters: "The United Mine Workers have again accomplished a miracle today."

This time there was no definite back-to-work order. There was a contract, there would be work. In many districts the miners waived formal meetings and back-to-work votes. Until now they had defied orders to go back from both Lewis and the Federal Court.

Stork Wins Race For Second Time

Lindsay, March 6 — (CP) — Albert Buchanan, Eagle Lake baker, is puzzled about this act past.

Reminiful of the fact that he had lost a race with the stork a few years ago, Buchanan bundled his wife into a panel truck and set out on the 10-mile trip to the Red Cross outpost hospital at Haliburton.

A couple of miles from Haliburton the stork overtook the Buchanans.

Despite the inconvenonious arrival at the hospital, mother and son were none the worse from the speedy ride.

PAYS BET TO SELF

Lindsay, March 6 — (CP) — Ever since Al Garden opened up a bowling alley three years ago he has been a steady customer, ward of $25 for the first perfectly bowled five-pin game.

On Saturday the 34-year-old former Toronto man left the $25 on the counter — to himself. Garden took time out from his duties to roll the 13 straight strikes.

The perfect game beat out the alley's 1950 record of 428 held by Peter Atman, a partner in the alley.

Reveals Grim Story of Torture Used By Bulgarian Reds to Get 'Confession'

Washington, March 6 —(AP)— A sensational story of how Bulgaria's communist police extorted a false confession of espionage and treason from a Bulgarian employee of the United States Embassy in Sofia was disclosed Saturday night by the United States government.

Ripping the secrecy from communist terror methods, it was revealed in a sworn statement by the Bulgarian, Michael Shipkov, that the State Department announcement explaining the background and reasons for his ordeal during the 32 straight hours of questioning and torture.

"During that time," the State Department said "a victim of Communist-inspired hypnotic powers (by which the communist police obtain confessions) has had the spiritual fortitude...to reveal in detail how a man of integrity can be completely broke and forced to describe in his own words a fantastic story of imaginary crimes of espionage and treason."

Shipkov's affidavit which the department released at his request describes the intence mental and physical suffering by which the police gradually broke him until he agreed to write a story against the American legation which employed him.

Instead, however, he returned to the legation told what happened to him and hid there as a refugee under U.S. protection in his own country.

A few weeks ago he tried to flee to another scanctuary, was captured again by police and last month was indicted on false confession.

Officials here are convinced that Shipkov is dead by now or awaiting death in a Sofia prison. Consequently they compiled with the request he made in the statement written last August to tell his story to the world in order to clear himself.

The State Department linked the methods used against him to the earlier "confesions" obtained from Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty by communist police in Hungary; from Robert Vogeler, an American executive recently sent-

PARIS BUS, SUBWAY STRIKE FAILS TO HALT CITY'S LIFE

Paris, March 6 (AP) — A communist-led strike on Paris bus and subway lines today confused —but failed to stop—the city's normal life.

In the National Assembly, meanwhile, the government this morning shut off a 72-hour Red filibuster aimed at killing the anti-sabotage bill.

The strikers were demanding a cost of living bonus. The filibusterers had sought to further a communist campaign against shipments of Atlantic Pact arms and of military aid to French Indo-China.

Downtown streets were clogged with unusually-heavy auto and bicycle traffic.

Strike Effects Minimized

With most Paris stores closed normally Monday, the strike's effect on business was minimized. Government industries managed to get most of their employees to work by special trucks and buses manned by volunteers.

At noon the public works ministry said "reduced services were operating in Paris, and four of the city's 14 subway lines were functioning.

The ministry said many buses and trolley lines were idle in Marseille, Clermont-Ferrand and Mulhouse, but that traffic was normal at Limoges and Bayonne.

In the National Assembly Premier Georges Bidault ended the communist filibuster by demanding a motion of confidence on the anti-sabotage bill. Since Friday afternoon communist deputies alternately had been talking their way off and tangling in fist fights with colleagues.

The premier's action closed the marathon session of the assembly, which will vote on the confidence question at midnight 6 p.m. EST Tuesday.

The bill, in a compromise form accepted by the government, provides prison sentences of from five to 10 years for sabotage of war or defence material, or for interfering with movement of such material.

OPERATION SAVES BABY

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — A week-old baby Saturday survived a long, delicate operation to correct a congenital gullet stoppage. The infant was flown here from Saskatoon Friday for treatment at the Hospital for Sick Children, the only children's hospital where such an operation has been performed. The stoppage, known as esophagic atresia — division of the esophagus in gullet — is said to cause death within 10 days unless corrected.

Speedy Hound Proves Too Fast For Wily Fox

Percy Demille's hound has been named the "Citation" of the fox-chasing pooch fraternity around Chatterton district.

It may not be news for a hound to catch a fox, but the Demille specimen took on a red-brushed "Man-O'-War" the other day in a matched contest, while Demille stood at top a hill and watched a race to the death, with the hound the victor.

The terrain favored the dog. It flushed the fox in the levels below the hill. Reynard leaped into a fifty-acre field at the mythical start "Citation", ears flat on his neck flashed into pursuit. The fox gradually increased its lead and then made for the slope on the side hillside and therein lay its mistake The hound gained rapidly on the uphill part of the course. Running in circles on the pair navigated the "track" four or five times.

The sixth time, the hound was close on the tail of the rapidly tiring fox. The seventh, it closed in just on the final run clamped its jaws on the neck of the speeding fox and the race was over.

Seizing the fox the hound ran mincingly towards a fence and disappeared with its quarry.

Junior Has Ambitions To Be a Barber

The mother of two offspring did not flinch when he approached her. She did not know that in the hand held behind his back was a pair of gleaming scissors.

She looked down at her babies, peacefully sleeping at her side. She could not foretell what lay ahead.

Unfortunately she had been born with long light-colored whiskers adorning her face. But she did not mind. Her friends had never poked fun nor ridiculed her about her facial hirsute adornment. They merely accepted it as an act of nature.

Slowly he approached the bed. There was a smile on his face. He held out a friendly hand. She looked up, smiled. She even cried out a friendly welcome.

He reached down and stroked the soft glossy hair on her head. He patted her arm. Unsuspecting, she turned slowly away and gave her attention to the sleeping youngsters.

Then it happened. He seized her head. The gleaming scissors flashed in his hand. Four quick snips and the whiskers dropped in the bed. He smiled as he backed away, satisfaction on his face.

She made no outcry. She did not scream nor call for help. In fact her affectionate glance followed the intruder as he slowly left the room.

After all, what would you expect the whiskers to do, even after the four-year-old hopeful of the house had decided that he would select her as his first "customer."

Some Cellar Flooding Reported by Merchants

Due apparently to heavy ice jams in Hardware creek, even the fact that a greater volume of water than customary is flowing, some merchants bordering the river along Front Street have been troubled with water conditions in their basement.

Veterans' Affairs Discussed at Stratford Meeting

Affairs of the Canadian veteran were discussed at a conference of the provincial command of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans at Stratford over the weekend.

According to Jack Lundburg of Belleville, second vice-president of the provincial Command, bonuses for war veterans was debated and a resolution was sent to the Dominion Command asking that's a dollar-a-day bonus be paid Canadian prisoners-of-war.

"We consider," said President Favey of Hamilton, "that this would not cost the taxpayers of Canada a cent. The payments would be made out of German and Japanese assets in Canada which were seized at the beginning of the war and are still held by the government."

A special pensions investigation committee was set up to investigate pension claims of veterans. This committee comprises trained men from each unit.

The organization of two new units was discussed. Kingston and Teeterville near Simcoe will be getting units in the near future while Ottawa's second unit is already functioning.

10,000 Members

It was reported that there now are approximately 10,000 members of the A.F.V. Army in Ontario. The Belleville unit is 700 strong and more members are joining each month.

It was reported that there now units are setting up their own blood banks to be at the disposal of veterans' families and fellow members.

Another resolution went to the Dominion Command asking that the government to award the 1939-45 star to veterans of the Dieppe raid.

Other points discussed included restriction of immigration to the province, while so many vets are out of a job.

The representatives of 18 unit present heard complaints concerning veteran's housing problems and decided to investigate the situation.

A bright spot of the meeting was the announcement that the Hamilton unit of the Canadian Angler's Club limited to 50 enthusiasts, it has been suggested that such a group be organized in Belleville among the ardent sportsmen of the local unit.

P.U.C. Declines Invitation to Discuss Operation of Hydro Shop With C of C

Operation of the local hydro store in competition with privately owned and operated electrical appliance outlets in the city is a point of interest with the retail merchants' division of the local Chamber of Commerce.

This was learned today at the regular meeting of the Public Utilities Commission when a letter from the Chamber was read inviting members of the P.U.C. to attend a directors meeting of the retail merchants to explain why the hydro shop should be operated in competition with private business.

Members of the local P.U.C. declined to accept the invitation to attend the Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting, but did authorize their manager to prepare information regarding the operation of the store. This information will be submitted to the P.U.C. before being passed on to the Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the local commission did not enter into any discussion on the operation of the hydro store.

Increase Approved

Approval of the local commission members was given to the new increased hydro rates which will go into effect in the city with the March billing. The increased rates affect domestic, commercial, and power users in the city and have been approved by the provincial hydro. The increased hydro rates were made necessary by a roughly 25 per cent increase in the cost of power to the local commission.

Mr. O. H. Scott told members of the local commission that the average domestic power bill in the city would be increased by about 29 cents per month through reason of the increase going into effect.

He said the average household uses about 372 kilowatts during the two-month billing period. At the former rate this would cost the consumer $3.19 with the 10 percent discount. Under the new rate for domestic purposes the same amount of power, with the discount, would cost $3.76. This is an increase of 97 cents for the two-month period, or about 29 cents per month.

There will be no increase in the charge for flat-rate waterheaters, it was stated.

$1,000 Rates for Lighting.

Street lighting will cost the city more money, roughly about $1,000 per year, but this amount will practically be made up by street lighting rebate. The commission members approved of the street lighting increase and will notify council.

A communication from Thurlow township was read requesting a meeting with the commission to discuss hydrant rental rates in effect for that township. The rate presently being charged the township is $40 per hydrant.

Mr. Scott stated that the commission had considered the above charge fair in that approximately one half of the capital cost in water pumping is for provision of equipment with sufficient capacity to take care of fire fighting.

The secretary was authorized to inform the H.E.P.C. why power credits from large industrial users were not being received by the commission. It was explained that large power users such as Canada Cement, contract directly with the H.E.P.C. with the local commission ordinarily receiving credits. It was this credit which had not been received.

On motion of Mayor H. J. Allin the commission also went on record as strenuously objecting to this commission paying any part of the costs for private conversions in the 25 cycle area.

London, March 6 (Reuters) — The only British woman sentenced to death for spying during the Second World War was released from prison a few days after confessing that her spy story was entire fabrication —"a huge joke"—The Sunday Express reported last Sunday. The woman, 52-year-old Mrs. Dorothy Pamela O'Grady, told her incredible story to the Express after her release. She had served nine years of a 14-year prison term after the death sentence was commuted. She said that being sentenced to death was the "greatest thrill" of her life.

WATER CYCLE

Safe water "in the raw" is available on a relatively small portion of our 3,690,000,000 square miles mostly in the mountain plateaus and mountain ranges beyond the reach of settlement, says the monthly letter of the Royal Bank. It indicates the care which must be taken to assure a safe water supply. "Only there where the water has been filtered in its passage through layers of virgin soil or washed down from a melting snowbank or glacier can a person feel safe in drinking from a spring, pool, lake or stream.

"The harmful effects of polluted water fall into three broad categories: danger to human health, direct economic losses and damage to economic resources. The most important penalty is the presence of bacteria."

The letter points out that this is a natural problem, varying in importance by river basins and by localities. In drainage basins, municipal sewage contributes most to the impurity of the water.

The result of contamination is that game and fish as well as possibly humans suffer from it.

Classic examples of civilizations wiped out by their misuse of water and soil are given as the once mighty, now buried civilization of Babylonia and Assyria and colossal destruction wrought in the once rich soils of the vast regions of northwest China. Erosion destroyed or sapped all the Mediterranean civilizations past and present, the article says, from Athens and Rome to Italy and Spain, to say nothing of the formerly fertile plains of North Africa where once flourished great Carthaginian cities.

Summing up the letter says "We in this day are living in an age when world agriculture is not able to meet the nutritional demands of a rapidly growing world population. Much depends upon our capacity to cope with problems of drought or excessive water supply."

"The most damaging impact of civilized man on his environment is the shattering of the water cycle. In the wilderness of Canada before the coming of the white man, there was built up a mutual society of balance among the waters, soils, grasses, forests and all animal life."

MODERATE WEATHER WELCOMED

The Weatherman's generous gift of fine weather which dropped the zero out of the thermometer and brought back mildness and moderation of temperatures on Sunday was one of the most welcome changes dwellers in this climate have had. The steady sub-zero cold of the past week on so had seemed like vengeance on the part of the weather for the long period of mild and wet weather in the autumn and early winter. However brief this spell may prove to be, it served to point attention to the fact that the end of winter is fast approaching and spring actually will be here in little over two weeks, however the temperatures may run with or against the season.

How early the climatic conditions can change has been indicated throughout the present winter season. Thaw to freezing has been felt on numerous occasions. Only the last change from the zero ranks to moderate temperatures and thaw came rapidly after the continued cold weather of last week.

What with its changes from one extreme to another, rain to snow and cold to mildness, the present winter has given proof that changes develop swiftly when nature is in the mood. Last week's appearance for a time as if the adverse type of weather which prevailed on the Pacific coast might possibly switch to the east. As far as cold was concerned it did but the east of the continent missed the violence of the storms which caused floods and severe conditions on the Pacific coast.

That milder will now go down on the records as one of the seasons which ran counter at many times to the usual trend of conditions which prevail not only across Canada but in the United States. The contrariness of the season was evident in a large part of the United States as well as in Canada.

DIVERTICULA

"The X-rays show," the doctors said,
"The reason you were pained.
Now you must spend two months in bed
And eat your carrots strained."

A painful stitch, they've told me since,
Is caused by gas in the small intestine.
Your meals from day to day
Should be a cup of broth, if it be thin,
Your fish and chips your tray.
Some ground-up stuff you'll look upon—
That's food medicine —
And all we serve to us
Is with diverticula."

"A pretty nurse will bring you in

Oh, endless nights and endless days
With hunger's pangs
To give, asleep or not,
For every diverticulum
A painful shot.

"From time to time the nurse will come
We'll feel you sulphur for awhile,
Infection's course to bar.
We're going to teach you how to smile
With diverticula."

Happily, my friend recollected that he was a lawyer by profession; and despite the confusion of mind in which he found himself at the moment, rose to the occasion.

"Certainly I did," he replied, modestly. "The green light was on. Is there anything in the law that permits a motor boat to obstruct the highway without reasonable cause?"

"I...uh...you...uh!" replied the policeman sternly. "Who...uh...what...the..."

"Are you aware," pursued my friend, "that the law does not afford the police any particular liberties as regards contravening traffic, except in the execution of their duty? Might I enquire what duty you were performing at this moment?"

Solemnly he was resorted to his familiar alternative: he produced his book and noted my friend's license number. But my friend doesn't expect to hear anything about it.

Rumor says that there will be fire works at the next meeting of the city council on the proposed increase in market tolls.

Gas from the pipe crossing the lower bridge became ignited late last night and created quite a blaze. Members of the fire department smothered the flame with a blanket. Some passerby had evidently dropped a lighted match into the hole.

Some of the cellars along the west side of Front Street were flooded this afternoon owing to the ice shove. No particular damage done.

THE PACKSAK

OF GREGORY CLARK

If there is one thing that shocks and outrages the sensibilities of a policeman, is to have somebody call him a cop to his face. One of my friends had the misfortune to commit this faux pas the other day. He was driving and came to an intersection where a car was halted, though the green lights were glowing.

After waiting a moment, my friend naturally tooted his horn to signal the gentleman that the green light would grow no greener. Alas, he did not know that the driver was cop in the car ahead.

To my friend's consternation, the door of the car opened, and out stepped an officer in the full panoply of the law. His expression was not pleasant. He was flushed. If anything, he was a little pallid. His countenance bore an expression of shock and incredulity. Gravely, he approached my friend sitting at his car wheel.

"Did you toot at me?" enquired the constable stiffly.

THE EMBROIDERED DRESS

This morning I got a story from a pal of mine, Canada with 1¼ of like to pass on without comment.

Two weeks ago, she and her fiancee were attending through a narrow street in lower Quebec when they noticed they were being followed by a child of about 4. When they asked her her name, all she said was Monique and that she lived close by.

The child was dressed in a patched-up coat and a cheap print dress, and acting on impulse the couple took her to a nearby shop and ordered a complete outfit for the child — hand-embroidered dress, pink underslip, silk socks, large hair ribbon, patent leather shoes and an absurd little handbag.

Getting a dress to fit Monique however, was a bit difficult—she was smaller than the average four-year-old, yet 4 No. 3 was too tight. But the saleslady told them not to worry, because the woman could easily take in the waist an inch on each side and make it fit the child.

In parting, the pair gave the little girl a dollar and a half and a note to her maman explaining that the two were sending gifts from a couple who had fallen in love with her daughter, and wanted her to be the flower girl at their church.

Two days later, the couple were on their way to a ski run when their taxi was held up at an intersection in lower Quebec to let a hearse and several carriages pass. It was a hitch, being drawn vehicle with a good deal of sculpture, and through the glass sides they could see what was obviously a child's coffin. On the lid of the hearse, was the name "Adele" in gold letters.

The driver mentioned that he knew the parents of the child and that her death hadn't been unexpected. The youngster had had tuberculosis, and the perents had been saving for the funeral", but unfortunately they hadn't been able to save much because she died six months sooner than the doctor predicted.

"Well, then," said the young man, "how are they going to pay for this expensive funeral?"

"They will pay it somehow," said the driver. "Rich or poor, a man doesn't like to bury his child a pauper. Somehow they will find a way —"

"For example," he went on, "only last week Adele's maman had to borrow the dress the little girl was to die suddenly, she would have to have a new thing in which to lay out the body.

"On Tuesday, just a few hours before the good Lord took the child away, Monique, the younger sister, came home with a pair of beautiful clothes that some strangers had taken a notion to give her. And instead of fitting Monique — they were exactly (Copyright, 1950, by Billy Rose) (Distributed by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Mackenzie's Column:

France, Germany At Loggerheads Over Saar Valley

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

Once more France and Germany (This time the Western German Republic as the Eastern German) are at loggerheads over the Saar valley—a bone of bitter contention for two centuries.

It is one of the world's richest coal areas, and is strategically also militarily.

This strategic aspect is of special significance in view of the deepening hostility between the two countries.

The Background

At the end of the Second World War France detached the Saar from Germany and gave it a status of limited self-government under the United Nations security. Now has taken a further step which has angered the Bonn regime.

The French have made a treaty with the Saar under which the valley government becomes a "republic" with broader autonomy than before. The treaty is necessary to obtain the consent of the legislature in charge of foreign relations and military matters. France retains its control of the coal mines for 50 years. The Saar is practically incorporated economically into the French zone.

Actually France has no authority to make this decision of course, at this juncture, since the western allies have agreed that the matter should be settled in the peace conference with Germany.

The Saar district, of some 784 square miles, originally came into possession of France in 1766 as part of Lorraine. After the peace of Paris in 1815 it was turned over to Germany. At the end of the First World War the Saar basin was returned to France by the Treaty of Versailles, for exploitation of the coal fields.

The treaty further provided that for 15 years the Saar basin should be governed by a commission appointed by the League of Nations. After that a plebiscite should be held and the people should decide whether they will be under continuing commission, union with France or with Germany.

Rigged Vote?

On January 15, 1935, the plebiscite was held and 90.8 per cent cast their votes for union with Germany. This was during the Hitlerian regime, and it was widely charged that Hitler's agents had plastered the basin with Nazi posters, thereby forcing the vote back to Germany.

Now it is back under French control, at least for the time being. France's action has caused great anger in Bonn. The German government had made it clear that it will demand the return of the Saar.

In its first post-war election, in 1947, Saar voted overwhelmingly for economic union with France.

Letters to the Editor

Would Like More Ration Information

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I have read with interest the article written under the name of Edith Campbell in the issue of March 2nd, and it has set me wondering if I am the only one relatives in England are really a crowd of screaming liars or the good people I think they are, for all the letters I have received since Christmas are full of grateful thanks for the parcels we are fortunately able to send from time to time. So many friends pointed out that they would now be able to have a few extra eggs and puddings, which would not have been possible for them to get over as we had sent.

I would like to know how Mr. Campbell spends his allocation of 24 points per month, and if he is able to purchase all the food he obtains, for hoarding is against the law in England.

Mr. Campbell suggests that his wife is a housewife and that he would like to ask her to prepare a menu for a man who has to live on his ration and who is forced lunch with him five days a week, so as many in the working town have to, for that trade is not considered married life. Surely a man is not entitled to an extra cheese ration, and has to make do on 2 oz. per week. I'd like to know what she would put before him, and also if she is lucky enough to have a man and enable him to do a good eight hours work. I would also like to know what she would consider the output per man hour is expected.

The Labor government's statement that it is fair share for all, is all hooey, for those who can afford to eat at hotels or restaurants have no worries at their rations books, and the M.P.'s feed in the House.

I am afraid the picture Mr. Campbell is trying to paint is not different from what so many of us know.

Pair Arrested Wanted in Sturgeon Falls

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., March 6 (CP) — Provincial constable John Laflecbe said Sunday night that a warrant for the arrest of Ken Duffy, 31, and Bert Armitage, 19, now held at Toronto, is being sought by police here. Duffy has been seeking the pair on a charge of theft of $40 from Peter Kozlow of Sturgeon Falls while he was sleeping in a hotel last June 22. Duffy and Armitage had previous records in Sturgeon Falls, said the chief. They were arrested at Toronto on charges of armed robbery, possessing burglar tools, and breaking and entering after Max Orgel, Toronto fight promoter, said he was attacked and robbed by the two men Friday night.

Orders RC Bishop Be Freed From Prison Arrest

Warsaw, March 4 — (Reuters) —Intervention by Polish President Boleslaw Bierut has freed Archbishop Kazimierz Kowalski, Roman Catholic Bishop of Chelmno, West Poland, from house arrest, it was announced Friday night. Two weeks ago Bishop Kowalski was forbidden to leave his palace while charges were investigated that he had penalized pro-government priests. The announcement said Dr. Bierut now was anxious to abide by the law.

RELAXATION AND VARICOSE VEINS

The great popular propensity for relaxing—you know the line: What you need is to get away from it all for a month and just relax, completely—is, in my opinion, a contributing factor to varicose veins. Not only that but, as I believe, it is a common factor of cardio-vascular degeneration too, Cardio (heart), vascular (arteries and veins), degeneration (gradual replacement of functioning cells with fatty or fibrous or scar tissue.)

Hypertension (high blood pressure), atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries,) myocarditis (slow heart muscle weakening), coronary thrombosis (clotting of blood in one of the arteries supplying the heart muscle) and cerebral thrombosis (clotting of blood in a branch of an artery supplying the brain) or apoplexy (stroke or shock of paralysis from rupture of a weak artery and hemmorrhage into the brain) are familiar manifestations of cardiovascular degeneration.

A varicose vein is a dilated, elongated, tortuous vein whose wall has become thinned and weakened under the pressure of congestion (overfilling with blood) and increased pressure. Although varicosities of the veins in the legs are most frequent varicosities of the rectum (the hemorrhoidal veins are nearly as frequent— these are commonly known as hemorrhoids or piles) whether they give trouble at the moment or not. Veins in many other parts of the body may become varicose. But this talk applies particularly to varicose veins in the legs.

The man or woman who feels weary or fagged at the end of the day's study, teaching, business, profession, while others of sedentary work, and yawns and yearns only to sit down and relax in an easy chair or to lie down for a nap is trebling the risk of varicose veins. Instead of relaxing in easy chair or taking a nap when fagged, the thing to do after sighing the man or woman should, if not too exhausted, is to get a second wind of the stagnant blood out of the splanchnic pool by rolling a few somersaults and then take some exercise for half an hour—preferably at least a few times around the block or a short easy run in the park or just a brisk walk of two to four miles.

I say a brisk walk. The walk must be brisk, not a listless stroll. Brisk walking brings thigh, leg and hip muscles into play that are little used in a stroll. The contraction of these muscles pumps the blood in the vein steward the heart. This action of leg and thigh muscles on the veins tends to prevent formation of varicosities in the veins of the legs.

Another simple means of preventing the development of varicose veins is to lie flat on the back for a moment or two as often as you can through the day with your leg elevated to vertical while you ride an imaginary bicycle with the feet down. Still better, from that position, with your hands on the floor for support, push yourself up so you rest on back of neck and shoulders, and do some exercise in the form of the imaginary bicycle pedals at high in the air as you can. One who is altogether too flabby and feeble to do these exercises at first may be surprised at the progress resting on some support well above the level of the heart, even if it be for only a few seconds at intervals during the day.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A. A. Anonymous

These initials—A.A.—stand for Alcoholics Anonymous, a group of organizations I know anything about, and they stand for something that is worthwhile and generous. It came about through the efforts of one who had been a victim of drink, but who spoke—an alcoholic who in endeavoring to save another, saved himself, and initiated a movement that has become world-wide. Today, in many cities, effectively, and gloriously in redeeming others they have prayer and companionship.

A reader of these talks has written me that in his experience that he had in arresting his habit and acquiring a new love of sobriety, happiness and usefulness. He told me how he came to himself, and found emancipation through this great organization, which has since established centres in thousands all over the world, bringing hope and courage to those who had armies each with a new faith and courage.

Said this man: "I began as a social drinker, finally ending as an alcoholic. I knew that I was losing my self-respect some of it I reached bottom. Then Alcoholic Anonymous came into my life, and through its members, its program, and the help of God I came to myself. In my own way I found myself and helped others."

That is the secret of the success of this wonderful movement. In saving oneself, others are saved, and so the work goes on. Confidence is created. Friendly counsel is expected. The members of this organization have found give courage to one another. Their meeting places are like oases in the desert of the land. Each man and woman becomes an agency unto themselves. There is mutual encouragement and prayer, new light and new hope received.

In most of our great cities, I believe, there are groups of these Alcoholics Anonymous have their meetings, and where they become a refuge for those who have fallen, arise, and gain elder of fellowship and usefulness. The only condition God must bless that one who initiated this noble and far-reaching organization is that he or everyone newly created through it!

Albert Lebrun, Former Pres. Of France, Dies

Paris, March 6 — (AP) — Albert Lebrun, former president of the French Republic, died today. He was 78.

The son of poor farmers, Lebrun was elected president in 1932 and served until July, 1940, when he was deposed by Marshal Philippe Petain after France's defeat by Germany. Lebrun spent the German occupation in retirement in the French Alps.

Before he succeeded the assassinated Paul Doumer as president Lebrun had held a succession of cabinet posts, was a member of the Chamber of Deputies from 1900 until 1918, and of the Senate from 1920 until election as president.

His functions as president died along with the third republic he headed. After the liberation of France started all over again and built the fourth republic.

Lebrun was ignored but was not publicly blamed for any of the things connected with France's fate. Gen. Charles De Gaulle, who had come back to France as the liberating hero was partly responsible for this. In the fall of 1944 he had what was then described as a "cordial" conference with Lebrun.

Toronto Tax Rate Will be 3 Mills Higher

Toronto, March 6 — (CP) — A general increase of $3,800,000 in the civic budget over last year was announced by City Finance Commissioner Arthur Lascelles Saturday at conclusion of a special sitting of Board of Control. Because of it, last year's assessment rate this is estimated to mean an increase of just over three mills. Last year's tax rate was 30.5 mills.

Controller David Balfour said he would move in city council today to increase the mayor's salary to $15,000 and aldermen's salaries to $2,000 but made no mention of an increase for controllers. The mayor at present is paid $12,500 and aldermen get $1,200.

The board took no action on Controller Leslie Saunders' suggestion that Assessment Commissioner A. B. J. Gray be given an increase from $10,000 to $12,000. Controller Saunders said such an increase should be made only if Mr. Gray assured council he would devote his full time to the city of Toronto.

After Mr. Gray said that he had to go to other municipalities to study individual building costs and types of buildings, but that this work was on his own time, Controller John Innes said the board had no right to tell Mr. Gray what he should do with his spare time. Final decision was deferred. The debate arose from a controversy last year over work done by Mr. Gray for the town of Timmins.

Milder Weather Eases Demand On Coal Exchange

Toronto, March 6 — (CP) — Milder weather, expected to continue for several days, brought relief to coal-short Toronto today. A director of the Toronto Coal Exchange's emergency board said shipments from the United States are expected within 10 days now that the U. S. strike is ended.

The distribution centre, set up by the dominion and civic authorities, will continue until coal starts arriving. Present supplies are sufficient for that period, E. R. Lockyer, Exchange director, said.

HOPES SON WILL SOON BE FORGIVEN

Leipzig, Germany, March 6 — (AP)—The father of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, convicted betrayer of atomic secrets of Russia, said Sunday he hopes "my son will be forgiven and regain his freedom in a few years." Dr. Emil Fuchs, 73, theological professor at the Soviet zone's Leipzig University and a Quaker, said in an interview the present east-west tension "may relax before too long."

Cost-of-Living Index Increases By .6 of Point

Ottawa, March 6 — (CP) — Housewives seeking an increase in their share of the family budget in the grocery bills today have an official wedge to use against reluctant husbands — a rise in Canada's cost-of-living index.

Prices for a wide range of foods rose sharply in January to send the index climbing six-tenths of a point. It was the first increase in six months and hailed a slow downward movement in the barometer of living costs from the peak of 162.8 in July, 1949.

At the end of January the index stood at 161.6 compared with 161.0, the Bureau of Statistics reported Saturday. The index is based on the estimate that 35-39 prices equal 100 and the bureau placed the increase from August, 1939, at 63.3 per cent.

The Canadian increase compares with a drop of 0.4 per cent in United States consumer prices from mid-December to mid-January. Food prices lead the index with a 0.7 decline.

Higher prices for such items as beef, lamb, eggs, cereals and coal and sugar were the main reason for the January index climb in this country. Among food staples only pork was shown as selling at a lower figure.

The increases boosted the food sub-index up 1.9 points to 208.1 compared with 206.2 in December and the July peak of 209.2.

Higher domestic gas and electricity rates sent the fuel and lighting sub-index up three-tenths of a point to an all-time high of 135.9. The miscellaneous group, covering such prices for gasoline, theatre tickets and newspapers, also reached a new peak with a half-point climb from 131.6 to 132.1.

Clothing Prices Down

Slightly lower prices for men's and women's wear sent the clothing sub-index down three-tenths of a point to 163.0. Home furnishings and services slipped six-tenths of a point from 167.6 to 166.4 under the impeus of lower quotations for soap and dishes.

The final sub-index, rents, remained unchanged at an all-time high of 125.0 since a survey on rent is made only on a quarterly basis. The next estimate may not be included until the March index is issued.

While Canadian food prices moved upwards on the retail level in January, the bureau's wholesale prices index showed a continuing upward trend in February. Wholesale prices also were higher for industrial materials.

Calculated on the basis that 1926 prices equal 100, the monthly averages showed that wholesale farm prices climbed from 143.8 in January to 145.0 in February. Industrial materials moved up from 150.2 to 152.0.

While Salesmen Try To Sell Insurance

Burner Explodes

Farmingdale, N. J., March 4— (AP) — Mrs. Betty Kornfeld listened excitedly while two salesmen tried to sell her an accident insurance policy and a newspaper subscription Friday in her home.

Suddenly there was a terrific bang.

The oil burner had exploded.

After the salesmen, Al Litchitz and Frank Trask, had carried Mrs. Kornfeld and her grandmother from the house, shut off the power and cleaned up the debris, Mrs. Kornfeld signed up.

COUNTERFEIT $10 BILLS

70-Year-Old Man Father 20th Time

Detroit, March 6 —(AP) — Seventy-year-old Charles Ratcliffe Sunday became a father for the 20th time.

His second wife, Myrtle, 44, presented him a baby girl. Fifteen children by his first wife are alive; four died at second.

Ratcliffe said he was counting on having another child.

"Two days" he said, "that's what folks think so, but I think I can prove they're wrong.

"I had my best years between 40 and 45, but maybe I'm beginning to wonder now."

Four Fatalities In Province Over Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

The ribbon-counting deaths of a 15-year-old Toronto boy and his 14-year-old "steady girl friend" were among four fatalities reported during the weekend.

A Canadian Press story showed that besides these deaths in Ontario, there were only two others in Eastern Canada and both occurred in Quebec.

Beverly Thrush, 14, and George Moore, 15, both of West York on the outskirts of Toronto, died in hospital early Sunday after each had suffered head wounds from a .22 calibre rifle.

Police believe the boy shot the girl and then committed suicide as the culmination of a "puppy love" quarrel.

Herdford Van Der Laan was the only traffic victim in Ontario, he died as the result of injuries received when struck by an automobile at Port Credit.

The frozen body of Alfred Rollins, 41, was found in the house at Sturdburg, Que., where he lived alone. He was thought to have been dead for two or three days.

Andre Saindon, 50-year-old night watchman, was found dead at the bottom of a newly-opened elevator shaft at Quebec.

Albert Boisconeault, 44, wanted by police in connection with a Montreal stabbing, was killed by a train.

Police Did Not Find Body of Man in House

Detroit, March 6 — (AP) — Police Sunday tidied up the home of Mrs. Constance Moxley, 42, in suburban Wyandotte after digging in the cellar for clues of her missing "Casanova Charley" bridegroom.

Smarting under the jeers of Mrs. Moxley, police said they will look elsewhere for Carl Moxley, 41, or Texas, missing since March 23, 1949, when the Moxleys had been married three months.

Officials said thrice-married Mrs. Moxley failed to report her husband missing until five months had passed.

Mrs. Moxley went about her household chores as police crews with electric hammers and picks dug into her basement.

"What are you digging for? she loshed police. "You'll never find anything there."

Queen Wears Crinoline Gown At House Opening

London, March 6—(CP)—The Queen made an impressive figure as she attended today's state opening of parliament.

She wore a crinoline gown of white satin, embroidered with gold thread and pearls. At the right side of the skirt was a large embroidered bow which the embroidery agreed across the skirt.

Her crown glittered with diamonds and platinum and her necklace and other jewels were of diamonds. The Queen wore the Order of the Garter beneath her crimson, gold and ermine robe of state.

Princess Elizabeth wore a gown of white satin, exquisitely embroidered with pale turquoise blue pailettes, whose color was matched by the tones of a blue underskirt revealed by a waist to-hem slash in the front of the skirt.

life at hospital.

The case may reach the jury by Thursday. Dr. Sander can be sent to prison for life if convicted of first-degree murder. The state has not asked the death penalty.

Since his arrest Dec. 29, the quietly dressed, mustached physician has been free on $25,000 bail— an unprecedented action in New Hampshire legal procedure.

He was accused of murder after noting in a medical case history of Mrs. Borroto that he had injected air into her veins.

The defence admitted the injection. It said Dr. Sander acted under severe emotional strain on an "impulse of the moment," but contended Mrs. Borroto already had expired.

This claim of mental and emotional fatigue loomed more important each day as the case moved nearer to the jury of 13 middle-aged men. But it was left to Dr. Sander to go into it further on the witness stand.

REVEALS GRIM

anced as a spy in Hungary, and from many others in the "tragically familiar" pattern of communist prosecutions.

Shipkov's statement recalls how after long questioning, he was made to stand bent forward with one or two fingers touching the wall to balance him, while the torrent of questions and charges continued.

"This posture did not appear unduly painful . . ." he said, "and yet combined with the mental strain, with the continuous pressure of talk, with the utter hopelessness and the longing to go through the thing and be sent down into silence and peace—it is a very effective manner to breaking down all resistance.

"I recall that the muscles of my legs and shoulders began to get painful and to tremble, and my two fingers began to bend down under the pressure, to get red all over and to tremble. I remember that I was drenched with sweat and that I began to faint, although I had not exerted myself in any way. . . .

"When the trembling increased up to the point when I collapsed, they made me sit and speak. . . . But when I uttered again that I was innocent, it was the wall again.

Shipkov's account went on: "And after a time of this, I broke down. I told them I was willing and eager to tell them all they wanted. . . . The main appeal is to end the pain, to stop pressure, to relieve tension, to come nearer to the moment when they would let me die in peace."

The rest of the ordeal, though it occupied many more hours, was a downhill run from this climax. But Shipkov had two more shocks coming.

The first of these was that instead of simply being pushed off to prison he was ordered for hours to tell in detail of his alleged spying and the people who purportedly helped him.

Although Shipkov later denied there was any truth in this, he went through it as part of this confession, implicating officials, fellow employees and friends.

After all the questioning, late Sunday Shipkov was directed to write the six-page confession, under the dictation of his questioners; then to sign it.

Assembly

Wednesday's assembly took the form of a variety show. Mr. Linton Read and Mr. Tompkins were in charge and produced a parade of some of B.C.I.'s talent. Those taking part were Ronald Elmy, Joan Shendell, Jim McKay, Gary Ward, Bill Babbitt and Barbara Hamilton. Judging by the applause of the students, it was enjoyed.

Highlights of the past week, of last week, "Boys' Night." It was a great success. We wonder how Mr. Townsend can keep coming up with new and exciting ideas every year. He did a wonderful job of directing and is to be commended with the boys for giving the public a fine performance.

There is not much to report on last week. Everyone is too occupied with their studies to create any excitement. As this goes to press, setting student body will be in the midst of Easter exams.

An epidemic of flu and colds has been storming the school this past couple of weeks. If any of you are bothered just now, here's a healthy hint. Visit the dentist's office and soon will be treading the corridors of good old B.C.I.V.S.

Topsy

Shavings

Have you noticed the atmosphere in the Collegiate lately? No longer heard is the cackling laugh and the eager chatter about a certain date or school party that was witnessed the night before. Teachers are bearing down! Students are studying! Why? There is the time of year when everyone hopes for the best, and expects the worst. That's right girls' gym, when the gals played host to the fast-moving Trenton team. After the smoke had cleared and the last whistle had blown B.C.I. was found to have a score of 9-5 over the visitors. At half time the score was 5-3 for Trenton but Pat Faulkner, who is not usually good basketball, came through with a basket to put B. C.I. in the lead. From here on the Belleville kids kept rolling and were ready for anything the visitors could dish out, and believe me, Trenton used every trick in the bat but it just wasn't good enough and the Juniors chalked up another game that will take them to Toronto. Good luck girls! Highest scorer for B.C.I. was Jean Faulkner.

You can weep now, B.C.I. Senior girls' basketball in Napanee Thursday night. In fact they went so far under we thought it better to refrain from the score at all. Regardless of this last game however, the Senior girls have some exciting games this season Don't forget, there's always next year. Highest scorer for B. C. I. was Pat Smith.

MARIO . . . In his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

No one is exactly sure why Oliver Wendell Holmes, the poet, carried a potato in his pocket. The best guess is that he believed it would ward off rheumatism.

The autocrat of the breakfast table would smile or feel very sad if he could contemplate our methods of dumping potatoes and using them as cattle feed.

Because of the endless varieties and qualities of potatoes, no potato recipe should be followed too literally. No one can tell you the exact moment a potato will become tender. Potatoes that are harvested in October in the cellar two months will cook faster than new potatoes just brought in from the potato patch. You may need a quarter cup or half cup more of milk to make mashed potatoes, depending on the moisture in the potatoes.

Maine, Long Island, Idaho and California potatoes all taste different. The important things to remember are that you want mealy, light potatoes for baking, mashing or French frying, and that you want waxier, heavier potatoes for boiling or pan frying.

Use the best select baking potatoes—Idaho if possible—to make baked stuffed potatoes,

Baked Potatoes Stuffed With Salmon—4 Servings.

Place 4 washed baking potatoes in a hot oven 475 degrees for 50-60 minutes or until done. Turn once during baking.

Cut off this lengthwise slice from each potato. Scoop out insides. Force potatoes through ricer. Add 1-4 cup of butter or margarine and 1-4 cup hot milk or cream. Whip with a fork potatoes but not make too soft. Add salt and pepper to taste. Mix well.

Drain an 8-ounce can of salmon of all juice. Remove bones. Break into fine small flakes. Add 1 unbeaten egg, 2 tablespoons chives or grated onion, 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice and 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Place salmon mixture into potato shells. Add balance of potatoes on top. Smooth top with spatula. Sprinkle with paprika, grated cheese and a few drops of salad oil. Place potatoes in a pan in a hot oven 435 degrees for 20 minutes or until brown.

Crab meat may be substituted for salmon if desired.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Thinks she isn't spoiled—she's wrong

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16, and an only child, although I am no longer a celebrity. You might say that being an only child was probably spoiled, but I really am not. I never have lacked affection, as I have always had plenty from my parents, and I guess that's what's wrong with me now.

I am engaged to this fellow of 19, who is terribly in love with me and would give me the moon, but that isn't what I want. I want another fellow who used to be interested in me till he heard I was engaged ,and now won't pay me the slightest attention. This fellow is closer to my age than the one I am engaged to, so he would really be much better all around for me. The time I could have had him I didn't want him. I would give my fiance the ring back in a minute, but I don't think I could get this other boy now and I don't want to be left stranded. What should I do?

S. H.

Dear S. H.:

Any girl who feels the way you do at this moment should have the decency to hand an engagement ring back where it came from immediately. It's a pretty poor sort of a girl who would keep on wearing one man's ring while scheming all the time on the best way to get rid of him and get another man.

You tell me that you are "no longer a child," but your whole letter makes it perfectly clear that you are quite mistaken in this point. You are far too young, both in years and in judgment, to be engaged to anyone, and I am perfectly sure that you will never marry this chap whose ring you are wearing.

If you want my advice—which you probably don't—you will tell him promptly that you don't feel ready to tie yourself up to any one boy, and leave yourself free to go with whom you please. What you say about not wanting to be "left stranded" is nonsense, and only shows you up for the child you still are.

I'm afraid, too, that you're fooling yourself when you say you're not spoiled. Your whole attitude shows that, on the contrary, you're plenty spoiled and want attention from everybody possible. If you really want to prove that you have some maturity, make a sensible resolve to wait until you are older to become engaged.

Divorced mother drinks to forget troubles

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My parents have been divorced for over two years, and I live alone with my mother. We are very poor, as my father sends us almost nothing. Because of worry and ill health my mother has taken to drink.

I have quit school to take a job, but it isn't enough to support my mother and me. My mother needs medical and mental help. Would you please tell me what I should do? I am 16.

D.

Dear D.:

You have a tragic load of responsibility on your young shoulders and you certainly need some wise and practical help.

I think the best thing you can do is to consult one of the workers of some social welfare agency who will be able to advise you

The Moonlit Skies

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Miami moons are at least as dramatic as the Miami sun, and usually more romantic. To the moon this Miami designed dancing frock is dedicated. . . one might almost say that from it, the dress is borrowed. For the net skirt is black as velvet skies, layers, and layers of it, and the strapless bodice may be pale gold like the moon, or warm bronze like the rising full moon.

Margaret Sargent-Florence has curved the bodice becomingly high, and appliqued two black lace medallions over it, spattered with tiny black paillettes. The stole scarf is of the same net as the skirt.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Thinks fee old for flower girl

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Would a 10-year-old girl be too old to be a flower girl? Or would it be better to have her as a junior bridesmaid?

2. Is a 9-year-old boy too old to be a ring-bearer? If so, what part could he take in the wedding procession? Could he be a junior usher?

3. What is the proper order for my processional, consisting of the following: maid of honor, bridesmaid, junior bridesmaid (or flower girl, depending on your advice to question above), usher, best man and ring bearer (or junior usher). My father is to give me in marriage.

M. M.

1, Yes; a flower girl is between 4 and 8 years old. If this girl of whom you ask is a tall 10, it would be appropriate to have her a junior bridesmaid.

2. Yes; a ring bearer is usually about 4 or 5 years old. The best plan would be to invite this young man to be an "assistant" at the wedding reception, standing nearby the receiving-line to carry out any duties that may be called for. (Since, as you say in your third question, you are to have only one adult usher, it would be awkward to have him walk with the 9-year-old boy).

3. First, the usher, alone (but much better, much better, to have two adult ushers to walk together. . . no matter how few guests there will be to be escorted up the aisle). Next, the junior bridesmaid, alone. Next, maid of honor, alone. Last, you, on your father's right arm. (The best man does not, of course, take part in the processional. . . he waits with the bridegroom at the head of the aisle.)

Duties of a wedding reception 'hostess'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have been asked to be a hostess at a wedding reception. Will you please tell me what my duties are? (2) Also do I wear my hat, and remove my gloves?

J. M.

1. You should have a talk with the bride and/or her mother and ask for their definite plan for your duties. For these duties vary according to various reception plans. Sometimes a hostess is asked to take charge of the Guest Book, seeing that every guest is directed or 'escorted' to the book to sign. (This usually is a 'full-time' job, beginning with the 'early bird' and lasting until even the late guests have signed.) Or you may be asked only to take charge of the cutting and serving of the bride's cake, after the bride has cut the first slice and shared it with the groom. Or you may be asked to over-see the serving of refreshments, and to see that all guests are directed to the room where refreshments are served. Or to make introductions. Or to have a hostess' eye on all proceedings, seeing that guests are taken care of and are comfortable and happy.

(2) If it is a daytime wedding, you should wear your hat both during the reception, but don't wear your gloves.

Thank-yous notes after a shower.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After a stork shower has been given in her honor, should the guest of honor send "thank you" cards, or wait until the baby is born and then let the guests know that the baby has been born, and thank them for their gifts?

B. M.

After any shower, as soon as possible after, the guest of honor should write a little note to each giver-of-a-gift. One or two warm-hearted sentences of appreciation are enough. But a "thank-you" card should never be sent.

Princess to Play Prominent Part In State Welcome

London, March 6 — (CP) — Princess Margaret, an accomplished linguist, will play a prominent part in the state welcome to French President Auriol and his wife who are scheduled to arrive at Buchingham Palace tomorrow.

She met the Auriols in Paris last spring on her way home from her Italian vacation.

The princess has paid several visits to her dressmakers and millinery because she wants to appear at her best before the official representatives of the country where most fashions are born.

In this she has the support of the king and queen, who will be anxious to show how much Britain has advanced in the world of fashion since the last French state visit just before the war.

Both the princess will be present at all major functions planned for the French president's visit. They include a full-scale banquet at Buckingham palace tomorrow evening, a reception at the Foreign office, a civic luncheon at the Guildhall and a command gala performance at Convent Garden.

During his stay here it is expected Auriol will offer a return invitation to the king and queen to visit him in Paris in autumn.

Why do people grow old?

NO ONE KNOWS the complete answer to this vital question.

But, aided by financial support from more than fifty life insurance companies, an important study on the processes of aging is being carried on at Canadian medical institutions. Here significant discoveries have been made in recent years. And the day may come when further discoveries along these lines will help prolong life for all mankind.

This is only one of the medical projects in which the life insurance companies in Canada have a stake. Their financial aid is also helping science to win the war against infantile paralysis, heart diseases, cancer and tuberculosis . . . as well as promoting better nutrition and public health.

These, too, are long-range crusades. But, by increasing the number of skilled scientists working at these tasks . . . and by making it possible for many young "men and women in white" to get further training and experience . . . the financial contributions of life insurance companies help bring success sooner.

In all these ways, the life insurance companies in Canada help you to live a longer, healthier life!

A Helpful Citizen in your Community

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

George "Soup" Campbell, Oshawa scribe comes forward with an explanation of why the Oshawa Bees played Hurst instead of Jimmy Claus in that second Rockets-Bees game. Takes us to task, too, for tabbing the replacement a mystery. We had no inkling of what the actual reason was, hence we dubbed it "mysterious". Thanks to "Soup" the matter is cleared up. Here's what the portly scribe writes:

"If Jimmy Claus hadn't taken ill, he would have played in Belleville and Belleville's protest against Claus would have been thrown out and the series would be over. Peterborough Triple-Links nipped Kingston Vics 2-1 on Wednesday night in the 3rd and deciding game of their semi-final series, on Littlock City ice. However, Peterborough will not be playing here Saturday night. Should Belleville Rockets defeat the Oshawa "Bees" on Monday night in Belleville, the 3rd and deciding game of that series will likely be played on Wednesday night, here at the Oshawa Arena. We hope George Carver read the above and totals enough of it in his column to serve as a retraction for his statement the other day that "Just why the Oshawa management played Hurst on Monday after using Claus in the previous game is a bit mysterious." It wasn't a mystery, George—just unfortunate circumstances. Claus was too ill to play Monday. On the other hand, we think the local 'board of strategy' deserved in bringing back Hurst, who has been officially 'reverted' to Oshawa and the Belleville protest appears justified. Claus or Hurst, it all adds spice to the hockey season and the OS will be in all right just so Oshawa Generals and Belleville fans will be red hot on Monday when the Oshawa Claus is expected to be well enough to play by then too!"

As friend George remarks, "It all adds spice to the hockey season and the Belleville fans will be in all right", we may say that again, chum. And not only will the fans be hot, but so will the Rockets and Bees after the recent devastating attack of Kid Flu. Doc Walters is busier than the stork in a maternity ward, flitting hither and yon with his little black bag, looking after his temperature charts. But he hopes to have 'em on deck tonight. And they'll have to be if they want to win. Hurst has been granted a new lease on life and tonight is their lone chance to advance in the playdowns, or at least force the third game.

* * *

This Oshawa crew will be mighty tough to beat, even in Rockets backyard. They whipped the Rocks here before in Rockets backyard. They whipped the Rocks here before and the rocky young cusses figure they can do it again. This protest business is not forgotten and unless we are much taken, the Bees will be out to repeat the victory they gained in the second game of the series. It should be a torrid battle, one that fandom should not pass up.

American Magazine carries a story anent a contraption invented by one Earl Larson, Maywood, New Jersey, which is supposed to assist baseball pitchers to develop control.

Larsen's brainchild is a mannequin batter consisting of two uprights on small wheels, which are connected by a cross-piece at the top, and operated on the principle of the photo-electric cell. From the sides come horizontal light beams and from the base — a conventional home plate — come additional beams to form a strike zone so important to a pitcher's control.

A fast pegtop threads this zone "breaks" a beam and this automatically registers on a dummy batter, showing by what accuracy he broke exactly where and at what height means of electric bells should the pitch miss the "rubber" or a plate on the plate. Should the pitch miss the "rubber" or be outside the knees-to-shoulder strike zone, nothing registers. And the disgusted pitcher needn't wait his time regular with a foolproof umpire that neither can talk nor thumb him to the showers.

The annual renewal of the hockey series between Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., and the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., will be played at the Jock Harty Arena, Kingston on March 11th.

The game is an outstanding athletic event. There are better hockey teams than the two rival cadet squads and there are games which produce better play, but no game of hockey or anything else every produced better sportsmanship. It has been called "the most appealing athletic event in the world." In 18 games no player has ever been penalized for foul play.

The U. S. Military Academy has never been particularly successful in the matter of winning games, having won only two games since the series began in 1923. That fact is relatively unimportant in comparison with the tradition of sportsmanship which has grown up around the annual contest.

When the visiting team arrives for the game, its members are met by the host team and immediately they pair off according to team positions. They walk over together to the home team's barracks and occupy quarters vacated by regular room mates. During their stay meals and bed are interparable, they attend classes, meals and all formations together.

The question of a cheering section is solved by a very simple device. The home team's cadet corps is divided into two equal groups — one to cheer for the visitors, the other for its own squad. It has never been known that a visiting cadets lacked equal vocal support — even, perhaps, a little louder, because the competition in noise making is just as keen as the game out on the ice.

All in all, it makes a very happy illustration of pleasant international relations. And, incidentally it is an instance of sportsmanship on the highest level. Athletic competitions of all kinds would be better for a closer study of this historic contest.

Boston Bruins Win Twice To Keep Slim Mathematical Hopes of Reaching Playoffs

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Weston Adams, president of Boston Bruins, must have found some atomic heart for his National Hockey League team. They've taken a new lease on life.

Two smashing victories during the weekend keep alive Boston's slim mathematical hope of reaching the Stanley Cup play-offs, after almost everyone except Adams had given up on the Bruins' chances.

The Bruins walloped New York Rangers 5-1 Saturday, then ran up their biggest score of the season in overwhelming Chicago Black Hawks 11-4 Sunday night. Boston is still eight points behind New York, with seven games to go. New York has 10 left.

Toronto Maple Leafs edged the leading Detroit Red Wings 3-2 and Montreal Canadiens with a substitute goaltender performing brilliantly, edged out Chicago Black Hawks 3-1. Boston beat Rangers Saturday night 5-2 but on Sunday New York Rangers beat Leafs 5-2.

Only 5,043 fans, far below Boston Garden capacity of 13,909, saw the Bruins' record splurge Sunday night. Bud Polle, Woody Dumart and Captain Milt Schmidt each scored two goals, Captain Milt Schmidt celebrated his 32nd birthday with a goal and so assist, and other goals were notched by Bill Quackenbush, Kenny Smith, Moe Henderson and Paul Ronty.

Score Four in Final

Bert Olmstead scored two for Chicago, Bep Guidolin and Bill Mosienko getting the others.

In the Saturday night scrap Rangers and Bruins were tied 1-1 until Bruins drove for four goals in the final frame. Don Raleigh scored for Rangers and Woody Dumart tied them up. Then Ed Krywanowski, Fern Flaman, Ed Harrison and Johnny Peirson counted for Boston.

In the Toronto-Detroit game the winning goal was scored by slippery Max Bentley near the minute mark of the final period. It was the 20th goal of the season for the great little forward from Delisle, Sask., and he'd been trying for a month to get it.

Captain Ted Kennedy and Cal Gardner scored the other Leaf goals, while Sentry Couture and Ted Lindsay scoring for Detroit.

Bill Ezinicki of Leafs had a nostril pierced when accidentally struck by Sid Abel's skate and required about 10 stitches. Ted Lindsay also required treatment for a cut when a high stick from Gardner, but both returned to action.

Rangers Too Smart

At New York Sunday night the Leafs tried hard in their bid to close the gap separating them from first place, but Rangers were too much for them. Twelve penalties were evenly divided, with Ezinicki collecting a five minute major and two minors.

Ed Slowinski scored for New York in the first. Max Bentley got that back, then Pentti Lund and Allie Kirkfield gave Rangers a 3-1 edge. After Sid Smith's goal for Toronto in the last frame Bep Egan and Nick Mickoski tucked the game safely away for Rangers.

Gerry McNeil took the place of the injured Bill Durnan in the Canadiens' cage at Montreal Saturday against Hawks. He was given excellent protection and had to make only 18 saves, Bill Mosienko scored Chicago's lone tally. Maurice Richard scored his 34th goal of the season and Ken Mosdell and Leo Gravelle got the other Canadien counters. McNeil flew up just before the game from Cincinnati to sub for Durnan, reported resting comfortably after running a high temperature when seven stitches were taken for the head cut he suffered at Chicago Thursday.

WEEKEND STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's Max Bentley who bagged the winning marker as the Maple Leafs edged out Detroit Red Wings 3-2 Saturday.

Maurice Richard, Montreal sharp-shooter, who scored his 34th goal of the season as the season Saturday when the Canadiens outpointed Chicago Black Hawks 3-2.

Bud Polle of Boston who netted two goals unassisted and helped on two more counters Sunday when the Bruins trampled Chicago Black Hawks 11-4.

Sam Jethroe, Speed Demon Of Braves, Ready

Bradenton, Fla., March 6 (AP) —Sam Jethroe, a spindle-legged speed demon, is anxious to get started down the trail blazed by Jackie Robinson.

Boston Braves put up a huge chunk of dough to land the talented Negro who stole 89 bases for Montreal Royals last season, an International League record.

Can he make the grade in the big leagues? That's the big question.

Robinson, Brooklyn Dodgers' crack second baseman and National League batting champion last season, also got his start in organized ball with Montreal. Jackie bowed in with the Royals in 1946 and moved up to the parent Dodgers the next year to become the first Negro in modern times to play in the big leagues.

If determination can do it, Jethroe is in. He's an earnest rookie who doesn't intend to miss this one big chance of his life.

There is some disagreement about Sam's age. Baseball records and Jethroe himself say he's 32, Skeptics say he's older. But a fellow who can steal 89 bases, bat .326 and lead the league in four departments, can't be too old.

The Dodgers sold Jethroe and Bob Addis, a prize rookie from their St. Paul farm, to the Braves for an estimated $150,000 and five players worth about $100,000 additional. Baseball men estimated the entire deal covered about $250,000 worth of talent.

Calumets Move Within Game Of Loop Finals

Pembroke, Ont., March 6 — (CP) — Cornwall Calumets moved within a game of a place in the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League finals Saturday night with a well-earned 4-0 victory over Pembroke Lumber Kings.

The victory marked the third straight win for Calumets in the best-of-seven semi-final series, with the fourth game scheduled at Cornwall Tuesday.

Playing near-perfect playoff hockey all the way and capitalizing on the breaks when they came, Cornwall took the lead in less than three minutes of play and were never headed although the hard-working Pembroke setter twice managed to tie the score. The first period ended 1-1 and Calumets held a 3-2 edge going into the final period.

Cornwall's rushing defenceman Gunner Telkinnen paced his club to victory with two goals, while Eddie Emerton and Bobby Bell tallied the others. Pembroke marksmen were Roy Glesebrecht and Tuffy Gauthier.

West Point Team Will Play R.M.C. Kingston Squad

By The Canadian Press

It will be West Point versus Kingston next Saturday when cadets from the United States Military Academy meet Royal Military College cadets in their annual hockey match at Kingston

The same day, Defence Minister Claxton, will take part in a cornerstone ceremony officially launching construction of a $1,000,000 dormitory at the military college.

The hockey game, now traditional in the two military colleges, was inaugurated by Gen Douglas MacArthur, supreme allied commander in occupied Japan, when he was superintendent of West Point in 1952.

The Canadian school won every game until 1935, when its team was held to a tie. Victory again went to the Kingston team in 1936, 1937 and 1938, but West Point won in 1939 and 1942.

The games were suspended because of the war. The series was resumed last year when the Cadets visited the Canadian military institute on the Hudson River—and lost 3-1.

Don Loney, perennial all-Eastern centre, said in an interview Sunday night that he plans to play with Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Football Conference this fall.

The Ottawa Rough Riders star who returned Saturday from a business trip in Edmonton, said Eskimos had offered him the job of assistant coach to Annis Stukus as well as a full-time player spot.

Loney also said Eskimos are seeking the services of Royal Copeland, Toronto Argonauts ace backfielder.

Loney, who said he has "just about signed" an Edmonton contract, emphasized he was not trying to play one club against another.

Saturday Eskimos announced that quarterback Lindy Berry and end Marv Bailey, star passing combination from Texas Christian University, have been signed to one-year contracts.

Playing in the inter-city five pin league for Branford against Preston Saturday, Les Paine of Brantford rolled a perfect 400. Eddie White, five-pin statistician claimed it was the first perfect game rolled in Brantford in a league affair.

Windsor Sterlings took a one-game lead in the best-of-three Ontario Senior A basketball finals Saturday night at Toronto, staging a powerful second-half drive to defeat Toronto Tri-Bels 80-59. The second game will be played at Windsor next Saturday.

At Champaign, Ill., Don McEwen of Ottawa, Michigan University sophomore, Saturday set a Big Ten Conference indoor record by winning the two-mile event at the Big Ten championship track meet in 9 minutes 7.2 seconds.

At Port Colborne, with Ken Stanley scoring on both of two foul shots awarded with 20 seconds to play remaining, Hamilton Purple Raiders eliminated Port Colborne Inco from the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association intermediate B playdowns by a single point in the second game of their first-round series at Inco Recreation Club Saturday night. Inco won Saturday night's game 52-48 but lost the round 115-114, Hamilton having won the first game at Hamilton last Tuesday 69-62.

At Stockholm, the Swedish National Hockey team Sunday night defeated Edmonton Mercurys 5-3, handing the Canadians their first defeat by a European team in their pre-championships tour. The Mercurys, who will represent Canada in the world championships in London this month, have lost two games to British teams made up largely of Canadian talent and have four ties in 28 games they have played in the United Kingdom and on the continent.

Windsor Spits Lace Marlboros By 6 to 1 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros or Hamilton Tigers aren't singing "Sweet Adeline" strains of "Home Sweet Home" after their efforts on Saturday.

Toronto's Marlies won 7-4 and even with the support of over 13,000 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens, failed to decision to Windsor Spitfires to fall behind, one game to three, in their Ontario Hockey Association best-of-seven semi-final series.

At Hamilton, a jammed arena of Bengal supporters failed to root their team into the senior A finals as the Tigers came out on the short end of a 4-1 count with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen to end their activity for this season. With their fifth victory in the 12-game round-robin schedule, the circuit moves to a best-of-seven final against Toronto Marlboros.

Windsor, which accused his Barrie charges of being a bunch of "cream puffs" after they dropped two quarter-final games to St. Michael's after winning two on home ice.

Saturday night's 5-0 loss to Guelph Biltmore's in the opening game of their best-of-five semi-final would appear to lend weight to Barrie opinion. Barrie have yet to win a playoff game on home ice.

Out on Top

In winning their fifth game Saturday, Windsor loned Kitchener-Waterloo came out on top of the round-robin circuit. Marlboros compiled an even break of 4-4 while the Tigers trailed the field with a 2-6 record.

At that, the Dutchmen were outscored 31-30 on goals, counting all their goals in the final frame after crafty linesman Bobby Laurent gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead in the first period.

Mike Duniza rapped in two markers in the third frame while Ted Hampson and Jack Shewchuk collared the others.

Lanky Cleo Star

Lanky Cleo Goupille was the big man for Windsor. Counting three times, the rugged Berry was also dangerous as the Spits played Marlboros dizzy for almost 60 minutes.

A 2-0 lead in the opening session was the blow that softened the homesters. Windsor added one in the second and closed out with a 2-1 margin in the final frame.

Cpl Earl Reibel, record-setting junior scorer with 129 regular season points, nicked one goal and three assists while Jack Bale and Bob Rawlyk got the others.

Herb Dickenson, a "no sh" player for most of the schedule, has come to life with a rush in the playoffs and Saturday night paced Guelph with a pair of markers.

Deadlock Short-lived

Barrie managed to play to a scoreless draw in the first frame but the deadlock was short-lived. The Hatters reared in for three in the second and a closing rush of two in the third—both by Dickenson.

Andy Bathgate, Steve Brklacich and Don Oberholtzer were the second period marksmen.

The juniors go right back at it tonight, Marlboros and Windsor clash in the fifth game of their best-of-seven series, playing at Toronto, while Barrie will be trying to tee a winning combination in the second game of the best-of-five arrangement, this time in the Barrie arena.

The senior finals start at Kitchener-Waterloo tonight, the Dutchmen tangling with Marlboros in the first of a best-of-seven series.

Sports Shorts From Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — Add items "on the ration" in Britain: war whoop from speedway fans.

A "war whoop" in these parts is the motorcycle racing fan's version of the old college cheer. Backed by waving rattles and the roar of super-tuned motors, it can make a pretty devastating noise.

The fans who attended Leicester's Blackbird Road Stadium made things pretty tough for sleep-seeking local residents, with their ear-splitting encouragement to favorite riders. The residents threatened court action

Bob Peet, manager of the householders by promising to keep things quieter in the future.

Fans wouldn't be allowed to bring rattles into the stadium. Only "soft music" would be played on the public address system instead of the usual brass band blares that used to proceed a meeting.

And fans will be "rationed" to one war whoop a meeting.

A new sport—"blow-egg football"—is all the rage around Gravesend, Kent.

Several teams have been formed and matches are played nightly.

The field is a full-sized billiard table and the ball is a blown-out hen's egg.

A team has eight members — goalkeeper, left, centre and right backs, centre-half and three forwards. The goal is a foot high and six inches wide.

The players sit around the table and blow. If one stands up, the opposing team is awarded a penalty shot. The game lasts 20 minutes with time out for reinforcing the egg when it blows off the table.

Cardiff Arms park, famed rugger stadium, has added two fine-ly-wrought bronze gates, with pigeons commemorating the late Gwyn Nicholls, one of the greatest three-quarters Wales ever produced.

Nicholls — the "beau ideal" of all rugger fans with his chivalrous manners on and off the field —died in March, 1939.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 6 (AP) — Professional basketball has existed more than 50 years, but it still is suffering from "growing pains". That's the expression Maurice Podoloff, National Basketball Association president uses to describe some of the strange things that happen in his league.

"Basketball never prospered in the old days because it was operated by small independent owners who couldn't stand a few losing seasons," he explains. "A few years ago the owners of the buildings took an interest. Some of them have had to go along with losing teams for three or four years; but they're willing to stick."

Strictly Selective

Soon after the ticket sale opened for a college boxing tournament at Penn State College, a customer appeared and demanded two unreserved seats for each of the Thursday, Friday and Saturday night sessions. The seller offered two series tickets instead, pointing out that would cost him only eight bucks while the individual tickets would run to $9.80. "Don't you understand lady," the fan protested, "I don't want to go to the Thursday afternoon bouts."

Monday Matinee

The group which has plugged Detroit as a site for the 1956 Olympics, has been offered the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union track-and-field championships — if it can get up some $21,000 to guarantee the meet. They'll actually hold the meet at the University of Michigan In Ann Arbor.

BOY FOUND DEAD

Toronto, March 6 — (CP) — A 15-year-old boy was found dead, hanging by a lariat from a clothes peg in his suburban Minico home Friday night, apparently the victim of his own make-believe.

Richard Lyness was discovered by his mother when she returned from a trip to buy building materials. The family was planning to build a new home. Police said the scarf and cap pistol on the boy's body indicated he had been acting out a comic book story or a movie scene.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme mixes her thinks in bridge. She thinks a system is law. The laws of bridge must be obeyed. But the rules of a bidding system need not be obeyed if a player so elects.

Nearly all good bidding systems say an opening bid of two in a suit is forcing to game. They even use the word must in explaining that the pair should continue until game is reached.

What they mean is that it is wise to obey the signal. But if a player desires to disobey the signal, no law of bridge forces him to do so. Nor can a partner or an opponent.

"If I open two-in a suit," writes a fan, "must partner and I keep bidding until game is reached? We passed when reaching a bid of three hearts and our opponents claimed we must go on."

It is poor bridge policy to pass short of game when an opening of two in suit is the starting bid. But no player at the table can compel the bidding to go on if the players decide to stop.

An opening of two in a suit is assumed to show a hand that can make a game. But even this need not be obeyed. A player is privileged to open with two even if he has a busted hand.

South opened with a bid of two clubs with this hand:

♠9 6 4 2
♥Q 8 5
♦7 6 4
♣7 4 2

North responded with two no-trump and south passed. Undoubled and not vulnerable they went down five tricks for a loss of 250 points.

The opponents did not like this because they had a game in something themselves. But they could not force south and north to reopen the bidding or keep going until game was reached.

Please do not go around saying I recommend passing short of game when an opening of two is used. This would not be true. But it is true that no law forces players to reach a game.

Except, maybe, the law of self-preservation.

Canadians Wipe Out Boon of U.S. Dollars

Ottawa, March 6 — (CP) — Foreign tourists spent a record $288,000,000 in Canada in 1949 but Canadians went on a record travelling spree all their own and wiped out a lot of the boon to the federal treasury's reserves of United States dollars.

The Bureau of Statistics summed it all up Saturday.

It said the $288,000,000 spent by tourists here in 1949 was $8,000,000 above the 1948 total. But Canadians spent $191,000,000 in other countries, chiefly the U.S., or $57,000,000 more than in 1948.

So the net tourist receipts fell to $97,000,000 as compared with a record $146,000,000 in 1948.

The bureau said the volume of longer-term Canadian motor traffic remaining abroad more than a day was up 66 per cent and more than half of the increase was due to heavy traffic at Fort Erie, Niagara Falls, Windsor, Ont., and Pacific Highway on the west coast.

At the first three of these border ports the traffic doubled and at the Pacific Highway it was six times as heavy as in 1948. Much of this longer-term traffic was traced to shopping visits to places like Buffalo, Detroit and Seattle.

Stirling, Marmora Clash in OHA Int. Hockey Playdowns

Marmora — Marmora's Trent Valley team goes into OHA intermediate playdowns before games settling the champions of the league are completed. They will receive Stirling on Tuesday evening in the first round in which the best of three series is being played. While unfortunately the Marmorians will be lacking the services of Gus Leonard whose recent injury keeps him out of hockey for the rest of the season, they can be depended upon to put up a dogged fight for OHA honors. Both Stirling and Marmora will be fortified by the inclusion of a limited number of other players from teams in their respective leagues.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was getting reddy to begin to do my homework and I said Hey pop, G ma, I saw a swell thing in the window of Carrs All drugstore today. It's calle the Marvel Home Hair Trimmer, and only cost 69 cents, and ma could cut my hair with it so I'd never have to worry about going to the barber shop again, and you and ma wouldn't have to worry any more about reminding me and you'd save all that barber shop money, so, we'd all be happier, I said.

Now that's quite a thawt, pop said, It would only take a certified public accountant 5 minutes to figure out that a gadget like that would save me enough money to buy and exter cigar every Wenday and Saturday. By golies the anticipation would make the wenday ely on magic wings he said, and ma said, I like the sound of anything that helps to bring down the high cost of living, but before I invested in a thing like that I'd have to be sure you wouldn't squerm like a fish without a hook every time I used it on you.

Dont worry, ma, I'd lay on the floor reeding a comic book or something, and the ferst thing I knew you'd have my hair all cut perfect, I said, afd ma said, And the rest thing I knew my back would be broken.

Then I'll sit up in a chair with my comic book, I said, and ma said, You'll sit in a chair with my arms at your side like a wooden soldier, and you'll wait patiently till I tell you I've finished, and every time you aggravate me by fidgeting or asking me how much longer I'm going to take, I'll give your hair a yank as a gentle reminder that patience is a virtue and silence is golden.

Aw, heck, I think I'll give the barber shop another chance, they probably need the bizzness, I said

Which they probably do.

LABOR PRESENTS

The Speech, prepared by the Cabinet and read by King George in said the new government—which has a precarious seven-seat majority in the House of Commons—will do its utmost "to assist in finding a durable solution to the tremendous problem of atomic energy so that international agreement for adequate control and supervision of the production of atomic energy may be secured."

Control of the production of atomic energy, the address said, will be attempted through machinery of the United Nations.

Failure to make any reference whatever to nationalization, a program close to the heart of the Labor party, seemed to reflect the party's desire to avoid controversial issues in the immediate future. But harmony will not be sought at the expense of the national well-being the Speech said.

There will be a limited program of legislation in view of the heavy volume of financial business to be transacted, the Speech explained.

"Nevertheless, should other matters prove in their (the government's) view to be immediately necessary for the maintenance of full employment and the national well-being, my ministers will not hesitate to submit them to Parliament, even though they might seem likely to be contentious."

Warns Opposition

This was a warning to Winston Churchill's Conservative opposition in the Commons that the government is setting a definite limit on the length to which it will go to avoid controversy.

The speech paid tribute to the generous help" given Britain by the United States, Canada and other Commonwealth countries. It also praised the "sustained endeavor" of the British people in increasing industrial and agricultural production.

The speech also confirmed a pledge that the "government will maintain their whole-hearted support of the organization for European economic co-operation through which it is hoped to work out a new European payments scheme."

This passage might be especially significant as British opposition to proposed schemes for complete convertibility of European currencies has been strongly assailed by some observers.

Will Do Part

The British, the speech said, "will play their due part in the collaboration with other powers in strengthening the common means of defence."

Summing up events in the international field, the speech said the "formation of a federal German government has made possible the progressive transfer of responsibilities from western allies to the Germans" and allowed "substantial reduction" in occupation costs.

Turning to international politics, the speech emphasized a need to expand British food production.

The government intended to examine legislation to amend the leasehold law under which Britain's great land-holding families have maintained ownership of large sections of the country while leasing 99-year leaseholds.

The wide sense which Britain hopes to maintain in mutual relations with the other countries of the Commonwealth was indicated in the Speech's "welcome" of the opportunity for exchange of views provided by the recent Commonwealth foreign ministers' conference in Ceylon.

"In accordance with the recommendations of the meeting, my ministers look forward to co-operating with other Commonwealth governments in matters of common interest in south and southeast Asia," the speech said.

U.S. FORCED INTO

2. At Budapest the Hungarian government was pushed into consultation with Moscow — was looking for a new way to make the staff of the American Legation there. The United States Saturday rejected a Hungarian request that the staff be reduced voluntarily on the ground that it is a key centre. At the same time, the State Department noted that Hungary may force American diplomats out if it wants to, by declaring them "personally unacceptable."

Sealing Up Cracks

The State Department is convinced that all along the line the Russians and their satellite governments are trying to seal up the cracks which remain in the iron curtain.

What happened to Shipkov was one of the events which led to the break in American-Bulgarian relations. His story covers a 22-hour period last August. During that time he was under constant questioning by Bulgarian security militia. He finally broke and wrote out a detailed confession of crimes which both he and the state department declared never existed.

The department linked Shipkov's story with the cases of Cardinal Mindszenty and Robert A. Vogeler in Hungary. It described the pressure put on the Bulgarian as "apparently hypnotic compulsion," said it explains how Mindszenty, Vogeler and hundreds of other Red police victims may have been broken.

In another link to significance of Shipkov's statement, the state department said that "for the first time a victim of the apparently hypnotic process has had the spiritual fortitude and courage publicly to piece together the shattered pieces of his moral character and reveal in detail how a man of integrity can be completely broken and forced describe in his own words a fantastic story of imaginary plans of espionage and treason."

MANIAC KILLS

People stood frozen on the sidewalks, horror-stricken and helpless as the killer pulled his knife from hiding, struck from behind and pulled up his bloody toll. Other people fled, screaming. "It seemed like he was using the knife so fast nobody wanted to try to stop him," are witness said.

Slugged to Sidewalk

Two policemen in a patrol car finally caught up with the killer. Jones lunged at them with his bloody knife, but they beat it out of his hand with clubs and slugged him to the sidewalk with gun butts.

A few minutes after Jones had finished his first victim, Joseph Bondolazi, 25, police were on his trail. He carried with him two young fathers, each wiffh baby carriage.

Police James Culhane, 36, a shoe salesman and the other was Kenneth Kennedy, 23, a Mohawk Indian and construction worker who formerly lived in Quebec.

Shouting "Do you know me?" Jones plunged the knife into Kennedy's chest. The knife stuck. As Kennedy tried to stagger away, Jones followed and yanked the knife out of his chest.

Kennedy's five-month-old daughter was not molested.

In Critical Condition

The father was in critical condition in a hospital today.

Jones, rearmed, returned to the spot where he had found the two fathers. But Culhane already was on the run, pushing his 15-month-old son.

Culhane heard a voice behind him —"Do you know me?" But he made it to his own house before Jones got within range.

Four men were in a social club on the first floor, and Culhane called for them. "There's a man out here."

A madman had lost interest in Culhane by this time, and took a new course on the bloody route. He met Camillo Durso, 61, who died early today.

As he fled farther on, the slayer killed 46-year-old Frank St. George on the spot by plunging the knife into him time and again.

A block away, Jones met friend, James Yearns, 20, a Negro, and slashed him on the wrist as he waved.

Doubling back on his route, Jones plunged the knife into John Gordon, 51, killing him, and wounded Jerome Sullivan, 51, he badly he died in a few minutes.

CONTRACT SIGNING

Some pits were ready by midnight to start pouring black energy into the fuel-starved economy. But it may be 10 days before all an estimated 223,000 laid-off men in coal-dependent industries, such as railroads and steel, will be back on the job.

Runs Until 1952

Peace in the anthracite industry seemed just ahead, too. Three far futile talks in New York are being moved to Washington. An Anthracite agreement may be achieved within the week, industry and the union sources predicted.

The nearly 80,000 anthracite workers did not join the 372,000 soft coal diggers in the strike, although their contract also had expired last June 30.

A grip smile flickered now and then over the grizzled face of the 70-year old Lewis as he and the operators signed the bituminous contract.

The contract runs until June 30, 1952. But it may be cancelled by either party on or after 1, 1951, upon 30 days' notice.

TWEED

'Atom Bomb' Subject Of Address by Wesley Hamilton

Tweed — On Wednesday evening the Harmony Club of St John's United Church met for their regular monthly meeting under the convership of Mr and Mrs. Emerson Hodgins. The theme of the Irish was a feature, with green ties and bows donned by the members, and songs of Old Ireland highlighting the program.

The speaker for the evening was Mr. Wesley Hamilton, principle of Tweed high school, who explained the "Atom bomb" and its elements in a manner that could be understood by a layman. He told how the atom bomb is formed and went on to say that "Some day," in his opinion, "we will have furnaces, factories, automobiles and many other things operated by atomic energy."

"The atom and hydrogen bomb are much too complicated to be understood by the ordinary citizen; in fact only very few top scientists know the secret, but I do thing that every one of us should know the seriousness of atomic energy and what it can do in this world of ours." He continued, "if the hydrogen bomb is as powerful as our scientists claim it to be, each of us should register our vote against developing it, for if a chain reaction is set up, if such a bomb is exploded, it may mean the total destruction of the world."

During the evening, Mrs. Jean Hall played a piano solo, "Come Back to Erin," Mrs. Marie Hamilton sang "Rose of Tyrone," and Mrs. Elsie Elliott gave a reading.

Harold Knapp of Sulphide entertained the members with a number of saxophone solos featuring Irish songs, and was accompanied by Mrs. Hazel Connor.

An Irish contest followed by refreshments, brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

It provides for:

A $14.75 daily wage, an increase of the cents Lewis had asked 90 cents.

A 30-cent levy on each ton of coal to finance the U.M.W. Welfare Fund. The pension payment formerly was 20 cents. Lewis had asked 35 cents.

A union shop, subject to court ruling on its legality.

One Clause Out

An end to the "able-and-willing-to-work" clause under which miners have stopped work with impunity.

A limit of five days a year on the miners "memorial", or mourning periods.

The contract ended any chance for passage of the mine-seizure bill sent to Congress Friday by President Truman.

The White House served notice, however, that Truman still wants a commission created to study the fading, strife-ridden industry and recommend a legislative cure.

At the strike ended scores of cities relaxed or cancelled their emergency coal-rationing programs. Closed schools set reopening dates, and "Brownouts" were lifted in many places.

London, March 6. (AP)—Hunger and not politics is responsible for the spread of communism in Asia, Lord Boyd Orr said Sunday. The former director-general of the United Nations Food and Agricultural organization and 1949 Nozel Peace Prize winner was addressing the Association of Scientific Workers.

The Golden Shoestring

Faith Baldwin

Chris spoke suddenly, in a loud, startled voice.

"It wasn't the will," he said incredulously, "it wasn't the money it was you, Aunt Cordelia. I had to rationalize feelings somehow, so I said it was the money, it was resentment of the disinherited. I couldn't admit even to myself that it was your affection for Bob that I resented. You see, I knew about my father and mother, I knew that they loved me, with what was left over; they were gay and kind and fun to be with, but I wasn't necessary to them or anyone. And when they came to Paris and took me away I thought . . . . Well, there was Jack of course, and there was Bob, but I believed you might have something left over too. And then I found you didn't."

She put out her hand to him and he took it and held it, and Terry took his other hand, and he sat there between them like a man who is bound and yet one who has found his freedom. And no one spoke until, after a long time, while the waves applauded in the palms and a blue samman put out from the beach and the water glittered with sun, Chris asked "May we have lunch early? I'm starved!" and was horrified to feel Cordelia release her hand and put it across his eyes and begin, very painfully and most unfamiliarly, to weep.

It was raining next day when they reached the house on Tantalus, but then on Tantalus it often rains while the sun shines below and the valleys are filled with rainbows. And Terry, hearing the straight fallline rain as she moved about unpacking the suitcases, thought of Nanlola in the sunshine encircled by the sea, and of Chris and herself walking alone on the sand or climbing the high steep hill, and coming back to stop and talk with the Nanlola people in their little houses and to dine alone at the long candlelighted table. For Cordelia had said: "You will have things to talk about, you two, and plans to make, and Alika will bring me a tray in my room."

They had talked it out all that afternoon, and after dinner, and late into the night. So that his childhood and boyhood came clear to her, and she looked at the picture with compassion. A psychiatrist could explain it, she supposed, the resentment and heartbreak that the child could not acknowledge and so had sublimated another resentment, comprehensible to him and quite satisfactory. She could see him, as he felt it was necessary to him, wandering the world over, with parents who fed and clothed him, filled the needs of his growing body and mind and who were utterly engrossed in each other. But all the time the guilt for Chris was toward home, and when Cordelia came for him, a 12-year-old boy suffering from loss and shock and loneliness home was embodied in her. But she had failed him and there was no home.

"You see," he told Terry, "I've always thought her quite special I suppose kids distrust a lot of emotion, especially when it's trigger-quick. My mother was like that, beautiful and bad tempered, gay and melancholy. My father knew her moods, he loved them, even the bad-tempered ones. But she was wearing, as a mother, Aunt Cordelia was always the same, she didn't embrace you one moment and push you away the next. I rarely heard her laugh but never saw her cry — until today. And she was so fair always—when Jack and I got into rows, for instance, I used to pretend I was sorry for Bob stuck in the islands under her strict discipline, if it makes sense they feel more secure under it. I had none. I was permitted to do as I pleased. There were just certain regulations in exchange for which I had my freedom. I must be well mannered. I must be clean. I must study. My father tutored me sometimes, and sometimes I went to school, wherever we happened to be. Other than that I was left to my own devices, to grow up as best I could. So I used to say, when I thought of Bob, 'The poor kid. But I knew I was the poor one. And when I came home, when I saw how much Aunt Cordelia loved him, how much more than Jack—not that she showed any favoritism in the usual ways—understood that I had come home to a place and not to a person or people. It was as simple as that, so I grew a shell and manufactured a grievance. After all, I was only 12 and not thinking very straight."

"You haven't thought straight ever since," she said.

"No. Then I fell in love with you," said Chris, "and I thought Now I am necessary to someone But last night, and this morning when you said you would leave me . . . ."

"I had to say it, I would have had to do it"

"I know. I believed it, only for a moment. For what you wanted was to build, and without me you could not," he said.

Well, here they were, on Tantalus, and when the time came they would leave it and live on their own mountain, she thought fancifully, Cordelia had warned them, "It will not be easy." Nor would it. And Terry thought, I don't want it to be easy.

Hugo and Jack came home in midafternoon, as they casually did unless they were on a trip somewhere, and they had drinks on the lanai and big pitchers of iced tea with pineapple fingers and for Terry, who loves it, strong, iced Kona coffee. And Hugo, when they had been served, looked from one to the other and said "As I said on the telephone, there was no difficulty, none at all."

Jack jingled the ice in his glass. He said "Mr. Amenly had the grandfather of all hangovers. He was most apologetic."

"Where is he?" asked Chris.

"At the Royal. He spoke of staying for a time. But I doubt it," Jack said, and grinned. He added "there are ways in which he can be made uncomfortable and I think he knows it."

"By blackmailing," inquired Chris politely, "in your private club, Hawaii Nei?"

"If you wish to put it that way," said Jack, "You must understand of course that there's nothing to prevent him from button-holing the first acquaintance or stranger he sees and confiding in them."

"I don't think you will run into him," said Hugo, "but if you do . . ."

Chris said "If we do, it won't matter." He set down his glass. "I've made an appointment to see Mr. Mannering tomorrow morning. Uncle Hugo. He thinks he has a job for me."

His cousin's jaw went slack and Hugo cleared his throat. He asked, "you intend to remain here? But surely—"

Cordelia cut in. She said crisply, "Of course he intends to remain, Why shouldn't he? Terry likes it, she wishes to settle down here."

Jack laughed. "What's the angle. I thought you hated the whole business—or any other business, for that matter."

Chris shrugged. He said Chris amiably. "It seems that I've been mistaken."

Terry said agitated, "if you really feel that way, I am sure that I could do something; that is, if you insist."

"Thanks," said Chris, "but if I get a job it will be as much on my own as possible. I'll even ask Mr. Mannering to try to forget the slight family connection."

Jack said "wait a minute. There must be an angle." He regarded Chris a moment and then shrugged. "The one I expected! You'll stay, unless there's an inducement to leave? Is that it?"

"No."

Jack got to his feet. He asked, "Then just what is it? We don't want you here, any of us!"

"Sit down, Jack," said his mother sharply. "You are quite mistaken, I want Chris here, it was I who suggested that he see Hammond Mannering."

"You!" said Hugo, as if she had bitten him. "You?"

She said "Chris is willing to go to work and to take his responsibility as a married man. This is his home. He has as much right to it as you, Hugo or Jack."

Jack said merely that he would be damned and his mother raised her eyebrows. She said "you were content enough to have Chris come home—"

"Because I thought he would go away again, and live happily forever after on his wife's money!"

"That's enough," said Hugo heavily. "Your mother is perfectly right. This is Chris' home. If he wishes to remain, there's nothing more to be said."

"Plenty will be said," Jack reminded him.

"What exactly?" inquired Cordelia. "That a young man returns with a wife and goes to work? Is there anything unusual in that?"

Terry rose, remarking that she was going to her room, and standing, looking out over the gardens to the mountains and to the sea, she spoke quietly, "There is

CNR Train Service Will be Rolling Full Tilt Tomorrow

Gordon Restores 25 P.C. Cut Due to Coal Shortage

Montreal, March 7. (CP)—Canadian National Railways trains will be rolling at full tilt Wednesday for the first time since last Jan. 8.

C.N.R. President Donald Gordon announced Monday that Wednesday would be the day for restoring the 25-per-cent cut in steam-powered passenger service on the railways' lines. The cut was made because of the severe coal shortage in the United States and dangerously low C.N.R. stockpiles.

Settlement of the long-drawn-out labor dispute between U.S. coal mine operators and union miners during the weekend paved the way.

"All trains in Canada that stopped running because of the coal shortage will go back on their normal schedules," said Mr. Gordon.

Preferential treatment will be given to movement of coal consigned to commercial and other users, he added.

During the coal crisis, the Canadian Pacific Railway, Canada's other great rail system, did not follow the objective of 2,360,000 tons of coal.

Mr. Vaughan, succeeded as president by Mr. Gordon, Jan. 1, said in reply that the sole reason for the coal scarcity was the U.S. strike.

If the U.S. government could not prevent it and could not persuade the men to go back to work, how could it be expected to have any influence upon them," he asked.

NEARLY $51,000 IN BOGUS BILLS FOUND IN BUFFALO

Buffalo, N. Y., March 7 (AP). Police have seized nearly $51,000 worth of counterfeit Canadian and United States bills that they say were hidden in the home of a 41-year-old construction worker.

Authorities called it the biggest bogus money find on record here.

Edwin Manning, United States Secret Service agent, identified the man as Christopher Mercio, alias Morelli. He was charged with possession of counterfeit money.

Police said they searched Mercio's home Monday after receiving "a tip about a suspicious." Hidden behind a gas meter they found $200 in counterfeit Canadian bills.

A more thorough search was made Monday after state authorities reported they found $50,000 in fake bills in paper bags on a pantry shelf.

Manning said the money was divided about evenly between Canadian $10 bills and American $20 and $20 notes. He said he had "no idea of its source."

Also seized, Manning said, were about 500 Irish sweepstakes tickets and a loaded revolver.

Police said they would charge Mercio with possession of lottery tickets and a dangerous weapon.

Toronto, March 7.—Police made another arrest Monday night as they continued investigation of the recent appearance of counterfeit bills in Toronto. Jack Kostinchuk, 33, faces charges of passing bogus $10 bills. Police said he had five bogus bills when arrested.

Earlier, a man and a woman were charged with attempting to pass counterfeit bills and with possessing them. Another woman was arrested Sunday on a charge of possessing bogus currency.

Myrtle the Turtle Will Become Mother

Chicago, March 7 — (AP) — Myrtle the turtle of the Brookfield Zoo is fertile and apparently is going to be a mama.

Myrtle the turtle, zoo director Robert Bean explained, isn't exactly a turtle. She's a female giant tortoise from the Galapagos Islands off the west coast of South America.

Bean said Myrtle's babies will be the first of the species to be hatched in an American zoo. Last Valentine's Day, Bean said, Myrtle laid five eggs in the zoo's reptile house.

Until yesterday Bean and Robert Snedigar, curator of reptiles, had been in the dark as to whether the eggs were fertile. But X-ray film depicted the beginnings of a tiny tortoise.

PREDICT POULTRY SHORTAGE

Toronto, March 7.—(CP)—Two poultry experts Monday predicted Dominion-wide shortage by autumn. J. Stewart Hyde and C. F. Lockhart, poultry commissioner, respectively, of the poultry industry committee of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, made the forecast at a federation meeting.

Toronto, March 7 (CP)—Synopsis: Monday was cold in all sections of Ontario in sharp contrast to Sunday's short-lived mild spell.

A new disturbance moving eastward from the central states will bring milder weather to Ontario again today, with some snow in the north and evening showers in the lower lakes district.

NFLD. MEMBER BITTER AGAINST FREIGHT RATES

Threatens Resignation If Rates Not Adjusted

Ottawa, March 7—(CP)—A Progressive Conservative member from the new province of Newfoundland threatened in the Commons Monday to resign his seat if the federal government does not step up its agreement on freight rates for Newfoundland.

Gordon Higgins, lawyer-member of one of the first delegations to discuss union terms with Canada, said he will give up his seat—St. John's East—and do all he can to get the new province to secede from confederation if the government does not abide by the terms.

Under the confederation arrangement, he said, the Maritime freight rate act was to apply to Newfoundland.

However, the board of transport commissioners ruled recently that the union terms did not bind the Canadian National Railways from exercising its usual discretion on rates applying to the Newfoundland area.

Later, Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland told reporters here he is carrying the province's fight for a further deal in freight rates to the federal cabinet and expressed confidence the controversial issue will never sever the province's ties with the rest of this country with the island province.

Outside the House, Mr. Higgins said he was not too clear on what procedure would have to be followed for Newfoundland to leave confederation. Possibly, the province could follow a reverse procedure to that which brought it into the union.

Immigrants Reaction

In the chamber, Mr. Higgins suggested that all Newfoundland members, who include State Secretary Hickey and four other Liberals, resign with him over the railway issue.

African Prince Claims He is Deprived Of Throne to Appease South Africa

London, March 7 (AP)— Seretse Khama, prince of the African tribe of Bamangwato, has accused Britain of depriving him of his throne and exiling him and his white British wife into exile to appease the color-conscious South African Government.

The Oxford-educated Negro, 27, chosen by his tribe to rule in the dusky British protectorate of Bechuanaland, said he was told Monday he was to return home without permission for five years.

At a press conference in his city London flat, Seretse said he had been advised to bring back his wife, the former London typist Ruth Williams whom he married in 1948, because she was a disturbing influence in the territory." She is waiting to have their first child back in Bewone, the capital of his native land.

It was Seretse's marriage to the white girl, without approval of the tribal elders, that set off repercussions which echoed loudly in neighboring South Africa and Southern Rhodesia.

He was chosen last fall to lead the 103,000 Bamangwatos over

Mrs. Pitre Swears Guay Suggested Suicide to Her After Saying Parcel Held Bomb

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, March 7 — (CP) — Mrs. Arthur Pitre testified in court today she first learned from jeweller J. Albert Guay that a parcel she placed aboard an aircraft at his request last September contained a bomb.

Guay is on trial for the murder of his wife Rita, one of 23 persons killed when a Canadian Pacific Airways plane exploded and crashed into a mountainside last Sept. 9.

Mrs. Pitre said Guay first told her the parcel contained a statue. But 10 days after the crash, when newspapers were telling of a "mystery woman" placing a parcel on the plane, she learned from Guay that the parcel held a bomb.

Guay, the woman said, suggested she would have trouble with the police that she should do away with herself and leave a suicide note saying she caused the plane crash thinking Guay was aboard and that she did so because she hated him money.

Mrs. Pitre has been identified as the person who delivered a $5-pound parcel to the Canadian Pacific Airlines freight office in Quebec City where the plane later exploded. The Crown claims the parcel contained a time-bomb manufactured on Guay's instructions by Mrs. Pitre's brother, Generoux Lamontagne, a convict. that Guay arranged the plane explosion to get rid of his wife.

Under questioning by Crown Prosecutor Noel Dorion about a visit from Guay Aug. 17 or 18, Mrs. Pitre said Guay wanted information about waitress Marie-Ange Robitaille but didn't want the girl to know he was inquiring.

Tells of Buying Dynamite

Mrs. Pitre said Guay later asked her to buy dynamite for a "Mrs. Cote" to blow up some stumps. She said she bought the dynamite Aug. 18 in a hardware store and turned it over to Guay.

Mrs. Pitre said later in August she saw Guay two or three times. He wanted to get information to Marie-Ange Robitaille. On one occasion, she said, Guay was discouraged over relations with his wife and said he had to "do something."

"He said he didn't know if he would poison himself or poison his wife," said Mrs. Pitre.

Mrs. Pitre said that Sept. 8, eve of the plane crash, Guay telephoned to ask her to meet him at Palais Station the next morning at 8.30 a. m. She kept the appointment.

At the station she met Maurice Lamontagne, Canadian National Railways' employee.

Just after 8:30 Guay came out of the station lunch counter. Guay went over to a row of parcel lockers, opened one and took out a cardboard parcel carrying a "fragile" label. The parcel was addressed to a Mr. Bourbeau.

As brought out previously at Guay's preliminary hearing, Mrs.

Former Bulgarian Translator in US Embassy Confesses

Sofia, Bulgaria, March 7 (AP) —Michael Shipkov, former Bulgarian translator in the United States legation here, confessed Monday in a Sofia court that he had spied for the U.S. under the personal direction of the former American minister, Donald R. Heath.

The trial opened only two days after the U.S. State Department had released a dramatic affidavit signed entirely by Shipkov, revealing how Bulgarian police had arrested a U.S. code clerk confronted him by ruthlessly breaking down his will. He had requested that the affidavit be made public in order to clear his name in the eyes of the world. He was evidently felt was inevitable.)

Shipkov and four other Bulgarians pleaded guilty and confirmed the written confessions of having been forced to work in investigating police before the trial. A fifth defendant, Ivanka Kivkova Rindova, former telephone operator at the U. S. legation.

Shipkov said in court that Heath—minister in Bulgaria until the U.S. broke relations with that country and closed its legation in Sofia last month—had "inspired in the minds of many of the present (Communist-led Bulgarian regime) a transitional."

He said Heath had "underlined that the United States are actively interested in the return of Western Democracy to Bulgaria."

His official work in the legation was interpreter but "my unofficial activity consisted in gathering information for American intelligence."

Tells of Fraud

He told of how he had gone to Heath after being questioned by the authorities in 1949, telling of his fears of being arrested. He

JUDITH COPLON AND GUBITCHEV ARE CONVICTED

Both are Remanded On Conspiracy Counts

New York, March 7—(AP)—A federal court today found Judith Coplon and Valentin Gubitchev guilty of conspiring against the United States.

After 10 hours deliberation, the federal court jury found the former government clerk and the Russian engineer guilty of conspiracy and attempted espionage.

The jury of six men and six women had been out since 4:34 P.M. Monday and had been locked up overnight for continued deliberations at 9:30 A.M. today.

Woman Innocent on One Count

Miss Coplon was found innocent on one count of the four count indictment which charged her with attempted espionage. That also attempted to trar s it classified documents to unauthorized persons. She was found guilty also on another count of attempted espionage.

Gubitchev was convicted with Miss Coplon under the first count, which charged conspiracy to commit espionage by delivering classified documents from government files and by entering the United States of Miss Coplon's impartial services.

The second count of the indictment, Gubitchev was found guilty of attempted espionage in that he was an unauthorized person attempting to obtain secret documents. This count named Gubitchev alone.

Miss Coplon was found guilty under count four which charged her alone with attempted espionage in that she attempted to transmit documents relating to the national defence to a citizen of the Soviet Union, "with intent and reason to believe same were to be used to the injury of the United States for the advantage of a foreign power."

At the request of Prosecutor Irving H. Saypol, Judge Ryan remanded both defendants until Thursday morning for sentence.

Miss Coplon can receive a maximum of 23 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Gubitchev faces a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and a $20,000 fine. Miss Coplon is already under a 40-month-to-10 year sentence for conviction on similar charges in Washington.

Mysterious 10-Year Wildlife Cycle May be Due to Atmospheric Force

San Francisco, March 7—(AP) —Canada has a mysterious 10-year cycle of abundance among many species of birds and animals which may be due to some unexplained force in the atmosphere, William Rowan, of the University of Alberta, reported today.

About every 10 years the number of snowshoe hares, grouse and many other kinds of birds and animals reaches a peak. Then it declines slowly for a few years, finally beging to rise and reaches another cycle in about a decade from the last previous top.

The pioneer study behind this pace for 280 years, Rowan said in a paper before the North American wild life conference.

There is as yet no acceptable explanation for this "most curious wildlife enigma on the continent."

Rowan said factual information soon to be published suggests the cycle must hinge on some similar 10-year cycle of force "in the atmosphere or upper atmosphere."

The Dominion is on the verge of another peak of abundance. Further attempts to find an explanation for the phenomenon will be made.

The declining phase of the cycle probably will begin in about 1952, Rowan said.

WantsGovt.Pledge To Postpone Steel Nationalization

Conservatives Would Ease Pressure on Govt. Policies

London, March 7 — (CP) — Winston Churchill offered the Labor government today a chance to ease its precarious position in exchange for postponement of steel nationalization.

In his first clash with Labor since the elections which cut Labor's majority to seven, Churchill put Prime Minister Attlee on the spot with a request for a definite pledge that Labor would not take over steel until a date "not later than nine months after the next general election."

Attlee told the Commons Monday that Labor would stick to the schedule for nationalization of steel, "Our purpose is to give effect to acts passed by parliament," he said.

What Churchill offered Labor was a respite from the threat of a sudden overthrow. It would relieve the pressure on many government supporters who would otherwise have to drop their duties at any time to rush into Commons for a vote.

The nationalization bill passed by the last Parliament provides that government directors will take over the 14 firms and that the actual takeover of the steel industry should be accomplished between Jan. 1, 1951 and Jan. 1, 1952.

Vote on Thursday

The Conservatives decided Monday night to put down a vote expressing dissatisfaction with Labor's policies on nationalization of steel and construction of housing. A vote on the nationalization motion is due in the Commons Thursday, while a vote on Churchill's second motion is due next Monday.

Churchill opened debate on the government's program by saying British voters had declared against government ownership of industry. He said the postponement he proposed would give the voters "a further chance of affirming their repudiation of it."

Alternately belligerent and humorous, the Conservative spokesman twitted the government on the fact that the Commons now is divided evenly. Labor, however, has an over-all majority of only seven seats in the 625 - member House.

Says Reform Needed

At one point Churchill called for a parliamentary committee to study reforms in the British electoral system. He said reform would be justified by the fact that 186 members of the Labor party had been elected by a minority of those who voted in their districts.

Discussing Britain's economic crisis, Churchill warned against any further devaluation of the pound, which last September was cheapened from $4.03 to $2.80 in U.S. funds.

Churchill also announced he would press for a full debate on economic and external affairs.

Discussing the Liberal Party, upon whom he inferentially cast the blame for the lack of a decisive margin of victory in the elections—the Liberals and Conservatives more than the labor total — Churchill said:

His has perhaps been readily assumed that the nine gentlemen (the Liberal members) who sit on the gangway on this side will have in this parliament a position of unique influence. I hope the house of

PROBABLE TERMS OF HOUSING PLAN ARE ANNOUNCED

Toronto, March 7. (CP)—Planning Minister Griesinger outlined in the Ontario Legislature Monday probable terms of the joint Federal-Provincial housing plan.

Premier Frost said terms of purchase would have to be worked out with the Federal government since costs of the project would be shared 75 per cent by the Federal government and 25 per cent by the province. Mr. Griesinger indicated, however, the house will sell for about $7,800 with a 10-per-cent downpayment, and an interest rate of about 1-2 per cent.

Mr. Frost said it was possible there might be no down payment and a smaller interest rate to compensate for the longer term of payment.

The legislature passed through committee stage a bill which complements Federal legislation permitting the Federal and Provincial governments jointly to acquire and improve land for housing purposes.

The House in Committee also passed an amendment to the High School Act which, among other provisions would have the effect of abolishing high school examinations.

City Playgrounds Will be Operated This Coming Summer

City Council, the local parks board and the board of education will co-operate in the operation of children's playgrounds during the coming summer it was decided last week at a special meeting of representatives of the above three bodies.

Attending the meeting were Mayor H. J. Allin, and Aldermen Potter and Tice, representing city council; H. N. Becker, Harry Rollins and Max Matthews from the parks board, and Chairman Hume David, George Wishart and Fred Symons from the board of education.

It was decided that senior and junior playgrounds would be operated at King George School, and at the East and West Belleville playgrounds, while there will be junior playgrounds only in Foster Ward, Brook Street, Churchill and Parkwood Heights district, and on Charles Street.

A committee of Aldermen Potter and Tice with Enos David and Max Matthews will also interview the Y.M.C.A. to ascertain the amount of supervision necessary for these playgrounds and the approximate cost of such supervision. A complete check of all equipment available at the present time the property of the board of education and the parks board, will be made.

Parks Bd. Favors Development Zwick's Island Over Period of Years Council Members Told

Long term development of Zwick's Island by the parks board was seen as a distinct possibility Monday evening following a joint meeting of city council and the parks board held at the city hall to discuss matters pertaining to the city parks system.

Members of the local parks board laid their cards on the table with respect to offers they had received for the commercial development of Zwick's Island and at the same time they noted why these offers had been turned down.

Chairman of the Parks Board H. N. Becker told members of council that it was the opinion of a majority of the board that the Island should be developed over a city over a period of a number of years.

But council members were not unanimous in their acceptance of this proposal and a concrete plan forthcoming from the parks board as to what they considered may be established over a period of the next five years. Alderman Don Potter felt that such a plan was needed before council could decide whether development on the Island as a commercial enterprise would be the most advantageous.

Board to Prepare Plan

It was decided that members of the parks board would prepare such a plan and present it to council following which council will decide whether it would be in the best interests of the city to lease the Island.

Members of the parks board will also reconsider their recommendation advising against the purchase of the property except at the northeast corner of Macmahon and Victoria Ave., for development as a park site. Members of the board had turned this property down as the city has a acre tract of land in Parkwood Heights.

Board member Cleo Colling said the parks board had viewed the Barlow property and had decided it was unsuitable for development especially.

But Aldermen Duffy and Thomas were still not satisfied and asked if all members of the board had examined the property. It turned out parks board members had been under a misapprehension as to the exact confines of the property in question. On learning the Barlow property took in a much larger area than they had considered, parks board members said they would be willing to reconsider their recommendation.

The city has an option for the purchase of the property and has given two readings to a by-law, which has now been forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval. Extent of the property in question is about six acres and cost to the city would be $6,500.

Read Communications

When Zwick's Island was under discussion Orland Pinkston, secretary of the parks board, was called on to read communications received relative to offers for commercial development of the Island by private interests. Three of these offers, all involving either sale or long term lease.

"I think we are missing out on a splendid opportunity," stated Alderman Hyde. "The Island has been lying idle for 50 years and the city has no money to develop the Island."

"With a 40 mill tax rate and no chance of coming down what money can the parks board expect to get from the city?" he asked, recommending acceptance of the offer of a Chicago man, who proposed commercial development.

Parks board member Arthur Keegan said he favored commercial development, giving as his reason, that such a move would benefit the tourist industry for Belleville and construction of buildings would benefit local business.

To Consider Policy

Aldgman Armstrong noted the meeting had been called to consider policy. "Council previously had recommended the Island not to be sold," he said.

Board member Max Matthews said it was the duty of a parks board, to provide park parks for the public. He was opposed to the construction of a hotel or lodge on the Island as was suggested by interests proposing commercial development. If a hotel was built on the Island there was nothing to prevent a liquor license being granted. Such conditions would not be in keeping with a public park.

Alderman Butler said there were many things to consider before lease of the Island for commercial development could be contemplated. These included protection of the city should the lessee go into bankruptcy. There would also be sewage to consider. He felt, however, that a proper lease would be better than kicking the Island around as it had been for the past 50 years.

Does Not Favor Hotel

Mr. Becker said he approved development of the Island, but he did not favor a hotel or cottages as had been proposed by commercial interests. Such would deteriorate in appearance.

Alderman Tice felt there was enough initiative in the city for the Island to be developed by the parks board or the city itself. An example he referred to municipal parks at Cobourg, Oshawa and Kingston. The alderman was against sale and said a long lease was tantamount to a sale.

Ex-Mayor Harry Rollins also favored development of the Island by the parks board. "I stand for the development of the Island over a city over a period of a number of years.

Alderman Tice felt there was a clause in the deed of the Island to the city which would revert to the heirs of the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell if the city ever ceased using it as a park.

Money for the development of the Island over a long term would come, "It always has come," he said.

Always Built Too High

"Many projects in Belleville have been defeated because we have built too high a mountain," he continued. "Let's climb it. Surprising what could be done with Zwick's Island if about $5,000 per year was spent on it."

Arthur Keegan said that the citizens' committee on Canada Park restored before any money was spent on Zwick's Island.

Cleo Colling favored development of the Island by the parks board over a period of years. He said if a definite plan was made the parks board could be put into operation over a period of a few years.

Mayor Allin said he was personally opposed to either sale of the Island or long term lease. If this was done it would be akin to giving away the city's heritage. He felt that by gradual development, Zwick's Island could be made into a splendid spot in a few years time.

Alderman Haig also favored development by the city. He agreed the Island would be developed financially and would pay over a period of years residents of the city could be money.

Could Rent Concessions

Alderman Argue suggested if commercial development was sound why could the city not construct the necessary buildings and rent the concessions on a yearly basis.

Asked regarding the plans of the parks board for this year, Chairman Becker stated they hoped to have Victoria Park lawn and also to construct a wading pool for next summer in connection with the fountain at Victoria Park. The board also planned a program of junior playground developments.

Although it was agreed this year would have little money for the purpose, it was hoped that Zwick's Island would be cleaned up and picnic tables placed. More money would be available for this purpose next year, it was the parks board was assured, he said.

It was at this point that the parks board members agreed to bring in a concrete plan of their proposals for Zwick's Island. This plan will be submitted to council in four to six weeks' time.

Sports Night Promises to Be Entertaining

The local sports loving fraternity as well as other fun seekers in the city and district are in for a full evening of entertainment at the Memorial Arena on the evening of March 21st when the local municipal police and firemen are staging a sports night. Proceeds of the evening will go to the March of Dimes fund.

First on the evening's program will be a fairly mixing of wrestling and spirited hockey between the provincial police hockey team and the local fire department hockeyists.

These two teams have clashed on several previous occasions this season with the firemen having a slight edge in scoring power. But the local police officers have been practising faithfully and they promise stiffer competition for the big night. Efforts are being made to have one of the Toronto N.H.L. referees for the game.

But the hockey game will be but a part of the entertainment in store for the fans. Between periods there will be some fancy clown skating acts, there will be a least two bands in attendance, and several members of the Quinte Skating Club have agreed to stage an exhibition of fancy skating.

Local police and firemen are staging a ruse ticket selling campaign for the event. The tickets are being sold each and are selling fast. All proceeds are for the March of Dimes.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 7—(CP)—Prices turned easier as activity slowed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The three-day advance in industrials slowed to a halt and mild selling pressure pushed market leaders into the minus column.

Volume for the first three hours was 779,000 shares.

Losers almost doubled gains in industrials. Steady advances in recent sessions have pushed industrial list to new high ground. Monday when strong gains were reduced to a scattered today. Utilities, agriculturals, construction, liquors and golds dipped. Papers also tended easier while steel stocks were mixed.

Junior gold producers dipped pennies in dull dealings. Smaller issues were moderately active. Mosher Long Lac, a feature of recent sessions, slumped sharply following news of financing plans.

Base Metals also dipped. Early gains were reduced and losses appeared. Sherritt Gordon was under pressure and International Nickel dipped a fraction. Noranda found good support.

Western Oils moved quietly. Several market leaders showed moderate advances, early dealings but later selling wiped out most of the gains.

Development, Growth of Municipal Government in Ontario Outlined

Speaking on the "Evolution of Municipal Government in Ontario" W. A. Orr, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, Toronto drew an interesting word picture of the growth of this form of government in the province from the late eighteenth century to the present day, in an address to the Rotary Club yesterday.

The clubmed had as their guests, other service officials as well as reeves and deputy reeves from surrounding Hastings County townships, as well as those in Prince Edward County, it was the occasion of the club's Rural-Urban Day.

The original form of municipal government still carries on the speaker said, in two phases, local government and education.

Universities Free to Open

He pointed out that the universities were the first schools opened in Ontario followed by the grammar schools. In 1807 all primary education was carried on by religious organizations, principally churches. In 1816 the first public schools came into being, and were supported by private funds. In 1871 all public schools became free with taxes collected by the schools Municipal collection of taxes became compulsory in 1879.

At the present time, the minister said, Boards of Education are independent of municipal councils. School boards in rural areas can spend any amounts as long as they are used for school purposes, but in urban centres it is different. Council can turn down monetary requests for educational purposes, in which event the school boards must seek the approval of the rate payers.

Digressing for the moment, the speaker said when a tax increase occurs it is either through the council or the board of education. Taxpayers should not place the blame on the wrong body.

First Council Meeting

The first town council was held in Adolphustown in 1792 at a meeting held a year before it was authorized. In 1793 the Ontario legislature authorized meetings which were empowered to appoint officers. But these had little authority. All they did was collect taxes and decide on line fences. The justices of the peace were the real power but these in turn were dominated by the legislature turn governed by the Dominion government which made its own appointments.

In 1803 the first equalization of assessment was tried by a new Act which fixed valuation on various forms or property even to oxen, horses and pigs.

From 1800-1841 a rapid growth in urban government occurred in the province. The Fire Protection Act and the Labor Statutes Act came into being. In 1843 Robert Baldwin tried to pass the Baldwin Act which was drawn out to become law in 1849 and which came into force in 1850.

It was the Magna Charta of municipal government. Municipal boards were given greater control than any other governing organization of the day.

The Municipal Act. Mr. Orr pointed out, provides the things municipalities must do but the greater portion is left entirely to approval by legislature. It gives to municipalities the authority to pass by-laws as effective as any governmental legislature and it also gives them authority to penalize in cases of breaches of bylaws.

No Dictating to Councils

Speaking to non-municipal representatives, the deputy minister said that while these authorities are given municipal councils, there is no authority in the Act which permits officers of the government to control or dictate to these councils. It is up to the ratepayer to police municipal councils or school boards and if these bodies do something contrary to law, it is a nobody's business but the ratepayers. If a council breaks a law or does not put one into effect it is up to the ratepayers to take action.

It is also up to the ratepayer to take action, if a councillor is not qualified to hold his position or enters into business with the council.

Powers of municipalities have been increased in recent years in a number of cases. Where they have been extended the Department of Municipal Affairs decides they must secure departmental approval or in some cases that of the Municipal Board.

The Ontario Municipal Board has no connection whatever with the Department of Municipal Affairs, the speaker said. The department is an administrative body the function of which is to assist municipalities. The Municipal Board is a semi-judicial body which acts as an arbitrator in all municipal matters. In addition the Board looks after P.C.V. licences. One of its prime functions is to approve municipal bylaws with regard to the use of restricted lands. No municipal council has the right to prohibit a man from using his land without the right of appeal to the Board. Municipal by-laws must be approved by the Board in order to protect the ratepayer. If the municipal refuses to lift a restriction ratepayer can apply for ing and demand a hearing re all can have their say.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Fred Wilson, with club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Roy Macklem.

Hog Producers Want Control Of Their Produce

Toronto, March 7 — (CP) — Charles McInnis of Iroquois, president of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association, said Monday that farmers want control of their produce "all the way to the consumer."

He told a meeting of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture that producers feel that changes in the Farm Products Marketing Act have not gone far enough. The federation is seeking provincial legislation which will fit in with the Federal Agricultural Products Marketing Act to give them control of sales on an interprovincial and export basis.

He was commenting on amendments to the Act, which got third reading in the Ontario Legislature Monday.

W. E. Tummon, secretary of the Association, said some guarantee should be given commodity groups to allow them a chance to view changes in the Marketing Act before they become law.

M. M. Robinson, secretary of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association, said producers would "have to go after" authority to get possession of their produce until it reached the consumer.

Egg prices may be forced upward again next fall as a direct result of the slump which occurred in recent weeks after last winter's peak prices, delegates said. Poultrymen will meet March 15 in Toronto to discuss formation of a Poultry Producers' organization within the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

Other guests were Harold Wakefield, Arthur McGee, Don McKinnon, Jack Yanover, all of Belleville, and Rotarian Dr. Cornett, Stirling. President Fred Deacon was in the chair and warmly welcomed the guests.

CANADA'S RECORD IN MINE DISCOVERIES

More new mines have been found and developed in Canada in the past half century than in any comparable area in the world, stated Mrs. Viola McMillan, president of the Prospectors and Developers Association, on Monday in making her annual report to the association meeting in Toronto. The addition of Newfoundland as a province accounted in 1949 for $26,000,000 of mineral production.

In wartime and peacetime Canada's growing place as producer of minerals and metals has been the administration policy. The country has had a remarkable history in mining in the past so that the future appears even more bright when it is realized that there are vast resources untapped and even unlocated. Canada's mineral-bearing rocks have not only added greatly to production and wealth but suggest expansion and development of the rock formations which may bring great wealth.

This country looks forward from the present favorable position towards greater and greater developments yet to come.

Gold has been of untold benefit to the Dominion and the resources she possesses in that metal have been an incentive towards discovery after discovery of new mines. From the very nature of her rocks this country seems destined to an undreamed-of expansion yet to come.

Iron is another of the resources of this country which have been proven of great extent with the probability of further discoveries and of developments which will bring in new mines, not only of iron but other base metals which have played an impressive role in the growth of the country.

When a prospector like Mrs. McMillan after half a century of exploration sees the greatest possibilities in the discovery and development of new mines the people of the Dominion should be gratified with the knowledge she holds great reason of a future of progress and influence among the nations. A still more prosperous future means an opportunity of helping to serve the world of nations.

FORCED CONFESSION CHARGED

A shocked democratic world has just read in the press the story of torture which is reported as forced upon a Bulgarian in the employ of the United States Embassy in Sofia in which imaginary crimes of treason and espionage were confessed under threat, force and hypnotic methods used terrorist tactics used by the Reds in 32 hours of relentless interrogation. Washington has exposed the case.

The unfortunate Bulgarian is believed dead or awaiting death in a Bulgarian prison. It was the opinion that the American Government should reveal all the facts to the public in the name with the Bulgarian people says the statement issued in Washington.

The recent case of Shipkov, which was the Bulgarian's name, follows the pattern of events in other similar cases where westerners in Red satellite countries have been it is charged forced to sign confessions after gruelling questioning by Red police.

At the time of the sentencing of Cardinal Mindzenty of Hungary there was a general belief in the Western World that the "confessions" were forced by the Red police and the new development in the case of Shipkov is shown up as a hypnotic process of questioning, under which the victim breaks down and admits what is desired by his questioners, far though it is from the facts.

SLEET AND TREES

Is the total weight of such a casing of sleet-ice enough in itself to tear a heavy limb from its junctional point — a limb of sound wood without a trace of rot? Any one who has felled a tree, or removed a fairly thick limb with axe or saw, knows how deep the tool has got to bite before the limb will yield to the pull of a length of half-inch manila rope. It is surprising how tough the resistance of these limbs can be even when half severed.

The fact is, the answer to the destructive force of a thin casing of sleet-ice? Engineers could likely throw light on this question by citing the effects of stresses, conflicting strains and the like; but it may rest with botanists to explain the real answer to this mainly. It may be that it isn't the weight of the sleet-ice that does the damage so much as its numbing grip which may freeze certain parts of a tree to their very marrow, thereby making them so brittle that they snap like the stem of a clay pipe. — Hamilton Spectator.

THERAPEUTIC

A therapeutic diet is a tasteless thing at best,
Comprising bits of nourishment that's easily digested.
The nicest thing about it,
doesn't wear a hood or tie,
It's that tender look of pity on the nurse who brings it in.

And there's never any vengeance in a therapeutic dish,
And there isn't any flavor left in a therapeutic wish,
I am certain that's the reason why the nurse who brings the tray
Drops it quickly on the table and then hurries on her way.

Those gleaming metal covers,
I've decided, are to hide
The therapeutic chicken which is finely ground and dried.
"What would you like for dinner?" asks the dietitian wise.
If you answer: "Filet mignon," she'll have tear drops in her eyes.

On a therapeutic diet I'm happy to be in love,
I don't like peas and carrots when they're pounded through a sieve,
Like the thin broth that's permitted, I'd grow thinner day by day.
For there's nothing less enjoyed than a therapeutic tray.

Mackenzie's Column

Pomp, Pageant At Westminster Are Inspiring

(Editors Note: This column is presented as an indication of American opinion on major world events.)

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Those who hold that this old world is doomed because of the warfare of the clash of ideologies, might get comfort from the drama of the British Parliament opening Monday in London.

Thousands of Britains — rich and poor, aristocrat and little man — lined the route to cheer the royal procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster. The King and Queen rode in their glittering coach, which, escorted by scarlet uniformed household cavalry, with standards followed with dignitaries. Guns roared a Royal salute.

Lords in scarlet and crimson robes and richly apparelled ladies filled the august House of Lord Chamber awaiting Their Majesties. The members of the House of Commons crowded in their gallery, and the envoys of many countries filled the diplomatic boxes.

King and Queen on Thrones

The King, in robes of crimson and gold, topped by an ermine cape, led the way up to the golden thrones. There, wearing his crown and robes, he faced the Assembly and delivered the Speech from the Throne in which he stated the policies of his government — an outline which had been prepared by his Ministers.

And now we come to the strange part of the picture of pomp and splendor. The government facing His Imperial Majesty and his colorful retinue was not composed of Conservatives, but of Socialists, the party headed by Prime Minister Churchill. In theory these Socialists are representatives of the "upper classes," but it was the self-same Conservative who, when in power, had the foundations for the "welfare state," which the Socialists have imposed such taxation that they virtually wiped out the landed aristocracy and many of the rich members of Parliament belonged to that class.

So the socialists came to power and immediately started in on the program of nationalization of industry. They swung much further to the left politically than the Conservatives had been.

In the recent general election the British people shocked the socialists for going too far left. Goodwill

And what is the significance of all this medley of pomp, class and socialism? To me "it means that, with reasonable give and take, the forces of these differences can be worked out reasonably and amicably if the goodwill is present.

NFLD. MEMBER

The only immediate reaction was interjection by T.G.W. Ashbourne (Liberal, Trinity-Conception Bay) to the effect that Mr. Higgins should speak for himself.

His statement, stirring the Chamber during a dull Throne-Speech debate, coincided with a complaint by A Wesley Stuart, Liberal member for the New Brunswick constituency of Charlotte, that the "selfishness of Upper Canada" was hampering Maritime development.

Other speakt d included E. B. Huffman (C—Leeds) and Dr. Cathwood (PC—Haldimand).

In the opening stages, Transport Minister Chevrier announced that Canadian National Railways passenger services would be transferred to normas at midnight Wednesday, March 8 They had been reduced because of the coal shortage.

Speaker Ross Macdonald announced the insurance of a writ for a by-election in the Liberal seat of Annapolis-Kings. Election of the sitting Liberal, Angus Rankin, has been declared void because of irregularities in service voting.

Maritimes Opposes

Mr. Stuart, deploring the continued centralization of industry in central Canada, said the Maritimes were forced through high tariffs to support monopolies in Ontario and Quebec. Yet, they found it harder to sell their products in western Canada than in the United States.

Noting that some persons were talking of early construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway as a means of encouraging industry in central Canada for smelting, he suggested every Maritime member oppose the project until the argument could not be advanced. The seaway was mainly be treated in the Maritimes.

Mr. Higgins attributed growing unemployment in Newfoundland to the union with Canada and urged that Newfoundland should soon be allowed to accept sterling as payment for their product. At present they were receiving $60,000,000 and would assist them until they could fall into the Canadian trade pattern.

The rest of Canada was receiving handsome benefits, he mentioned before the island joined it. Newfoundland, he continued, was the only one of the provinces now were selling to Newfoundland $40,000,000 more in goods than they were able to dispose of there before confederation.

Mr. Catherwood suggested the government adopt a policy of attracting immigrants to Canada. think that immigration should be encouraged to support a larger population, despite the fact there now was some unemployment.

Mr. Huffman asked for changes in income tax laws to enable veterans to buy decent land for small holdings and still be able to live. Forest resources should be placed on conservation. vation.

said at Hendaye suggestion he took refuge in the Legation atlte until Oct. 2.

Next day, said Shipkov, Legation Secretary Raymond Courtney brought Shipkov a message from him, false papers and advised him to flee to Turkey. He said he was arrested as he tried to cross the border.

Shipkov told the court the Bulgarian authorities had behaved "very well" toward him and had shown a "very humane attitude."

Shipkov's affidavit, made while he took refuge from police in the U. S. Legation, told vividly of the methods he said were used to break him down until he agreed willingly to return to the Bulgarian as a spy for them.

He told of how he was grilled for 22 hours by a team of seven Bulgarian interrogators who took turns questioning him, slapping him and hitting him in the back of the neck with the edge of the hand.

. . . and after a time of this I took down," he said in the affidavit.

Strength for the Day

ABSURD, BUT GLORIOUS

When a little handful of Christian believers set themselves to found a church in the vast and wicked Roman Empire, everyone laughed them to scorn. What fools they were, thinking that slaves, ignorant people, social nobodies, were highly favored in God's sight and that through them would work his great purpose for mankind.

The whole project was indeed foolish. It was absurd. But it was that variety of absurdity which God loves. The early Christian disciples started out to do the impossible, the utterly impossible—and they succeeded. Every sensible person declared that it was impossible for them to succeed. We would have said the same had we been pagan Romans of that day.

But what difference did it make to this group of people who believed that they were chosen of God to a great end? They had no money, no social position. They were cuffed about on all occasions and persecuted at times in most dreadful fashion. And singularly enough after the persecutions were over, thousands of the pagans who had scoffed at these silly people and had died by precisely them were so sobered by the finality of their deaths that decided that they renounced paganism and embraced Christianity. The impossible was at last achieved.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

An Irish-Canadian chaplain in the Air Force gave this piece of advice to his boys in a sermon in Normandy:

"Pray for others, never for yourself. And you will be astonished at how many years and your prayers will count!"

Probably he got this beautiful aphorism from some ancient teacher: Marcus Aurelius said it. But it is one of those working slogans a man or a woman can keep tied, as it were, around the neck, to be remembered from day to day in the press of the mind, like a telephone number. Possibly 900 of us heard the sermon in Normandy. And it looks as if few of us have forgotten it. Yesterday, I met one of the pilots of that air-field, and in telling me how he had been doing since last I saw him so many years ago, he said that he had suffered a complete failure in the little printing business he had set up on returning from the war. Lost everything.

"To tell the truth," he declared, "I was in an awful mess last summer and fall. A very bad one. I small kids! Not a cent left, and a debt of debts! The last is, I was so sorry for myself, I was heading for a nervous breakdown, as well as fate. Then one day I met one of the boys from the old wing, and we talked for a while. He must have put on quite an exhibition of self-pity. But before we parted, he said to me: 'Do you remember a sermon that was just before the Falaise break through?' he said.

I interrupted the young pilot excitedly.

"Let me quote it!" I exclaimed. "Weep for others, never for yourself . . . !"

"Right!" exulted the young pilot, "Well, by golly, will you believe it, four days later I had the job I'm on now, a real future. Let me tell you about it . . . !"

SOMEBODY HAS TO BE THE BOSS

A parent who strikes a child is wrong. If the child deserves punishment, because he has not been rightly trained by the parent. Here, of course, I am speaking of a succession of wrongs. Every child has a moral right to do things wrong occasionally. A child should be taught by example, and not by punishment or fear. Most of the spankings which occur would never happen if a "cooling off" period were enforced. Most spankings are victous outlets for parental anger. They degrade the parent and insult the child, who actually is a small edition of the adult, with all the feelings, pride and love of life the parent has.

How many parents who spank their children have ever read an authoritative book on child psychology or child rearing? These can be had for little or nothing. Achievement of parenthood does not automatically endow the parent as an authority—on anything. The parent who spanks a child displays his ignorance and reveals his vicious character. He always makes himself out blameless and holds up the child as incorrigible. If parents received whippings in the same proportion to their misdeeds their children do—they (the parents) would spend a lot of their time in hospital.

Children should be praised when right and ignored when wrong. The thoughtful and effectionate parent should give much thought to the prevention of wrong-doing by removing the possibilities as far as possible.

"You'd have $200 a month!"

Could you, too, say that to your wife? An easy way to make this true is for you to get your name onto a "Family Income" Policy at once. You can do this for very little. For example, at age 30, only $4.50 a week would protect your family with $200 a month for the next 20 years and then $100.00 a month. (Other amounts cost in proportion.) TODAY'S TALK

POCKET BOOKS

I like significant things like small flowers—Lillies of the Valley (the fleur-de-lis) Forget-Me-Nots, Pansies, Violets and the like, and small pocket books that are so easy to slip into the pocket and read on trains, at odd moments, or in waiting rooms.

I have dozens of these inspiring books, and it's possible to find one to suit the shelf in a book store, where these small volumes rest, awaiting a friend. Many years ago I picked up one of these called "A Way of Life," by Dr. Willis Fletcher. I read it, ordered many more and gave them away by the dozen. Then I read it again. It was the publication of an address given by a group of Yale University students, April 20th, 1913.

The theme of this inspiring little book was to live one day at a time "in day-light compartments," and he quotes from Thomas Carlyle where he wrote that human business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand."

In this brief discourse, Dr. Osler advocates shutting out the yesterdays and then to "shut off, with a metal curtain, the future —the unborn tomorrows. Then live in today!" Although that talk he admonishes for cleanliness of mind and healthy habits the body may serve to its utmost. He referred to Walt Whitman, whose physician he was, and tells of a time when he visited him at Camden, the poet lying in bed one morning and noted workmen passing and exclaimed: "Ah, the glory of today's work, whether with hand or brain!"

Some others of these pocket books that have brought me great satisfaction and comfort, a dog story by John Muir: "The Master of the Inn," by Robert Herrick; "Old Wives' Tales," by Arnold Bennett; "The Roadmender," by Michael Fairless, and "Ideals," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox," by William James. These are just a few, but examples that anyone can select from a book shop, that best suits their taste or liking.

A more recent pocket book, which I have before commented upon in this column, is entitled "The Power Within Us," by Emmet Fox. Another inspiring little book that can be read in a minute an hour and meditated upon for a lifetime!

Pink and white carnations intermingled with ferns made a lovely setting in Bridge Street United Church for the marriage of Dorothy Elizabeth, of Ottawa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Dafoe, of Corbyville, to James Frederick Collis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Collis, of Brampton, Ont. The Rev. J. Grant Spaulding, rector, officiated, assisted by Mr. C. Staples, cousin of the bride.

Dana Cook, organist of the church, rendered the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming gown of white satin, featuring a frilled sweetheart neckline, and peplum. Her full length veil of tulle illusion was caught in ruchings of itself forming a coronet. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and fern from which was suspended a silver horseshoe on white satin ribbons, and wore a three-strand necklace of pearls.

Miss Velma Radford, of Belleville, was maid of honor, wearing a gown of blue satin with matching blue lace mitts and headdress. Both carried nosegays of roses, carnations and sweetpeas with matching ribbons.

Mr. Alec McLeod, of Peterborough, was groomsman, and Mr. Donald A. Dafoe, and Mr. John L. Dafoe, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held in Christ Church Parish hall, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a gown of turquoise blue with black accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of moss green, with shot green accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Brampton, and points west, the bride wore a brown ensemble with camel topcoat and alligator accessories. Upon their return, they will reside in Ottawa.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. Gordon Clegg, and Mr. Peter Dominik, of Peterborough; Mr. Blaine Bowyer and Mr. Bob Marshall, of Brampton, and Mr. Ross Hummel, of Ottawa.

Congratulatory telegrams were received from England, Brampton and Toronto.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature

about Food... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

You needn't count them now, but you ate 375 eggs last year. At least that's the average per capita consumption the Department of Agriculture estimates for each civilian in the country.

If you should see a dozen more eggs in 1950, there will be no surplus. The surplus which the government tucked away in 1949 to support egg prices was a mere 170 million dozen.

Unfortunately, appeals to consumers to eat more eggs don't increase sales. Eggs are a no-appetite.

Even the suggestion that you make desserts like cup custard will not send you scurrying to the egg basket unless you find some way of giving this dessert an attractive note. Cup custard is one of those desserts made with eggs and milk that doesn't offend anyone, nor is it particularly inspiring.

But when you add to it rich melted chocolate and serve it smooth and icy cold with a topping of cream whipped cream and toasted almonds, you'll do justice to both the hen and yourself.

You can use one egg to one cup of milk in making custard. The more eggs you use, the richer and smoother it will be. Three whole eggs to 2 cups of milk or monds.

4 egg yolks to the same quantity of milk make cup custard rich and velvety.

Chocolate Cup Custard—Makes 4.

Melt 2 squares of unsweetened chocolate in top part of a double boiler over simmering water.

In another saucepan heat 2 cups milk until bubbles appear around edge of pan.

In a small mixing bowl beat 3 eggs slightly. Add 1-4 cup granulated sugar and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Stir thoroughly.

Add milk to egg mixture. Add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Add chocolate. Stir until well blended. Strain.

Pour into lightly buttered custard cups. Place cups in a baking pan containing hot water almost to the edge of the custard cups. Bake 350 degrees 25-35 minutes. To test custard insert a silver knife into centre. It should come out clean when custard is done.

Cool custard at room temperature. Place in ice box to chill thoroughly.

When ready to serve, beat 1-2 cup heavy cream until thick. Add 1 tablespoon icing sugar, if desired. Spoon cream over custard. Add a sprinkling of toasted sliced almonds.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Only will power can square a triangle

A young woman of 25 who tells me quite frankly that "we won't promise to take your advice", writes that she has become involved in the old familiar triangle situation.

This girl is a registered nurse who apparently has an exceptionally well paid position. What she says, gives me the impression that she is employed by some industrial concern in a first aid capacity. She met the man in the case when he was brought into her office after having been injured in an accident on the premises.

When he was taken to the hospital, she went with him; and thereafter stopped in each day to check on his recovery. After his return to work, he made a point of dropping in at her office, and as time went on, these visits became more and more frequent.

Her interest in him led her to investigate his background, and she then discovered that he was a married man with five children, and at least twice her age. At one time, she was told, he had been a "happy, carefree fellow" but became a very sensitive one, following a previous accident a good many years before, when, as the story goes, no one seemed to care whether he recovered or not." His wife, this girl was also informed, was an "overactive woman socially who wouldn't stay home long enough to take care of her children."

Finding out that the man was married did not deter this young woman from continuing to see him constantly, with, of course, the usual result: "We fell in love, and no matter how we tried to stop it we couldn't. We began seeing each other on the sly. He won't get a divorce from his wife because our religion does not allow divorces."

Reaching the decision far too late that they were doing wrong, they began to consider changing their positions so that they would not see each other so continuously. However, she says, neither of them was able to find a job that would pay as well, And because he has a family to support, and she must contribute to hers, both of them feel they must keep on where they are now. She says the man has urged her to go out with young men her own age but that she "can't find them interesting".

I never have very much patience with people who deliberately allow a situation of this kind to develop, then excuse themselves by saying: "No matter how hard we tried to stop it, we couldn't." That is rank nonsense. The only excuse they should actually read is: "We didn't try hard enough to stop because we didn't have the will power."

If they didn't have the will power to avoid trouble when they saw it coming, are they going to have enough to stop it short now that they are in the middle of it? For will power is the only thing in the world that will get them out of the mess into which they walked with their eyes open.

BAYSIDE

Centenary United Church Holds Laymen's Sunday

Bayside. —There was an exceptionally large turnout at Centenary United Church on Sunday morning last, when the members of the Session conducted the service. Mr. Reg Edmondson, clerk of the Session, presided, being ably assisted by Mr. W. J. Slavin, who read the Scripture lesson and offered the morning prayer.

Mr. Edgar Ray, the congregational representative to the Presbytery, gave a brief outline of the plans being put forward for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of Church Union in the month of June, 1950. Mr. David A. Thrasher directed the music with Miss Elinor Roblin at the piano. The choir rendered a suitable anthem with Miss Verne Calvert taking the solo part.

The sermon was given by Mr. Douglas Holton, who took as his theme "Spiritual Warfare", and raised the question, "Why is Spiritual Warfare Necessary?" "Life is made up," he said, "of two factors, spiritual and physical. How necessary," he further stated, "the necessity of strengthening our spiritual nature by prayer, worship and by every means of Grace. Paul called it a "good fight"—a fight of faith, hence the necessity of availing ourselves of the protective armour as outlined by the Apostle".

The speaker also reminded his hearers that victory is not won by us apart from Christ. "We are more than conquerors thro ugh Him, Who loved us." This inspiring service was brought to a close by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers". The benediction was pronounced by the minister, the Rev. A. C. McCallum.

It seems strange that neither of them can find a position as good as the present one. Can it possibly be that they have not looked hard enough or far enough? Since she girl is young, and herself unmarried, it would seem as though she might find something, even though it meant going some distance away from where she lives at present. That, in fact, would be the very best thing she could do.

Failing the determination to take this kind of step, however, I can see nothing for these two but to make up their minds once and for all to avoid each other, and give their illicit romance a chance to die a natural death. But in view of the girl's warning that they won't promise to take my advice, I have little confidence that they will do so.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Her reply when co-workers give her wedding gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married soon, and it is the custom of our office for the boss to present the gift from the co-workers to the girl who is being married. I've heard so many of the girls' "stariner and stirner" their thanks, but I'd like to be able to say something nice and friendly and then add my thanks. Will you please give me some suggestions as to what to say?

2. At the reception we are serving sandwiches, fancy cookies, wedding cake, and so forth. When is the wine served?

D. H.

1. A wise and helpful resolution . . . to do some hard chorck on your words-of-thanks, and so to be able to say them with the grace this occasion deserves. For example: "Thank you, so very much, Mr. Carstairs, (looking at him) . . . and my deepest thanks . . . too, to every one of you dear friends (your smile of appreciation including every one in the group). How good and kind of you to make such a wonderful plan for a present, and for each to contribute so graciously and generously to buying me such a grand gift. The pair of crystal candlesticks are beauties . . . just what Bob and I were longing to have for our table, and he'll be as grateful as I am. We hope you'll all come soon to our new home to see the lovely light they will shed. I shall cherish your gift particularly because it will always mean the precious friendship my co-workers in these happy years. Thank you again, all!"

2. Since, as I judge, it is not to be a sit-down service, you may have the wine served as soon as some of the guests have been received in the reception line or you may wait to have it served when you cut the cake.

Registered nurses want to apply for factory positions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are two nurses, Registered Nurses, and we would like to make an application for positions as nurses in a factory. Will you please tell us how to make this application?

R. S.

If you have a particular factory in mind (as I think you may have) I suggest you go to the factory and ask for an interview (or for an appointment for an interview) with the Personnel Director or whatever her charge of interviewing applicants. Or you could write requesting an appointment or requesting an application blank for you to fill out, stating your qualifications and experience. Or if you are interested in finding a position in industrial nursing in general, not in a particular factory, you might register in an agency that specializes in placement in these positions. Or inquire from the hospital from which you were graduated as to the possibility of obtaining such a position through their recommendation.

Who to be served first?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a host is serving drinks in his home, should he first serve his wife ,or the eldest lady present? Supposing the eldest lady is his mother?

M. D. H.

The host should not serve his wife first . . . since the hostess should not be served first either at table or when food or drinks are served away from the table. Best form is for him to serve first the eldest lady present . . . his mother if she is a guest, or, if his mother is a member of the household, another older woman whom the household would like to honor by precedence-of-service.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Mid-season calls for extra beauty care

Women who live in Northern climes are likely to agree that March is the meanest month of the year. Too bad we can't all pack up and buzz away to southern lands, revel in sunlight.

Some women have a mid-season slump. Cold weather has chapped faces and hands. They're tired of the winter wardrobe, think with joyous anticipation of the day when they can far forth

Your hair may look despondent. Brush it and buy new Spring clothes. Old Man Winter is not popular with them.

They have to snap out of all that. Let them remember that the first rule of beautifying is to conquer what defects are bothering them, is to keep physically fit, not to let the spirits droop. If you're strong and healthy, you are not likely to worry. If you don't worry, you are not likely to get wrinkles. Birthdays won't mean anything. Someone has said that time and age are but timidities of thought. Nothing but the ticking of the clock!

Be strong; be brave; be tranquil. Try to organize your life so that you will avoid unnecessary fatigue. Realize the vitalizing effects of fresh air. Get out of doors every day, no matter what the weather may be. The stay-in-the-house type is often subject to morbid thoughts that deep inhalations of oxygen may dispel.

If you feel low and seedy, it is possible that you haven't been getting enough exercise. Did we hear a scream from the housewife, who tramps the domestic treadmill? Household duties do not offer the right kind of muscle work.

Steal ten minutes night and morning for body conditioning if you would retain the svelte and youthful waistline. It is the middle section that needs toning, without it one may take on the middle-aged figure long before one's time.

Lie flat on your back on the floor ,arms extended out from the shoulders. With the knees pulled up as far toward your chest as possible, roll the body from side to side. The purpose is to keep the hips trim. This exercise is fun, the first step of fatigue relax your legs and take long, deep breaths. Then at it again. Your flesh will glow; you will have a sense of well-being.

Before going to sleep, do relaxing exercises. Lift your arms, then drop them, let them go limp. Stretch your body, way down to your little pink toes. Clasp your hands at the back of your neck, try to pull yourself apart at the waistline, then relax. Good to tone abdominal muscles and to avoid a shalf south of the waistline.

This is also the season for plenty of complexion creaming, for hardening the hands and fingernails. Your hair may look despondent. Brush it well and apply hot mineral oil to the scalp now and then.

NAMED DOMESTIC CHAPLAIN

St. Catharines, March 7 (CP) —Rev. P. R. Beatlie, rector of St. George's Church, has been made Domestic Chaplain to the Bishop of Niagara and a Canon of Christ's Church Cathedral, Hamilton. Announcement of the appointment was made Sunday night at a confirmation service at St. George's Church conducted by Bishop W. E. Bagnall.

Fashion Flashes

THE FAVORED line in many of the newest hats seems to be one of forward height, even when the hat is worn off the hair-line. A bonnet of burnt yellow habitsatin straw is trimmed with a spray of white baby's breath and pink camellia, placed to follow the forward movement of the curved, peaked brim. Flat, black velvet bows either side of the crown.

UNDER FINE FURS especially at important afternoon-into-evening events, one is likely to see many silk suits, the majority tailored on softly classical lines. Silk ottoman, silk rep, and dobby satin in neat pin-top designs, are favorite fabrics. All are cut on slim lines and are often worn with chiffon or lace blouses.

AND LESS AND LESS black for gala evening gowns, it would seem, with white taking its place. A beauty of a dress is of white nylon net over matching satin, the deep, straight bottom flounce, the end, the three-layer spiral skirt trimmed with appliques of satin leaves and pearled edged in silver.

IN THE SWIM at Winter resorts are handsome swim suits—smart, wearable dignified. Black nylon taffeta is used for a bodice, detailed with thin halter strap, and cut in plicht points at the decolletage and at the hem of the softly flared skirt.

TWO-TONE suits are in for wide acceptance, come Spring. A new beauty is made up of a soft hip-length jacket of pink and gray tweed, a collared and fitted weskit of pink wool and a softly pleated gray tweed skirt.

LITTLE TOUCHES of pale pastel leather mark many of the new accessories. Pastel leather belts are piped in matching or contrasting patent leather; hats have patent leather trim, such as crown bands or pipings; and many calf or suede shoes also have touches of the shiny leather.

Canadian Apple Market in U.K. Is Not Bright

Picton—Prospects for any revival in the near future of the market for Canadian apples is not bright, Morley Webster, District Orchardist, told sixty orchardists at the annual spray meeting in Bloomfield. He pointed out that there is a potential 18 million bushels in Canada on a good crop year. He stated that across Canada, and in Ontario particularly, a large percentage of apple trees are from one to ten years of age, which should increase the potential for a number of years to come.

Mr. Webster mentioned the tree removal policy adopted in Nova Scotia where 600,000 trees have been removed on a subsidized basis. It was suggested to those present that they consider requesting similar support here to encourage the removal of many trees of the unpopular varieties and also a large number of older trees.

Cost Increasing

Cost of producing apples is increasing Mr. Webster pointed out. Fall and early winter markets for apples this year were unsatisfactory and resulted from overproduction. Mr. Webster fully discussed the spray recommended for 1950.

Dr. Hill of the Dominion Dept. of Agriculture gave an address on orchard soil management. In Prince Edward, the main problem is conservation of moisture. Dr.

Light Plane Crash Injures Two Men

Kitchener, March 7 — (CP) — Condition of William Kosky, 44, Kitchener furrier injured in the crash of a light plane Sunday, is reported "improved".

Kosky suffered serious body and head injuries in the mishap. Irving Gendel, 19, pilot of the plane, also in hospital, is in "fairly good" condition. He received less serious leg and shoulder injuries.

The two men were hurt when a light plane crashed shortly after taking off from K-W airport.

Boer War Veteran Dies

St. Catharines, March 7 (CP) Veteran of the Boer War and life long resident of St. Catharines district, George Bruce McCalla died Sunday night at a farm home near here.

A graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and Gold Medallist of his year, he was director and treasurer of the Ontario Asparagus Growers Co-operative Ltd., from its inception in 1932 until 1949.

Surviving are his widow, Mabel Wall McCalla, formerly of Guelph; a son, Sqdn. Ldr. John W. McCalla of Trenton; three daughters, Mrs. Guy Fetterley of Chippawa, Mrs. A. Bruce Smith of Centreville, N. B., and Mrs. James Pollard of St. Catharines, a brother and four sisters.

ABORIGINE TURNS FARMER

Alice Springs, Australia (CP) — Albert Namatjira, an artist, is the first aborigine to take out a grazing licence to run his own cattle on his own property. Namatjira, a successful Australian artist, has leased 700 square miles of land 200 miles northwest of here in Central Australia.

Hill pointed out that only two counties in Ontario had a lower average rainfall than in Prince Edward.

In determining the fertility levels in orchards, he recommended leaf analysis in preference to soil analysis. Dr. Hill pointed out that leaf analysis proves what the tree is getting rather than what the fertility level is in the surrounding and near surface soil.

False Addresses Marked on Parcel Shipped on Plane

Quebec, March 7,(CP) —False addresses were marked on a 25-pound parcel shipped aboard a plane that crashed Sept. 9 killing 23 persons, witnesses testified yesterday at a murder trial of J Albert Guay, 32-year-old Quebec jeweller.

Guay is accused of arranging for shipment of a time-bomb aboard the Canadian Pacific Airlines plane in which his wife was one of the 23 victims of its crash at nearby Sault Au Cochon.

One witness testified today that no one by the name of "Alfred Plouffe" lived last Septembr at 180 Laval Street at Baie Comeau. The crown has already pronounced testimony that name and address were written on the mystery parcel.

Name and address of the parcel's sender were listed as "Delphis Bouchard, St. Simeon, Que.," but a St. Lawrence navigator Delphis Bouchard from St. Simeon village testified today he sent no parcel last September from Baie Comeau or to Guay in Quebec.

Told of Selling Dynamite

Another witness today, Leopold Giroux, a harness store clerk, told of selling dynamite, dynamite caps and fuse Aug. 16 to Mrs. Hector Pitre and a Mrs. Pitre.

He could not positively identify Mrs. Arthur Pitre who appeared briefly before him in the court as one of the two women purchasers.

Mrs. Arthur Pitre was identified by one trial witness last week as the woman who brought Mrs. Hector Pitre and a male fictitious addresses to Quebec airport for shipment on the plane that was wrecked.

The crown hopes to prove that the parcel Mrs. Pitre took to the airport contained a time-bomb which Guay's request by Mrs. Pitre's brother, watchmaker, Genereux Ruest.

When court adjourned Saturday Genereux Ruest, 44-year-old crippled watch-maker who did work for Guay, had testified that he had manufactured a mechanical dynamite detonator for Guay. Guay Picked up Package

Ruest said that the detonator made up of an alarm clock, a battery and dynamite was ready on the eve of the crash when Guay picked it up at the watchmaker's apartment.

Ruest said Guay gave the detonator a trial, telephoned someone that "everything is ready" and then went away with the device.

Ruest said that before Guay's arrest, two weeks after the crash, Guay told him:

"You'd better watch out. If you say anything to the police about the work you did for me you'll have to deal with me."

Ruest testified under protection of the court. Nothing he said may be used as evidence against him in court proceedings. There are no charges against Ruest.

Defence counsel Gérard Levesque asked the witness questions intended to show that no third party could confirm his testimony that the work on the detonator was done on Guay's orders.

Will Remove Old Scow From Harbor

Trenton (Special) — Operations are underway to remove the old scow from Trenton harbor.

J. Vanalstine, local contractor said that various methods would be employed to find out just how the scow would be removed.

At present the scow is completely covered with solid ice. Saws and picks are being used to cut around the edge of it.

Mr. Vanalstine said that the scow had been there for a least 10 years.

Icy Roads Blamed

Damage to the amount of $225 was the result of an accident Saturday afternoon when Arthur W. Hayes, R.R. No. 4, Trenton, was sideswiped by a car owned by the Trenton Taxi Service and operated by Edward B. Carlson R. R. No. 2, Trenton. Hayes, who was proceeding west on Francis Street, made a left turn on to Dundas and was sideswiped by Carlson said he tried to stop but icy road conditions caused his car to skid.

Trenton's Mayor Enjoys Plane Trip

Mayor Kenneth Couch, of Trenton, took his first airplane ride during the weekend.

With personnel of the R.C.A.F. and a guest of Wing Commander Green, Trenton's chief official flew to Toronto across the lake to Buffalo and home over Niagara Falls.

"I think flying is wonderful," commented the mayor after the air trip.

Commons is not going to allow itself to be dominated or let its fate and future be decided by any small body of members."

Gives Sharp Retort

Liberal leader Clement Davies retorted tartly:

"I do not believe the leader of the opposition yet knows the election is over, judging from the speech to which we have just listened."

Davies said another election within the next three or four months would be "unthinkable". He asked why the Tories were rushing to challenge the government on the steel bill, since "no election matter can be undertaken until Jan. 1, 1951."

AFRICAN PRINCE

the objections of some of the elders, led by the tribe's regent, his uncle Tsheked I Khama. Tsheked I went into exile and the British government ordered an investigation to determine whether Seretse was "fit" to rule the tribe.

At the same time the governments of South Africa and Southern Rhodesia—both run on a strong policy of white supremacy urged Britain not to permit Seretse and his white wife to rule.

Seretse said he was told by Patrick Gordon-Walker, Commonwealth relations secretary, that Britain intends to rule his tribe directly and he is not to return.

"I maintain that it was because the British government wanted to appease (Prime Minister) Dr. Malan and keep the Union of South Africa in the Commonwealth, that they have done what they have," Seretse said.

Gordon-Walker called Seretse's statement "startling." There had been no official announcement of the government decision, but he said if one were to be made it would be made in the House of Commons.

Seretse said Gordon-Walker had offered him an allowance of £1,000 ($2,800) if he would live in Britain and give up his claim to the chieftainship. He had refused.

NOTED COMEDIAN DIES

Brookline, Mass., March 7 — (AP)—Lew Lehr, 54, famed for his newsreel comedies and his remark "monkeys is the cwaziest people", died Monday. Although known largely as a fat comedian with a pinpoint black moustache, whose forte was describing the movie antics of performing chimpanzees, Lehr was also a writer and editor of short subjects.

BAN OUTDOOR ADVERTISING SIGNS

Oshawa, March 7 — (CP) — Outdoor advertising signboards were banned by city council Monday night and no replacements can be made for old signs torn down. "They're an eyesore," said Ald. Sam Jackson.

MRS. PITRE

Pitre said the jeweller told her the parcel had a status in it and he wanted her to ship it on the morning plane for the St. Lawrence North Shore.

Hears of Plane Crash

On her return from the airport Mrs. Pitre went to a hotel but apparently but found him not there. During the afternoon, at a different place, she heard of the plane crash.

The witness said that a week after the plane crash Quay visited her and mentioned there was $1,000 insurance on Mrs. Quay.

The next day he called again and wanted to see Marie-Ange Robitaille.

At Mrs. Pitre's request the girl came to the Pitre apartment and in a bedroom held a 15-minute conversation with Guay. Mrs. Pitre heard only the words "21 years" and later, "six months." The waitress and Guay left together.

Early Sept. 19 Guay visited Mrs. Pitre and told her the newspapers had stories of a "mysterious parcel" having been taken by a woman to the Quebec airport on the day the death plane was wrecked, she testified. He suggested she might have some "bother" if police authorities started to question her.

Mrs. Pitre said she told Guay she had no idea why police should bother her and to this he suggested she should go away or destroy herself. She should turn on the gas or take sleeping pills. Says She Is Then Told of 'Bomb'

She said he then told her the parcel she carried to the airport Sept. 9 had a "bomb" in it.

Mrs. Pitre said Guay told her to leave a suicide note before she killed herself, saying that she had caused the plane wreck thinking Guay was aboard and because she owed him money.

Cross-examined by defence lawyer Gerard Levesque, Mrs. Pitre said Guay told her Sept. 19 the parcel contained a bomb. Her brother Jean Marie Dussel told the whole story to police.

Mrs. Pitre said she told police investigators Sept. 23 the parcel she took to the airport contained a statue.

Levesque asked why she didn't tell about Guay's statement that the parcel held a bomb and the woman said she wasn't asked whether there was a bomb in the parcel. Anyway, she was sick at the time.

Levesque asked whether Guay's visits weren't to collect money owed him.

"Not always," said Mrs. Pitre.

Levesque asked Mrs. Pitre if she was fired from her restaurant job Sept. 9.

"No, I gave notice."

"Did you say you'd trim the boat?"

"I may have said that."

"Do you go around trimming people?"

"I wouldn't say that."

Occasionally lawyer and witness shouted at each other. The court-room crowd laughed.

Nurse Recalls Sander Once Gave Own Blood to Patient

Manchester, N.H., March 7 — (AP) — A Harvard pathologist appearing for Dr. Hermann N. Sander testified today that intravenous injection of 40 cubic centimeters of air could not have killed Mrs. Abbie Borroto.

The 41-year-old Dr. Sander is on trial for murder on charges he killed the cancer-stricken woman by injecting that amount of air into her veins.

Dr. Richard Ford, head of the Department of Legal Medicine at Harvard, testified that between 200 and 300 c.c.s of air delivered within 25 second would be required to kill a human.

Dr. Ford said he was basing this estimate on findings that eight cubic centimeters for each were required to kill a dog.

2 1/5 pounds of body weight

Two state pathologists had testified for the prosecution they believed Mrs. Borroto died from air embolism caused by the injections.

The defence has argued that only between 25 and 28 c.c.s of air were injected into the cancer-wasted woman — and that she was already dead at the time.

Wife Takes Stand

Opening the morning session of the 12th day of the trial, Dr. Sander's wife, Alice, took the witness stand. The 37-year-old mother of three daughters wore a snug, brown pelt hat and grayish-brown tailored suit.

"I never wanted to marry a doctor," the 37-year-old mother of three said as she recalled her meeting and romance with Dr. Sander. As a trained nurse she knew that most doctors spent long hours at their work.

Mrs. Sanders was on the witness stand less than 10 minutes and was not cross-examined. She flashed a warm smile at the all-male jury from time to time.

Mrs. Sander said she met the young intern whom she later married when they worked at the same hospital. She said she admired him from the outset because he "respected the very poorest of his patients."

"He was very conscientious," she added.

Gertrude Morency, a registered nurse for 19 years, followed Mrs. Sander on the witness stand and described the accused doctor as a physician who "gave his own blood" to a patient.

"I administered him for doing it," the nurse said. "He was in no condition, but he told me 'she is not in more than I'."

The physician spent most of Monday on the witness stand. He freely admitted he injected air into Mrs. Abbie C. Borroto, 59, Dec. 4.

He insisted, however, that Mrs. Borroto was dead at the time. He described the air injection as "irrational" behavior and said it didn't make sense.

Mrs. Sander, a former nurse, listened to the doctor's every word. She didn't for an instant let her gaze fall from her husband.

Death Scene Described

The packed courtroom was completely silent when Dr. Sander described his death-bed scene in Mrs. Borroto's hospital room and said "she gave the appearance of a dead person, lying deathly quiet . . .

". . . I can't explain my actions . . . as I looked at her face and all the thoughts of the past went through my mind, something snapped, and why I did it I can't tell. It doesn't make sense . . .

"I never had any intention to kill Mrs. Borroto . . .

Throughout a vigorous cross-examination, he insisted:

"Mrs. Borroto was dead at the time of the air injections." His reason for giving the injections was: that something snapped in him, that "I was obsessed to do this."

SCRAPIRON DRUNK POWERFUL ANAESTHETIC

Troy, N.Y., March 7—(AP)—Robert Banks, 49 said he had been drinking "scrapiron" when he pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of public intoxication.

It is a mixture of sherry, rye and corn liquor, he explained.

Justice Thomas J. O'Connor suspended sentence, with the comment: "Modern medicine is always on the lookout for new and more powerful anaesthetics and I think you've developed one."

Canadiens Break Third-Place Tie With Rangers by Drawing With Detroit Red Wings 2-2

Montreal, March 7 —(CP) — Montreal Canadiens Monday night took undisputed possession of third place in National Hockey League standing by tieing Detroit Red Wings 2-2 in the only clash scheduled.

The one point The Habitants garnered broke a deadlock with New York Rangers.

In Monday night's tussle before 14,341 fans at Detroit, Marty Pavelich's third period goal saved "Sid Abel night" for the Red Wings.

Abel, popular team captain, was presented with an automobile by fans in a pre-game ceremony. The fans—sporting Red buttons marking "Sid Abel night" —were rewarded when the fiery veteran played bagged his 31st goal in the middle period.

Ted Lindsay, second youngest member of Detroit's ace attacking line, leads the scoring race with 20 goals and 43 assists for a total of 63 points. Lindsay was unable to pick up any points Monday night, but did add two minutes to his ever-increasing total of penalties.

Third in Penalties

The battling Renfrew, Ont.-born Detroiter is third in the penalty field. Chicago's Bill Gadsby has penalized himself with 124 minutes in the cooler, one minute more than Toronto's Bill Ezinicki. Lindsay follows with 120 minutes.

Abel's goals and 28 assists give him a strong hold on second-place in individual scoring with 59 points, three ahead of Gordie Howe who completes a Detroit three-man line at the top of the list with an even 28-28.

In fourth place is Boston's Paul Ronty with 23 goals and 31 assists having unseated Maurice (The Rocket) Richard of Montreal from that position during week-end games.

Richard continues to lead in the sniping division with 34 markers which added to his 19 assists give him a total of 53 points. Tied four points back are Metro Prystai of Chicago and teammate Doug Bentley.

Most penalized club is Toronto with 609 minutes in the hoosegow.

Durnan's Chances Good

Bill Durnan's chances for the Vezina Trophy don't seem compromised by his week's leave of absence with an injury.

The 38-year-old Montreal goal tender has been sidetracked since last Thursday when he suffered a deep cut above the left eye during a game against Chicago. Big Bill was operated on Monday night to drain the blood from the gash and club officials say he won't be back in the line-ups for at least a week.

Replacing Bill in the Habitants nets is Gerry McNeil of Cincinnati Mohawks, a Montreal farm club of the American Hockey League.

Durnan still leads the regular goalies in the league with 130 goals against in 58 games for an average of 2.24. Harry Lumley of Detroit is next with 12 goals in 53 games for a 2.32 average.

Toronto Marlies Eliminated From Junior A Race

(By The Canadian Press)

A highly-rated junior team was sidetracked from the Memorial Cup trails as Toronto Marlboros dropped from the Ontario Hockey Association junior A race.

Windsor Spitfires applied the finishing touches to the Dukes who led the nine-team loop all the way through the regular schedule, with a 7-4 victory. That gave the Spits their best-of-seven semi-final series by four games to one.

That reversed the picture of Spitfires' fate in the last two seasons. In 1948 and 1949 they came up with the league's solid club only to get belted out by lightly-regarded opposition.

At Barrie last night the home town Flyers pulled the surprise of the playoffs. Losers to Guelph Biltmores 5-0 in the opening game of their best-of-five semi-final series the Flyers bounced back last night and handed the Hatters a 6-0 lacing.

The opening game of the Senior "A" finals went as expected. Marlboros senior edition stayed off a last-period rally by the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen, came up with a 5-3 win to go a head of the Dutchies in semi-final finals for the senior crown.

Jack Bownass pulled the drive paid off against Marlboros. The big right winger, reputed to have a shot like a load of the great Charlie Conacher's fired two goals to lead the Spitfire scorers. Glen Skov and Earl Reibel of the first line came up with tallies.

Windsor Overcomes Lead

The Windsor crew overcame an early 2-1 Marlboro lead and drove into a 5-3 margin by the end of the second. Bob Goupee, Bob Rawlyk and Vic Howe were the other snipers. Victory had its drawback. Glen Skov retired late in the third period when cut on the back of the leg.

Red Mitchell, best Marlboro defender on the ice, picked up a goal to reward his efforts while Gerry Desmond, Lorne Price and Ron Hurst got the others.

Guelph and Barrie played a 0-0 stalemate in the opening frame but Barrie poured it on for three in the second and three in the final frame. The scoring porrer of Hap Emms' charges was well distributed with Reg Campbell, Mitt McCarthy, Jerry Toppazzini, Reil Brenzall, Stan Long and Doug Towers all blinking the red light.

There was no scoring in the first frame as the Waterloo crew but in the second the Dukes hopped into the Flyers' net and roared away in high gear, pounding in three goals without a Kitchener-Waterloo replay.

The Dutchmen opened the scoring in the third but the visitors whipped in two to sew up the issue before Kitchener-Waterloo finished off with their final two goals.

Bauer Boarded

Scotty Bauer, second in the scoring race in regular season, Don Rope, Flash Hollett, Bobby Hassard and Gord Hanigan spearheaded the Toronto attack, their singles fashioning the victory while Ted Grasser, Butch Martin and Harvey Jackson clicked for the losers.

Bobby Bauer—former centre of Boston Bruins famous National Hockey league Kitchener line was injured when he was boarded—checked in the second period. He didn't see third-frame action.

Gorgeous George, glamorous laddy of the wrestling ring, who sports a valet, perfume, marcelled hair, 100 dazzling silk robes, will appear in Belleville starting Thursday through Saturday. Gorgeous Georgie is appearing in the picture "Alias the Champ" with the Capitol Theatre and wrestling faithful of the city should not miss seeing this unusual departure from the usual beef-and-brawn buckaroos generally associated with the sport.

Three Members Of N.Y. Rovers On All-Stars

(By The Canadian Press)

Three members of the New York Rovers Monday were named on the first team of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League's all-star squad by the league's six coaches.

Landing on the first team are goalie Lorne Worsley of Montreal; right-wing Stan McLellan, a native of Copper Cliff, Ont.; and left wing Val Delory, the circuit's top scorer and a native of Toronto.

Other players selected are defencemen Harold Jackson of Toledo, Keith Tolton of Milwaukee and Bruce Mather, Boston.

Members of Grand Rapids, Mich. Rockets dominated the second team. Rockets on the second squad are defencemen Al Turner, a native of Saskatoon; centre Randy Ellis of Lindsay, Ont.; and right-winger Wib Gorman of Toronto. Others are Ivan Walmsley, Toledo goalie from Toronto; Al Yourkevich, Boston defenceman, and Herb Forster, Atlantic City left wing, formerly of Brockville, Ont.

Five young members of the St. Catharines club of the Ontario Junior A Hockey League will work out with Boston Bruins National Hockey League squad today at Boston's Arena.

They are wingers Jack (Mouse) McIntyre, Eiland O'Brien, Norman Cocoran, centre Connie Switzer and defenceman Gordie Byers. All are eligible to play at least three games with any professional club without losing their amateur standing.

It is likely that some or all of them will be turned over to Boston Olympics of the Eastern Hockey League for further seasoning. The youngsters became available for their pro tryouts when the St. Catharines Club was eliminated in its league playoffs.

At Exeter, N.H., brawling professional hockey players were censured Monday night for setting a poor example for college and schoolboy players.

Percy C. Rogers, retiring president of the Northern New England chapter of the Eastern Hockey Officials Association, said:

"The professionals still are setting a bad example for the amateurs by staging brawls and, to my regret, some of the early season college games in Boston open the professionals."

At Tucson, Ariz., Bob Lemon, 20 game winner for the last two seasons, Monday night signed his 1950 baseball contract with Cleveland Indians. He was the final member of the Tribe to sign. Terms of the contract were not announced. It is believed, however, that Lemon signed for an increase in his reported $30,000 salary of last year.

Kid Gavilan won a split 10-round decision over Philadelphia's Otis Graham Monday night at Philadelphia, Gavilan weighed 148 1-2, Graham 149 1-2.

William Guthrie, former American league baseball umpire, was found dead Monday in his Chicago hotel room. He was 64. Guthrie was classed as an American League umpire in 1933 after serving 15 years.

Alex Shibicky, former New York Rangers star, was signed Monday to a new two year contract as coach of Flin Flon, Man., Bombers in the Northern Junior Hockey League. He will also supervise the coaching of all minor hockey at Flin Flon. This season Shibicky coached the Bombers into the league finals.

Bob McFarlane Steals Thunder In Track Meet

Montreal, March 7 (CP)—Big Bob McFarlane of the University of Western Ontario Monday night stole practically all the thunder from the much-touted Joe Barry of Ireland in the Canadian Legion's fourth annual Dominion Indoor track championships here.

Barry won the Legion mile but McFarlane ran away with practically every race in site, scattering records as he went. He gained sweet revenge on Mal Whitfield of Dayton, O., brilliant United States middle-distance runner who holds the Olympic games 800-metres record.

Whitfield, a resident of Dayton O., Monday night ran against McFarlane in the 500 yards. When Whitfield won the Olympics 800-metre in London, England, in 1948, McFarlane didn't even qualify. But Monday night Bob ran the 500 in :59 seconds flat to break the old meet, Canadian indoor and provincial indoor open records.

McFarlane earlier had won the 1,000-yard race and, over a rest, helped brother Don, also a Canadian Olympic representative in 1948, and two runners from the London, Ont., University win the one mile relay.

Runs Careful Race

Barry, running under the colors of Ulysses, Philadelphia, took the mile in the slow time of 4:19.1 after running a careful race.

Horace Ashenfelter of Penn State Harriers second, close behind Barry; Bob Weaver of Syracuse University, New York, third; and T. Scheffler, Tufts College, Massachusetts, fourth.

All told, nine more events saw provincial or Canadian records fall at the Legion meet, witnessed by about 5,000 track fans. The Western relay team's 3:32.4 in the mile event toppled the Canadian and provincial native indoor marks of 3:33.0. Middlebury College, Vermont, finished second.

Two stars of the North Toronto Track Club finished behind McFarlane in the 1,000 yards. Gordon Haight was second and Art Taylor third.

Ferguson Wins

Another North Toronto ace, Rich Ferguson, took the junior mile in new record time of 4:26.5, clipping 13.4 seconds off the old mark.

Another meet record was set by Curtis Stone of Penn State in the two-mile open. He had a time of 9:14.4. R. Church of Syracuse University finished second and P. Dalton of Toronto West End Y. third. The old record was 9:28.3 and Stone also beat the Canadian native indoor and provincial indoor open and provincial open records of 1:02.7 and the meet record of 1:02.

Training Camp Briefs

(By The Associated Press)

All the Cleveland Indians, including pitcher Bob Lemon, were in the fold today at the Tucson, Ariz., training camp, signed contracts and all—but Orestes Minoso, the crackling Cuban was still missing from camp. Travelling Secretary Spud Goldstein now believes an airplane strike has delayed Minoso's departure from Cuba.

Ewell Blackwell pitched for 20 minutes Monday and then said, "My arm feels great, really great." And that sort of news wasn't at all displeasing to Manager Luke Sewell of Cincinnati Reds, in training at Tampa, Fla.

The lanky Blackwell is the right-handed pitcher with the trick delivery who baffled National League hitters in 1947 and then ran into trouble in 1948 and 1949 because of an arm ailment and a kidney operation.

At St. Petersburg Fred Sanford, Wally Hood and Don Johnson, in that order, will handle the pitching chores for New York Yankees next Saturday when the world champions meet St. Louis Cardinals in the first exhibition game. The title holders in Monday's drill and showed to advantage.

A castoff of New York Yankees and Washington Senators, Eddie Sawyer is pilot-in-chief problems of Philadelphia Phillies.

Manager Eddie Sawyer announced Monday at Clearwater he plans to use Mike Sandini as a starter exclusively, adding "He may be the pitcher I am looking for."

Candini, secured in a Draft from Oakland of the Pacific Coast League, kicked around with the two American League teams before he came to the Phillies.

Hoping to lick some of the Washington Senators' outfield problems, Manager Bucky Harris is putting his $70,000 rookie, Irvin Noren in centrefield.

While Harris watched, Noren drove five batting-practice homers out of the park Monday at Orlando, clearing the 15-foot right field wall, 350 feet from the plate, neatly.

"Even if Noren flops," Harris said, "I'll always believe he would have been a great ball player."

Many a game contract can be made by a very narrow margin. Like the duplicate tournament deal you see here:

NORTH
♠ J 10 4
♥ K 5
♦ K 10 7 4
♣ K Q 10 2

WEST
♠ A Q 8 7
♥ A Q 6 4

♣ J 9 5 4 3

SOUTH

♥ 10 7 3 2
♣ A 8

The bidding goes like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 S	Pass	2 C
Pass	2 H	Pass	3 D
Pass	3 NT	All Pass

Many believe the west hand looks too weak for an opening. But it has five tricks, among which are four high cards, of which two are sure. With two some length suits, bid the higher rank first.

It seems dangerous to make a two club response in east. But with two different length suits, first bid the longer. And east has enough tricks for more than one response.

Many believe west is too weak for the bid of three no-trump. But an uninterrupted chain of new suit takeouts forces for another round. Having notified east, rule pushes him into the no-trump game.

You cannot go through bridge in absolute safety. Realize this and you will have more respect for the rules that bring best results. And be a more dependable a partner you will be.

One rule applies in billions of hands. This one hangs on the extreme fringe. Do not expect borderlines to be bigdowns or easy.

Players of experience expect an occasional hand to be tough. Or go sour. To anticipate such a possibility it does not pay to break the rule. Too many higher contracts would be missed thereby.

In all cases where west reached the three no-trump game, north led club king. It won and a small club went to south ace. A heart was returned from south.

Can three no-trump be made? on it be defeated?

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 7 (AP) — The town has been buzzing with reports that Charlie Chaplin is spending $500,000 to improve his relations with the public. Now there appears a reason for the move—television.

At first, the Chaplin reports seemed like merely an attempt to get back into the good graces of the American press and public. But observers feel that the real reason is an attempt to cash in on the new medium.

There have been indications that the famed comic would like to follow the success of Hopalong Cassidy and release his old films to Video, thus creating a new and widespread audience.

Old Country Letter:
Ancient Rights-of-Way To be Re-Surveyed by Govt.

By NWLLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

"Footpaths in the sands of time" is parody Lord Lytton's in a couple of places "Silent Steal Away." Britain intends to bring them back.

The government had ordered a three-year survey of all ancient rights-of-way across the British countryside, and says that by November, 1952, all will be mapped.

Elder citizens throughout the land are refreshing their memories against the day when their recollections of thoroughfares lost since vanished will be canvassed and recorded in preparation of restoration.

The action is being taken under the national parks and access to the countryside act, passed by the last parliament. This law perhaps more than anything else he has accomplished, will keep Lewis Silkin, former minister of town and country planning, in British history books.

The program represents years of campaigning by Britain's "ramblers"—hikers who walk the countryside lands for the exercise and to do a bit to maintain the ancient rights-of-way.

Seven Kissless Years

Farmers, for example, whose fields were traversed by footpaths and whose fences were pierced by turnstiles or "kissing gates," tender to plow up the one and board up the others. Such activity was legal by tradition and if the farmer succeeded in keeping a right-of-way from being used for seven years it ceased to be one.

The Rambler Societies have long made it a practice to divide Britain's parishes among them and cover as many of the old routes as possible at least every other year, tearing down any obstacles barring them. It is about the only kind of unofficial property destruction thoroughly encouraged by tradition.

Silkin's act, which now is to be implemented, is a long overdue and says that all old right-of-way are to be charted and restored to use.

Parish councils throughout Britain must appoint committees to make surveys. They should "consult maps and records of enclosure awards, collect evidence from old inhabitants and walk over all reputed public ways in parishes. When the information is collected they could make maps showing footpaths, bridle roads, cart roads and lanes, driftways and metalled paths and in each condition of all tracks and paths, position and condition of all stiles, stepping stones, kissing gates, foot bridges and other means of passage and position and details of all obstructions and 'notice boards.'"

Most countries have already shown themselves hostile, but the ramblers are sanding by to inform on them if the law is not carried out. Other counties, such as Essex, enjoyed a surplus for four years before the law was enacted; he proposes to use 4,00 footpaths in rural districts.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

I was thinking to myself while I was getting reddy to start to begin my homework, and I said, Hay Pop, hay ma, how would it be if I had a newspaper route and delivered neople their newspapers every day? All I need is nonad people to let me go ahead and deliver their paper to them, said.

That's very little when you consider everything Columbus needed to deliver America to the Spannish authorities, pop said, so yourself a paper route is! ll means, he said, and ma said, think it's an excellent idea, Villiam. It would give him ample taist of what it means to ern his own spending money. Children shouldn't be encouraged to sit back and get the notion that their bread will always be buttered on both sides by an act of nature, she said.

That's a fact, pop said. When I was his age I never had a penny I didn't ern myself, and by golliee I dont know of any better way to appreciate the taist of copper, he said, and ma said, All the successful men of fact and fiction seem to of started out in life by delivering newspapers, so I think it's quite an encouragging sine. I wouldn't be serprised if Benny had been reeding up on the lives of grate men, she said.

Now about that, Benny? pop said, and I said, No sir, I've been watching our newspaper boy folding his papers and banging them against front doors. He can hit the door nob pritty near every time. Oh boy, he's got a better aim than a lot of baseball pitchers. I followed him a while and offered to throw some for him, but he wouldn't let me, so that proves how mutch fun it is He throws them so hard they bounce every which way, I said. The result being homework.

RAWDON

Two-by-Two Club Sponsors Enjoyable Oyster Supper

Rawdon —About 100 people recently enjoyed a delicious oyster supper in Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Church Hall, Tea tables were decorated with green and yellow streamers with lovely green-potted plants and bouquets of artificial flowers. All did justice to the oysters, cooled by Mr. John Morrison of Bethel community. The tables were laden with platters of meat, hot food, jellies and salads, and the meal was topped off with pie.

The event was sponsored by the "Two-by-Two Club" with the presidents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell in charge Several guests were in attendance from Stirling and nearby points.

On the following evening another supper was held at the hall with about the same number in attendance. The group cleared about $60 from the two evenings.

On the first night, the Marmora Women's Institute kitchen orchestra presented an interesting program on the stage of the hall which has been newly painted with vivid scenery. There were 24 ladies in the group all sporting kitchen loggery and wearing house dresses and aprons. The band was under supervision of the president, Mrs. E. Brady, with Mrs. Alex Fraser as pianist. The group presented an hour of music and singing with a repertoire of 25 numbers.

Miss Grace Warren, as narrator, told the story of Danny and Genevieve, which began with the founding of the orchestra, their travels to far away places, ending with a delightful honeymoon.

Interesting Program

In between the reading of the lines the orchestra played in splendid ,rhythm several selections such as 'Home on the Range "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "Jingle Bells," "Down by the Station," "Cruising Down the River on a Sunday Afternoon" and "The Church in the Wildwood." This was interspersed with community singing and a comic number "Where Has My Little Dog Gone?"

Mrs. Fred Wells and Mrs. Percy Grey sang "Dear Hearts and Gentle People." Mrs. L. B. Rundle contributed a vocal selection "I'll Walk Beside You." Mrs. Percy Grey and Clang "Galway Bay." Mrs. Lewis R. Green, a former resident of the 4th concession of Rawdon, presided at the drum and she and Mrs. Thomas Hanna rendered a vocal duet "Katy."

Mrs. J. Belanger was heard in "Those Far-Away Places". Miss Jennie Grey rendered "So Tired" and Mrs. Hugh Brady sang "A Little Bird Told Me."

The winsome bride, Miss Beverly Osborne and the equally attractive groom, Garry Belanger, climaxed the story and the performance closed with "Good Night Neighbors."

The pastor extended thanks to the group for their entertainment after which club members served refreshments to 34 Marmorites.

Stork Visits Ambulance In Below Zero Weather

A rather unusual story was told by Warrant Officer W. R. Dunlop of Camp Borden, Ont., who revealed that his wife gave birth to a baby son in a snowbound ambulance last week while the temperature hovered below zero. While driving to Allison for delivery, the ambulance became stuck in deep snow. Then in midst of confusion, Mrs. Dunlop called her husband and driver of ambulance, Pte. William Carter, to assist at birth of baby. When foursome finally got to hospital, two hours after the birth of baby son, it was found that neither mother nor son suffered any serious effects from delayment. —Central Press Canadian.

The recipient voiced thanks for the lovely gift and all enjoyed a social time together.

The ladies served refreshments. Personal

On Friday last a large number of Rawdon voters expressed their wish at the polls for or against the high school area at Mount Pleasant Hall the yea's were 133 and the no's 13.

HOOPER TRANSFERRED

Montreal, Mar. 7 (CP)—Headquarters of the Montreal Royals of the International Baseball league announced today that Clay Hopper next season will manage Saint Paul of the American Association and Waler Alston, manager of the Saints will lead Royals.

Hopper was the succesful leader of two pennant winners here and his team twice won the Little World Series for Montreal.

No reason for the shift was given except the club announcement which said, "in keeping with a policy of Branch Ricky, president of the Brooklyn baseball club, there will be a change in the field management of the Montreal baseball club during the 1950 season."

Marmora Takes First of Finals From Frankford

Marmora — At the Marmora Arena on Monday night Marmora won their game with Frankford by the score of 11-5 in the first of the final playoffs with that team. Lavender the right-winger for Marmora had four goals and assists to his credit. There were approximately 750 spectatory present to witness a good game of hockey. Stewart and Trumble, Lavender's mates on the first line were also in fine form, the former having two goals and four assists while K. Trumble got a single goal and two assists. The whole team functioned well.

Frankford started well and were only two goals in arrears at the end of the first period. Cooke got a neat trio of goals and Cole and Hood turned in fine games. Frankford's weakness seemed to be in the defence. But for some spectacular saves by Davis the score would have been greater against them, Borland in the home goal also made some clever saves. The ice was in fine condition. The second of the three out of five games to decide the championship will be played in Frankford on Wednesday evening and the third in Marmora on Friday.

Want Assurance

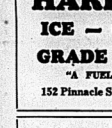
Opposition members asked assurance that persons making a down payment on a house would not lose their money through failure of a private contractor to fulfill his undertaking.

Mr. Frost said he would have "the strongest objections" to turning over improved land to "fly-by-night builders or incompetents." "It all boils down to a matter of good administration and business judgment."

Mr. Griesinger said in cases where the partners in the plan—the three levels of government—undertake to build the houses themselves they would sustain any loses incurred, not the prospective purchaser.

Education Minister Porter said elimination of high school entrance examination was designed to help bridge the psychological gap between elementary and high schools. Some students were unable to adjust to new conditions and new curricula in their first year of high school.

Opposition members said the examinations provided a yardstick of students' achievements and relieved teachers of the responsibility of deciding when a student should be promoted.



Provided Yardstick

C. H. Millard (CCF-York West) said entrance examinations at least provided some yardstick of the extent of a student's formal education.

"At least it proved he could read and write," he said.

Mr. Porter said the entrance certificate now was of little value to a student seeking employment and the only worthwhile criterion of his formal education was matriculation certificates.

C. H. Taylor (CCF-Timiskaming) said elimination of entrance certificates left the responsibility for deciding promotion on the teacher. In many cases in rural areas "where the teacher probably the aunt of half children of the district" the would mean children would be promoted to high schools they were not capable of doing more advanced work, would force their high school year as cause the community a great deal of expense.

Faith Baldwin

"Not lost, Aunt Cordelia."

"Yes. It should always have been Chris of course, but wouldn't let it be. It's too late now. I can't even return to the uncomplicated affection I might have felt for him when he was a child, because it was never uncomplicated, you see. Nor can he feel about me as once he felt. . . .I know how he felt now, I knew it when he said 'It was you' ings, Jack. Whatever you said could make no difference. He recognized Chris' sincerity, he was willing to give him a chance."

"It was foolish, I admit." He leaned across the desk. "Maybe I believed I had your best interests at heart."

"I doubt that. Jack, I'm meeting Lilla at her mother's for luncheon, and then she'll take me to your mother's, where I'll stay for a while. Dr. Kalen's wife is taking him to town, she'll call for me at teatime. When I see Aunt Cordelia I'll ask if she and Lilla will come to dinner Saturday night. I'm asking you now. It's my first real party. I'm not much of a cook, though I'm learning, and Mrs. Kalen is lending me her Kauze for the evening. She and the doctor will be there, Lilla and Alec, and the Langers are coming."

Kurt Langer was the plantation manager, and Jack remarked thoughtfully "you catch on fast don't you?"

She said mildly, "for some time I was my father's hostess. It isn't hard now, in different circumstances. For everyone is extraordinarily kind."

She understand that Alec undertook a mission for you when he went to San Francisco back in March.

"He sold my emerald ring, yes, and at a good price," answered Terry. She repressed the quick rise of anger. "Although I have no idea how you knew. Not that it was a secret. It's pleasant not to have secrets."

"I overheard a conversation between my mother and father, quite inadvertently."

"It doesn't matter." She straightened her shoulders. "Jack, Chris doesn't know I've come here. He wouldn't like it, if you want to tell him in order to create a disturbance, that's up to you. But for some time I've wanted to ask you to do something for me."

He said irrelantly, "you're a very pretty woman, Terry."

"If that could be of any influence, thank you," she said, unsmiling. "You will listen?"

"For five minutes," he agreed. She said "I want to ask. No. I'll say it more strongly. I want to implore you to put nothing in Chris' way."

He interrupted. "I? But how foolish! Chris has his rights under the Mannering banner, so to speak."

"Mannering or Russell, what does it matter? You're all in this together. You can make trouble for him if you wish, as I suppose you've always wished—you were here, another there, a half-truth a reminder, a prophecy. These days I travel, they reach the right—or wrong—ears. As of now Mr. Mannering is very pleased with Chris He works hard. . .

"A timekeeper, I believe," said Jack politely.

"Yes, Chris is a timekeeper, which you know. And he is well liked." Terry would one hand in the other hard. She had not expected this to be easy. It wasn't. "Jack, whether you admit it or not, Chris has one great gift; the gift of friendliness, of understanding of clear thinking where people are concerned—"

"Since when?"

"Since always. Oh, not in relation to himself and his family, very few have that. But in relation to strangers and to the people with whom he works. Then men like him. There is a future for him here, and has been promised it eventually."

"Eventually."

"To confide in you seems the height of folly, but I must risk it. Mr. Mannering has promised that after a time Chris will go into public relations, into personnel work. It is the place for him and he earns it. I think he will. Nothing is more important than the relationship between labor and management. He has a goal to reach. Your mother sees this and your father is beginning to, and would do nothing to jeopardize it. On the contrary, I believe he will do all he can to help. The whole dreary business of our coming here and what happened afterward was a shock to him; and a greater shock came when Chris refused the offer of assistance and went to Mr. Mannering."

"Kind offices of my mother," said Jack.

She went on, without replying directly, "But he, at least, did not remind Mr. Mannering of Chris' sins of omission or commission. I think he is rather proud of Chris now."

"Am I supposed to be?"

She said "you're being very difficult. Why?"

"It goes far back. Why should it be made easy for him? Chris always had everything."

She said softly, "of course, I remember. He beat you at games, and Lilla fell in love with him."

"Kid stuff," he said quickly; "that isn't it at all." He looked at her, frowning. "What went wrong with me anyway?" he asked, "I work my head off, I am presentable as most men, I don't drink too much too often—yet I walk into a room where your husband sits and feel like a kid with a bloody nose."

She said "I don't think there's anything wrong with you, Jack, and what's in him, feeling for the first time a sense of compassion, I suspect that you once were a kid with a bloody nose and your mother probably said it served you right if the fight was fair. Which I suppose it always was. As for Lilla, you haven't forgiven her either, although you are no longer in love with her, any more than she is in you."

"I was hoping he was, when you came here. I couldn't tell."

"But he wasn't. He's very fond of her and so am I. He would go to any lengths to help or protect her, as you would if she asked you."

He brought his fist down on the desk and she jumped. He said, "but she didn't ask me, damn it!"

Terry's eyes widened. "So stats it too," she said. How did you—" She caught herself up in time and was silent.

Eskimo Boy Under Treatment

Halifax, March 7 — (CP) — Everybody seems to be concentrating today on building up the strength of Kaoona, a 15-year-old Eskimo boy, suffering from gangrene.

He was flown here Sunday from Clyde River, on the east coast of Baffin Land, after an RCAF Lancaster made a landing on a frozen river.

The four-engine bomber flew nearly 1,800 miles from Greenwood, N.S., to Clyde River, 750 miles inside the Arctic Circle, to get Dr. W. H. D. McLeish of Hamilton, a wartime bomber pilot, brought the heavy bomber down on ice with a thin coating of snow. RCAF officials said they believed it was the first time a wheel-equipped aircraft of that weight had landed successfully on ice.

Kaoona was suffering from malnutrition and a gangrene infection in his feet. He was taken to the R. C. N. hospital here and doctors said they must first build up the boy's strength before deciding whether they must amputate his feet.

GOOD NEIGHBOUR POLICY

Hanging out my laundry I noticed that Mrs. Lavender, next door, was whiter. I couldn't help asking her why. "Reckitt's Blue keeps out that yellow tinge', she said. 'Just swish it through the final rinse'. You can only obtain pure white with blue, and you don't take chances with anything that can damage fabric." That's what I call good neighbourliness and good advice. It's Reckitt's Blue for me from now on, particularly as it costs so little.

Toronto, March 7—(CP)—Ontario spent $68,600,000 on highway construction and maintenance and grants to municipalities in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1949, the Highways Department reported Monday.

In a report tabled in the legislature the department said revenue from all sources amounted to $68,300,000.

New Pavement surface of various types laid in 340 miles of gravel roads and 168 miles of bituminous cover was laid on old pavements. Five hundred miles of road were graded. More than 470,000 tons of sand and 40,000 tons of chemical was used to eliminate icy conditions.

Subsidies for municipal road improvement were almost $16,800,000, compared with $14,800,000 in the preceding year. Revenue from the motor vehicles branch was approximately $13,000,000. Some 870,000 vehicles were registered, including 158,000 commercial vehicles. Drivers licensed number 1,200,000.

Seven-hundred and forty persons were killed and 14,970 injured in highway accidents.

Wife, Spanked With Hairbrush, Awarded Divorce

London, March 7 (CP) — A former R.A.F. wing-commander who spanked his wife with a hairbrush was described in divorce court as "altogether unsuited to married life."

Mrs. Evelyn Gifkins of London was granted a divorce on the ground of cruelty by her husband, Arthur Gifkins of Hertford.

"This is a typical example of wartime marriage, for which so many have ended in this court," said Judge Bush James.

During a quarrel it was said that Mrs. Grifkins locked herself in the bathroom in an attempt to find an address which she thought was in her husband's wallet. The husband was left outside the bathroom in his pants.

Later, it was said he seized his wife and spanked her with a hairbrush.

"I think he may have had some cause to exasperation," the judge said, "but there was not the slightest justification for setting about her in such a savage way."

Temperature up 85 Deg. in 2 Days At Sudbury

Sudbury, March 7 — (CP)— Near-record cold and near-record mildness followed within little more than 48 hours of each other when the mercury shot up to 43 degrees on Sunday after a 42-below-zero reading had been registered Friday morning.

Friday's temperature was the lowest in Sudbury for several years, while Sunday's high was the warmest March 5 since 1922. It was the first time the temperature had topped the freezing mark in three weeks.

The mild weather was shortlived, however. A low of four below was recorded Sunday night and a high of 15 above was predicted for Monday.

LIVELY DEBATE EXPECTED ON NEW LABOR CODE

Toronto, March 8. (CP)—Ontario's new labor code will be presented to the legislature today for second reading and opposition members have indicated they will make a lively debate of it.

C.C.F. members have objected to one clause providing for transfer to the Labor Relations Boards of Power to decide whether a conciliation board is warranted in a labor dispute. This power was held by the Minister of Labor in the old act. Another clause likely to encounter opposition provides that the Labor Board may deny its services to a parent labor federation if one of its unions engage in an illegal strike.

The opposition attack is expected to be led by Eamon Park (P-Toronto Dovercourt).

Six speakers were heard Tuesday in continued debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. Another 30 have indicated they wish to speak.

Liberal Members Will Not Support Conservatives

By ALAN HARVEY

London, March 8—(CP)—The Labor-sponsored Tuesday spurned a proposal by Winston Churchill that Nationalization of the steel industry be postponed until at least nine months after the next general election.

Herbert Morrison Deputy Prime Minister, rejected the new motion by the Conservative leader as "a quaint idea".

Churchill said the Conservatives would withdraw their amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne "regretting" no mention was made of the steel issue if Labor agreed to his suggestion.

Liberal Leader Clement Davies indicated his group of nine members will not support the Conservative amendment, scheduled for a vote Thursday.

Thus it appears likely that Labor will be able to muster its full voting power in the House of Commons, where it has a majority of seven.

Note of Bitterness

Morrison and Churchill— two old parliamentary antagonists—injected a note of bitterness into the debate. When the Deputy Prime Minister accused Churchill of predicting a further devaluation of the pound, the Conservative leader was raised to visible anger.

"Member of the new Parliament and heard a Conservative bid for parliamentary committee on electoral reform, a Liberal call for three-power peace talks and a renewed bid for election claims by rival parties.

Churchill said the Conservatives would not press their amendment if the Government will give the assurance that the position of the steel industry will not be worsened because of the present deadlock or by it indefinite prolongation.

The Government could do this by giving a definite assurance that the vesting date for the steel takeover—established Tuesday as 1953—should be nine months after the next general election, whenever that may be, Churchill said.

Many expect a new election to begin the next 12 months because Labor's slim majority.

Davies, irked at Churchill attack on his small band, said he saw no purpose Churchill's proposal, and added that another election within three or four months would be "unthinkable."

RECOGNITION OF CHINA'S REGIME SPARKS DEBATE:

Pearson and Drew Agree on Some Points

Ottawa, March 8 — (CP) —The perplexing, confusing question of recognition of—or when or how —Canada should recognize the Communist regime in China came before the Commons Tuesday.

In a debate repetitious of one which took place last Friday, External Affairs Minister Pearson and opposition leader George Drew traded thoughts on the question. They found some common ground and some areas of disagreement.

Mr. Pearson denied some of the things the Progressive Conservative leader had said last Friday about the Prime Minister's first statement on the question. Mr. Drew corrected some of the impressions he said Mr. Pearson had conveyed Tuesday about his own position on last Friday.

When the air cleared after a five-hour talk-fest, the party views emerged:

1. Mr. Drew still feels the government should move cautiously on the question of recognition. Mr. Pearson says the government is doing just that; the matter is before the cabinet and it wants to hear what the people's representatives think of it.

Says Reds May Have 'Death Ray' Weapon

London, March 8 — (AP) — Kennedn De Courcy, editor of a magazine called Intelligence Digest, hinted Tuesday that the Russians may be experimenting with that favorite of science-fiction writers — the "death ray" weapon. De Courcy, who claims with China a five time battle, said his informant described the new weapon as "a form of heat ray believed to penetrate anything known upon this planet. He gave no details.

rates were permitted.

After 70 years in business the greatest of the "small security small" surplus of $12,500,000 at the beginning of 1949 to help maintain its credit it had to depete this surplus by $5,000,000 during the year.

Within the next three years Mr. Brais said the new money would have to be obtained from Canadian investors to finance a "normal expansion" program of $232,000,000.

Both Mr. Brais on its affairs and to meet its additional obligations, the company must obtain additional revenue "by an increase in rates," said Mr. Brais.

$24,000,000 Increase

The increase applied for was about $24,000,000 which represented an increase of 20.6 per cent.

Mr. Carroll said the board should be more interested in Bell's overall economic condition than in the hypothetical situation which might arise in the future.

Bell has never had a deficit. The company has continued to about having to make up its deficits by using money from surpluses. "That's what a surplus is for," said Mr. Carroll.

50-Foot Sea-Monster 'Cadborosaurus' Reported Seen Again on West Coast

Vancouver, March 8 (CP) — A rash of reports of sea monsters—a sure sign of spring on Canada's West Coast—has broken out.

Cadborosaurus, the monster Victoria claims as its own, reared its ugly head twice Tuesday, reports said, in sectors so widely separated it did not vie with the rest of the legends about him.

Wide-eyed observers at Qualicum Beach, on Vancouver Island's East Coast, noted caddy. At Tofino, on the west side, he was being observed in some detail at the same time.

Gwen Coleman and Bryan Tigle of Port Alberni thus described the Tofino visit:

Gardiner Gives Assurance No Loss to Butter Trade If Govt. Stock is Bought

Ottawa, March 8 — (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner today assured the butter trade that if it bought more butter from the government it would be assured against loss which may result from possible price change.

He announced that while price change in government butter may not be made before the end of March, the trade "would be protected against loss" if the government decides to cut its prices.

The guarantee against loss is only good on stocks of butter purchased from the government's current surpluses of between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000 pounds. It is being offered to the trade in carload lots at 61½ cents a pound.

A departmental official indicated that the guarantee against loss is being offered as an added inducement to the trade which is showing little inclination in the last few weeks to buy government butter.

Lower Prices Anticipated

Lower prices were anticipated within a few months as a result of the government's policy:

1. To offer 10,000,000 pounds of butter on the market at those prices which may range below the current domestic level.

2. To reduce the support price five or six cents by a move on the new butter-producing season starts in April.

Mr. Gardiner, in effect, indicated that if lower prices result, those in the butter trade holding stocks of government butter at the end of the month would be paid the difference between what they paid for the butter and what they could get for it.

Thus, a trader buying government butter at 60½ cents a pound and selling it, eventually, say, at 50 cents, would be able to bill the government for the 10½-cent loss a pound.

Charged to Treasury

The loss, of course, would be charged to the Federal Treasury.

Nearing the end of its first season in the butter business, the government is holding huge stocks. It purchased about 90,000,000 pounds from the farmers last year as a means of supporting the butter market at approximately 61 cents a pound.

Estimating that its cost of storage and shipping to customers would cost about 3½ cents a pound, the government fixed its selling price at about 60½ cents, offering the butter to anyone who would buy it in carload lots. So far, it is about 60% cents. October, it has sold only about half of the total holdings. Dairy experts have estimated that the government still will have about 40,000,000 pounds on hand when the new butter season starts in April.

The experts believe that Canada can market this in part more than 40 cents a pound on the foreign market for its butter.

Should there be a sharp loss to the federal treasury.

Threat Provides Backdrop For Resumed Peace Talks On Strike Lasting 43 Days

Detroit, March 8 — (AP) — The United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) today turned down a $1,000,000 loan offered by John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers to help finance the Chrysler strike which started 43 days ago.

At the same time, however, the U. A. W. told Lewis it would be happy to accept any voluntary contribution you or your organization may wish to make" to the Chrysler strike fund.

As peace talks with the company resumed today, the U. A. W. threatened to call a general strike of each day the strike continues. About 140,000 persons have been made idle by the dispute, 89,000 of them directly.

The estimated 20,000 strikers turned out Tuesday to hear their leaders report on the long and fruitless negotiations to date.

Walter Reuther, United Automobile Workers Union (C. I. O.) president and head union negotiator, announced the arrival of a man meeting with this declaration:

The longer the strike lasts (he officials) hold off, the more it is going to cost them in the settle." He and other U.A.W. leaders said Chrysler has not come before the U.A.W. bargaining committee (including social security) with a single new money offer.

That was the amount set in the union's pension demand. The battle has been over a pension and financing of a pension plan.

The U.A.W. has insisted that a specific number of cents per set aside each hour and for each hour worked by its members. The company has refused to share in operating the plan.

Chrysler wants to put the pension out of operating revenue, without funding the money.

"We want the money in the bank," Reuther explained.

The U.A.W. pension plan is a $200 a month pension, Reuther said. But he indicated a better might take years to achieve.

Emil Mazey, U.A.W. secretary-treasurer, said the strike has $372,250 to date. Local unions have spent thousands of dollars in addition.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Synopsis: Showers were reported in most of southern Ontario and Manitoba Tuesday night, while snow in the northwest states caused close to blizzard conditions in Northern Ontario and severe blizzards in the states to the west of Lake Michigan.

The disturbance responsible for this blustery weather is moving northeastward through the Great Lakes district and will enter Southwestern Quebec today.

Asks Big Four Foreign Ministers Over China

New York, March 8—(AP) The New York Times says today that U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie has urged the Big Four to find a compromise settlement of the deadlock over admission of China's representation to the United Nations.

Russia and her satellites have walked out of the U.N. meetings in which representatives of nationalist China participate. They insist that the Chinese Communists now speaks for China.

The report by James Reston of the Times' Washington Bureau says Lie has circulated a private memorandum to the governments of Britain, the United States, France and Russia suggesting their member countries outlining a tentative basis for a compromise.

Lie was also said to have discussed with U.S. officials the possibility of calling another top foreign secretaries of all states in the Security Council for a special meeting to thrash out "a number of questions dividing east and west."

The United States has not recognized the Chinese Communist regime but five other members of the Security Council—Britain, Russia, India, Yugoslavia, and Norway—have extended recognition.

The Times says another proposal is expected the point that a country's policy of diplomatic recognition should determine its attitude toward the representation in the United Nations.

THANKLESS JOB

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott said Tuesday night the thankless job of budget is "a long, wearisome, tedious, thankless job." In a speech to the University Liberal Club there he explained how the budgets are made, and, in passing, gave any hints as to what's in the 1950 budget, soon to be brought down in parliament.

HEALTH MINISTER'S CONDITION IMPROVING

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— The condition of Health Minister Kelley, who suffered a stroke about a month ago, is showing slow improvement.

Relatives here said today, however, that the 72-year-old Cabinet Minister's condition remains serious.

Mr. Kelley, Progressive Conservative member for Hamilton-Wentworth in the Ontario legislature, is in hospital in Hamilton. The stroke was his second within a year.

WINTER-WEARY MIDWEST REELS UNDER BLIZZARD

Snow, Sleet, Gales Head for Lake Michigan

Chicago, March 8 (AP)— The winter-weary midwestern United States reeled today from another round of crippling climatic blows.

Snows, sleet, gales and blizzards whipped over areas from the northern plains into Iowa and headd for Lake Michigan.

Hundreds of towns were isolated with business nearly paralyzed. Highway travel was virtually halted in many areas. Scores of schools were closed. Many motorists and some school children were stranded in parts of the blizzard belt.

Communication service was knocked out over most of North Dakota and parts of South Dakota, Nebraska and Minnesota. Amateur radio and telephone operators were ready to handle emergency messages if they should have to use outside telephone and telegraph communication.

Snow blanketed across the midwest prairie lands at velocities from 35 to 65 miles an hour, with gusts up to 83 and as high as 100 M.P.H.

The storm's most devastating blows landed with telling effects over the Dakotas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

Snow accompanied the blizzards throughout Eastern Nebraska, eastern South Dakota, western Iowa and Minnesota.

The blustery weather is moving northeastward through the Great Lakes region and will enter southwestern Quebec tonight, the weathermen predicted. Snow flurries in Southern and Central Ontario will plummet and snow will prevail in the north.

Ontario's bad weather is the tail-end of a storm which has ripped through the United States from the Canadian border to the Rio Grande with winds up to 100 miles an hour bringing blizzards to some regions and dust to others.

Storm Tie-up at Port Arthur

Port Arthur — (CP) — This city and district was cut off itself out today after the worst storm of the winter. Many residents called it one of the worst in years.

City and district roads today were still dotted, by stranded automobiles and trucks.

Hundreds of workers at paper mills and other industrial plants were marooned when the storm hit home after spending the night at their jobs. Many were not able to reach home at the end of shifts during the night. Most kept on their feet — for April 1 hopes to leave London by air on or about that date.

Winds reached hurricane force in the open country.

The blizzard opened a 1 1-4-mile wide gap in the road, the McCutcheon farm and a main road, then a Highway Department plow, one of two in the automobile carrying the baby.

15 Persons Killed As U.S. Airliner Crashes Into House

Believed Craft Struck Pole Trying to Land in Snow

Minneapolis, March 8 — (AP) — A Northwest Airlines plane, roaring through a blinding March blizzard, crashed and exploded Tuesday night, converting a Minneapolis home into a blazing funeral pyre for 15 persons.

The plane carried 10 passengers and a crew of three.

Two children, watching television in the home at the time, were also trapped in the flaming inferno which spouted from the plane's hundred gasoline tanks.

Originating at Washington, D. C., the aircraft made stops at Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit and Milton, Wis. It was scheduled to set down at Rochester, Minn., but that landing was prevented by the heavy weather and the craft was ordered into Minneapolis.

Northwest Airlines said the plane would not be conceded its Winnipeg via Fargo and Grand Forks, N. D. but later information from Northwest Indicated the Winnipeg flight was cancelled some hours before the crash.

An incomplete passenger list showed no Canadians aboard the ill-fated craft.

Palace Official Cannot Confirm Or Deny Rumors

London, March 8 — (Reuters) — A Buckingham Palace official today shrugged his shoulders wearily when asked about reports that Princess Elizabeth was expecting her second child in August.

He said: "I can give you no information whatsoever. At least once a fortnight I am asked if Princess Elizabeth is having a baby and each time I am only obliged to say that I know nothing whatsoever, because I don't."

Rumors persisted throughout London that Elizabeth and Prince Charles would soon have a brother or sister.

Buckingham Palace announced five months before Prince Charles was born that Princess was having a baby. But the announcement came only after rumors had been circulating for three months that she was pregnant.

Princess Elizabeth, who looks well, is making plans to fly to join the Duke of Edinburgh — now serving with the Mediterranean fleet — for April. He hopes to leave London by air on or about that date.

HORSE MEAT SEIZED

Houston, Texas, March 8 (AP) — Seizures of thousands of pounds of horse meat were ordered to resemble choice beef tenderloin were announced in Dallas and Houston Tuesday. R. S. Sutherland, state commissioner, said 3,000 pounds of a 5,000-pound horse-meat shipment to Houston had been sold to restaurants here before city inspectors discovered it.

Claims He is Sane, Allowed to Quiz Psychiatrist Who Says He's Insane

New York, March 8. (AP)— Finding that Frederick Loeb, 39, a wealthy Montreal contractor, who claims he is "The Messiah" has drawn upon the wisdom of the Bible during a psychiatric test, argument that he is in his right mind.

A psychiatrist says the man is insane—a delusion which may send him to a hospital instead of the chair.

If the defendant wins his argument that he is sane, he faces a death sentence for murder.

The arguments—and particularly the questioning of witnesses—produced a novel legal question.

In an unusual court move, Lewis Wolfe was permitted Tuesday to try to prove his sanity by cross-examining a psychiatrist, who had declared him insane.

For 2 1-2 hours, Wolfe questioned the psychiatrist about psychiatry, psychology, the Bible and various metaphysical questions. He backed up his arguments with quotations from great thinkers of the ages.

When the session ended, Judge Louis Goldstein ordered the appearance of two other psychiatrists to examine Wolfe, and adjourned the case to March 16.

If the 39-year-old convicted of first-degree murder in the fatal beating of his Viennese actress wife with a steel-tipped shoe cane, he confessed infidelity. Adjudged insane, he was committed to Matteawan State hospital. He was released as sane early last month and brought before Goldstein to be sentenced.

(Under New York State law, a person sentenced to death for murder but adjudged insane must be resentenced to death if he is later reported cured.)

But when Wolfe declared in court that he was "The Messiah" the judge ordered further mental tests.

In court Tuesday, Dr. Solon C. Wolff, assistant director at Matteawan, testified the convicted man was sane when released, February 9, but is insane now.

CIVILIAN DRAFT ORDER ISSUED TO AVERT STRIKE

Paris, March 8 (AP)— Premier George Bidault's government today ordered the draft of 100,000 public utility workers to avert a country wide gas and electricity stoppage threatening on the eve of France's worst strike wave in three years.

The civilian draft order—to be served upon the workers by gendarmes—makes those who refuse to work subject to loss of their jobs, fines ranging from six days to five years in jail.

Both communist and non-communist unions in the Nationalized industry voted to strike at midnight (6 p.m. EST) to back up their demands for wage increases totalling 20 to 25 per cent francs ($2 to $17).

The utility strike loomed on the third day of a transportation strike which has muddled the Paris subway, bus and interstate system. Non-communist unions, however, have been predicting the communist-called transportation strike and service was slowly returning to normal.

Some 300,000 of the country's 1,300,000 government workers were idle throughout France and automobile factories were hard hit by a walkout.

About 16,500 workers went on strike in the textile industry in Lille.

At Nancy, Marseille and Clermont-Ferrand, trolley car workers were on strike.

Throughout the country several thousand insurance company employees also went on strike.

The communist-led, confederation Generale du Travail ir directing a strike among coal miners in Northern France.

BULLDOZER PLOWS OPEN WAY

Wiarton March 8 (CP)—Billie Cutcheon, 4, was snowbound when she was brought here over 20 miles of drifted roads behind a bulldozer and a snowplow, is making good progress in his fight against pneumonia.

FEW BOUNTIES PAID ON WOLVES

Wolves, apparently, have lost their taste for Hastings County meals. According to County treasurer Wm. Bailey, only four pelts have been submitted to his office for bounty in 1950. This is a marked decrease over figures of the last few years.

FISHING THROUGH ICE NOT TOO PROFITABLE

Fishing through the ice of the Belleville Bay has not been too profitable this year according to a citizen with 50 years experience.

The perch, usually abundant in the winter time are just not biting, while the pickerel have not been hitting with the same zest as other years.

Too much natural food in the water is given as the reason why the fish are not satisfying the fishermen.

Add embarrassing moments—He came out of the Liquor Control Board store on Bridge Street yesterday afternoon, clutching a small bottle of cheer. He looked up and down the street but could not see a streetcar. Then he remembered, literally. He slipped and fell. The "cheer" skidded along the pavement and came, to rest against a pole—unbroken. He heaved a sigh of relief, hurriedly retrieved the "crock" and strode away, slightly pink of face.

Reviews Half-Century of Ice Cutting

Much of the Heavy Labor of Storing Ice Has Been Eased by Power Devices

The evolution of ice harvesting in the city was recalled yesterday by Maurice Bellamy who claims to be the oldest living ice cutter in the city and district.

For 20 consecutive years Bellamy has been cutting and storing ice and his father before him started the business three decades earlier when the methods employed were crude. Just as farming today would be to farming today.

Mr. Callaghan first remembers when ice was cut by hand by men who were tough and would work even in the bleakest storm.

Devised Mechanical Loader

It was Mr. Callaghan's father who was responsible for the mechanical equipment known as the elevator which has taken most of the backaches out of loading ice. The ice is take-off from an ordinary motor truck then hauled by conveyor placing the 250-pound cakes up on the truck platform from the slui[illegible] operation with a pole steers the huge cake into the cage of the elevator and by the pressure of the foot.

With the elevator a regulation ice house is covered in a little over five minutes. In the early days the ice was cut by sluggling and a considerably longer time to load a horse sleigh.

Before the power saws were utilized, ice was cut by plows and saws. The horse-drawn plow resembling the farmer's implement first marked out the area to be harvested then by being drawn back and forth in the same direction five or six times cut out the cakes with a great deal of strength. Saws then were employed to separate the cakes in sizes that could be handled.

Shorter Storing Period

Today with power equipment the harvest lasts only days compared to weeks a half a century back. In some of the modern plants conveyors besides sliding the cakes from the water to the truck carry them into the ice-house where they are packed away for summer use. The handiwork work has been lightened all around.

Down the years, the marketing of the product has improved says Mr. Callaghan who foresees a continued market for natural ice in face of the introduction of artificial ice plants.

Local markets opened up when hotels, restaurants and many private residences installed their own private ice houses as icemen provided many services. In the early days what is known as a 25 pound cake of ice retailed at 30 cents. Today the same weight brings 25 cents or a dollar buys five pieces.

Mr. Callaghan has always been able to fill his ice house. One year he was put[illegible] when mild weather held back the cut until March 30. The first week in March he related there was only a half tier packed but a sudden change in the weather permitted reaping the rest of the pack. He admitted he was really surprised that time.

Mr. Callaghan has cut ice as early as June Christmas and as late as the end of March.

Loves Water Sports

Known everywhere for his association with the ice business Mr. Callaghan practically grew up in a sail boat and through his efforts played a big part in promoting the water sport in the city and last fall was elected and reated in the city. Two sons, John and Jack are associated with their father in the ice business while Thomas the youngest is attending C.I. Sentinel at Woodstock. Catherine the oldest daughter is a graduate nurse in the city and her sister Theresa attends a convent at Combermere near Maynooth.

He announced a number of broadcasts that will be held all this week in which a different phase of education will be dealt with at each broadcast. The speaker dealt with the principles of education, its evolution and outlined how teaching had changed during the years. He admitted that children of yesteryears were not dull just inexperienced and it was necessary that the teacher guide and direct the child into new fields. They were not as stated that a child should be taught to work out a fact to a conclusion and in a witty way showed how this could be accomplished. The thanks of the club was expressed by Frank Harback. Taylor Franklin presided at the luncheon with Vic White as song leader and Phil Huddleston at the piano.

St. Lawrence Contracting Company Awarded Contract For Public School at $242,915

The St. Lawrence Contracting Company of Belleville has been awarded the contract for the construction of the new public school to be built on the east end of the city it was announced yesterday by the local board of education.

Contract price for the construction of the school is $242,915 which includes the cost of the school including architect's fee, school equipment, landscaping and other incidentals totalling $293,100. Tentative approval by the Ontario Department of Education has been given for an estimated $210,000, with approval of the Ontario Municipal Board received for $300,000 for debentures.

Three Meetings Held

Three meetings were held by the board of education before the contract for the school was awarded. Tenders had already submitted tenders with seven of these being considered by the board. The tender accepted was second lowest, the lowest being that of the Belleville Construction Company of Picton, whose figure was $239,000.

In announcing the awarding of the contract Mr. Enos David, chairman of the board, stated that he felt the board had acted in the best interests of the taxpayer in accepting the second lowest tender. W. A. Watson, local architect, has been given the new one-storey school and will supervise the construction.

Opened Night Received

Tenders for the construction of the new school were called to be in the office of the architect by Feb. 24 and were opened the same evening. However, no action was taken at this meeting attended by chairman of the board, Enos David and members, Wilkin, Geen Seldon, Campbell, Wishart and Miss J. Thompson.

The board met again the following day with David, Wilkin, Seldon, Campbell, Wishart and Miss Thompson present and a telegram was forwarded to the McFarland Construction stating their tender was too low and allowing the privilege of withdrawing.

Again the meeting adjourned with no action having been taken with respect to various tenders the board meeting on March 2nd when by unanimous vote it was decided to award the contract to the St. Lawrence Contracting Company at $242,915.

The award of the contract is subject to the approval for financing by the city council, the Ontario Municipal Board, and subject to approval of the Ontario Department of Education grant purposes. Application has been made to the above three for the approval of a debenture issue of $293,100.

Attending the board meeting at the time the contract was awarded were chairman Enos David, members Symons, Wilkin, Campbell, Wishart, Seldon and Miss Tickell. Members Geen and Tennent were excused because of illness.

This is the second contract which the St. Lawrence Contracting Company has been awarded by local board of education. The firm is now completing construction of Prince Charles school on Ridley Ave., which is expected soon to be open.

Development of Extension Television Announced by Stewart-Warner Co.

Development of extension television engineering three reproductions from the studio's set and the one antenna, has been announced by the Stewart - Warner - Alemite Corporation of Belleville.

Yesterday at the company's plant in the city, engineers for the first time on this continent demonstrated extension television covering the use of one main television set and one antenna and answer was "no," it being demonstrated that when the picture on the main set was picked up and out of focus, it remained clear on the extension set.

Numerous Possibilities

Numerous possibilities were forecast for the future of the development, among them being that it might be used in schools where a number of classrooms could get instruction from one set. It could also be applied to hospital use, it was stated.

It was also suggested that in neighborhoods where the present TV owners do not care for entertainment out of the range of many people a master set could service extensions in a number of homes.

Demonstration Held

Yesterday's demonstration was held in the presence of the press, radio and television representatives from Toronto and Montreal, who were taken to the plant by company officials.

Question 1: "Can the user of the extension set himself control the clarity and volume of the extension set without changing the clarity and volume of the main set?" The demonstrated answer was "yes."

Question 2: "If the picture on the main set "runs" (gets out of focus through some interference) will the picture on the extension set act up the same way?" The answer was "no," it being demonstrated that when the picture on the main set was picked up and out of focus, it remained clear on the extension set.

Thermite Used To Open Channel In Moira River
Despite the comparatively heavy ice in the lower stretches of the Moira River, city officials are not concerned about flood conditions in the city this spring.
This was stated today following an inspection of ice in the river mouth where action was taken to reduce frazil ice conditions, which might tend to retard the flow of water.
Acting on suggestion from Walter H. J. Allin and from Alderman Don Thomas as chairman of the Public Works Department, City Engineer Charles Mott cut holes in the ice south of the C.P.R. railroad bridge with two 100-pound cans of thermite being used to melt frazil ice.
The city engineer explained that thermite generates considerable heat within a 100-foot radius and serves to melt the frazil ice which builds up under the ice during a period of mild weather. Mr. Mott reported good channels of water were running beneath the ice which was approximately 12 inches thick at this point.
Over the weekend calcium chloride was used in the city sewer emptying into the river below the railroad bridge. This also served to reduce frazil ice conditions with result that flooding in basements along the river from was reduced.
Moderate rain with cool nights were needed to eliminate danger of floods according to City Engineer Mott. This would permit gradual runoff of melted snow and would also serve to reduce ice at the mouth of the Moira.

March Twentieth Deadline for 1950 Markers
Midnight of March 20th is the official deadline for the purchase of 1950 automobile markers and drivers' licences, the local issuer, Fred T. Symons, has been notified by the Highways Department.
Mr. Symons said he had received official notification to the above effect from the department.
And at the same time Mr. Symons asked that motorists not wait until the last minute rush to procure their markers. Approximately one half of the motorists in the Belleville area have still to purchase their markers Mr. Symons warned that a long lineup would be inevitable as the deadline approached.

Bay of Quinte High School Area Being Discussed
Plans for the formation of a Bay of Quinte High School Area comprising the city of Belleville and the three townships of Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Ameliasburg, were discussed recently by S. D. Rendall, inspector of high schools, when he met with the local Board of Education and the South Hastings High School Board.
If such a high school district were formed it would bring the city of Belleville and the three townships under one school board for all high school purposes. As result of the meeting the two local boards decided to collaborate on the matter and Enos David, chairman of the Board of Education, and Roy Sills, chairman of the South Hastings High School Board, were named a committee regarding organization.
Incorporation of the Bay of Quinte District High School Area has been considered for over a year, with a public meeting being held last spring at the Queen Alexandra School and attended by representatives from all municipalities affected.
No new construction of school buildings would be entailed in the formation of the high school area, but if the area were formed it would have a voice in the operation of the Collegiate and Vocational School. At the present time student fees are paid to the local Board of Education. Present attendance at the Belleville Collegiate is approximately 42 per cent from the rural areas.

Chummy Buskard Wins Promotion
Winnipeg, March 8— C. R. "Chummy" Buskard, of the Canadian National Railway shops at Transcona received the congratulations of the staff Saturday on his promotion to assistant shops superintendent at Fort Rouge shops.
C. R. "Chummy" Buskard, as he is known in this city, is a Belleville 15-year-old Public Utilities Kray, of Toronto, in an automobile, allegedly stolen from Toronto.
The youth was taken into custody at a local gasoline station where he asked for gasoline.

Timbers of Sunken Hulk of Schooner Recovered in Bay
Recovery of timbers of the sunken hulk of the three-masted schooner the coal carrier Dundee brought back early memories to waterfront pioneers yesterday.
While cutting ice at the foot of George Street, employees of workmen with the Callaghan Ice Company brought up two pieces of the old ship originally worked by the Kelly family and purchased later by Johnny Smith of Belleville.
The sailing craft was used to draw coal to Belleville from American points across the lake. It has a capacity of 500 tons.
A newspaper photograph pinned up on the wall of the Callaghan workshops identified the Dundee in her trimmest shape in the year of 1908. It was abandoned by Smith and went down after part of the bottom caved away under strain of years of Canadian winter heavy loads.
The Dundee is only one of the derelicts littering the bottom of Belleville harbor, where a wealth of ship-shaping history lies hidden beneath the waters of the Bay of Quinte.

Better Demand For Hay Reported

A keen demand for hay is reported in the Lennox and Addington district, according to the weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

It was stated that the hay in this county will being trucked out as fast as the balers can get it ready. Most of the hay is being shipped to the United States with prices ranging around $25 per ton at the farm.

Prince Edward county hatchery men report a reduced number of orders for March chicks. Apples were said to be moving from county storages in satisfactory rates for the first time in season.

Cattle are in good demand and are the attractive spot in farm business. Much more attention is being given to veal calves owing to the higher meat prices.

RUNAWAY BOY DETAINED

Peterborough, March 8. (CP)— A 12-year-old boy who ran away from his home in Niagara Falls was detained here Tuesday night by city police.

The youths said there were 12 children in his family and that was too many for him. His parents were notified and were on the way to get him.

Housing Areas Offer Challenge To United Church

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — New housing districts present a challenge to the United Church of Canada, Rev. Dr. H. C. Macdonald, associate secretary 'of the church's board of home missions, said Tuesday.

He told the United Church missionary and maintenance committee:

"If we don't go into these new areas, the fundamentalists and the four-square gospel group will. Never in the history of Canada has such an opportunity been presented to the church."

He praised the work of 200 United Church missionaries who, he said, have discovered some of the 500,000 persons in Canada who are listed as United Church members but who have been lost from the church for various reasons.

Canadian Business Close to '49 Level

By FORBES HUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Canadian business in the first two months of this year has started at or close to the relatively high level of a year ago, states Wood, Gundy and Co., Ltd., in their March review.

It says:

Steel ingot production in January rugs ahead of the record of December and was up approximately two per cent from January last year.

Newsprint production in January was a fraction of one per cent lower than a year ago, but the loss of shipments in the sterling area was made up for by shipments to the United States and to Canadian consumers, which increased four per cent and 12 per cent respectively.

An encouraging item in the outlook for 1950 is the volume of new capital investment, or money put into the expansion of mining, manufacturing industry, business, government projects, homes and services. It is estimated that this will be $3,567,000,000 this year, or some $162,000,000 ahead of last year's record.

Concerning security price levels the review states that they are high for Canadian government, municipal and corporation bonds were strong during January and February and that prices for some issues advanced fractionally.

Early in January the industrial index of the Toronto Stock Exchange advanced from 207.36, the close for 1949, to 212.14 and remained within a few points of this figure until it advanced to 213.93 on March 6, a high for 1950 to date. It closed Tuesday at 213.03.

WILL PRESENT $2,651 HOUSE

St. Catharines, March 8 — (CP) — A $3,691 home, built through contributions from sympathetic citizens and a $2,000 grant from the Veterans' Land Act, will soon be presented to Mr. and Mrs. John Lazar of Niagara Township.

The Johnny Lazar building fund was started a few hours after fire destroyed the Lazar home July 22, 1949, taking the life of seven-month-old Loretta Lazar who was asleep in the house. Public contribution to the fund totalled $1,491.28.

County Workless Slightly Higher

Unemployed persons in Belleville and in the Hastings County area registering claims at the local employment office totalled 1,500 during this week it was reported today by H. H. Reed, local employment office manager.

The above figure is up slightly over that of the past two weeks when 1,400 persons were registering for supplementary claims as announced recently by the department. Persons who have exhausted their regular benefits are eligible to draw supplementary claims until April 15, it was stated.

Approximately 40 of such claims were registered on Tuesday and more were coming in, according to Mr. Reed.

Although unemployment claims had built up slightly over the past two weeks, Mr. Reed was confident that with a break in the weather the picture would shortly begin to brighten. Conditions resulting from the recent coal shortage were responsible for a slight increase in the local unemployment situation.

Construction work planned for the city and district which would, shortly get underway, would ease unemployment considerably. This will commence soon on the foundation of the proposed $1,000,000 hospital west of the city and it was expected a number of laborers and carpenters would be placed there.

ADOPTS UNIQUE WAY

Toronto, March 8—(CP)—Karl Abrams has adopted a unique way of attempting to oust tenants from property he owns.

Abrams, proprietor of an east-end building housing apartments and a cigar store, was arrested after the store's proprietor, Morris Alter, complained that Abrams was smashing windows and damaging the store. Abrams and his brother, who was with him were charged with malicious damage.

General Kennedy Directs Relief For Refugees

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N.Y., March 8—(CP)—Canada has been appointed to direct the new United Nations relief and works program for Palestine refugees.

Appointment of Maj.-Gen. Howard Kennedy of Toronto to administer the $50,000,000 project was announced Tuesday night by Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary-general.

Kennedy, 57, a forest expert who is a veteran of two world wars, was chosen after consultations between Lie and a advisory committee consisting of representatives of Britain, United States, France and Turkey.

He will confer with the advisory committee in Geneva April 17 and set up his headquarters at Beyrouth, Lebanon, late in April.

Kennedy is to consult with the governments of Hashemite Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Egypt on proposed works projects and direct relief for the 627,000 Arab refugees scattered into those countries by the Palestine war.

Kennedy at present is a consulting engineer and chairman of the Canada and Rock Mountains Conservation Board, the Forest Insect Control Board and the Associated Committee on Forestry of the National Research Council, In his new job he will receive a salary of $13,500 and and expenses of $8,500.

Awarded a Military Cross in the First World War, Kennedy went overseas with the First Canadian Division in 1939. He became director-master-general in charge of engineering services and development. For a period following the Second World War he was Ontario's royal commissioner of forests.

'Blueness' Due To Nitrates Soon Cured

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Farm well water that contains nitrates can cause "blueness" in babies similar to that resulting from heart troubles, tests have shown. But the condition can be cured in 24 hours by substituting pure water in the feeding formula.

The connection between well water and baby blues is reported by Dr. Harry Modovy of the University of Manitoba in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Dr. Modovy says that when a bottle-fed farm baby develops blueness, the water should be tested for soluble nitrates before the illness is blamed on heart, he says. Samples of the water as part of normal pre-natal care of mothers to be and nursing should be analyzed for nitrates.

"Breast feeding should be encouraged for the rural infant," he added.

FIVE OVERCOME BY FUMES

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — Five persons were overcome and three others affected by coal gas fumes in a west-end home early today.

Mrs. Joy Withey was taken to hospital in semi-conscious condition following inhalator treatment by firemen. Three other women and a youth also were treated with the inhalator.

Man is Found In Pool of Blood

Toronto, March 8—(CP)—Found semi-conscious in his home in a pool of blood with his throat slashed early today, Albert Malinowski, 36-year-old factory worker, is in serious condition in hospital.

His wife, Stella, 36, was found in a hysterical condition a block from her home. Her face was smeared with blood from numerous slashes on her cheeks. She was unable to give police a coherent account of what happened.

Malinowski, former Polish displaced person, was found lying on the kitchen floor of his Kane Avenue home by police who went to investigate a complaint of domestic trouble. A five-inch razor was lying beside Malinowski and blood was flowing freely from his throat.

Police believe Malinowski slashed his wife with the razor during a quarrel, then cut his own throat. Mrs. Malinowski ran screaming from the house and refused to return until police accompanied her.

Eight of Family Die in One-Room Cabin Fire

Sandy, Ore., March 8 — (AP) — A family of eight died in a flaming one-room cabin here today.

The searing fire apparently started on the small building's north side—the only one with a door.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy A. Ludwig and their six children, ranging from 15 years to five months old died in the trap.

Sandy is 20 miles east of Portland.

ROAD ACCIDENTS

Ontario Government reports referring to the number of deaths on the highways and streets of Ontario in the month of January of this year which stood at 48 reveal a slight improvement over the same month last year though this year the season was open and hence there was a higher volume of traffic. The decline in fatalities for the month was 11 per cent. However the authorities indicate that a drop in fatalities in any month need not necessarily indicate a change for the better in accident trends. For example, in the months of the preceding autumn, in October and November there had been a decline, but December came along to break all records for the month in the total of victims of highway and road traffic.

Pedestrians, who usually contribute a large per cent. age of the fatal accidents, suffered less in January this year to the number of victims in previous and over but on the other hand more children were killed this year in January five of them under fifteen years old compared with three in the same month last year.

One fact stands out there were slightly more railway crossing accidents. An unusual number of deaths were however caused by cars whose drivers lost control and which left the road or hit fixed objects.

Every accident that happens on street or highway should be an object lesson to motorists for there is a reason in all mishaps and those who understand this can well profit in additional precautions against accident.

This time of year has its own special causes of accidents, such as variation of temperature often covering a stretch of road or highway with ice or snow surprises which may send a car into the ditch or into the path of another motor. On the other hand growing length of days adds to the number of hours of daylight and so lessens the period of the hours of twilight and darkness.

Eternal vigilance remains the duty of every user of the streets and roads. That way lies assurance of safety.

SPRING ALWAYS WINS

March is the eternal battleground of the winter and spring seasons, and spring always wins, such is the decree of nature. Let storms rage and blow how they will, and the last one in drifting snow, still March bears a cheerful face for in the stars and sun it is written that winter must pass away and gentle spring return. Sometimes this month sees but little more than a skirmish as winter steadily retreats and at other times it marts in its wintry pride. But the forces of nature are on the side of spring and whatever the opening or close of March, it has already advanced spring by the ten days between the 21st of the month and the beginning of the first of the spring months, April.

A writer in Christian Science Monitor sees "March, most of the time, as the prankster that loves a hearty laugh at some one else's expense. It makes the weatherman look ridiculous by riding blithely on the lamb while the prediction was quite to the contrary. This Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr.-Hyde month makes hilarious delight in snatching the hats of unsuspecting pedestrians and rolling them under automobiles or into mud puddles." It does admit that March shows moments of kindness for it loosens winter's frigid grip and unlocks streams brooks. It draws the sap of the maple and swells the lilac buds. It beckons to the songbird and encourages the shy violet."

CALLS IT "LOOSE TALKING"

Recent comment by the former head of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission on the expressed views of some scientists about the fate of human beings if the hydrogen bomb era should arrive draws the praise of the Ottawa Journal. Mr. Lilienthal had termed much of their talk as "intellectual nonsense."

The Ottawa paper thinks that a mark copy of Mr. Lilienthal's statement should be sent to these men and adds: "that the A-bomb and the improved H-bomb are dreadful weapons no one denies, including Mr. Lilienthal. Yet the fact remains that all the A-bomb did at Hiroshima was to wipe out a pin-point on the map and that an H-bomb explosion one hundred thousand times greater would affect but an insignificant part of the earth surface." The paper adds, "happy we should all be if A-bombs and H-bombs could be outlawed — safely. No sense in the meantime, though, in yielding to despair and panic through talk that isn't just truthful."

H-BOMB

Now comes a greater bomb to kill,
To sunder and destroy,
And it is said we must, and will,
So grim a thing employ.

Two ways of life in strife arrayed,
In madness and in hate,
Working to get a weapon made
To lay the world in waste!

If good will ruled the hearts of men
And all from hate were free,
Such hate to crush were needless then
And peace on earth could be.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO

March 8, 1930

Mr. and Mrs. James Morton of Hillier, Prince Edward County, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding, which is termed a Golden wedding, on March 3rd and relatives and friends in the number of fifty gathered at their home to celebrate the occasion and in the evening many more neighbors and friends called to extend congratulations and express good wishes. Mrs. Morton, prior to her marriage, was Miss Eliza-beth J. Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson of the same district. She is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Morton. They have one son, Mr. William H. Morton, councillor and ex-Reeve of Hillier. Mr. and Mrs. Morton received many presents among which was a silver spoon lined cream set, a gift from their neighbors as a token of the high esteem in which they are held by them.

30 YEARS AGO

Miss E. M. B. Warren will address the Women's Canadian Club here tomorrow evening.

The Rev. C. G. Smith of Montreal, formerly pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church here, is the guest of Mr. W. J. Rigge, Bridge Street East.

Mr. D. V. Sinclair celebrated yesterday the 25th anniversary of the establishment of his drygoods business in this city and received the hearty congratulations and good wishes of many friends. To mark the event in a worthy manner and to show his deep appreciation of the loyalty and faithful service of the members of his staff, he distributed Victory bonds to the value of $2,500.00 among the eighteen employees in proportion to years of service. His generosity was greatly appreciated by the members of the staff.

40 YEARS AGO

March 8, 1910

While no great damage was done by the ice shove yesterday afternoon and also at an early hour this morning, considerable inconvenience was experienced by the merchants on the west side of Front Street and on Bridge Street by water entering the cellars and forcing out the furnace fires. The river is now clear of ice from the city limits to Lazier's mill at Canniffton. Above the latter point there is still considerable ice to come down. During the shove yesterday afternoon the flume at Ald. Lott's dam was carried away. Much merriment to the lookers was caused by the way some pedestrians slipped off the pontoon bridge in the footbridge gangway.

Mrs. George H. Brooker of this city celebrated the 31st anniversary of her birth on Monday. She resides with her son-in-law, Mr. James Woodley, Murney Street, where is well and in possession of all her faculties.

50 YEARS AGO

March 8, 1900

Mr. M. D. Ward, dentist, has returned home and has resumed his practice.

A hockey match between teams representing the Pringle Bush and Dow Factory and a team representing the linsmiths of the Crown Company, the latter team was victorious, the score being 3 to 2. Brown and H. Crown, the referee was E. Ford and he was kept busy calling off sides. No accidents were sustained by both sides.

Trains are still running late owing to snow and ice upon the tracks.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

"WHAT I DO WON'T MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE"

The water famine in New York and the sudden rumors of coffee shortage are dramatized some unnecessary human weaknesses among us. In this instance it is reliably reported that the shortage was made worse by grateful hoarding.

Too many Americans have come to depend on every person in the Golden Rule when it comes to commodities like sugar, potatoes or coffee. But the law of the jungle won't work, and with every person doing it we are brought that much nearer to the despised rationing and regimentation another bit of our precious freedom is lost.

Such little matters as tossing paper out of a car window or littering a picnic spot may seem a mere nothing to the individual but it is likely to say, "What is one more bit of trash." But, if we want to maintain our privileges as free individuals, we must mature in our regard for other individuals. Let us remember that "a free man's right" to hoard or to litter ceases where it infringes on the right of all others to do the same. If all practiced self-discipline as a norm, the result would be intolerable.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

UP IN CENTRAL PARK

Some of the sprightliest talk to be heard in Manhattan these days is in the coffeehouses frequented by the talented and threadbare refugees from Soviet Europa. Night after loquacious night, revelling in their buddied over-red-and-white checked tablecloths, and though many a culture has been slammed in their faces, they remain a spirited and sizable host of conversationalists, but long on banter and brash-ness.

Most of the stories spun by these Continental katzenjammers are by the comic side; yet, once in a while they come up with a yarn which leaves a pang-pong ball in your throat. For instance, there's the tale about the old gentleman and his greying wife who, during the summer months, can be seen almost every day in the carousel near the Central Park zoo, holding hands as they go whizzing ponies pump up and down.

Who are they? Well, to tell you, I'll have to go back several years and reminisce a bit, myself.

Shortly after the Nazis goosestepped into Vienna and decency went underground, a well-known surgeon and his wife, both of grown-upon ancestry, were urged by friends to take their six-year-old son and leave the country.

The surgeon refused. "I'm needed at the hospital," he said, "and I intend to stay as long as I can help it."

His usefulness, however, came to an end a few afternoons later when a detachment of SS men rang his doorbell, the doctor, who had been warned to expect them, led his wife and son out the rear door, but as they lurched up the street a neighbor spotted them and gave the alarm.

As the hunted trio turned a corner, they came upon a merry-go-round which had been set up in a public square to celebrate the arrival of the German "liberators" and Hitler's birthday. The surgeon bought three tickets and climbed aboard with his family as the band battered out a rumba-beat. The child was placed astride a gaudy steed while the parents sank well back in one of those chairs whose sides make a swan.

The SS men searched the square and were about to move on when they spied a Jew. It was all a game, reached out, grabbed a horse-ring and, waving it to their pals, shouted, "LOOK, look! Now I get a free ride!"

Attracted by the boy's cries, the storm troopers dragged the doctor and his wife from the carousel and were about to take the child when their leader, a youth with a sardonic sense of humor, stopped them. "The kid got the brass ring," he said. "He's entitled to a free ride."

As the carousel started up again, the tinny strains of "Chiri-biri-bim' drowned out the sobbing of the surgeon's brain was a bit misty, but friends in New York kept his passage, and he and his wife were among the lucky ones who got by the immigration quota. Ever since, the pair have been spending most of their summers in the vicinity of the Central Park carousel. The old boy is pretty much off trolley, but his wife continues to humor him, and whenever he gets agitated and shouts Hitler's Otto! I saw him on the zebra a minute ago", she soothes him by taking his hand and says, "Come along, dear, maybe he got tired and went home."

Mackenzie's Column:

Chiang Resumes Presidency of National Govt.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's dramatic resumption of the Chinese National presidency marks the real beginning of his fresh bid to reclaim his country from the communists.

The recent success of the Reds has built up their strength. Chinese communist territory, coupled with the approach of spring and good fighting weather, seem to make this the appointed hour for Chiang to intensify his attack. He must strike before the Reds have consolidated their positions.

What makes Chiang believe that he can evict the communists who control virtually the whole Chinese mainland? Has he really a whisper of hope?

Fred Hampson, AP chief of bureau in Hong Kong, cables that the Chinese Communists, whose armies overran China in a year, now are getting dumps for the National Air Force.

Puzzled at Reds

"Military experts," says Hampson, "are becoming puzzled at the Reds' continued helplessness against a relatively small power. Many believe that the Reds believe that the Reds' position in power may actually be threatened unless they can whip together air defences pretty soon.

"Whatever the explanation, the situation daily grows more intolerable for the communists. Added to their troubles in China, the Reds are losing face at a terrific rate."

Shanghai's power plans are reported put out of operation by bombers for the night. Coastal and river shipping is being seriously hurt and the communist bombers are keeping foreign ships out of every Red port except Tientsin.

Launch Generalis Warfare

Chiang Kai-Shek's hopes and plans are based on beating the communists by crippling their shipping, land communications and supplying with his air forces, and launching Guerrilla warfare at strategic points behind their lines.

Nature also has been aiding him through the grave famine which has swept wide areas north of the Yankize river. Millions of peasants are living on roots and grass. Experts fear that millions may perish before relief can be provided.

In China the people blame the current government for ill the ills and it will be blamed until it can obtain heavy imports of foodstuffs and other essential supplies to feed and cloth the people.

GOING HOME AFTER DAY'S WORK IS DONE

His day's work done, King George VI is seen returning to Buckingham Palace in London in the royal coach after formally opening Britain's new parliament. In his speech, the King proposed a mild "limited program of legislation" on behalf of the Labor government which scraped back into power with a hairline majority. His Majesty made no reference to the nationalization of steel or other socialist measures which would be fought every inch of the way by Winston Churchill and the now powerful Conservative "loyal opposition."—Central Press Canadian.

THE SANDMAN'S GRANDPA — NARCOLEPSY

Narcolepsy, meaning to be seized by sleep. That's just how it is with you have narcolepsy you'll fall asleep anywhere, any time, very often at the wrong time. Some persons have very little trouble in going to sleep almost anywhere but manage to stay awake when they have to do so. The narcoleptic has no choice. He is "seized" by sleep, in much the same manner that an epileptic is seized by convulsions.

Narcolepsy is regarded as a nervous disease in the same sense that epilepsy, falling sickness and hiccup are regarded as nervous diseases. However, there is by actual change or derangement of the nervous system involved in this disorder, the cause of which is barring certain diseases in which it appears as a symptom, is unknown.

With the exception of two diseases, very little is known as to the factors which bring on the "attack." Usually, there is a definite diagnostic difficulty involved in separating the known causes from the unknown.

The victim of narcolepsy is utterly unable to keep awake even while engaged in some task requiring standing. Narcolepsy, meaning to be seized by sleep. That's just how it is with you have narcolepsy you'll fall asleep anywhere, any time, very often at the wrong time. Some persons have very little trouble in going to sleep almost anywhere but manage to stay awake when they have to do so. The narcoleptic has no choice. He is "seized" by sleep, in much the same manner that an epileptic is seized by convulsions.

Narcolepsy is regarded as a nervous disease in the same sense that epilepsy, falling sickness and hiccup are regarded as nervous diseases. However, there is by actual change or derangement of the nervous system involved in this disorder, the cause of which is barring certain diseases in which it appears as a symptom, is unknown.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MORAL REARMAMENT

A movement was started some years ago for moral rearmament. I liked the idea, and if it could have been adopted throughout the world, a different story would now appear in our newspapers. There is one thing about this sort of rearmament, in contrast with armaments of guns and bombs, and that is that no mother would ever lose a boy by it!

Why can't we arm for good will and understanding in the world, and not keep piling up debts for a killing war that might prove to be annihilating to the world? And who pays for all this waste of material and treasure? The people, of course, who don't want war, or anything to do with it.

Why don't we invest in GW-bombs (Good Will bombs) and keep these filled with shipments of Good Will and Friendship for the peoples of the world, any other nation that suspects us of war? And why not drop these bombs by the million from a great armada across those lands so that there may be an unconditional surrender? free-land territory of ours wishes for nothing but Good Will of all other nations. Why can't we make ourselves understood?

If we have a neighbor whom we may not like, we get along with him all right, so long as neither of us carries a pistol! There is sure to come a time when we will suddenly suspect him to be a friend! Should our house get on fire, he probably would be the first to help us put it out. A catastrophe in a factory town always stirs the sympathy of all of us, and we have generously given aid. When the clouds of civil war hung heaviest over the United States, it was Lincoln who proclaimed: "We are not enemies, but friends."

Every day I look out from my office window and noted the grateful buildings of the United Nations rising to the skies and I wonder about the future of mankind. Will there be Good Will and understanding discussed there, and will there be a solution? Well—in thought and purpose be constructive. I hope so, and pray that this will be achieved, for it is, in Lincoln's words, "the last best hope of the world."

In that address by Lincoln, his first in point, he made another statement that could be his today: "My countrymen, one and all, think calmly and well upon this whole subject. Nothing valuable can be lost by taking time. If there be an object to hurry any thing to in hot flaste to a step which you would never take deliberately, that object will surely be gained by taking time; but no good object can be frustrated by it."

PICTON

Mass Tuberculosis Survey Begins In Prince Edward

Picton—A mass tuberculosis survey has begun in Prince Edward County under the direction of the County Health unit.

Three hundred students at the Collegiate were tested last week by Dr. John Wells, M.O.H., Dr. John Pearce and Miss A. Cryan, Reg. N. Reading of the tests disclosed 21 definitely positive reactors and 32 doubtful reactors. All these students are being X-rayed at the County Hospital, while no cases of active tuberculosis may be revealed, the chief value of the tests lies in the leads they will give for surveillance by the Health Unit in order to find the actual cases to which these young people have been exposed, case positive reaction to the "patch test" will be similarly safe-guarded and followed up.

Picton and Hallowell twps. are being tested at present. Area will be enlarged later. Last year, a large section of Ameliasburg township was covered. Funds for the survey were made available through the sale of T.B. seals at Christmas time.

Eastern Yachting Circuit Chooses Bay of Quinte

Picton — The Eastern Yachting Circuit has chosen the Bay of Quinte and Picton harbor as the locale of the 1950 annual regatta. This decision was made at the annual meeting of the Association held recently at Gananoque.

The fleet of boats, expected in number around fifty, will race from Prinyer's Cove, on Cressy Point, to Picton on July 6. There will be course meetings on Picton harbor July 7 and 8.

The Association includes Clayton Yacht Club, Henderson Harbor Yacht Club, the Crescent Yacht Club, Watertown, Gananoque Yacht Club, Kingston Yacht Club and Prince Edward Yacht Club.

Herb. Daubney, Rear Commodore of Prince Edward Club, who has been a familiar figure at sail regattas, with his sloop 'Sea Bird' will be appointed president of the Yachting Circuit for 1950.

The last regatta of this type was held in Picton nine years ago. Plans are being made to make the 1950 event an outstanding one.

Arthro-Dox, New Preparation To Treat Rheumatoid Arthritis

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — A Toronto chemical company (Infra Medical Products Ltd.) Tuesday announced development of a new preparation for treatment of rheumatoid arthritis.

The company said that, in cooperation with another firm, (Fine Chemicals of Canada Ltd.) it has combined a synthetic hormone called DCA (desoxycorticosterone acetate) with vitamin C.

The result, the announcement said, is a preparation (called arthro-dox) which can be put on the open market in quantity although, because it is injected, it will be available only through doctors.

A company spokesman warned however, that the new preparation will not be effective in all cases of rheumatoid arthritis.

"Our reports indicate that about 30 per cent — respond. Of these, half get a really dramatic response, similar to those reported in cortisone and acth treatment."

(Cortisone and acth are so difficult to produce that they are available only for research.)

Six Started Tests

Six Toronto doctors started tests in January with the Tor-onto-produced preparation. Other physicians co-operated in Winnipeg, Vancouver, Hamilton, London and Banff, Alta. Samples were sent to Belgium:

Some 200,000 doses have been ordered by Belgium doctors and 10,000 by Cubans, the company said.

The Toronto companies got the idea from a report by two Swedish scientists, Dr. E. Lewin and Dr. E. Wasen, last November. The Swedish doctors said they had obtained relief from rheumatoid arthritis sufferers by giving successive doses of DCA and vitamin C.

The problem was to find a method of combining vitamin C with DCA in a single dose. Results would be better if both drugs could be made to act simultaneously.

DCA had to be injected in an oil solution into a muscle. Vitamin C could only be injected in water into a vein. Given by mouth, vitamin C had no effect.

The Toronto companies had been collaborating on the problem of uniting oil and water solutions. They applied their findings to the Swedish discovery. The result, the announcement said, was the first practical, one-shot injection of vitamin C and DCA.

Sportsmen's Show Will Have Host Of Attractions

Toronto, March 8 —Mayors and Reeves from various cities and towns of Ontario including, Mayor H. J. Allin of Belleville, will be guests of Hiram E. McCallum, Mayor of Toronto, at the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show in the Coliseum on March 21. A group of 65 newsboys from Belleville will also attend the show.

Sponsored by the Toronto Anglers' and Hunters' Association, the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show, in a period of three years, has already established itself as America's finest spring-time exhibition. This year's show in the opinion of Loyal M. Kelly, general manager, will be even bigger and better than the two previous shows, for there will be more exhibitors, better features and a larger attendance.

Mr. Allin with the other Mayors and reeves, will tour about the four floors of the Coliseum, where all the latest equipment for sport, travel and camping will be shown, as well as Canada's largest boat show, a cottage show and a motor show. Other features on the exhibit floors include Miss Canada IV, the fastest boat in the world, a conservation exhibit by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, an authentic Indian Village and sports demonstrations by experts and champions.

The guests of Mayor McCallum will then see the thrilling stage and tank show in the arena. Want Amusement Tax, Means Test Abolished

Brantford, March 8 (CP)—Abolition of the means test for compulsory, contributory old age pensions at age 65 and the 20 percent tax on motion picture theatre admissions was called for in resolutions passed unanimously Tuesday night by the Brantford Liberal Association. The resolutions will be presented at the convention of the Ontario Liberal Association in June.

The resolutions termed the amusement tax on movies as "excessive and discriminatory" since movies are the only form of relaxation for the majority of Ontario's population and the old age pension means test as "penalizing the thrifty."

Demonstration Of AVRO CF-100 Flight Planned

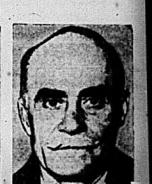
Ottawa, March 8 (CP)— Canada's new all-weather, long-range jet-fighter, the Avro CF-100, will put on a flight demonstration at Rockcliffe air station here Saturday for a distinguished audience.

Attending the show will be the Governor-General, Viscount Alexander, Prince Bernard of The Netherlands; Prime Minister, St. Laurent; members of the Cabinet, the Commons and Senate; members of the Diplomatic Corps; armed forces officers and officials of Canadian aviation firms.

The visitors will have a chance to see the sleek new fighter, first tested at Malton, near Toronto, Jan. 19, go through some of its spectacular paces.

W. A. Waterton, wartime RAF squadron leader from Camrose, Alta., will be at the controls. He has been handling the flight-testing program for the plane at A. V. Roe Ltd.

The CF-100 has been designed to meet RCAF specifications for a long-range, all-weather jet-fighter necessary to Canadian air defence requirements. The aircraft will complement the F-86 single-jet fighter being built for the air force by Canadair Ltd., of Montreal.



The two aircraft are to be allotted separate tasks. The F-86 will be used as a single-seater interceptor, the CF-100 for all-weather operation under day or night conditions.

The test model is currently fitted with two Rolls Royce Avro2 power units, but plans for the CF-100 to be powered by Orenda, being produced by A. V. Rowe. The Orenda jet engine is still in the flight-test stage and it will be some time before the all-Canadian plane is equipped with the all-Canadian jet.

Soldier Vote Reduced Lead of Greece's Leftist Party

CONSTANTIN TSALDARIS

NICHOLAS PLASTIRAS

An early leftist lead in Greek elections was cut sharply when the soldier vote began pouring into Athens. Returns from 5 per cent of the 140,000 soldiers eligible to vote gave Constantin Tsaldaris' Populists — a right-wing party — about a 2-to-1 advantage over Gen. Nicholas Plastiras' leftist National Progressive Union. Political observers said if the trend continued Tsaldaris' party could win.—Central Press Canadian.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

It doesn't take shoppers long to learn that liver at a dollar a pound isn't expensive. A pound equals 3 generous portions.

It takes them even less time to learn that the members of the family either love it or loathe it. Both sides must agree that liver is rich tasting without being fatty.

Liver must be tender, but if it is strictly fresh it will not be mushy or spongy. You should be able to cut it with a dull table knife, but not necessarily with a fork.

The best tasting liver is calf's liver, although beef liver, if choice, fresh quality, may be substituted in many recipes. Fresh beef liver should have a light mahogany color. Tell the butcher to cut out any tubes, gristle or membrane.

Braised liver is made piquant with tomatoes and vinegar. Use the best quality Italian plum tomatoes in the recipe below. If you have left-over tomatoes, use them as a vegetable with another meal. Either beef or calf's liver may be used in this dish.

Braised Liver, Country Style. 4 Servings

Order 1 1-4 pounds sliced liver. Dip liver in 1-2 cup flour to which 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper have been added. Pat off excess flour.

Melt 2 tablespoons fat in a heavy saucepan. Brown liver lightly on both sides.

Remove liver from pan. Add 1 cup onions sliced very thin, 1-2 teaspoon finely chopped garlic, and 1-2 cup celery cut into very thin strips. Simmer slowly, keeping pan covered and stirring frequently, until onions are yellow.

Add 2 cups chopped canned tomatoes and 2 tablespoons vinegar.

Return liver slices to saucepan. Cover with lid. Simmer slowly until vegetables are soft, about 40 minutes. Avoid excess heat or sauce will thicken quickly and liver will become tough.

Skim fat from tomatoes. Add 1-2 teaspoon finely chopped basil leaves. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Spoon gravy over liver in serving plates. Serve with fluffy white rice, noodles or any other good garnish for mopping gravy.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her father won't meet her boy friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My mother passed away four years ago and I was left with the charge of the house and my younger brother. "It wasn't easy; I can assure you, but I managed that, and school as well.

This past summer, both my brother and I stayed with an aunt who lives in a town in town. While there, I suddenly realized I had a bad crush on a boy I used to know. He is 22, and I am now 16, but very mature for my age.

I wanted my father to meet him, for I want my father to approve of everyone I go with, but he wouldn't listen to me, and he won't let me go out with him or even speak to him. Do you think this is fair? I have always been a good girl and never disobeyed my father in any way. My boy friend comes from a good family is a nice boy.

Y. O.

Dear Y. O.:

It certainly seems to me a bad mistake for any parent to refuse to become acquainted with the young men on whim their daughters are interested. I should think the first thing a father would want to do, would be to find out what sort of friends their young people had by making an opportunity to meet them.

It is possible, of course, that your father thinks a chap of 22 is too old for a girl of 16, and it might, of course, be that he is right. I am sure it is quite true that you are unusually mature for your age, since you had to take on so much responsibility while you were still extremely young. If you carried this responsibility successfully, however and what you say about having managed to go to school and at the same time take care of your home and your younger brother makes me believe that you did—it should, I would think, help to put your father confidence in your judgment.

I suggest that if the aunt you speak of is a sympathetic and understanding person, you ask her if she will not get in touch with your father and see if she cannot influence him to be a little more open-minded. Since I get the impression from your letter that your boy friend lives in the same town with your aunt, she probably knows enough about him to be able to recommend him to your father if he is as you think, a boy of good character.

He's 19, she's 22—Is he too young for her?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl 22, going with a boy 19. He acts older, and is advanced for his age.

My mother thinks he is too young for me. She says he should be at least 21 before we think about getting married. She thinks that in spite of appearing and acting older he still is not of age to know his own mind. What is your advice?

E. R.

Dear E. R.:

I think your mother is right in feeling that a 19-year-old boy is too young for marriage. Whether tie at the neck are other details, the girl he wants to marry is older or younger than he is, is beside the point. . . Even though you were no more than 17 or 18, he would still, to my way of thinking, not be ready to assume the responsibilities of marriage. I believe you should be sensible enough to take your mother's advice and wait a year or two; then see how you both feel about things.

GOOD MANNERS

Paper cocktail napkins

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me what the exact use of a paper cocktail napkin is? When having a cocktail in a restaurant I notice that they usually use the napkin as a coaster. But when having cocktails in, a private house where coasters are served under the cocktail napkins, and I've seen a variety of uses made of the napkin. I'd like to know what the really correct use is. For instance, does the napkin belong on your lap, unfolded, while you are having your drink . . or what?

O. B. M.

In many restaurants, it's true, a cocktail is served with a paper cocktail napkin under it, and this is most practical, convenient for absorbing the moisture from the outside of the glass. In a private house the service you use is correct when serving any kind of pre-dinner drink (1) coasters or small plates under the glasses, and (2) small cocktail napkins, linen, cutwork or paper. (If anything is to be served with the drinks, a small plate, not larger than 6-inches in diameter, is much more convenient than the coaster, since the drink-accompaniments can be parked on the side of the plate.) Then let each guest do as she or he wishes with the small napkins: some guests never pay any attention to them don't use them; but fastidious guests use them as tea-napkins are used, to wipe the lips (daintily!) after sipping the drink, or to inconspicuously wipe the fingertips, after eating, for example, salted nuts or other salted food-accessories, crackers topped with pate or cheese, or other drink-accompaniments that may cling to fingers.

Widow is "Mrs. William" . . . or "Mrs. Anna"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, with a family. Now that my husband is deceased, what form of name should I use? Is it correct for me to use my husband's name now as I did when he was living . . Mrs. William Warren, for example?

A. B. W.

Yes . . the only correct form of address for you to use as a widow is the same form you used when your husband was living. When you married your husband he gave you his name . . Mrs. William Warren . . as he gave you the wedding ring. And the right thing or you to do is-to "wear" his name and his wedding ring as long as you live . . unless you re-marry. For a widow to change her name from the correct form "Mrs. William Warren" to the incorrect "Mrs. Anna Warren" is taking ridiculous trouble to do the wrong thing . . that doesn't make sense. William Warren" widow is Mrs. William Warren.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

For more beautiful complexions

Perhaps women depend too much on cosmetics

It is possible that the members of the sisterhood depend too much on cosmetics. They hope cosmetics to find a magic cream or lotion that will miraculously restore the youthful glow and texture of their complexions. Cosmetics don't work that way. They help a lot, and women the world over are grateful to chemists who have provided them with fragrant toiletries. The truth is that every one of us must give aid to beauty aids. They can't accomplish much without help from the good kind quester.

Beauty griefs, especially wrinkles, are a long time coming. In many cases they are self-inflicted which is a pity. It isn't to be expected that deep ones can be ironed out and erased. No creams have ever been compounded that will restore freshness of appearance after a sleepless night, hours of worry, or extreme fatigue.

A good complexion is dependent upon many factors. Diet plays an important part. An excess of fats—cream, butter, pastries or fat foods—will overstimulate the sebaceous glands so that the skin surface carries a permanent shine; pores become enlarged, attract atmospheric dust, blackheads appear and acne may develop.

Lack of fat in the diet will cause extreme dryness of the skin. Not only that, but the hair will be brittle, the scalp covered with scales.

It is necessary to drink plenty of water if the skin is to be in normal condition. Vitamin C found in orange and tomato juice, is as essential to the health of your facial coating as it is necessary for the health of the teeth and gums. The finicky eater who does not get a variety of food elements is likely to be in for all manner of pulchritude worriefs.

The various avenues of elimination should be kept active. Breathe deeply to air condition the lungs, so they can send off waster. Bathe daily so the skin can function properly. Eat fruit and vegetables, especially green salads, so the digestive motors will be in a healthy state.

If the skin is excessively oily, use soap freely at bedtime. Find a bland one that lathers quickly. Fluff up the suds on a washcloth and go over the flesh lightly. Or, use a complexion brush to stimulate the blood streams and bring good coloring. Rinse with cold water; apply an astringent. In the morning lave with cold water and use the astringent again. Avoid oily cosmetics for a time.

There is no such thing as overlubricating a dry skin. Remove make-up with cream, use soap and water, rinse and dry, and apply cream again, letting it remain on over night. Put more butter on your bread, more cream in your coffee, and have bacon for breakfast. These foods will encourage the sebaceous glands to carry on.

Coal Production In U.S. Speeds Toward Normal

Pittsburgh, March 8 (AP) — Coal production in the United States sped toward normal Tuesday in the wake of a month-long soft coal strike.

Nearly one-third of the idle diggers happily shouldered picks and shovels Monday. The work return of the 372,000 striking United Mine Workers was expected to be virtually complete Tuesday.

Industries, hard hit by the shutdown, quickly threw off the strike-imposed shackles.

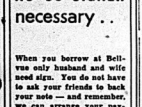
Steel firms and railroads recalled thousands of the more than 225,000 workers made idle by the coal walkout.

Wheeling Steel Corporation scheduled full scale resumption of production as did other companies which had curtailed because of fuel shortages.

The Interstate Commerce Commission decided to keep in effect its partial ban on coal-burning freight and passenger train services until carriers can build up depleted coal stockpiles.

A late afternoon conference at the I. C. C. Tuesday may determine when the trains can get back on regular schedules.

Estimates of the costly strike—ended Sunday by the signing of a victorious contract for Lewis and his United Mine Workers — come from various sources.



Everett Lyon, an official of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, estimated the strike Chicago Association of Commerce area alone $30,000,000 to $50,000,000.

One Portage, Pa., miner, Vincent Cehelnik, said the strike cost him about $1,000.

With the 70-cent daily wage boost the walkout gained him, he estimated it will take him six years working five days a week to make up his loss.

Aussie Hangovers Build Rich Trade

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Eddie Samuels, the man who operated the world's first headache bar, has sold out. And he did all right out of other people's hangovers.

The sale price of his bar, located right across the street from one of Australia's biggest hotels in the heart of Sydney was reported as $85,750.

Ever since the Headache Bar (rather like a normal bar but with different mixtures) opened nine years ago it's been doing a roaring business. Samuels says the new owners will carry it on with all the nostrums which have helped Sydneysiders with a hangover since 1940.

Samuels (Mr. Edmond Samuels from now on) is going into show business with an Australian musical called "The Highwayman."

Clerk Quits Job He Recently Found He Had for Years

London, Ont., March 8 (CP) — City Clerk R. H. Cooper Monday night quit a job he didn't know he had until two weeks ago — the secondary position of clerk of City Magistrate's Court.

Under a by-law passed a quarter of a century ago, then forgotten, the city clerk of London is also clerk of police court. No city clerk in two decades has carried out the duties. Furthermore no council has ever asked him to do it.

In past years, in the civic budget, Miss I. M. Jackson has been listed as clerk of the court. Two weeks ago, Magistrate D. B. Menzies recommended that she be appointed officially to the post. The action put Mr. Cooper on a track that led to discovery of his other job.

"No clerk should have duties imposed upon him by law which he is not expected to carry out and which he cannot carry out," he said.

Aldermen relieved him of the chore. They appointed Miss Jackson clerk of the court and agreed to consider her salary with the annual budget.

They said six deer have died in similar fashion in two years. Club officials suggested that a wolf-hunting party be organized.

GRAIN FOR SWANS

Vancouver, March 7—(CP) — Life-giving barley was dropped from the air Monday for a flock of 100 rare trumpeter swans wintering at ice-coated Lonesome Lake, 250 miles northeast of here. The British tanker Clam, is shown being buffeted by a turbulent sea as she laid aground at the southern tip of the Reykianes Peninsula, off the tip of Iceland on Feb. 28. British on Guard As Goering Works Coke Plant Blasted Brunswick, Germany, March 8 — (CP) — British light armored cars and infantry stood guard Tuesday while a German dismantling squad blew up part of the coke-producing plant at the big Goering steel works.

British forces had marched to the steel works to curb bitter German demonstrations against dismantling the industrial plants.

Demonstrators overturned ten automobiles, tore down scaffolding and burned records of a British dismantling firm at the plant Monday. It was the sharpest protest yet to dismantling of potential war plants ordered by the allies.

IT'S BACK TO WORK FOR THESE MEN!

The coal strike was over when John L. Lewis and the operators signed a contract which sent 372,000 United Mine Workers back to the soft coal pits of the U.S. with a raise. To 223,000 other American bread-winners and many Canadians the contract also meant a return to work soon. They were forced into idleness because the steel mills, railroads and other firms they worked for had no coal to operate. Lewis got money gains averaging $1.40 a man a day after a half year's fight which wore down the coal piles and the mine owners. Miners such as Arthur Hurl, left, Nick Harbutz, Edward Yanketis and Wayne Smith were anxious to get back to work after a four-week lay-off. — Central Press Canadian.

London Letter:

Zoo Has Splendid Trading Material After Taking Census

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 8—(CP) — It would be a mistake to assume that London zoo's cow Okapi is for sale—even if its value has been announced at £2,000 ($6,200).

The cold cash wouldn't interest the management. But if you had a white rhinoceros you wanted to swap. . .

Believing in keeping track of just what it has in its cages, aquaria and ponds—and the sum total of their occupants' worth—every year along about now the zoo takes stock.

Heads are counted (6,794 this year), which is easy for the lions' keepers but not for the reptiles'. Their cages have to be dismantled, otherwise frogs, newts or lizards hiding under vegetation or stones would miss the census.

Then the Regent's Park authorities compare last year's values with current market quotations and evaluate their stock.

Their surpluses are known then, and which of the £98,628 worth of livestock are available for trading with other zoos needing specimens.

While the okapi—an African animal resembling a cross between a giraffe, a zebra and a deer and discovered only in 1900—gets the zoo's "most valuable" listing, elephants at £1,500 are not far behind. Some giraffes are valued at £1,200..

6,794 Heads in Zoo

The 1950 census shows the zoo has 895 mammals, 1,836 birds, 787 reptiles and amphibians and 3,276 aquarium specimens.

Values among the £67,269 mammal collection range from the okapi's £2,000 down to 2s. For a tame mouse.

Values of the more spectacular creatures have declined during the last year, attributed to completion of post-war restocking with correspondingly less demand for specimens. A big-game hunter with four white rhinoceros captured with a lasso in the Sudan is being allowed to cool until his price shakes down from his

BERSERK KILLER LEAVES TRAIL OF VICTIMS

A 19-year-old youth, just released from a hospital for the criminally insane, slaughtered four strangers and stabbed three other persons in a 10-minute rampage through crowded streets of Brooklyn, N.Y. The mad knifer, William Jones, finally was beaten into submission with gun butts after police pursued him along three blood-trailed blocks. Police reported that killer, seen tied to chair in Brooklyn police station, had no apparent motive for attacks. —

£5,000 to the zoo's "bid" of £1,500.

Said the zoo to his overture: "definitely not interested. There must be no black market in white rhinos, however, rare they may be."

The bird collection, with 576 species and 895 species and worth $525,000, has 36 kinds of diurnal birds of prey. It is believed to be the world's largest.

The aquarium holds more than 200 species and its specimens are worth £2,000, while the £4,700 reptile collection includes 64 kinds of snake, 54 lizards and nine crocodiles.

The 122-year-old Zoological Society of London opened the zoo in 33 acres of Regent's Park in 1828. The zoo was founded by Sir Stamford Raffles, whose other claim to fame was his founding of Singapore in 1819.

Obscene, Immoral Literature Banned By Quebec House

(By The Canadian Press)

A government bill banning obscene and immoral literature was passed in the Quebec legislative assembly Tuesday, by a vote of 73 to 8, and now goes before Quebec's Upper House.

The Attorney-General may submit any "illustration" to the Quebec Board of Cinema Censors and Premier Duplessis explained that "illustration" in the bill means illustration by words as well as drawings or photographs.

The bill does not touch newspapers and religious publications The principle of the bill was approved by the Liberal opposition, although it opposed some clauses.

Premier Duplessis called it "a courageous law." Under it the government would be able to deal with "malicious,-immoral writings and pictures." He did not pretend that the law was perfect, but, he said, it was partly aimed at riddling the province of "atheists, bolsheviste and communists."

Fiery Exchange

In the Prince Edward Island legislature at Charlottetown there was a fiery exchange between former Attorney-General F. A. Large, new education minister, and R. R. Bell, Progressive Conservative member. The minister said that neither the RCMP investigation nor court evidence implicated legislature members in alleged irregularities in activities of the Fishermen's Loan Board.

Mr. Bell disputed Mr. Large's statement and asked if the case was deliberately brought to court when the legislature sat last year, to prevent the legislature discussing it. Mr. Large did not answer.

Hint of New Taxation

The New Brunswick legislature opened at Fredericton with the Speech from the Throne containing a possible hint of new taxation. It said the fiscal needs of the province and municipalities had been under study and views of the government would be presented to the legislature. There have been rumors of a provincial tax on retail sales.

The Ontario legislature heard six speakers as the Throne-Speech debate continued Tuesday, and today will take up second reading of the new provincial labor code.

The Saskatchewan legislature heard Niles Buchanan (CCF-Notuken-Willowbunch) urge establishment of a full - fledged drought area rehabilitation program financed by hundreds of millions of dollars from Federal funds.

At Edmonton the Alberta legislature discussed a resolution asking the federal government for an immediate interim payment on barley, oats and wheat marketed by the Canadian Wheat Board.

Truman Refused Surrender Offer

Washington, March 8 — (AP) — Thirteen days before the official surrender of the German high command in 1945, the United States and Britain were offered surrender of all German troops on the western front, including those in The Netherlands Denmark and Norway.

President Truman refused to accept until there was German surrender on all fronts. This was in accord with wartime pledges by both the Russians and Britain to accept nothing but a full surrender of all German forces to all the allies.

Admiral William D. Leahy former presidential chief of staff reports this in his book "I Was There," now running serially in the Saturday Evening Post.

FOUR CHILDREN BURNED

Newark, Del., Mar. 8 (AP)— Four children ranging in ages from one to four, were burned to death in their beds Tuesday night as flames destroyed a small frame house that a short time earlier had been the scene of a gay birthday party. An exploding oil stove was blamed for the fire.

Western Canada Rich in Oil Says Geologist

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — Western Canada will eventually uncover somewhere between 15,000,000,000 and 20,000,000,000 barrels of oil, Theo A. Link, consulting geologist, said today.

Dr. Link, formerly with Imperial Oil, Ltd., gave his opinion in an address to the Prospectors and Developers Association which winds up its annual convention today.

His estimate compares with some 1,000,000,000 barrels now in sight. He said discovery of the ultimate amount won't take place within the next few years for the obvious reason that a great deal of the possible oil-bearing territory is in inaccessible areas.

Futhermore, he stated, "It is safe to predict that eventually Western Canada will discover some 10,000,000,000,000 to 20,000,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

Dr. Link advised the government of the four western provinces, all potential oil producers, to make haste, "to formulate laws governing regulations for oil and gas prospecting which are more stable and uniform than today."

"These laws or rules should be so flexible that they will cover both the populated and accessible areas and also the hinterland. They should be such that they will invite risk capital and experience, of which there does not appear to be enough in Canada. They should be such that they will attract and be fair to the smallest bona fide prospector and the largest corporation, and this does not include fly-by-night promotion schemes."

Parliament At a Glance

By The Canadian Press

External Affairs Minister Pearson said the cabinet still is pondering recognition of the Chinese Communist government.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the government should not hurry a decision on China.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader urged the government to follow the action of the United Kingdom and grant recognition.

John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) said the solution of the world's ills was in a scientific distribution of the world's goods.

Wednesday

The Commons will resume the debate on the Speech from The Throne. The Senate will not sit.

SEEKS NEW DEAL IN RETAIL RATES

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, seen on his arrival in Ottawa, said that he was carrying to the federal cabinet his province's fight for a new deal in railway freight rates. At the same time he said he was confident the controversial freight rates issue will never sever the bonds of Confederation between the island province and the rest of Canada. Mr. Smallwood said he would appeal to the Governor-General-in-Council against the Feb. 20 award of the Board of Transport Commissioners." The award ruled against the province in its application for an order scrapping Newfoundland's rate structure and replacing it by rates in effect in the Maritimes. — Central Press Canadian.

The charge was laid following the fatal beating of Smith in a one-room cabin here Feb. 10 .

Monday a witness quoted Laflamme as having said he beat up Smith because the latter tried to hit him with a bottle.

When the case resumed Tuesday H. T. Cunningham, counsel for the defence, said Laflamme was prepared to plead guilty to the lesser charge of manslaughter.

Nationalist China Heartened By Two Victories, Repulse Of Invasion, Capture of Capital

Taipei, Formosa, March 8 (AP) — Nationalist China today was heartened by two tiny victories — repulse of a small-scale invasion attempt against Hainan Island and recapture of Kangting, capital of the far western province of Sikang.

Nationalist troops on Hainan, big island off the South China coast, beat down an attempt Monday by 900 mainland communists to invade the northwestern sector of the island. Two hundred reds were reported killed. Most of the remainder were routed or captured. The invaders apparently sailed from Liuchow Peninsula 10 miles across the strait from Hainan.

There has been no indication the Hainan landing was the forerunner of a large-scale red attempt to take the island. It might have been a nuisance raid, a reconnaissance in force or an attempt to supply communist guerrillas holed up in Hainan's mountains.

Hainan is defended by 100,000 Nationalist regulars and 90,000 militiamen.

Delayed dispatches from Sikang province said Kangting was retaken by Nationalist guerrillas Sunday from turncoat Nationalists.

Victory in the mountainous province would mean a lot to President Chiang Kai-Shek's hard-pressed forces. Their mainland headquarters is in Sichang, some 100 miles south of Kangting. That only mainland airfield is there. Two Nationalist Chinese armies, which made the long trek to Sikang when organized resistance collapsed in southwest China, are based there.

Shipkov Given Fifteen Years On Spy Charge

Sofia, March 8—(CP)—Michael Shipkov, former Bulgarian interpreter for the United States legation here, today was sentenced to 15 years on charges of having spied for the U.S. Shipkov was the main witness against a teenage trial of five persons.

Jivka Rindova, woman switchboard operator at the legation, was sentenced to 12 years imprisonment.

Other sentences were:

Stefan Stefanoov, who admitted working for Miss Rindova—10 years.

Nicolai Tzanov, alleged collaborator of Miss Rindova and Krastounov—six years, eight months.

Vassil Matichev, business man who said he had agreed to give economic information in exchange for escape facilities—four years, five months and 10 days.

Repudiated Statements

The two-day trial of the accused ended Tuesday after Shipkov had repudiated statements he once gave to U.S. diplomats that he had been tortured into making false confessions and agreeing to spy against the Americans in Sofia.

He and his fellow defendants had pleaded guilty. They confirmed full confessions of guilt presented to the court. They begged the court for mercy.

Shipkov had testified earlier that he had taken refuge in the American Legation before the break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Bulgaria caused the mission to be closed down. He said he had been given false papers and ampules of poison and advised to escape from his homeland across the Turkish border. He was arrested while trying to escape.

Turns in Statements

After all witnesses had testified on Tuesday's hearings the court president turned to signed statements Shipkov made last fall to the American diplomats in Sofia. (Shipkov signed an affidavit last August 5 that he had been tortured by Bulgarian police until he will was broken and he willingly confessed to all that they wished and agreed to spy on the American Legation. The affidavit was released by the U.S. State Department in Washington Saturday —two days before the unannounced trial opened—on the previous request by Shipkov that his name be cleared should he be brought to trial and forced again to make a "full confession.")

When the court president Tuesday asked Shipkov if his former statements was true the defendant answered:

"No no"

IMPALED ON IRON ROD

Hollywood, March 8—(AP)— Edmund MacDonald, 41-year-old movie actor, was injured seriously early today when he became impaled on an iron lamp standard. He said he stumbled on a doorway at the Hollywood Athletic Club, fell over the railing and onto the sharp spear atop the light. It pierced his thigh. He was taken to hospital with the iron rod still in his leg. Doctors there removed it.

When the 38th annual Toronto Skating Club Carnival opens in Maple Leaf Gardens next Monday evening, the lighting scheme will be as colorful as the ice surface itself, by the use of this miniature setting, on which shine replicas of the huge banks of high-intensity lamps used in actual production. Tiny figures dressed in exact copies of the carnival costumes provide the lighting director with facilities for selecting just the right color screen to use for the desired effect, and a bank of dimmers provide fade-outs Don McKenzie (left) assists lighting director Doug. Revenue Department Handling Income Tax Refunds at Fastest Rate in History

Ottawa, March (CP)— The National Revenue Department's income tax division, caught up with a terrifying war-caused backlog of work, is in a position to act quickly on returns in either of two directions, officials said today.

Within two or three weeks of filing 1949 returns— deadline is April 30—the taxpayer can expect a refund on any overpayment. But the taxpayer who owes the government more income tax than he has paid and fails to include the sum with his return can expect the same sort of quick action to check him up.

Within two weeks, he can expect a notice. He is given another 60 days after which he is liable to garnishee proceedings, that is the government can arrange to have the money turned over by his employer or otherwise.

Within the 60 days, at least two peremptory warnings will be sent. Garnishee proceedings were taken against 60,000 persons last year out of a total of nearly 4,000,000 taxpayers. The department says it has only 97,000,000 still to collect in "bad debts" or .05 per cent of total collections.

Already more than 1,000,000 Canadians have received refunds on their 1949 income tax returns.

What's more, a spokesman for the department said Tuesday night that all these— estimated at more than 2,000,000 — will probably be cleared up by June 30.

"The secret of this year's prompt handling of refunds lies in the fact that we now are working on a current basis," the spokesman said.

Until last year, it was unusual for taxpayers to wait two or more years for such refunds to be returned to them.

A year ago the Revenue Department launched a drive to clean up all back refunds — some boxes were broken.

Dog's Coughing Rouses Household

Toronto, March 8. (CP)— A dog's coughing helped to awaken a household when coal fumes filled a second-end roominghouse early today.

The dog, Tiny, started to cough as J. Wilbey, a tenant, and Police Constable Stanley Wood were preparing to arouse the other occupants. Five persons were overcome by the fumes and four others affected.

Overdue

Early this year the backlog of refunds were caught up, allowing the department to concentrate on 1949 returns.

As a result of income tax reductions announced in the budget brought down March 22, 1948, and retroactive to the beginning of last year, the majority of Canadian taxpayers whose income tax is deducted at source have a refund coming to them this year.

Last fall the Revenue Department sent out refunds to some 250,000 Canadians wiped off the income tax rolls by the tax reductions.

"On the majority of income tax returns this year where refunds are due, it is taking only two to three weeks to get the refunds returned to the taxpayers," the spokesman said.

Accessory After Fact Charge Against Accused

Peterborough, March 8 (CP)— Jack Douglas, 37 of Toronto was recharged in police court Tuesday with being an accessory after the fact in an alleged false statement to Mr. Moore and Hancock Motor Sales last summer.

This was the second time he has been charged with the same offence. The first charge was withdrawn Jan. 18. The charge was relaid following the arrest Saturday in Vancouver of Aubrey S. Hancock, 35, on a charge of forgery.

All the charges were laid as the result of the alleged $100,000 car finance swindle worked by Hancock and Paul Immig, 25, Peterborough.

Two other men Richard O'Brien 25, and James King, both of Peterborough, face similar charges.

Douglas was released on $2,000 bail.

Farm Prospects Next Few Years Look Good

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 8 — (CP) — Farm prospects for the next two or three years look good, but there is less optimism about the long-term outlook, Dr. H. L. Patterson, economics branch manager of the Ontario Agriculture Department said here Tuesday night.

Addressing 125 Veterans' Land Act officials on the second day of their 10-day conference, Dr. Patterson thought wheat, coarse grains and cheese prices will hold quite steady, while other dairy products will tend to move into line with cheese. Eggs and hogs prices will raise somewhat due to increased domestic consumption.

Dr. Patterson said "We are emerging from the post - war period of erratic price fluctuations into a reconstruction era of relatively stable price structure, the normal pattern following a war."

He said this period usually lasts seven or eight years and is followed by a "violent price drop and a severe depression."

Route of Highway Through Ontario Given Ottawa

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— The Ontario government has notified the Federal government of the route it prefers for the Trans-Canada highway through Ontario, an authoritative source told the Canadian Press Tuesday.

This source said that Ontario submitted several alternative routes in event the first choice was not approved.

The Ontario choice was not revealed and it was stated that the route may not be announced until final agreement is reached between all the provinces and the Dominion on the coast-to-coast route.

Several routes through Northern Ontario were urged on the provincial government by the areas affected. One is around the north shore of Lake Superior and another follows Highway No. 11 from North Bay to Cochrane and west to Nipigon.

In Ottawa, officials of the resources and development department said that some communications have been received from Highways Minister Doucett of Ontario, but no final decision has been made on the route through Ontario.

Reconstruction Minister Winters had adopted the policy of leaving to the provinces announcements of the routes chosen by them.

VOTE REPEAL OLEO TAXES

Washington, March 8—(AP)— Repeal of all federal taxes on oleomargarine which date back 64 years, was voted finally by the House of Representatives Tuesday, 262 to 106. Quick Senate approval is expected to send the legislation to President Truman. Dairy state members went down fighting to the last, lambasting what they called "The Oleo Trust."

COWBOY ACTOR DIES

Hollywood, March 8—(AP) Cowboy actor Jack Evans, 37, known as the "Mayor of Gower Gulch" died Tuesday. The veteran actor was a familiar figure in the vicinity of Sunset Boulevard and Gower Street, a section where film cowboys spend much of their time between pictures.

Asks Govt. Grant Appeal of Count De Bernonville

Ottawa, March 8. (CP)—Jean Francois Pouliot (L-Temiscouata) asked Tuesday night in the Commons that the government grant the appeal of Count de Beronville against a recent deportation order.

Joining a Foreign Affairs debate, he said he would rely on the sense of Justice of Citizenship Minister Harris to deter him from taking a step which he might regret to the rest of his life.

The appeal of de Bernonville, being deported for his entry into Canada on a forged passport, now is before Mr. Harris.

Mr. Pouliot said many charges had been made against de Bernonville. He did not know the man, but he did know that it was easy to make charges.

It had been said that de Bernonville had been responsible for the deaths of Canadian soldiers, but no names had been given.

"Who are these Canadians who are said to have died on account of de Bernonville?" he asked.

He said that the area of France in which de Bernonville had been convicted of wartime charges in absentia was under "complete" communist control.

Siamese Twins Born With Tops Of Heads Joined

Sydney, Australia, March 8 — (AP) — Erskine Smith, father of girl Siamese twins" born Saturday with the top of their heads joined, said today he would "rather have seen them die at birth than grow up like they are."

Erskine, a timberman and father of five other children, told reporters he had seen the twins in the hospital at Wynyard Town Tasmania, where they were born "It was a frightful shock," he said.

Dr. John Starr, who delivered the twins, said they were perfectly healthy and the rest of their bodies were normal. He added, however, that it would be "practically impossible to separate them."

The babies are joined head to head at the top of the skull "as if you stood one headfirst on the other," the doctor explained.

The father said he hoped to take the twins to Melbourne or Sydney for possible treatment.

"If just one of them could be saved without anything happening, I would like it," the father said.

Old Scribbler Record of Miners' Classes 1920-24

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — In an old school scribbler on display at the Prospectors' and Developers' Association convention here is written much of the success story of Northern Ontario mining.

Owned by the Ontario Mines Department, the book is the record of special prospector classes held from 1920 to 1924 by the late Dr. William Lawton Goodwin. Similar classes still are held.

The names on pages now browning with age include those of Bert Ashley, discoverer of Ashley Mine in Bannockburn township; J. P. Bickell, mining man and financier; F. O. Bidgood of Bidgood Mine; Alan Cockeram, a Central Patricia executive; W. B. Airth, mining engineer; the late Russell Cryderman, who with his father discovered the Gerson and Leitch Mine; Lorne Howey of Howey Gold Mines; a trapper named Ed. H. Horne, who found the Horne — later Noranda —mine; and Charles La Bine, discoverer of the Uranium mine on Great Bear Lake.

Also enrolled in those first classes, conducted at Kirkland Lake, Haileybury and other Northern Ontario mining centres was Tom Montgomery, who stumbled on some good-looking ore in the root of an upturned tree and developed it into the Waite-Amulet Mine. Other students were Fred G. McLeod, of the McLeod-Cockshutt Mine; Dan Williams of Cochenor-Williams Mine; and Tom Saville and Pat McDonough, two of the North's best-known prospectors.

The name of Gertrude Oakes, later Lady Oakes, appears in the list of the 1922 class. Her husband, later Sir Harry Oakes, made a fortune in northern mining ventures.

The Golden Shoestring

Faith Baldwin

He said "you may as well know that during the week Amenly stayed here until he wangled a plane reservation. I saw him ran into him in a bar. He was plastered. He forgot my share in his abrupt departure from Nanlols, and he didn't know, when he rang up people he'd met and who'd asked him to come see them, why they were so terribly busy. Nor that I'd had a hand in that. Not," he added hastily, "for Chris' sake nor for yours.'

"Naturally."

"Anyway I took him back to the Royal, sat out on the lanai with him and listened to his maudlin maunderings about Lilla. I would have knocked his teeth out except that it made no sense. If she'd told me…"

Terry said "there wasn't much to tell. Tom took care of Roger, you know, on the mainland. It went on rambling, so when he saw an opportunity to come here as our guest he seized it. I don't know what he expected to accomplish. And I didn't know then what had happened between Lilla and Roger, Jack. Chris didn't tell me. But long ago, Lilla did. You see, she told Alex too. So it wasn't Chris who fought the foolish little dragon, it was Lilla. By telling Alex she drew the dragon's teeth, if dragons have teeth, and put out the fire."

"Amenly didn't mention Alex, he kept raving about Chris' and his interference."

"Take my word for it, it wasn't Chris. Not that he wouldn't have interfered had it been necessary."

"I feel like a chump," said Jack. "A lot of good Bourbon — for which I paid — went down the Amenly hatch."

"Back on Nanlola," said Terry carefully, "the day you left, your mother told Chris that his greatest fault was vanity or, if he preferred, pride. It must be a Russell trait. You have it too."

"Me!"

She said vigorously, "I sometimes think that the old malaise-ary blood—it had to be strong stuff to accomplish all that it did, no matter what side of the record you've been reading, and I've read it all, I spend my spare time catching up on what went on a hundred or more years ago — I sometime, think that after a few generations it turned neurotic. Look at Chris…" She hesitated, there was not much she could say without hurting Cordelia, but there was a little, and could soften, even falsify it perhaps, for a good purpose. "Most of Chris' difficulties," she said finally "have been from jealousy he wouldn't admit, of you, who were so secure in your parents affection, and of his brother. He hadn't much of a life as a kid. He was always homesick and conscious of his lack of roots. He envied you yours, and later, your cleverness, your success. He envied Bob. Yet he need not have done so, because Bob wasn't happy. Chris had known that for some time. Yet all the while you envied him. I don't know what his gypsy life perhaps, the medals — which are forgotten now—his freedom, and finally the rich wife! Well, you were wrong. He wasn't satisfied with his life nor his freedom, and the rich wife didn't exist. I suppose the trouble is that he admired you enough to believe that he dislikes you. You two have just carried the old feud into your adult lives."

"Chris admire me? You're crazy! He thinks that whatever I've done has been handed me on a silver platter."

"He never thought that," she said gravely, "for he knows enough about this business to know that it couldn't be so. Also he knows your father. If he could believe that. he wouldn't care. But he knows that, since the start—and no one can find fault with that man — they've you've made yourself very valuable quite by your own efforts. He wants to be valuable too. It's the old struggle again, but not for mastery this time. Help him to win it, in ten years, in twenty. And you can help, simply by not trying to hinder. For you have something Chris has never had, you have self-confidence."

He shook his head. "You're all wrong. He was always the most cocksure, the most arrogant—"

"That isn't self-confidence," said Terry with its opposite." She looked at him and spoke a whole truth. "Jack, if you had been born a poor man you would have made your way. Not quite as soon, but as surely. You would have believed in yourself and your job, whatever it was. You didn't need the Russells, you need no one but yourself. For the job comes first with you. Everything else is subordinate to it. Lilla would have been, any woman you might have married, any woman you will marry. I discovered that about you very soon. I dare say Chris will never get as far, nor that the job will mean as much. But he can go a long way and I'm going to help him. And now it's been more than five minutes."

He rose as she did, and held out his hand and she put her own in it. He asked "how did you know I'd be alone here?"

"I knew Uncle Hugo was at an HSPA meeting," she said demurely. "So I phoned you secretary."

He released her hand. "Okay Terry, I'll drive over Saturday night to dinner."

That was all, but it was, she thought, enough. He would not speak of this to Chris, there was every reason why he should not.

Terry felt very tired as if she had been engaged in a struggle. She would be late meeting Lilla. She must commit a small extravagance.

The boy who drove her taxi had a carnation lei around his hat too, and a racial mixture we one which defied her. The tourists were flocking to Honolulu, you saw them on the street, you could see them at Waikiki, lying on the beach, or trying, usually without success, to master the arc of he's surfboard, you could see them evening at the hotels and clubs, dancing to a Hawaiian orchestra, or grind out-to a luau…

But she was not a tourist.

The Royal Hawaiian, old Royal on Diamond Head was a vast wooden structure, pleasant and old-fashioned set in tropical gardens and dreaming in the sun, It is much smaller than the Great Hotel on Tantalus. Today the top of Tantalus was wreathed in clouds and showers were over the valleys.

Lilla was waiting for her with Mrs. Peterson, a big handsome woman who suffered from a slight cardiac ailment and who shortly after lunch excused herself and went upstairs to rest. Lilla and Terry sat there talking. They had seen each other quite often, the two plantation's were not very far apart, and Lilla had come over to Nanlola when Terry moved into the little frame house on the wide plantation street.

They talked of places and of people as the lights and shadows shifted on the sea and a plane went roaring overhead.

Lilla said "I still can't get used to the sudden sound of planes. For just a minute I'm back in a nightmare."

She was back in it now, the terror, the rage and anguish, the blood and the courage, the betrayal and panic, and the marvelous sense of unity. She added after a minute "I wish you'd been here before the war. It has changed so greatly—I don't mean just physically."

It was impossible for Terry to know, no matter how much she had heard of the war years.

Terry said "I've a project. They are helping me at the library. I'm reading all I can about the Islands, past and present. It isn't enough to pick up a few words, which every tourist learns, or to manage the train of the bibelot your mother gave me, or to get my local geography straight. I want to belong here for a while."

Lilla said "you will, I know. I haven't seen you in how long, a couple of weeks? So I haven't told you, we are going to adopt a baby, Alex and I. It may be a long time before we get one, but we'll wait." She smiled, looking. Terry thought, particularly beautiful. "How about you? she inquired.

Terry flushed. She said, "not quite yet. Of course I didn't even consider it until recently. Then the last thing we should do was have a baby. Hostesses hire baby sitters, but if you came for a weekend or sit with your own baby…" She shrugged, and went on, "but after I learn how to keep house properly, after Chris is more settled and after—"

"Don't wait too long."

"I shan't. I suppose I couldn't plan to have my first child born on Nanlola," she said, "No I suppose that's out of the question. But I'd like it, Nanlola," she said "beautiful life."

Later a while Lilla drove her up Tantalus. It had rained, but now the sun shown again and Cordelia was waiting for them. She said severely "you're late."

"Not very. Are Uncle Hugo and Jack home?"

"Not yet. Why?"

PREPARING TO KEEP ORDER IN TURBULENT FRANCE

A squad of security guards, members of the "Companies Republicaines de Securite," are seen rehearsing roadblock operations near Paris, France. These men of the C.R.S. are behind the firmness of the government in dealing with Communist threats to sabotage U.S. arms shipments to France and from France to threatened colonies. The wave of strikes and disorders fomented by the Communists is believed to be part of the Communist plan. Despite recent fist fights and other disorders the French National Assembly came nearer to adoption of a law providing long prison terms for saboteurs participating in any act detrimental to national defence. —Central Press Canadian.

FRANKFORD

Race for Fourth Place in Loop Tightened by Win

Frankford — Frankford Bowling League moved a night closer to playoffs last week in Trenton, with the race for fourth place the hardest fought-for position in the league. The Aristocrats knocked the Greenhorns out of that position, by taking five points from them, but the Happy Gang moved into a fourth place tie as they took seven from the Skylliners. Top Hatters knocked the Merry Macs down for five, and the Uniques took five from the Head Pins.

Considers Protest

A meeting of the executive of the Trent Valley Hockey League was held in Batawa Sunday, to consider a protest entered by Campbellford on the first game of the Campbellford - Frankford playoff series, which Frankford won two games to one. The basis of the protest was that the winning goal was called by the referee without consulting the goal judge, who could not see the play because of a scramble around the net. The referee saw the entire play, and declared a goal. The Campbellford Hockey team, and most of the executive refused to have any part of the protest, since they considered that they were beaten fairly. However, the protest was entered, but upon presentation to President Duncan and the league executive, it was thrown out.

Hurls Arm

It seems that the celebration and gaiety of Friday night's victory over Campbellford was a little too much for Albert Warren. In his enthusiasm over the game, Al slipped and fell against the boards of the arena, and injured his arm to the extent that he will be wearing a sling for a few days. Al's many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Car Skidded Off Road

A hockey game seems to get more people into difficulty. Friday night, Bill Madill, of Frankford, and Gordon Richardson from Stirling district made the trip to Campbellford as did almost everyone else in this part of the country. While they were gone, the two wives remained at the Richardson residence. As we all know, the game went well into overtime, which would have in itself kept the two sports fans quite late. However, fate was to be even more cruel, for their car skidded off the road into a deep bank of snow. After trying vainly to arouse a farmer from his profound slumber, they walked a mile in the twenty below weather to the next farm. After some time, the farmer came to their rescue with a team. It was well along in the wee hours of the morning that the two adventurers arrived at the Richardson home, where two very worried wives had been pacing the floor for several hours.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Ole King Hockey's come and gone,
And left a trail of moaners.
But, hark, the cry rings near and far,
"Bring on the Grunt and Groaners".

Margaret's Ark

That's just about right. This city, one of the more flaming wrestling centres in this part of Upper Canada, is again developing its appetite for the drammer, blood-letting and excitement of the punching pachyderms. Now high links and excitement of the punching pachyderms. Now high links and excitement is more or less kaput-in these parts, something ert to be done to keep the faithful from cutting paper dolls, going yo-yo wacky or pinochle-punch drunk until the draw worms poke inquisitive heads above ground or the seed catalogues arrive in the mail.

* * *

However, 'twill likely be a long day before the Arena again resounds to the screeches, yipes, wows and muttered anathemas of the followers of the lame and bald-cord brigade. But that fact apparently has not disturbed the demand for a resumption of the Beef Trust. We have had a number of inquiries regarding the matter, but slack and alas, it is beyond our jurisdiction.

* * *

Speaking of the eye-gouging, tonsil-twisting proletariat, some new and novel faces have appeared in rings of the continent and among them is the piece of pachydermic pulchritude who has dubbed himself Georgeous George. Georgie has platinum - blonde curly hair which, Hollywood hair stylist puts it in different and daring fashion for every match. A few of the styles he has worn have been the "Lucille Ball", the "Joan of Arc" bob and a combination of up-swept hair and curls that is peculiarly his own.

Georgeous wears silk dressing gowns trimmed in lace, ermine, freshly picked rose petals or anything else in the elegant line. He owns a wardrobe of more than 100 robes, no less than the other, ranging in price from $200 to over $1000. He never wears the same robe twice, in the same ring.

And he has a valet, Jackson, who sprays his opponents and the mat with a perfume-scented disinfectant. Instead of giving out autographs he gives his fans gold "Georgie Pins" set makes a special point of saying, "These are 'Georgie Pins,' not bobby pins!"

Georgeous George (he had the name legalized in 1943) was born in Houston, Texas, 32 years ago. His real name is Wagner. He has been wrestling since he was 14, starting in the YMCA and small clubs around Houston. He turned professional when he was 17 and stumbled his way up through the middle-weight and light-heavyweight classes.

* * *

During a match one night he had his leg broken. All wrestlers live in constant fear of such an injury. It usually means that time off the payroll for several months and that in one well mean the permanent end of a successful career. But whenever George thinks of a thing he hasn't got he lets it bother him three times to the East, for it was while his leg was mending that he had the time to do two important things—marry a girl with a fortune and take a more profitable heavyweight, and he began thinking about developing some sort of an "act" that would set him apart from other wrestlers.

* * *

A good act is as important to modern wrestlers as it is to vaudeville performers. A present-day wrestling act consists of a spectacular hold, a special entrance and the introduction of a specialty man at all three. Since George's invention of the "valet," the other boys have gone nearly daft in their efforts to bring up more and more outlandish types and sartstants, the latter running to monocled and tuxedoed seconds, "slave-girl" towel holders, et al.

* * *

Ever since he was a child, George has had the urge to be different. He always wanted to be different, as he is. When he walks down a city street, his hair done in the latest styles and wearing street clothes that are just slightly less gaudy than the robes he wears in the wrestling rings, he creates a sensation.

* * *

Every article of George's ring wardrobe is genuine. The ermine in his robe is real ermine, the gold velvet in his robes are the most expensive silk and velvet; the lace in his 200 lace handkerchiefs is real lace.

About three years ago, George descended on Los Angeles in much of his present glory. One thing he did change, though. He was wearing his hair in the current color, which is dark brown. He had it dyed what he called a "Lucille Ball Red," which he wore for a year. His present blonde shade is now two years old.

* * *

It will be many a moon before the georgeous one shows his wares here if he ever does, but the wrestling faithful can get a splendid view of the be-scented, bejeweled, be-valeted darling of the ring in action if they visit the Capitol Theatre Thursday, Friday or Saturday. Georgie is starred in his first movie "Alias the Champ" and it is reported to be right up the alley of the wrestling fan.

WHAT AGAIN?

Toronto Maple Leafs, it became known yesterday, have put the snatch on a promising junior puck prospect Detroit Red Wings were scouring for their own use in the National Hockey League.

The player is Eddie Stankiewicz, a Kitchener lad who is playing on the forward line this season for Windsor Spitfires in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior 'A' series. The Spitfires are sponsored by the Red Wings but Stankiewicz had not signed a contract. When the Leafs learned that they promptly put the player on their negotiating list. Under N.H.L. rules, they are within their rights to his professional services.

THE HEAT IS ON

The die has been cast. CNR Diesels and Northern Electric will definitely meet in their titanic, as one waggish fan has dubbed it, struggle in Memorial Arena Friday night. It is the third game of their long-deferred District Hockey League three-of-five finals series, with the Diesels being two games up on the round. Oil-burners are confident they will end the matter there and then on Friday, but the Planters are equally sure they will not only win the game but extend the series to the limit. In any event it will be a jolly old battle, Starts at 8:30.

Remaining Games in Shedule Likely to Produce Some of Toughest Games of Season

The remaining games of the National Hockey League schedule are likely to produce some of the toughest battles of the season, as the Stanley Cup contenders jockey for position.

Detroit, Toronto, Montreal and New York appear to have clinched the play-off spots, with Boston still clinging to a faint hope. But the struggle now is between second and third positions, and they're all close.

Tonight New York Rangers play at Chicago Black Hawks, and Detroit Red Wings entertain Boston Bruins. Tomorrow Toronto to Maple Leafs travel to Montreal Canadiens and Detroit entertain New York.

Detroit is solid in first place, with 74 points. Toronto is second with 66, Montreal third with 62 and New York holds the last play-off spot with 61 points. Boston is eight points behind with only three games to go. Chicago 15 points behind New York with 10 games to date, they pottered nothing more serious than a ballot for an "all-opponents" team.

Team Selected

They selected goalie Bill Durnan of Montreal; defencemen Jack Stewart and Leo Reise of Detroit; forwards Sid Abel and Ted Lindsay of Detroit and Maurice Richard of Montreal.

That's a pretty good team in anyone's books. The Rangers of course were left getting in ahead of the official balloting for the NHL trophies, Team coaches now start selecting their choices for the all-star team, with each player on the first team getting $1-00 and on the second team $500 from the league.

The sports writers and broadcasters also can begin balloting on the Hart Trophy for the most valuable player; the Lady Byng trophy for the most gentlemanly and effective player; and the Calder Memorial trophy for the best rookie.

Two other trophies are the Vezina, which goes automatically to the goalkeeper who has played most games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it, and the Art Ross trophy, an award put up two seasons ago for the leading point getter.

Armstong Wins Tilson Trophy For Second Time

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — George Armstrong, centre, and centre star of Toronto Marlboros Juniors, has been named winner of the Dave Tilson Memorial trophy for the second time in three years. The trophy is awarded annually to the player judged most gentlemanly and effective in the Junior Ontario Hockey Association.

Sports writers of the eight Ontario centres represented in the Junior 'A' loop gave the native of Skead, Ont., an overwhelming majority, 66 points, for the award donated by the Toronto Globe and Mail in memory of Red Tilson, a pre-war star-with Oshawa Generals who was killed in the Second World War.

Sports writers outside Toronto were allowed nine points for a first place vote, six for a second and three for third. Toronto writers were allowed six points for first place, four for second and two for third, because Toronto has two teams, Marlboro and St. Michaels.

Eight players were nominated for the award. Jon Switzer, diminutive centre star of St. Catharines Teepees, received 21 points for second place. Earl Reibel, holder of the Junior O.H.A. scoring record with 72 points, and Glen Skov, both of Windsor Spitfires, took third and fourth places.

Other in order were Lorne Howes, Hamilton Mikes; Ben Plumb, Guelph Biltmores; Dinny Flanagan, Stratford Kroehlers and Eddie Stankiewicz, Windsor Spitfires.

Contracted to Leafs

The 19-year-old Armstrong — called Jar-Jar by his teammates — won the trophy in the 1947-48 season with 49 points for Stratford Kroehlers. Gil Mayor won it last year as goaltender for Barrie Flyers.

Under contract to Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Armstrong burned up the ice this season and scored 110 scoring points, made up of 64 goals and 51 assists, the highest point total in the loop. He brought his three-year total to 136 goals and 136 assists, the highest ever attained in a three-year junior hockey career.

His last year's junior hockey ended last night when Marlboros were eliminated by Barrie Flyers competition by Windsor Spitfires. The Windsor team won the semi-final series in four games to one.

Here's the way the writers voted:

Laurie Brain, Galt Reporter-Reibel, Switzer, Armstrong. Chick Knox, Stratford Beacon-Herald — Reibel, Armstrong, Flanagan, Ben McLeod, Guelph Mercury — Armstrong, Armstrong, Armstrong. George Storey Barrie Examiner — Armstrong, Switzer, Howes. Clayton Brown, St. Catharines Standard — Switzer, Armstrong, Reibel. George Campbell, Oshawa Gazette — Armstrong, Switzer, Howes. Gerry Dulmage, Toronto Telegram — Armstrong, Howes, Reibel. Gordon Campbell, Toronto Star — Armstrong, E. Plumb, G. Cox. Graydon Walker, Toronto Globe and Mail — Armstrong, Switzer, Howes.

GEN. CHEN CHENG NOMINATED

Asipei, Formosa, March 7 — (AP) — Gen. Chen Cheng, 52, apple-cheeked pint-sized foe of communism, Tuesday was nominated Premier of Nationalist China by President Chiang Kai-Shek, his long-time friend.

The five-foot, two-inch Chen seemed assured of the required approval of the Legislative Yuan. There had been some opposition earlier.

Suzanne Morrow In Fourth Place Of Championship

London, March 8 —(CP)—Canada's hopes for distinction in the world figure skating championships were lost today as the slender shoulders of blonde Suzanne Morrow—but the girl from Toronto has an enormous job on her hands.

In the women's free skating competition tonight, she will have to outscore the defending world queen, black-haired Aja Vrzanova of Czechoslovakia, by 35 points, and also pass second-place Jeanette Altwegg of Britain and third place Yvonne Sherman, the North American champion from New York.

The other Canadian entry in the women's event, Marlene Smith of Niagara Falls, Ont., was down in ninth place among the 14 contestants and appeared too far off the pace to make any impression on the leading quartet.

In Tuesday's wide-open compulsory school figures, Miss Vrzanova edged Miss Altwegg by a few decimal points.

In her bid to win the gold medal once held by Ostawa's Barbara Ann Scott, the Toronto Skating Club star was in the thick of the fight for the lead during the fourth and fifth figures, but a "good" instead of a "very good" in the fifth figure left her with no chances of coming closer.

After Tuesday's compulsory figures, the unofficial point-totals of the top four were: Miss Vrzanova 790.61; Miss Altwegg 786.71; Miss Sherman 782.48; and Miss Morrow 766.34.

Miss Morrow represents Canada's last hope after the failure of Vancouver's Roger Wickson to finish better than eighth as peerless Dick Button of Englewood, N.J., clinched his third straight men's world title.

Wickson was well beaten but not disgraced by the incomparable Button and Canada's skaters, at least three of whom might be world champions in their own right but for the Harvard student's phenomenal skill.

Button piled up an amazing 884.76 points out of a possible 1012.3 in last night's free skating for his over-all total with Monday's compulsory figures of 1-419.47 points. Perfect marks would be 1,537.2.

McFater Wins 8-Round Decision Over Lou Alter

By The Canadian Press

Hard-hitting Alan McFater of Toronto won an unanimous eight-round decision over veteran Lou Alter of Montreal in the headline bout of a professional boxing card before 8,100 fans at Toronto Tuesday night.

McFater, 138 pounds, dropped Alter, 128, in the second round for a nine-count but the Montrealer came back in the fifth and seventh rounds with a good rally.

A closing flurry of punches at McFater just before the final bell clinched the decision.

Billy Fifield, 161, Toronto, won the decision over Chuck Roselle of Detroit in the eight-round semi-final. Roselle weighed 162 pounds.

Preliminary results (all scheduled six rounder) James J. Parker, Toronto, 191, knocked out Lloyd Michigan, 213, Detroit, in the fourth round; Dave Mitchell, 129, Toronto, knocked out Tony Bagowski, 132, Detroit, in the first round and Eddy Zastre, 173 Winnipeg and Montreal declared Billy Lawton, 168, Detroit.

Four Hamilton Thistle rinks and a single from Hamilton Victorias were still in the running for the spectacular trophy today after the third round of the first event of the annual Hamilton bonspiel was completed.

A. Ross Tarlton's Thistle four-some were favorites to cop first honors in the four day bonspiel as his rink waltzed through the second and third rounds.

Jack Gray was named Tuesday the 1950 winner of the University of Toronto's George M. Biggs Memorial trophy as the student who had contributed most to University athletics from the standpoint of leadership, sportsmanship and performance.

Pitcher Howie Pollet of St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night joined six other top major-league ball players in ending a long holdout session, leaving only a dozen holders. Pollet came to terms with owner Fred Saigh of St. Louis and will report to St. Petersburg, Fla., Thursday to sign his contract and start training with the Redbirds. It is believed he will receive $25,000 or $26,000, including attendance bonuses.

Outboard motors don't scare the fish, says Dr. Reid F. Lagler, University of Michigan zoologist. Dr. Lagler has the results of a scientific experiment to back him up.

University researchers assigned three men to fish in a natural lake, six hours a day for 66 days, but Lagler told the North American Wild Life conference at San Francisco. Every other day an outboard motor boat swished past each fisherman twice every half hour. On the alternate days the boat was withheld. On these "quiet" days the catch by the three men averaged only one more fish every 10 hours of fishing than the average catch when the boat was used.

Joey Maxim, light heavyweight champion, will make his next big fight in England but after that he'll be willing to take on anyone, Manager Jack (Doc) Kearns said Tuesday.

"We'll defend our title for Jack Solomons (British promoter) if he wants us to and we expect to meet the winner of the Bruce Woodcock-Lee Savold fight," said Kearns. "After that Joey will be ready to fight Ezzard Charles (the National Boxing Association Champion), Joe Louis or anyone. We don't care. I'm going to prove Joey is the No. 1 heavyweight contender."

Hein Ten Hoff, German heavyweight boxing champion, said Tuesday he will meet Jersey Joe Walcott of Camden, N.J., at Mannheim, Germany, May 7. Ten Hoff told a press conference that he has received a signed contract from Walcott agreeing to the bout.

Dominique Chenard of Le Bic Quebec Tuesday night won the Canadian bucksaw championship and tied for the combined buck-saw and woodchopping title at competition held in conjunction with the Montreal Sportsmen Exhibition. Yvon Larochelle of Norands, Ont., captured the woodchopping event and was runner-up for the buckaw crown. Chenard is expected to be awarded the combined title at a meeting of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association committee today. The C.P.P.A. is sponsoring the annual competition between employees of Ontario, Quebec and Maritime paper companies.

Competitors had to saw or chop 10-inch green spruce logs and were given points for speed style and the overall result.

Harold Gross, 45, active in Kitchener-Waterloo sports circles for several years, died Monday night, following an active participation in hockey for some years. He was formerly coach of several teams in the Maritime Provinces.

Night baseball was assured at St. Thomas Monday night when city council Tuesday night accepted the tender of a local firm to install floodlights at Pinafore Park for $25,906. The park is the home of the Eagles team which plays in the senior inter-county loop.

The 1951 annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters will be held at Ottawa next January, it was announced at a meeting of the Ottawa Fish and Game Association Tuesday night.

SCORES PAIR OF GOALS

Valleyfield, Que., March 8 — (CP) — Sparked by Andre Corriveau with a pair of goals, Valleyfield Braves eked out a 7-2 decision over Quebec Aces here Tuesday night in the opening game of a best-of-five Quebec Senior Hockey League quarter-final series.

Veteran Jimmy Haggarty notched the other Valleyfield goal while Dick Gamble and Ludger Tremblay were the Quebec snipers.

Marchildon Most Advanced Hurler In Training Camp

Palm Beach, Fla., March 8 — (AP)— Phil Marchildon, the pitcher Philadelphia Athletics tried to get rid of during the winter trading season, is out to show Connie Mack he still has plenty on the ball.

Already Marchildon, a native of Penetanguishene, Ont., is the most advanced pitcher in camp, the A's coaches agree, and so close to being the same free-throwing right-hander who won 19 games for the second-division Macks in 1947 that teammates are forecasting bad news ahead for American League batters.

Dick Fowler of Toronto summed up the A's feelings Tuesday by saying: "We're really going to be rough this year if Marchildon is as good as I think he's going to be."

CHANGES OF HISTORY

Bleepham, Kent, England (CP) — This town, which can trace its history back to 788, claims to have had more name variations than any other place. The name has been recorded at various times spelt in 15 different ways. It's pronounced "Meppam."

Winnipeg March 8 (CP)—Curling might be a good game to watch but it certainly makes dull reading. Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan thinks.

The Tribune sports editor terms curling a better spectator attraction than bridge from the kibitzer's standpoint. "Sitting behind the glass, he can see every play and criticize every shot, which he invariably does."

Tony says that many sports announcers make curling a good one. Then he adds, that it's another matter when it comes to putting a curling match down on paper.

"They mention a couple of crucial shots that the losing skip missed, point out that the winner cracked a four on the sixth end, and let it go at that. If you didn't see the game, the story gives you no picture at all.

"As for the column upon column of results, we print them because . . . well, we have always printed them, but it strikes us as a criminal waste of space."

Underground Ice Arena

Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith says that he has seen a lot of strange suggestions but one of the strangest is from a chap who wrote in with the idea that an underground artificial ice skating arena be built in Winnipeg.

"He figures it would be the real thing during the summer heat-waves and a grand attraction for tourists," says Smitty, who adds . . . "maybe he's got something at that with H-bombs and what not."

SENATORS RALLY TO WIN

Ottawa, March 8 (CP)— Ottawa Senators came from behind Tuesday night to shade Chicoutimi Saguenerens 3-2 and take the opening game of their best-of-five Quebec Senior Hockey League quarter-final series before 4,000 fans.

The second game will be played at Chicoutimi Thursday with the third back here next Saturday.

Buddy Hellyer, Nils Tremblay and Emile Dagenais counted for the Senators, while Johnny Murdoch and Stan Smrke scored for the losers.

BOOBY BAUER OUT

Kitchener, March 8. (CP)— Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen are faced with the prospect of playing out the finals of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A playoffs without the services of veteran Bobby Bauer.

Injured in the first game of the series which Toronto Marlboros won 5-3, it was learned Tuesday the former National Leaguer suffered a torn knee ligament when tended by Gord Hannigan. The Club doctor said Bauer would be out of action for at least ten days.

Ontario Rink Favored to Win Curling Title

Vancouver, Mar. 8 —(CP)— A new touch—perhaps only temporary—was added Tuesday to the Canadian Curling Championship as Ontario rinks finished fourth-round matches in the top slots.

Carl Asmussen's Kitchener, Ont; quartet showed a clean sheet with four straight victories. The other, from Kirkland Lake, Ont., had only one loss while Western rinks, who in previous years have dominated this big-league competition, weren't in position to challenge immediately.

That is the picture today as the 10 rinks beaded into the home stretch in the four-day round-robin tournament.

Five rinks, each with a two-and-two won-lost record, followed the Ontario clubs—Quebec, Nova Scotia, British Columbia and the pre-spiel favorites Manitoba and Alberta. Three others—Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan—headed into this afternoon's fifth round with one victory in four starts.

The big game of today's draw will bring together Asmussen and Rick against the foursome skipped by Tom Ramsay of Northern Ontario.

Plays Careful Brand

Ramsay, playing a careful brand of curling, suffered his lone defeat, a close 13-12 loss, in the initial round to Cliff Maughan of Edmonton, skipping the Alberta crew. A long for the young Kitchener crew today would be the leadership while a loss for Ramsay's rink would give Ontario almost a clear road to the title.

Asmussen's rink won seven provincial playoff games to qualify for the championship.

This is the first championship appearance for the 45-year-old federal government employee who has been curling for 10 years. Third Fay Shantz, a life insurance executive, has been curling 17 years while his first and second rock a little less experienced.

Their victories Tuesday, 11-7 over British Columbia and an easy 13-5 triumph over Nova Scotia, indicates the rink can handle almost any kind of a game. But Cully Schmidt, second said later he did not feel they had played their best curling yet.

Asmussen has been consistent in his draw play, pulling the rink out of holes with good shots when front-man number or take-out shots failed. The Iowa-born skip met Ramsay last November though neither had the same rinks and won.

SUNLIGHT DISPLACED

Oslo — (CP) — Producers of salted dried fish here are becoming increasingly interested in specially-built drying plants rather than the old method of sun-drying for processing fish. Such plants are already in operation and an industrial laboratory is at present constructing an experimental plant for testing the effects on filets of temperature and atmosphere changes.

THE TOBACCO HABIT

Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia (CP) — Tobacco farmers in the Enkeldoorn area, in Southern Rhodesia, are having trouble with baboons. They pick the tobacco plants, strip the leaves and chew the stem like sugar cane.

London (CP)— Stan Squires, 40, Surrey all-rounder described as "one of the best cricketers who never played for England," has died here of leukemia.

Blunt and bespectacled, Squires didn't look like an athlete. But he could, on occasion, put together a brilliant innings, and was a capable slow off-break bowler.

He played for his county from 1928 onwards, turning professional in 1930. During the war he served as a flying officer in the RAF.

Stan scored more than 19,000 runs in first-class cricket and hit 37 centuries. His best batting performance was 236 against Lancashire in 1933. His last season was among his best. He made 1,785 runs, more than any other Surrey player.

Indifferent eyesight kept Squires from greatness. He rarely could see the ball soon enough to take a full-shouldered swing, and generally contented himself with artful left-cuts.

The noted cricket authority, Neville Cardus, wrote of Squires: "The wrists of Squires seem as sensitive and flexible as those of a violinist."

Soccer should introduce goal-judges like those who turn on the little red lights at hockey games, says Cliff Hale, former Chelsea and Fulham inside-forward and half-back now managing the Everton club.

There has been a spate of disputed decisions in Football Association Cup competition lately and Cliff thinks goal-judges to help the referee decide the doubtful ones would clear up the squabbling.

"Every season," he told reporters "clubs are left with grievances. Goal-judges would decide these things more satisfactorily and remove such grievances.

"Such a change would help referees, not only by easing their burden in the all-important goalmout but also by reducing their running about."

One pair of boxing gloves: £180 ($550).

That's what publican Freddie Bardens paid at a charity auction for the gloves used by Joey Maxim when he knocked the world light heavyweight crown off Freddie beetling brow at Freddie Mills.

Bardens said he'd hang the gloves behind his West End bar.

Graham King II, saw a football on a frozen pond at Southampton. He went to get it; the ice broke; a drenched and shivering Graham scrambled to a tiny island in the middle of the pond.

Police were called, broke the ice and rescued the lad by boat. But, before they set back for shore, they picked up the ball too. Graham went home clutching it.

SAINTS GO ONE UP

Sherbrooke, Que., March 8 — (CP)— Sherbrooke Saints earned a 4-1 victory over Montreal Royals here Tuesday night in the first game of a best-of-seven Quebec Senior Hockey League semi-final series.

Norm McAtee, Eddie Bush, Adjutor Cote and defenceman Bill Gadsby netted Sherbrooke goals while Gerry Desaulniers scored Montreal's lone tally.

Saints, who led the league standing for most of the 60 game schedule, held a wide margin in play, outshooting Royals 38-16.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Punctured romances in the play of hands bob up in a duplicate match. Proudly you hail the making of a contract. Then some killjoy points out a defence at another table that would prevent you.

West became the declarer at three no-trump in this deal:

NORTH
♠ J 10 4
♥ K 5
♦ K 10 7 4
♣ K Q 10 2

WEST EAST
♠ A Q 8 7 ♠ K
♥ A Q 6 4 ♥ J 9 8
♦ J 5 3 ♦ A Q 9 8
♣ 7 6 ♣ J 9 5 4 3

SOUTH
♠ 9 6 5 3 2
♥ 10 7 3 2
♣ A 8

Opening lead from north was the club king. This took trick one. A small club lead was then won by the south ace to count as trick two.

South returned a heart and west finessed. Trick three was thus captured by north with the heart king. Queen of clubs was then cashed by north for the fourth straight trick by defenders.

After this, however, declarer took the nine needed tricks with ease. They were two dummy clubs, three spades, three hearts, and a diamond. Not even a diamond finesse was needed.

After the match, many of the players congregated in the crying room for the customary post-mortems. Most of the west players smugly accepted this method of playing the contract.

Up spoke one player: "At our table, they did not hand it to us. North did not cash the club queen for trick four. Instead, he led a spade and that kept us from taking nine tricks."

So it did. Unable to take club tricks, declarer needs several diamond tricks. And the west hand lacks entries for enough diamond finesses. He is not able to get back to his hand often enough.

Came then a barrage of suggestions in an attempt to find enough tricks against such a defence. But all of them fell flat. None could find the answer to the spade return if club queen is not cashed.

Declarer can anticipate no club tricks. If he does, he realizes the need for several finesses in diamonds. He has a plan that takes nine tricks against any defence. Find it.

Hollywood, March 8—(AP)—Last night a portly old gent with an ever-present cigar and monocle was given a party. He was Charles Coburn, celebrating 60 years in show business.

"I can't remember wanting to be anything but an actor," the burn reflected as he gazed back over the years.

"I suppose my desire to be an actor originated when my mother read me stories about theatre people. The glamor and excitement of their lives intrigued me and I wanted to be like them."

At 13, he took his first theatrical job—as program boy in a theatre at Savannah, Ga. He graduated to usher and became manager at 18. Wanted to Act

"It was a huge theatre and we had names like Otis Skinner and Richard Mansfield," he recalled. "I remained manager for two years, but all the time I wanted to be an actor. . . .

"So I joined a stock company and got a few walk-on parts, enough to get oriented in the business. I thought I wanted to be a comic opera comedian. . . .

"That ambition died when I played Shakespeare. I became a Shakespearian actor for the next few years. During this period I met my wife. We were co-starred in "As You Like It" and decided simultaneously to get married and start our own company, which we had for 12 years."

Coburn declared the lowest ebb in his life came in 1937, when his wife died.

Movies Helped

"I was lost," he said. "There seemed to be nothing left, nothing to live for. Then I received an offer to do a picture ('Of Human Hearts'). I accepted.

"The movies gave me a new lease on life . . . In the past 13 years I've made 48 pictures and making a movie is still interesting to me."

Now nearing 72, Coburn is one of the few theatre actors in Hollywood. His salary is somewhere near $75,000 a picture and he makes three or four a year.

Starved Dog Eats Man's Body

Toronto, March 8 (CP) —The body of John (The Hermit) Wassman, mutilated by a hunger-crazed dog, was found Tuesday in the 77-year-old pensioner's shack in suburban North York township.

Police, summoned by neighbors who became alarmed when Wassman went 10 days without picking up his mail, shot the dog—a Doberman Pinscher—before entering the shack. Inside they found a second dog, dead from starvation.

Most of Wassman's body had been devoured, police said. Human bones were found on the floor near a stove.

"The place was completely wrecked," one officer said. It was not determined immediately whether one or both dogs attacked and killed the aged man or whether he died of natural causes.

Dr. F. Cruickshank, coroner, said no autopsy or inquest would be held.

AT THE CAPITOL — Gene Autry — The world's greatest cowboy star, currently is at the Capitol Theatre in Columbia's "Rim of the Canyon" co-starring Virginia Mayo, opening Thursday at the Capitol. Also on the same program, it's wrestling time with Gorgeous George in "Alias the Champ." Both hits are first city showings.

AT THE McCARTHY — "What Are You Going to do About It. . . ." Virginia Mayo tells Cagney he's been double-crossed by a gang member in this scene from Warner Bros.' "White Heat," at the McCarthy Theatre today.

Monticello, N.Y.—Mrs. Marie Gay, a high school teacher's wife was on her way to buy a new car.

She had the money right with her, in a cigar box. All $1,450 of it.

But just as she neared the automobile agency, a capricious wind lifted the top of the box. As she stood horrified, the wind whipped the money out of the box.

Some of the money scattered in the gutters, nearly burying it-self in dirty snow. Hundred dollar bills blew up the street.

Truckdrivers, motorists and passers-by started chasing the bills.

After her 20-odd helpers got through, the money was counted. It was all there—all $1,450 of it.

Mrs. Gay thanked everybody, went on to the auto dealer's, and bought her car.

London—The House of Commons ballet lovers had a problem today — how to be simultaneously at Covent Garden Opera House Thursday night for the gala show to be staged in French President Vincent Auriol and on duty for the Commons down between the government and Winston Churchill's Conservatives.

Those who had tickets for the ballet lamented that the two events should clash.

Party Whips, who enforce party discipline, went everyone to turn up to vote on Churchill's complaint of the government's steel nationalization plans.

Some had hopes that parliamentary rules would be suspended to make it possible to vote before or after the Covent Garden show.

Epsom, Surrey, England—Ernest Skilton, 67-year-old retired engineer, added 18 months ago to become a backyard poultry-keeper.

FOUR AIRMEN KILLED

Brisbane, March 8—(AP)— A Royal Australian Air Force Lincoln bomber crashed in flames in southeast of Queensland Tuesday killing four persons aboard. The plane smashed nose first into a field at Rosewood near Ipswich.

TESTIFIED AT U.S. HOUSE SPY PROBE

Former F.B.I. undercover agents Matthew Cvetic (left) and George E. Dietze, both of Pittsburgh, Pa., are seen as they conferred in Washington prior to Dietze's testimony at a closed session of the House Un-American Activities Committee on full details of his work as a secret government informant. He told House spy probers that Communists used his music and jewelry shop in Pittsburgh for six years as a secret meeting place. He also said that he met almost daily with Cvetic, but that neither knew the other was assisting the government. Dietze said he joined the party in 1944 and made regular reports to the F.B.I. on Communist activities in western Pennsylvania. — Central Press Canadian.

Two Deaf Parents Getting New Lease on Life

Preston, Ont., Mar. 8 (CP)— Two deaf parents and their year-old daughter are getting a new lease on life even though they're laying in hospital with severe burns.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Robertson lost their eight-year-old daughter, Carol, and their house last Wednesday when fire raged through the home they were visiting.

Tuesday, residents rallied to aid of the crippled couple — getting cash collections, a new home and furnishings.

When Carol died in the fire, the Robertsons lost all normal contact with their friends. Mr. Robertson is deaf and nearly blind. The mother is a deaf mute.

Town officials said Tuesday night that a fund for the family has topped $1,500 and donations still are pouring in. A new house will be built soon. Individuals have promised to supply furnishings.

The telefone rang for ma while we were eating supper, and she went to answr it, and pop reeched for more butter on account of ma not being there to hand it to him, and his arm rocked agenst his glass of water and spilt it all over the tablecloth, pop saying, Hgrer blanket to blazes and blast if to smithereens, look at that mess.

It's only water, pop, I said, and pop said, So is the ocean. According to your mother, it's a mistake to think water doesn't stane, and I know according to her, it's not a laffable mistake. And she's probably rite, because she's spent years in research in such matters, he said.

Do you want me to say it was my fault for not getting up to get you the butter, pop? I said, and pop said, Certainly not, I acted like a clown and I'll take my medecine like a man. How in Sam Hill could I of been so confoundedly careless, that's what baffles my limited intelligence, he said.

Which just then ma came back and saw the tablecloth, saying, Well, praise be, thank goodness.

Now my dear, if you're going to be hysterical, it's bad to diskize it and bottle it up like that, pop said, and ma said, Dont be silly. Now I have a good reasonable excuse to remove that cloth forever without even waiting till it's bad 2 or 3 days of use. If there's one thing that makes me feel poverty stricken it's a patched and darned tablecloth, I dont understand how I ever could of been absent minded enough to put it on the table. Believe me it goes strate into the rag bag, she said.

If there's any other little thing I can do for you, just name it, he said. pop said. I dont know what happy instinct told me that my playful little gesture would please you. I guess I'm just a remarkable man, he said.

RECOGNITION

2. Mr. Drew wants Canada to call the free nations together for the drafting of a common strategy to the Pacific, with this watchword: "Wake up before it's too-late!" Mr. Pearson thinks this would be pretty "futile and unwise" at a time when the United Kingdom and India already have indicated that they wouldn't be able to participate.

should follow U.S.

3. Mr. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, feels the government should follow the U.K. example and grant recognition to China. He also thinks that improvement of living standards throughout the world will do more than a rearmament program to ensure peace.

4. John Blackmore, Social Credit spokesman from Lethbridge, says the solution to the world's ills is in a scientific distribution of the world's goods, economic self-sufficiency for all countries and adoption of debt-free money.

On the question of a Pacific pact, Mr. Pearson pointed out that if the situation in the Pacific should change and should become analogous to the situation that obtained in the Atlantic when we proceeded to work out the North Atlantic Pact, then certainly we would have to reconsider our attitude toward this matter."

Donald Fleming, Conservative (PC-Peel), External Affairs spokesman for the official opposition, had stated that in the foreign affairs debate the dice were in a sense loaded against the opposition because they did not have access to the government's confidential information.

True To A Point

That was true up to a point, said Mr. Pearson, but the government tried to keep members informed on developments in the field of foreign affairs. If there were some particular problems bothering the opposition it should be prepared to consider showing them confidential information available.

It seemed to him that Mr. Drew had come to a "wrong conclusion" last Friday night when he said it appeared that a decision already had been taken. Mr. Drew based his conclusion on a statement made by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian spokesman on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

Mr. Drew had quoted Gen McNaughton as saying that further progress of the commission had been held up by the reluctance of the Russians to participate while Nationalist China was represented. However, the General had said, there was reason to expect that the meetings would resume when this difficulty was overcome.

Mr. Pearson said that Gen. McNaughton had been supporting a personal opinion.

Four Considerations To Study

Mr. Pearson said there were at least four considerations which would have to be studied in reconsideration of a representation:

1. The effectiveness of the authority of the new government.

2. The independence of the new government.

3. Ability and willingness to accept international obligations.

4. Acceptability to the people it presumes to govern.

Of the four, the last consideration was most important.

Mr. Pearson agreed with Mr. Drew that there must be no "appeasement" of the Soviets if Mr. Drew meant by that the "premature judicing (of) our own security or the security of the democratic world by making extorted and unnecessary concessions to a possible aggressor in the hope that it might keep him quiet."

While the government was aware of appeasement of that kind, it was also conscious of a duty to keep searching for some way out of the present impasse among the great powers.

Mr. Drew said he felt there should be in the Far East the same sort of military and economic program that now was being used in Europe to fight communism. This should take the form of an agreed strategy among Pacific nations.

Should Wake Up

He added:

"With what we can see taking place almost before our eyes in this house, and what can be seen in other similar parliaments I think at this time there should be an urgent appeal to wake up before it is too late and act together to save the peace for which so many men and women have died."

Mr. Coldwell agreed that Canada and other countries had its plan to rearm, but he suggested the challenge of communism will not be met until the living standards of peoples all over the world have been improved.

Jean Francois Pouliot, (L—Temiscamingue), without declaring himself for or against recognition, said that in international law the accepted fact was the thing that counted. It was an accepted fact that the Mao regime was in authority in China.

Alastair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) said a delay in the recognition of China was not only to give up by default the western leadership which the Chinese probably were expecting. Recognition of China was a matter of ideologies, but a question of a assessing certain facts.

LIVELY

Bryan Cathcart (PC—Lambton West) told the legislature that the Imperial Oil pipline from Edmonton to Superior, Wis., will mean almost $10,000,000 in contracts for Ontario firms. Steel plate would be rolled by the Steel Company of Canada and made into pipe by Page-Hersey Tubes, Ltd., of Welland. These contracts alone were worth $5,000,000, he said. It would also mean a $550,000 contract for a Port Erie Steel Works, a $500,000 contract for the fibreglass firm of Oshawa, a $650,000 contract for a Port Arthur company that makes enamel and priming solution, and a $107,000 contract for Foster Wheeler Ltd., at St. Catharines.

Transported for Refining

The oil will be transported from Superior to Sarnia for refining. The Imperial plant in Sarnia is prepared to handle 6,000 barrels a day, he said. The line would reduce imports of United States oil and save Canada $5,000,000 annually in United States dollars.

William Dennison (CCF—Toronto St. David) said that Ontario is headed for vast unsold surpluses of hydro-electric power. By 1953 there would be a surplus of 1,102,000 horsepower, he estimated. A surplus of 10 percent was reasonable safeguard against possible water shortage.

G. M. Challies, the minister responsible for hydro, said that Ontario's expanding industry would keep pace with available power. Between 1939 and 1949 the demand had increased 100 percent.

Injured in National Assembly, Riot

Francois de Menthon

Fist-swinging and kicking Communist deputies attacked and savagely beat up other deputies in a riotous session of the French National Assembly, held in Paris, and then defied efforts to eject them. Popular Republican Deputy Francois de Menthon suffered a broken jaw and possible internal injuries when he was kicked in the abdomen while three other Republican deputies who appeared to be the main targets of the Communists, along with de Menthon, were injured in the hectic fighting. Government spokesmen charged the Communist aim was to prevent passage of an anti-sabotage bill designed to safeguard American arms shipments which are due to start flowing to France this month.—Central Press Canadian.

15 PERSONS

The plane, a twin-engine Martin 2-0-2 Maru, was trying for an instrument landing here in gusty winds and swirling snow.

May Have Struck Pole

Mal Freeborn, N. W. A. operations executive, said he was investigating a report the plane may have struck a pole at the Fort Snelling National Cemetery, just south of Minneapolis-St. Paul airport on its first instrument run, which was unsuccessful. He said this report was made by the first car one wing was found eight blocks from the scene of the main crash.

Less than two airlines miles from the safety of the airport, the plane plummeted into the home of Franklin Doughty in a quiet residential section.

Shafts of flame spewed immediately from the disabled airliner to fire the neighboring homes of Mrs. Robert Lee and Irving Luger. Occupants of these two houses, forewarned by the earlier non-fiery explosion of the crash, fled to safety.

Engulfed by Flames

Janet Doughty, 10, and her 8-year-old brother, Tommy, part of the home television audience, were among the first rapid sheets of searing fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Doughty and another daughter, Judith, 5, were taken to hospital, suffering from burns, shock, cuts and bruises. Their condition was reported fair.

Crew members who perished were:

Capt. Donald Jones, Minneapolis, the pilot; William McGinn, South St. Paul, Minn., the co-pilot, and Stewardess Mary Alice Kennedy, St. Paul.

The passenger list included:

B. Eberhardt, a parts executive for the Ford Motor Company who boarded the plane at Detroit, bound for Fargo, N. D.

Dr. Joseph V. Brenner, 65, Dean of the Graduate School at the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks.

Reynold Malnquist, Minneapolis Fire Chief, said "identification of the victims will be all but impossible from what we find in the wreckage."

Says Dairies Must Be Solvent To Get Licences

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — Unless a dairy can put up a bond or satisfactory credit with a bank it will not be licensed, Agriculture Minister Kennedy told the Ontario Legislature Agriculture Committee yesterday.

C. G. (Gerry) Ben. B. Jolliffe said the law should be tightened because the Milk Control Board could not depend on farmers to report failure of dairies to pay promptly of milk produced. Roscoe Robson (PC — Hastings East) said some farmers were afraid to complain when a dairy was slow in paying in case the dairy would refuse to accept their shipments.

Mr. Jolliffe said some dairies pay farmers on a monthly or six-week basis. This meant dairies were sing money owed the farmer as working capital.

The committee passed an amendment to the Milk Control Act reducing from 75 to 66 per cent the number of producers who must vote in favor of a milk marketing agency before it is established. The Act also provides that if 66 per cent of producers vote against the Milk Control Board the world-wide Bible society gets a birthday cake from some overseas group each year and each year the cake weighs one pound more.

FRANKFORD

Frankford—The mild weather Sunday brought an abrupt end to last week's activities on the Mill Pond and Trent River. Large numbers took part in Saturday's sports events. It has been reported that a young girl suffered severe injuries to her face and head when she struck a fence while tobogganning on the south side of the hill, a short distance from the ski slope. She was brought to Frankford for medical attention.

Messrs. Raymond Lohnes and Dennis Kent of Stirling called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes Saturday.

The mild weather has brought the usual spring flooding conditions to the North Trent Shores, next to the village line. Motorists proceeding north are urged to take it easy after crossing the C.N.R. tracks on North Trent Street.

The Frankford Boy Scouts held their weekly meeting in the Community-Memorial Hall Friday night. Following inspection, a recreation period was enjoyed. Instructions in knots and several Scouts passed tests.
